True Record: Psycho Horror Images

This book compiles terrifying scenes that have occurred in reality, referred to as "psycho horror images," focusing on pictures circulated on video sites and message boards online, as well as videos submitted by readers. From shocking moments that make you want to cover your eyes to creeping horrors that cling to your skin, every video is a true record. We present not ghosts or the occult, but true horror.

A self-portrait taken by a girl just before her suicide, people who kill others without hesitation, victims subjected to brutal violence, graffiti on walls filled with resentment, paintings left behind by a serial killer... In this world, people perform moments of horror every day, and these are sometimes recorded by video or cameras.

Paintings created by a mentally ill artist as his condition progressed, a video filmed by four girls who jumped to their deaths, a man who sold meat buns containing human flesh, resentful graffiti left at an abandoned ruin site, a wife who calmly answers interviews after killing her husband, a doll made using real human eyeballs, a woman with five personalities, a man who committed suicide during a live news broadcast, a girl who was raped and had both eyes gouged out, paintings drawn by a serial killer, torture devices made by a man who killed a boy, a website created by a husband who announced his intention to kill his wife, a German stabber captured on surveillance cameras, a girl possessed by delusions of demons, a wife who cooked her husband and fed him to her children, threatening emails from a stalker, a video of a Barbie doll being dismembered, the house where a cannibalistic serial killer lived, a man who hanged himself in front of his girlfriend after calling her to an abandoned house, a woman who always appears at the front door at the same time, a stalker who hid under the bed for two days, a woman who lived in a love hotel, a woman who encountered a murderer in an abandoned ruin, the fate of a woman who used drugs for ten years, a monk who burned to death,

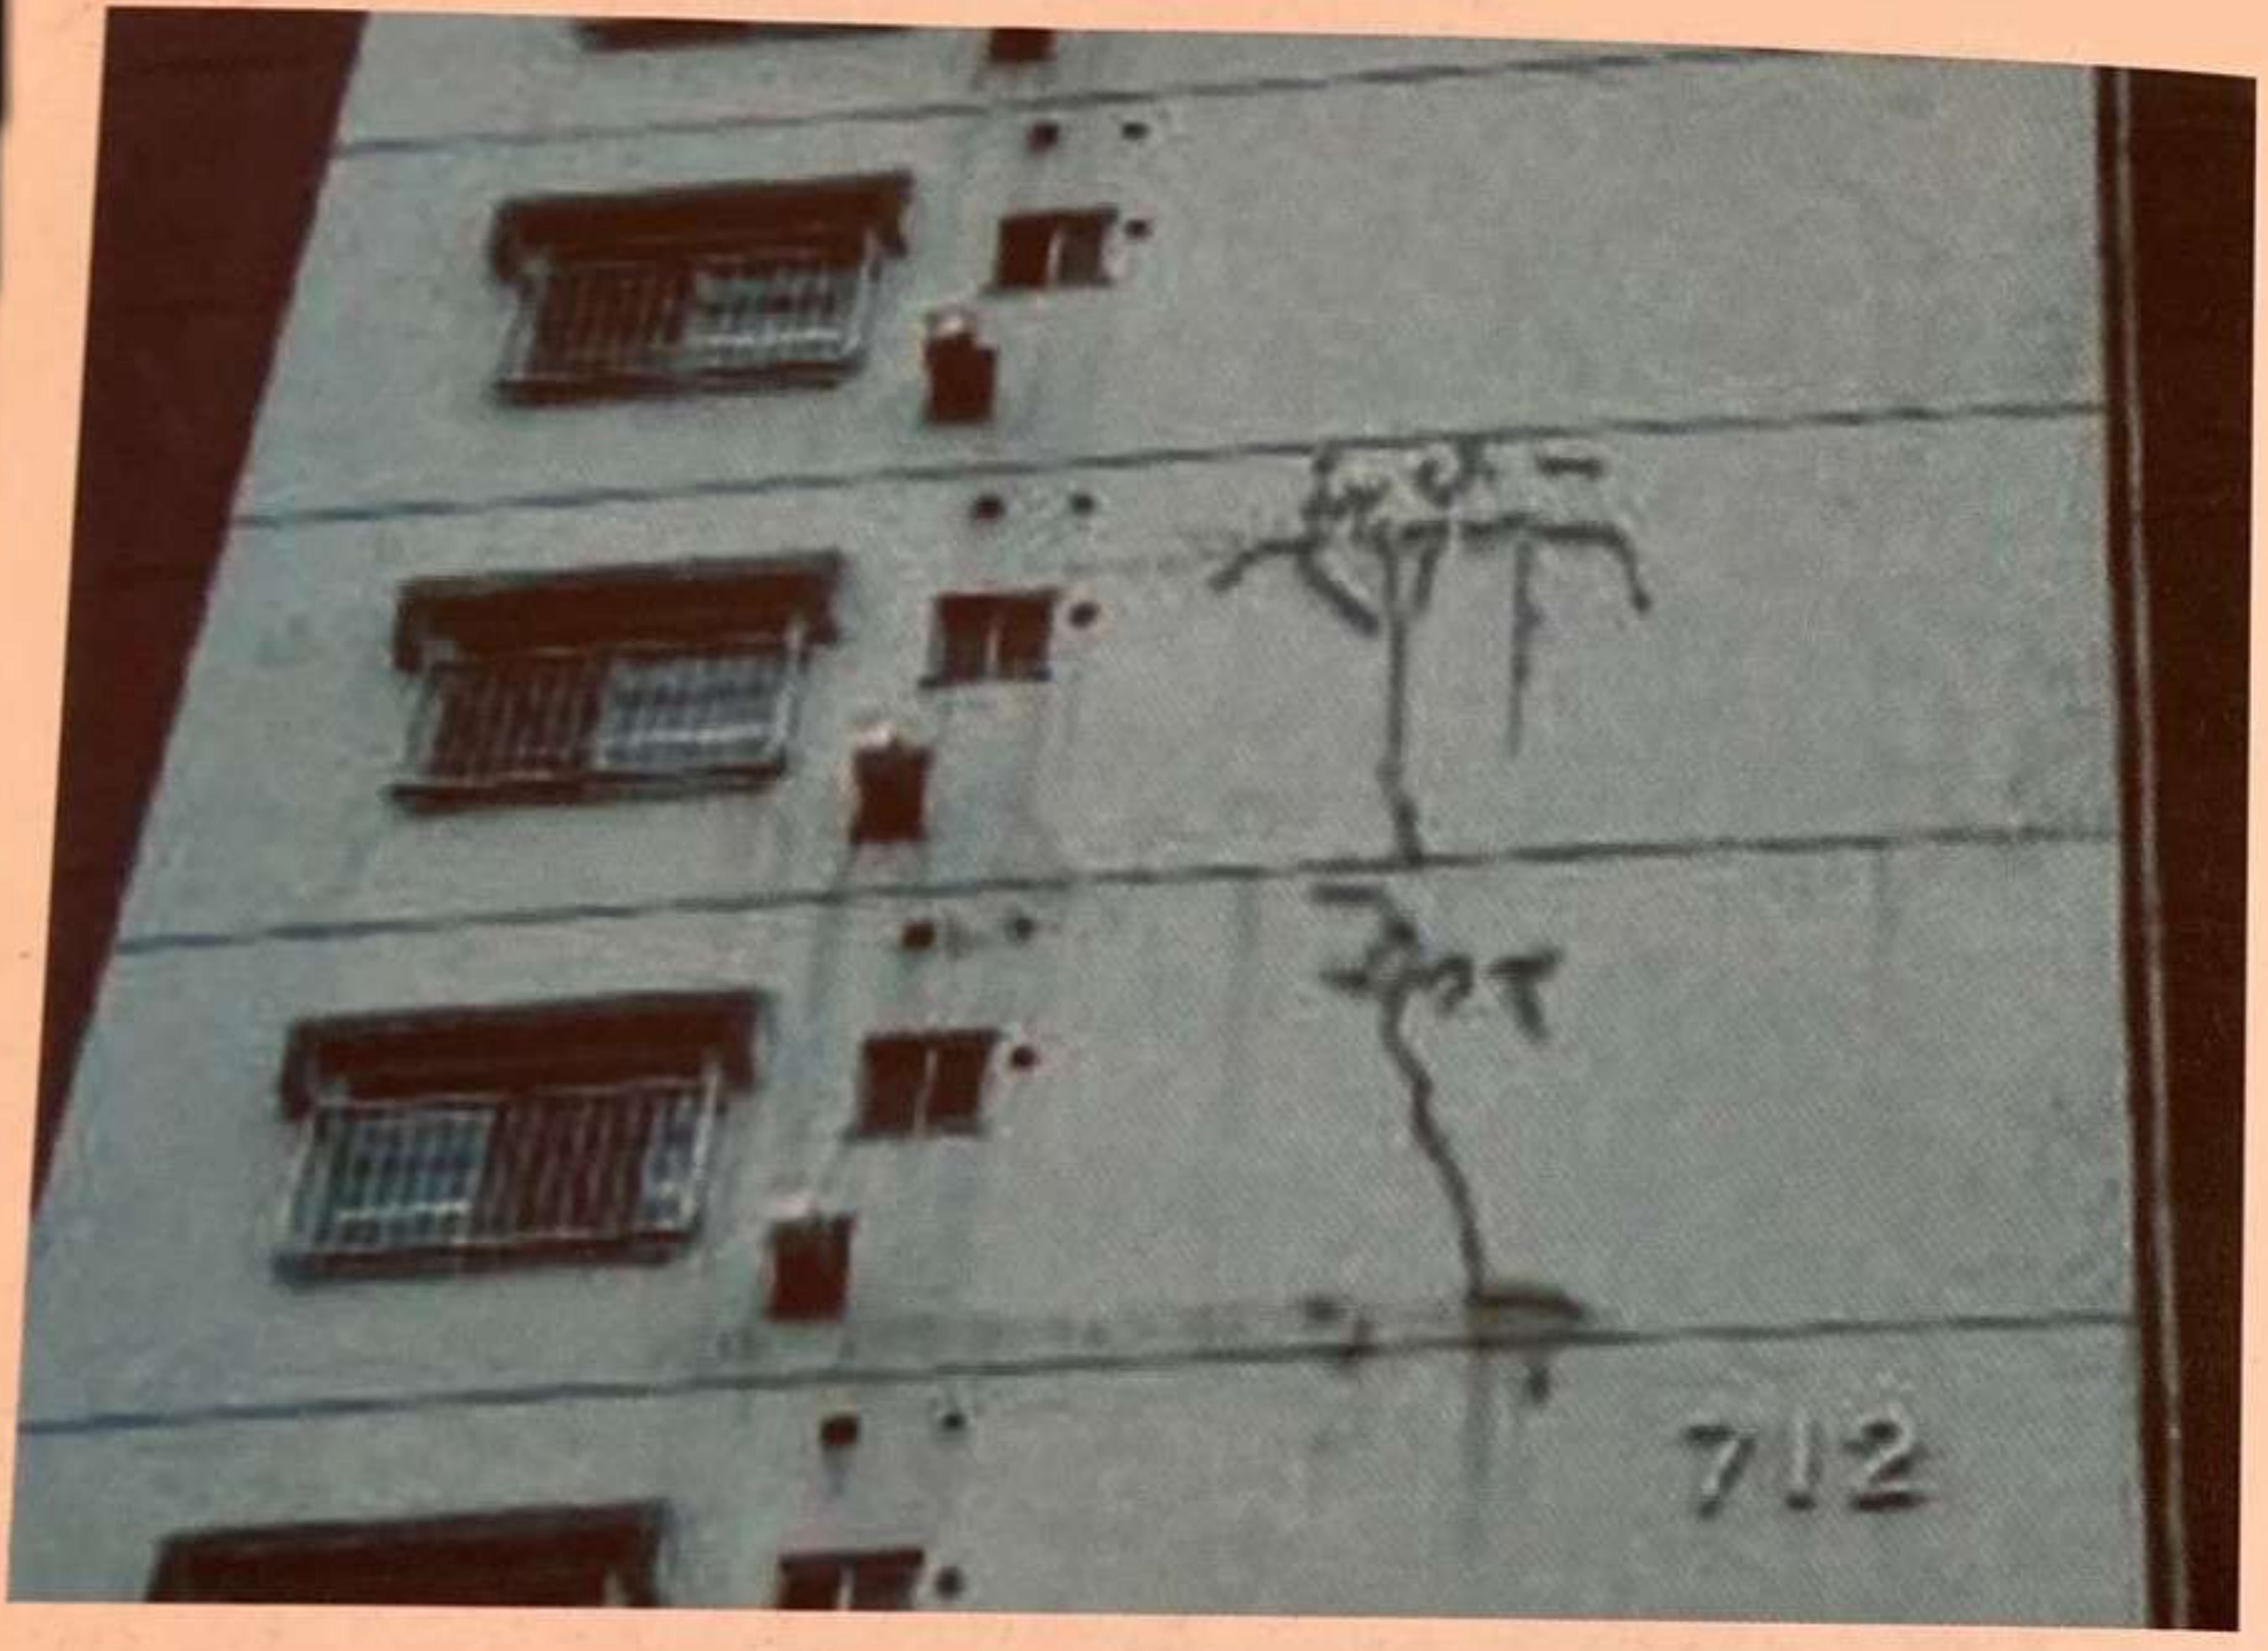
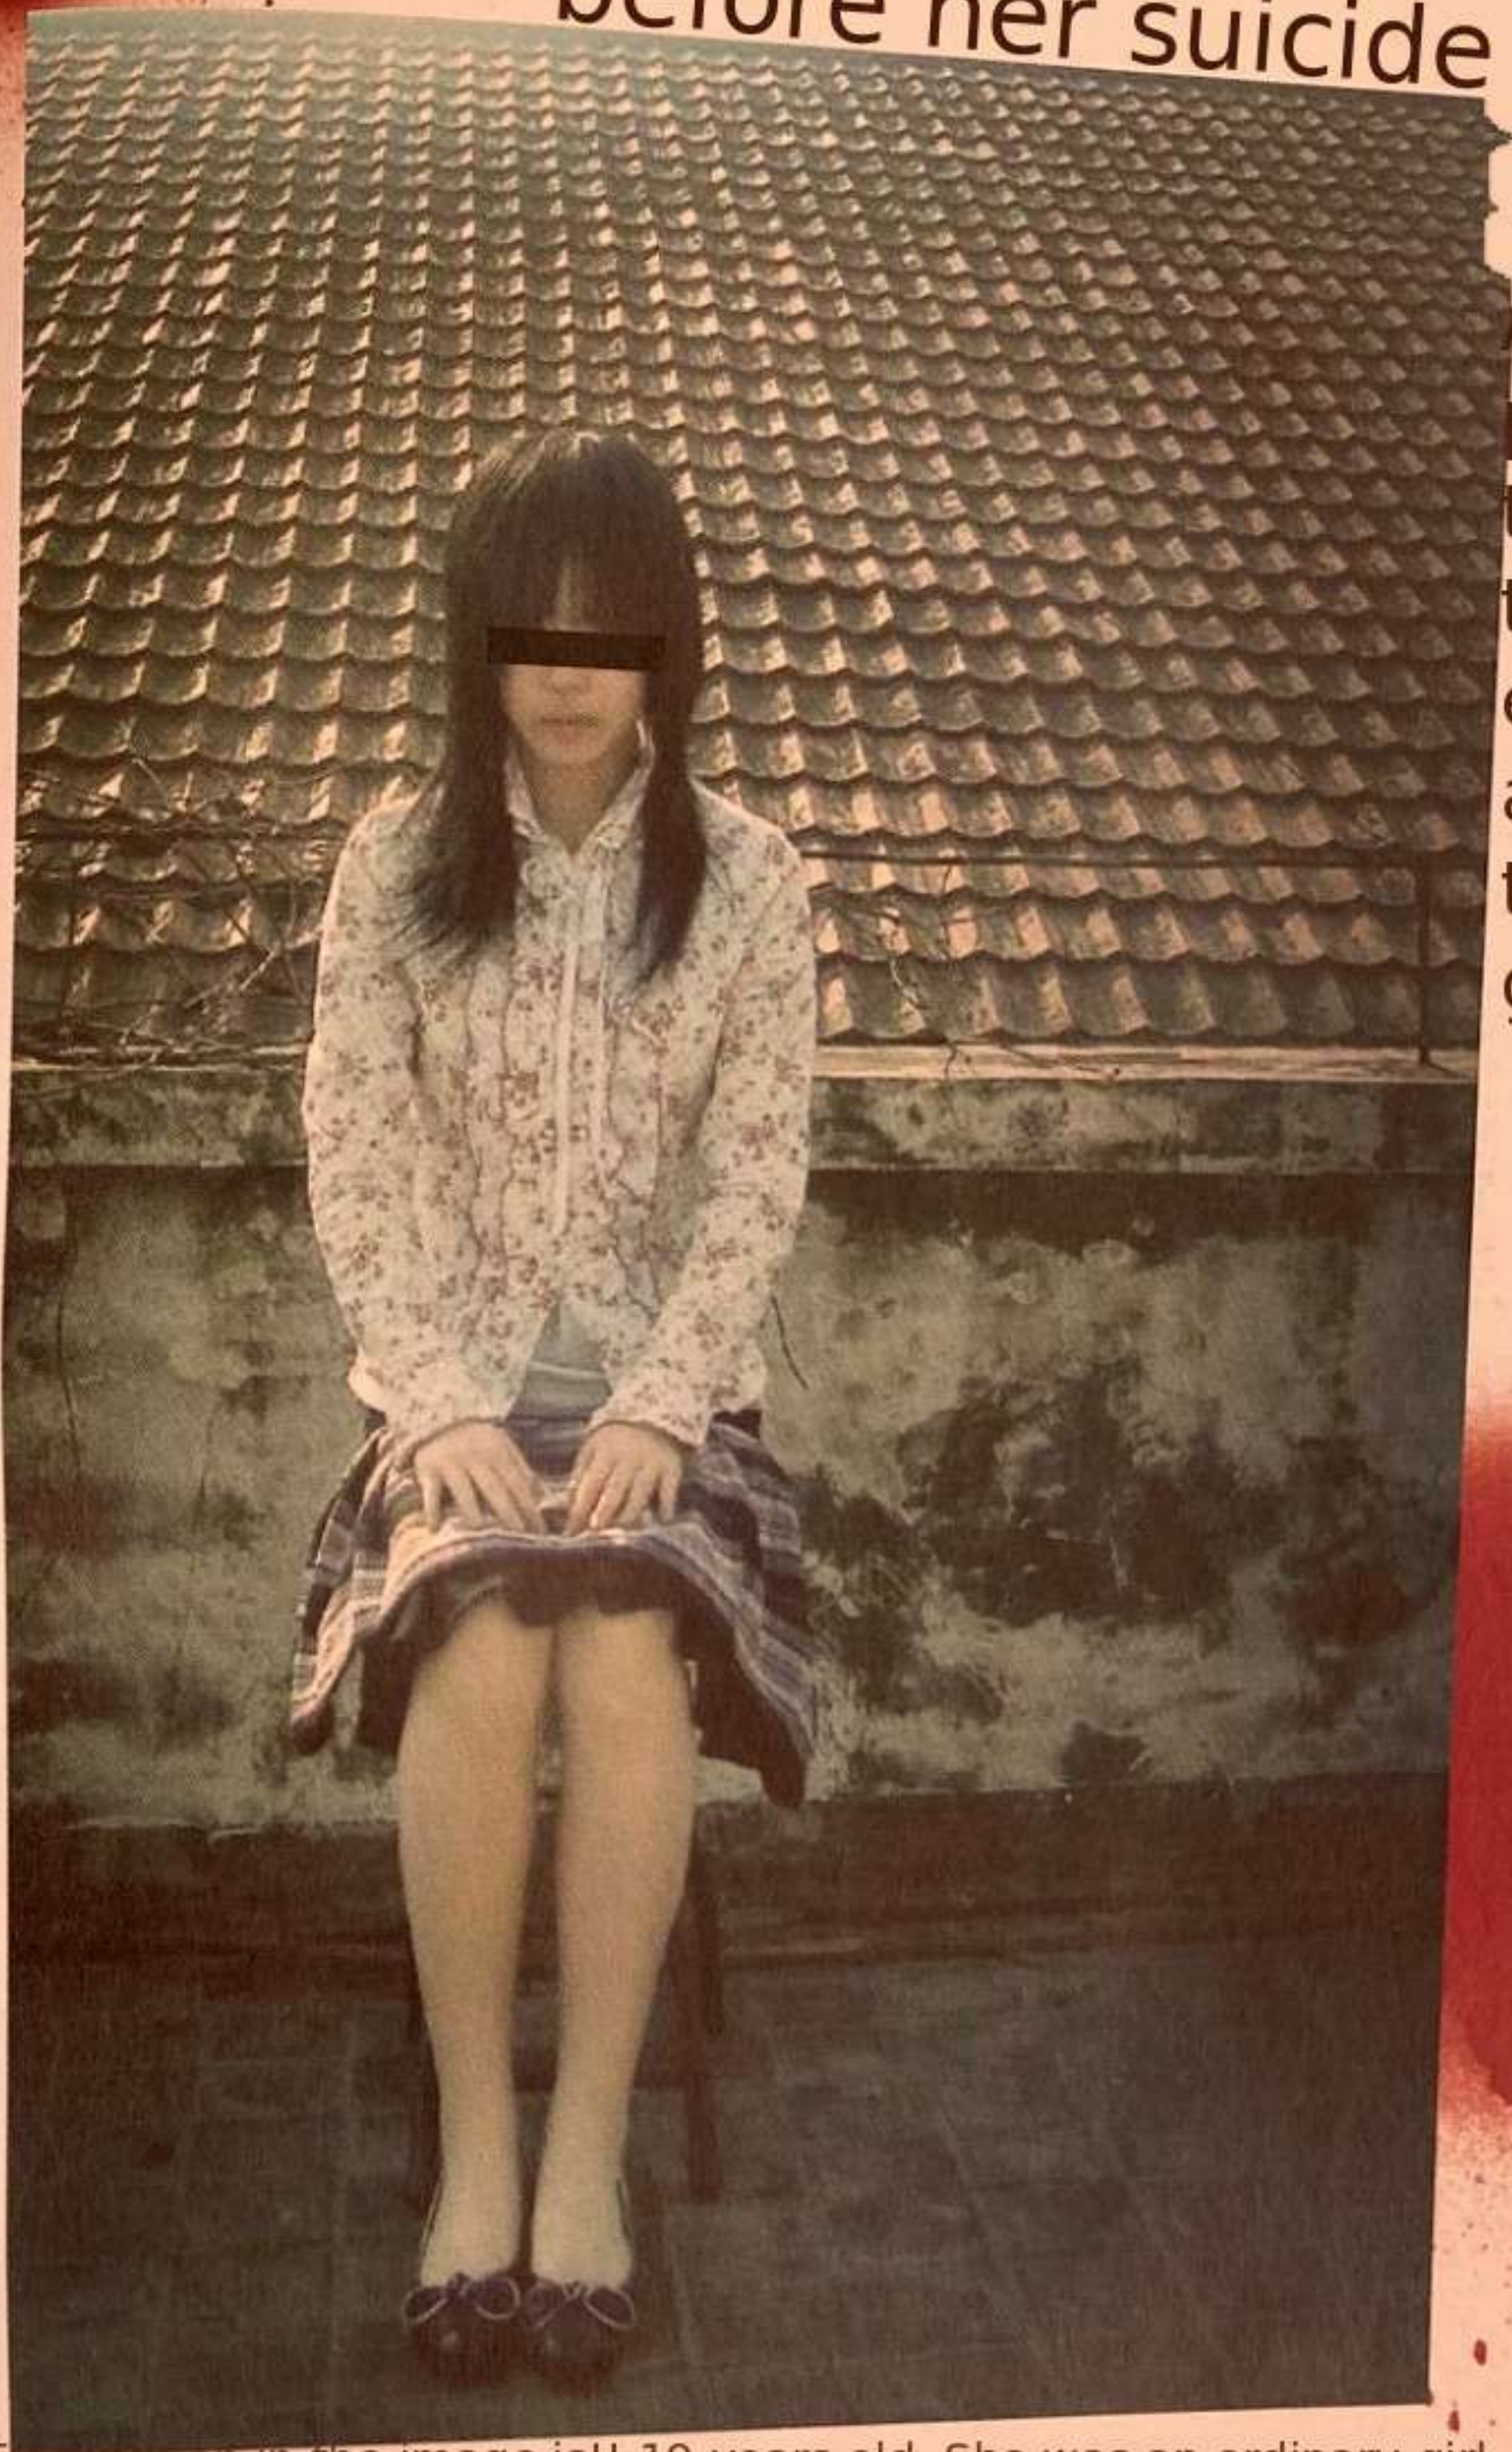
Sister's wall



This is a massive graffiti drawn on the wall of a certain apartment building in Tsukuba City, Ibaraki Prefecture. Its total length is approximately 6 meters. Apart from the large spray-painted words "Sister," it is completely unknown who did it and for what purpose. Due to its extreme mystery, an urban legend emerged among the nearby residents. Once, across the road from this apartment building, there was a family restaurant. One day, a child standing in front of that family restaurant noticed their sister standing on the opposite side of the road and dashed out into the street. Then, a car came... At that moment, the last word the child shouted, "Sister," is said to have appeared on the wall. Some even claim that no matter how many times the wall is painted over, the characters reappear. Incidentally, this graffiti is now impossible to see because the apartment management company has painted over the wall.

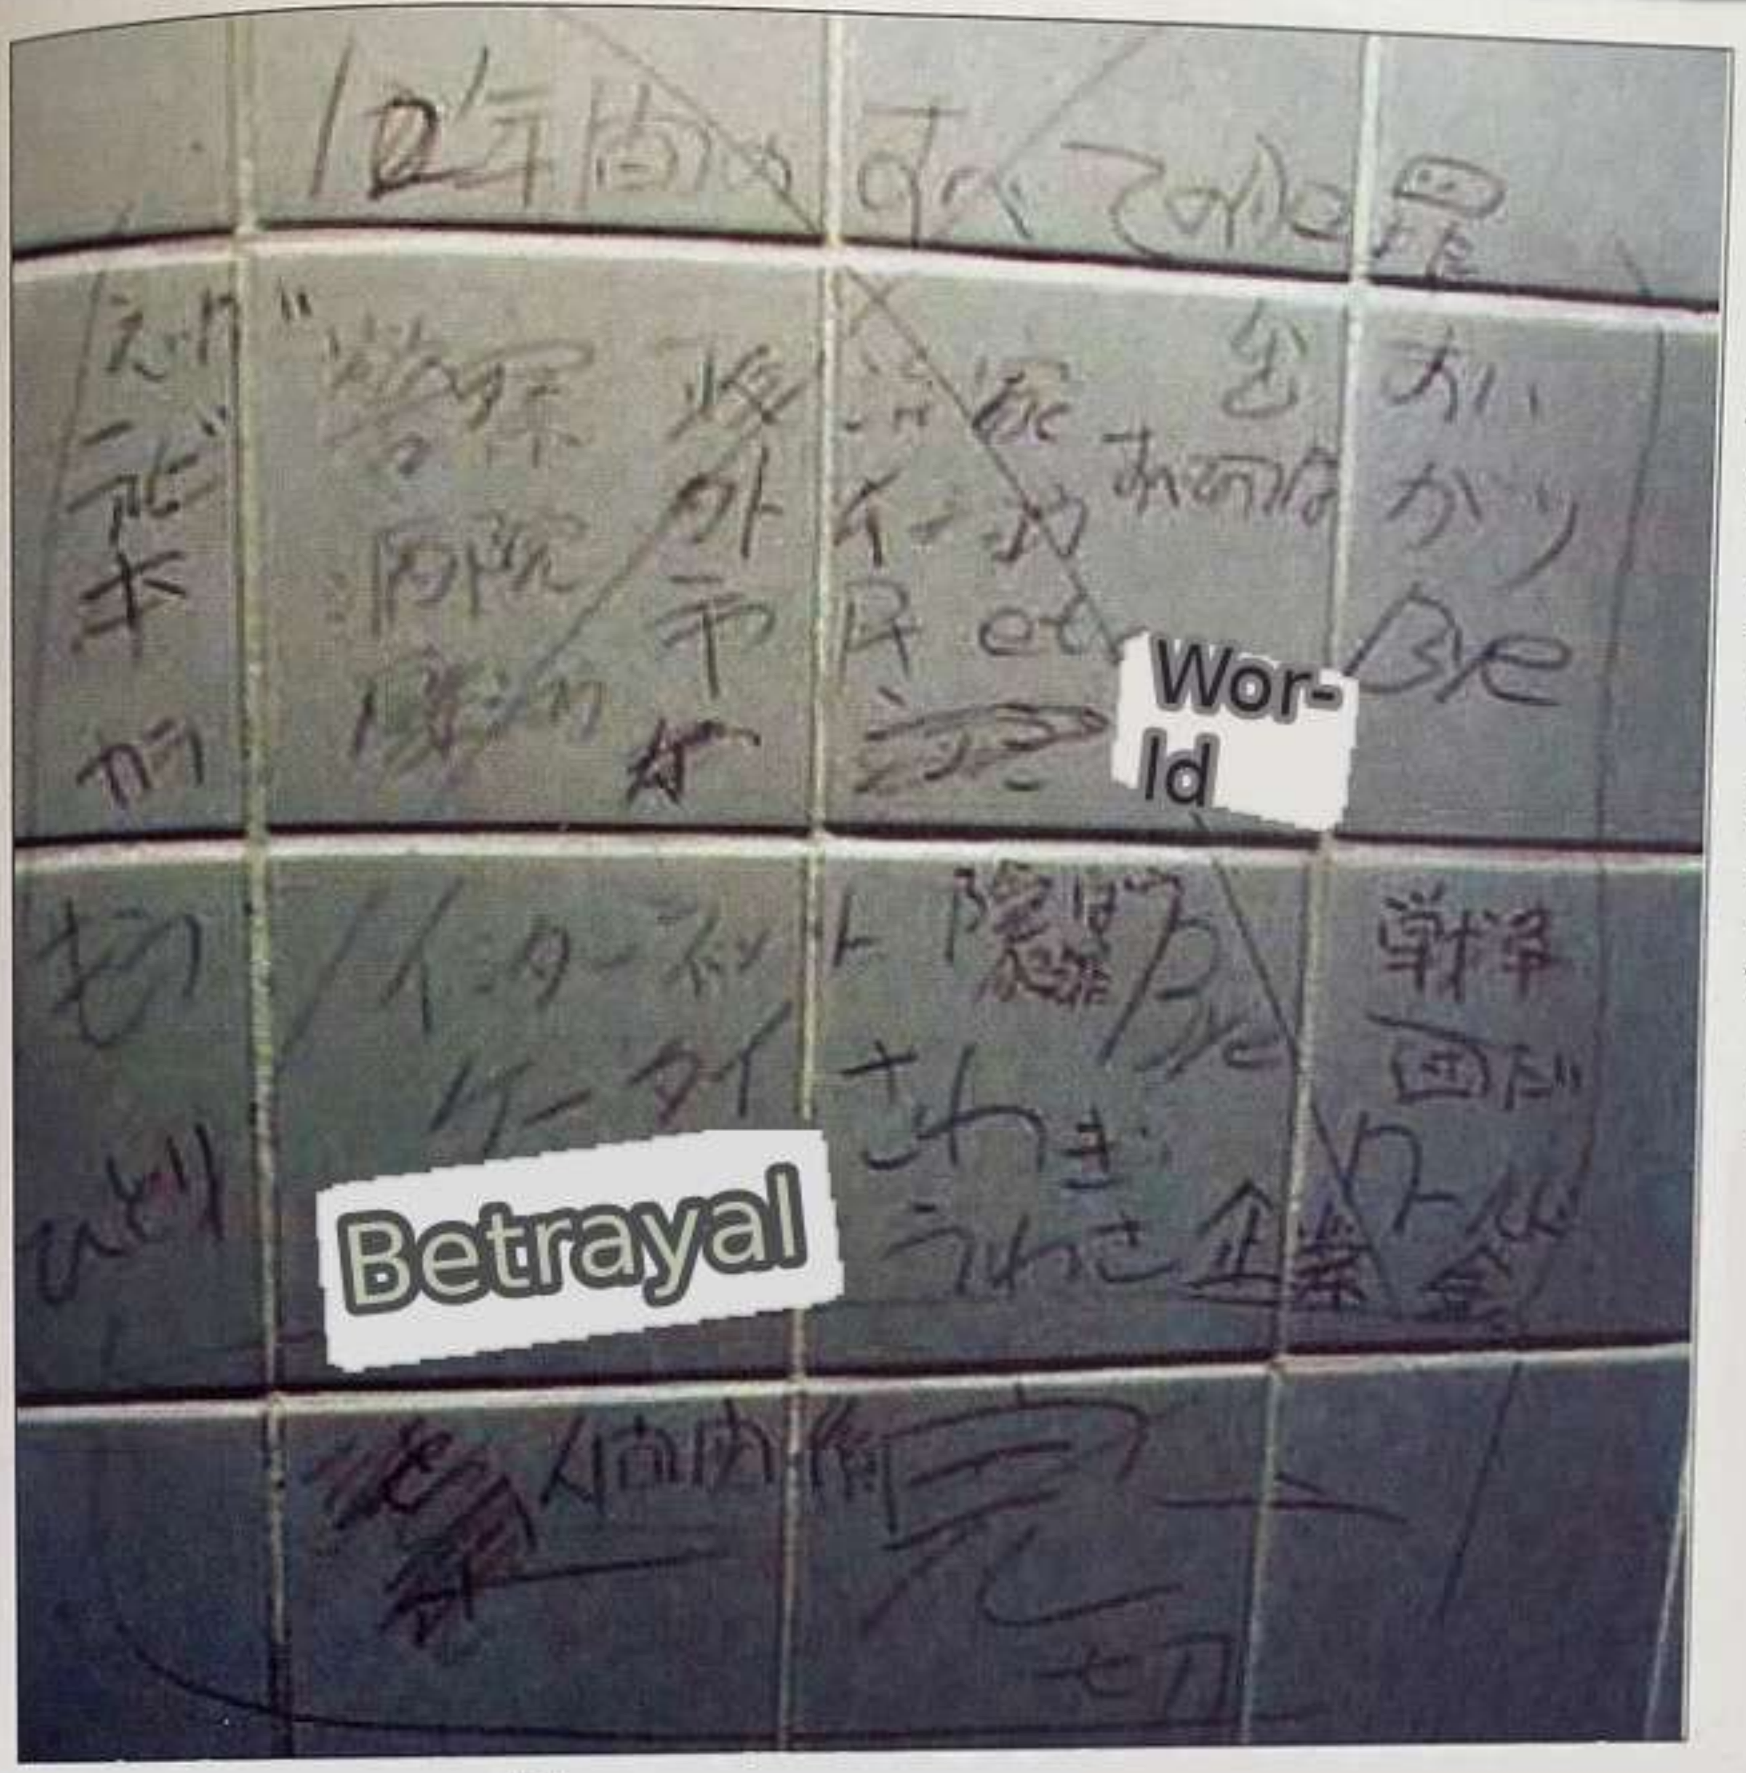
A 19-year-old woman before her suicide

A portrait taken as a target



The woman in the image is!! 19 years old. She was an ordinary girl, but one day, her boyfriend broke up with her. To her desperate pleas, the man said, "Give me your most beautiful photo. I don't want to forget you." Immediately after, she took this photo on the rooftop of her home, sent it to her boyfriend via email, and then jumped to her death. Upon learning of the incident, her boyfriend reportedly went insane after seeing the photo and jumped from the same location.

All Crimes Over 12 Years



This is graffiti drawn on the wall of a certain public women's restroom in Shinjuku. The content is roughly as follows: "All crimes over 12 years, movies, police, politicians, encounters, television, hospitals, external delusions, all connections, books, welfare, citizens, etc., world, By also from, internet, shadows, crime, Bye, war, another person, cell phone, commotion, groups, world, betrayal, rumors, corporations, money, human relationships, - end -"

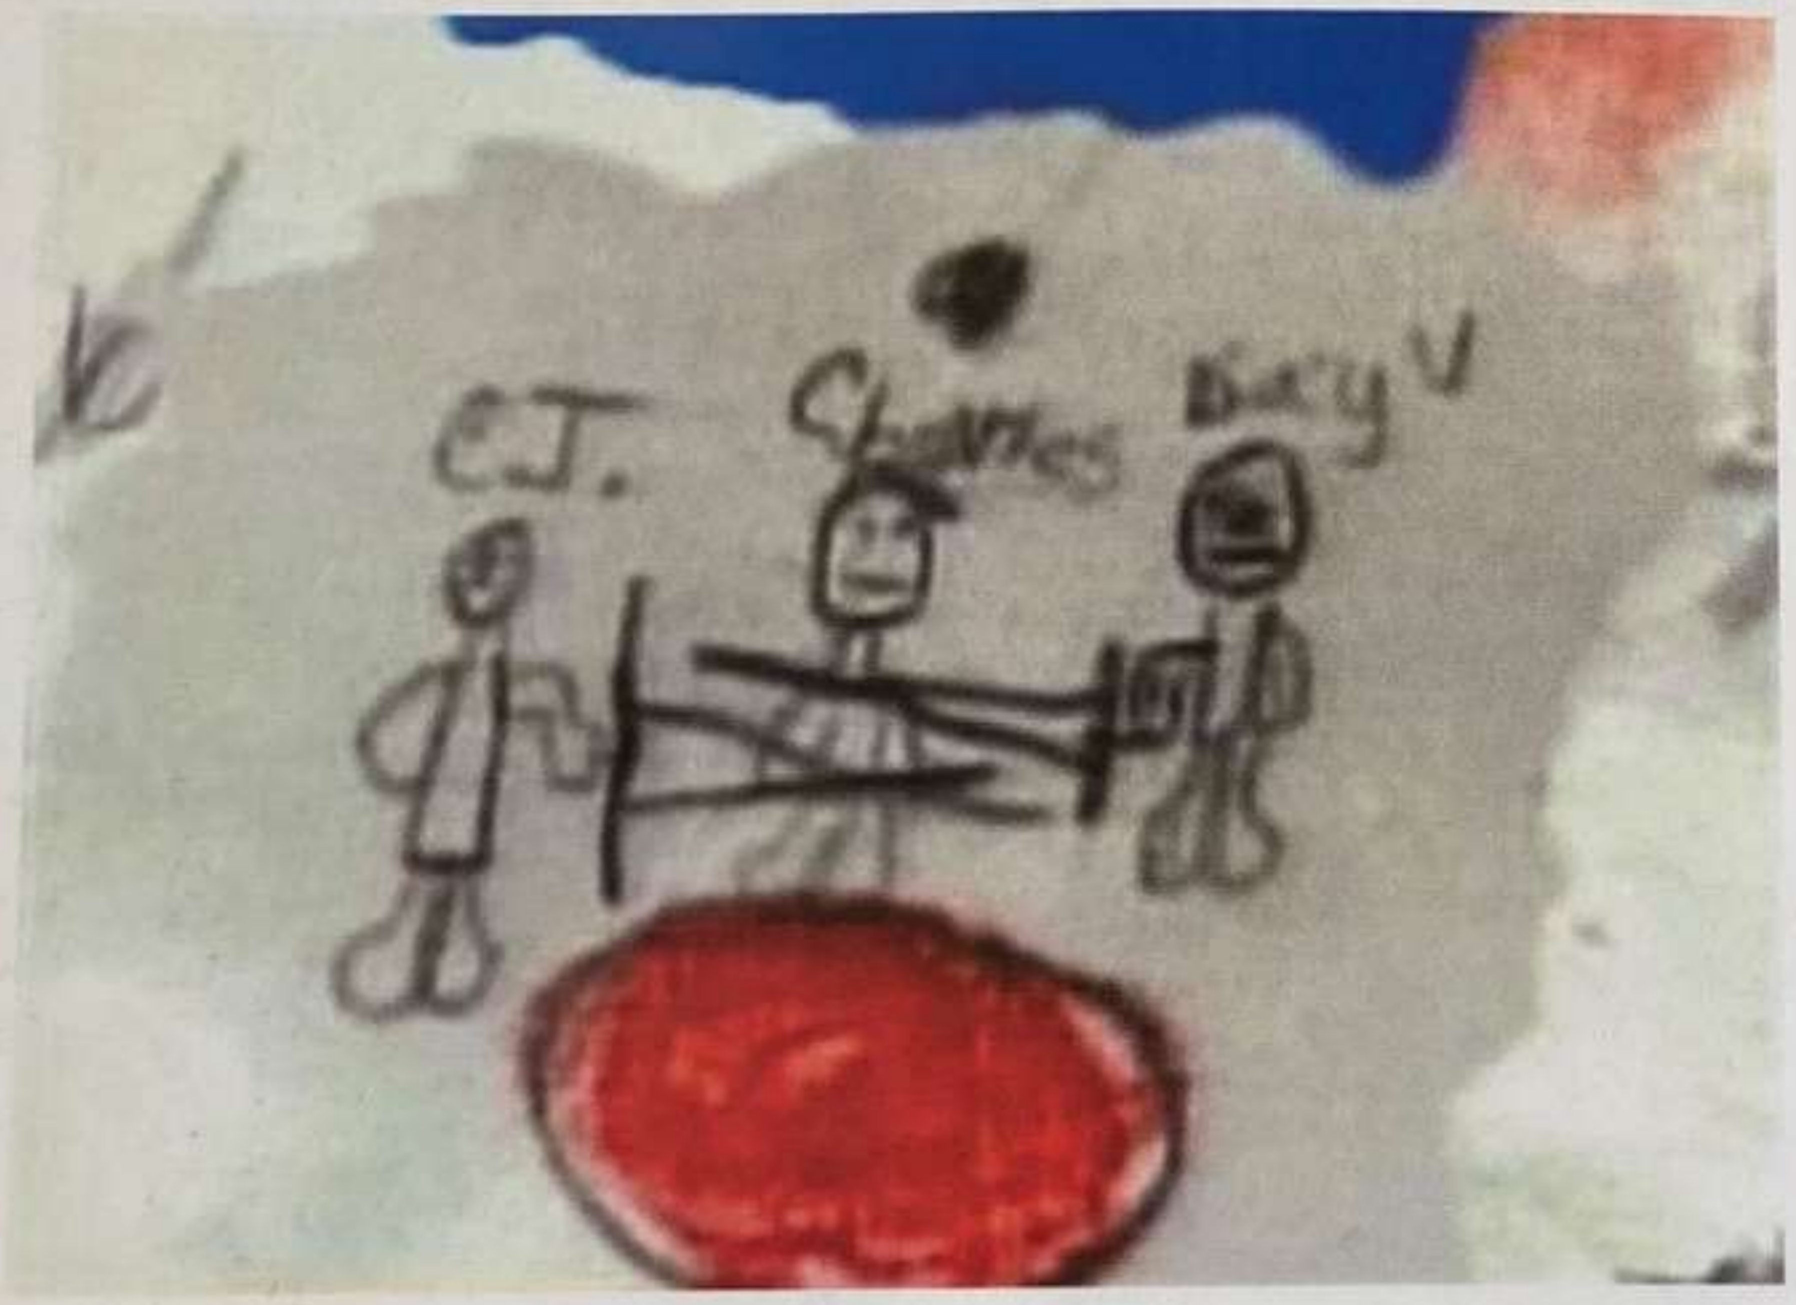
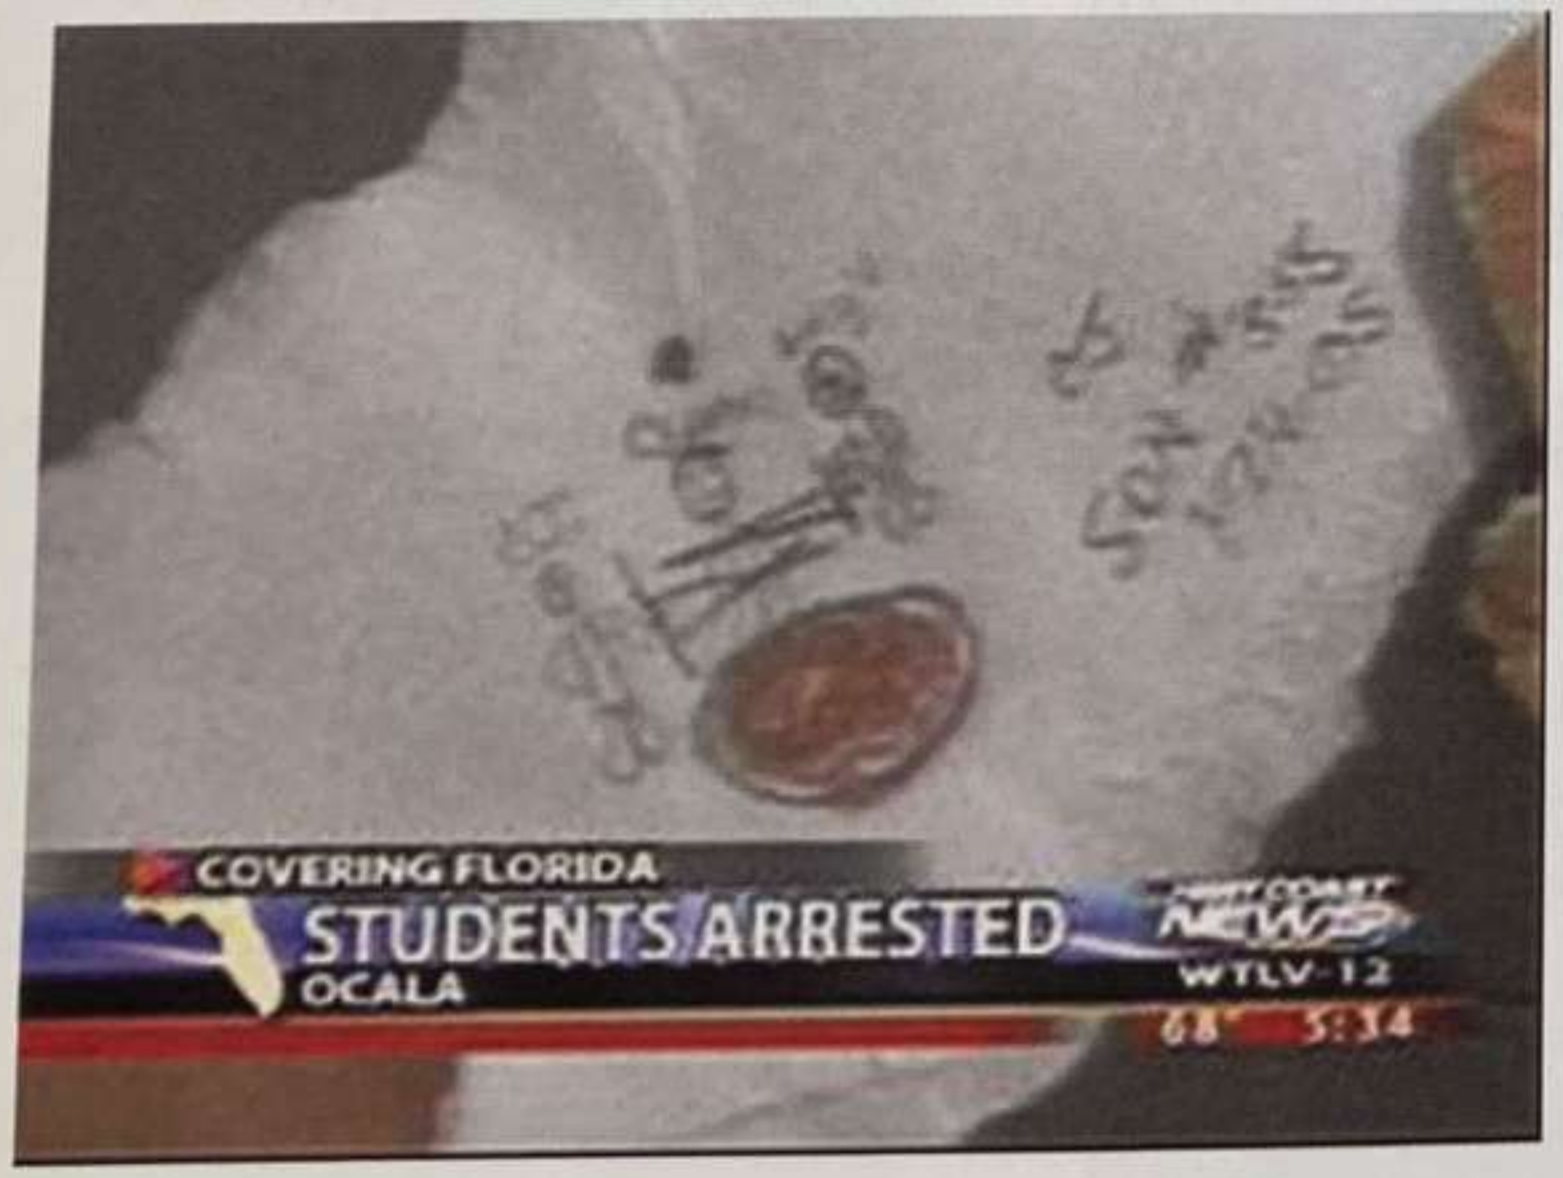
A Boy's Drawing Predicting the Murder of a Classmate





【The Incident Was Widely Reported Across the United States By Media

In 2005, at an elementary school in Florida, USA, two boys aged 9 and 10 were arrested by local police. The charge was murder. They had stabbed a boy (10 years old) from the same class multiple times with a kitchen knife, killing him. The perpetrator boys had been drawing pictures of the victim being stabbed with a knife for several weeks prior, foretelling the murder. The classroom at Okala Elementary School, the scene of the incident, was a sea of blood, just as depicted in the illustrations.

Paintings of cats created by a painter with schizophrenia as his illness progressed.

These are cat paintings continuously created throughout the life of British painter Louis Wain, born in 1860. Louis developed schizophrenia at the age of 57. He spent the last 15 years of his life in a psychiatric hospital, tirelessly painting cats. In this way, Wain became globally recognized in the field of psychiatry as a painter who left behind artworks that clearly illustrate the progression of schizophrenia symptoms.

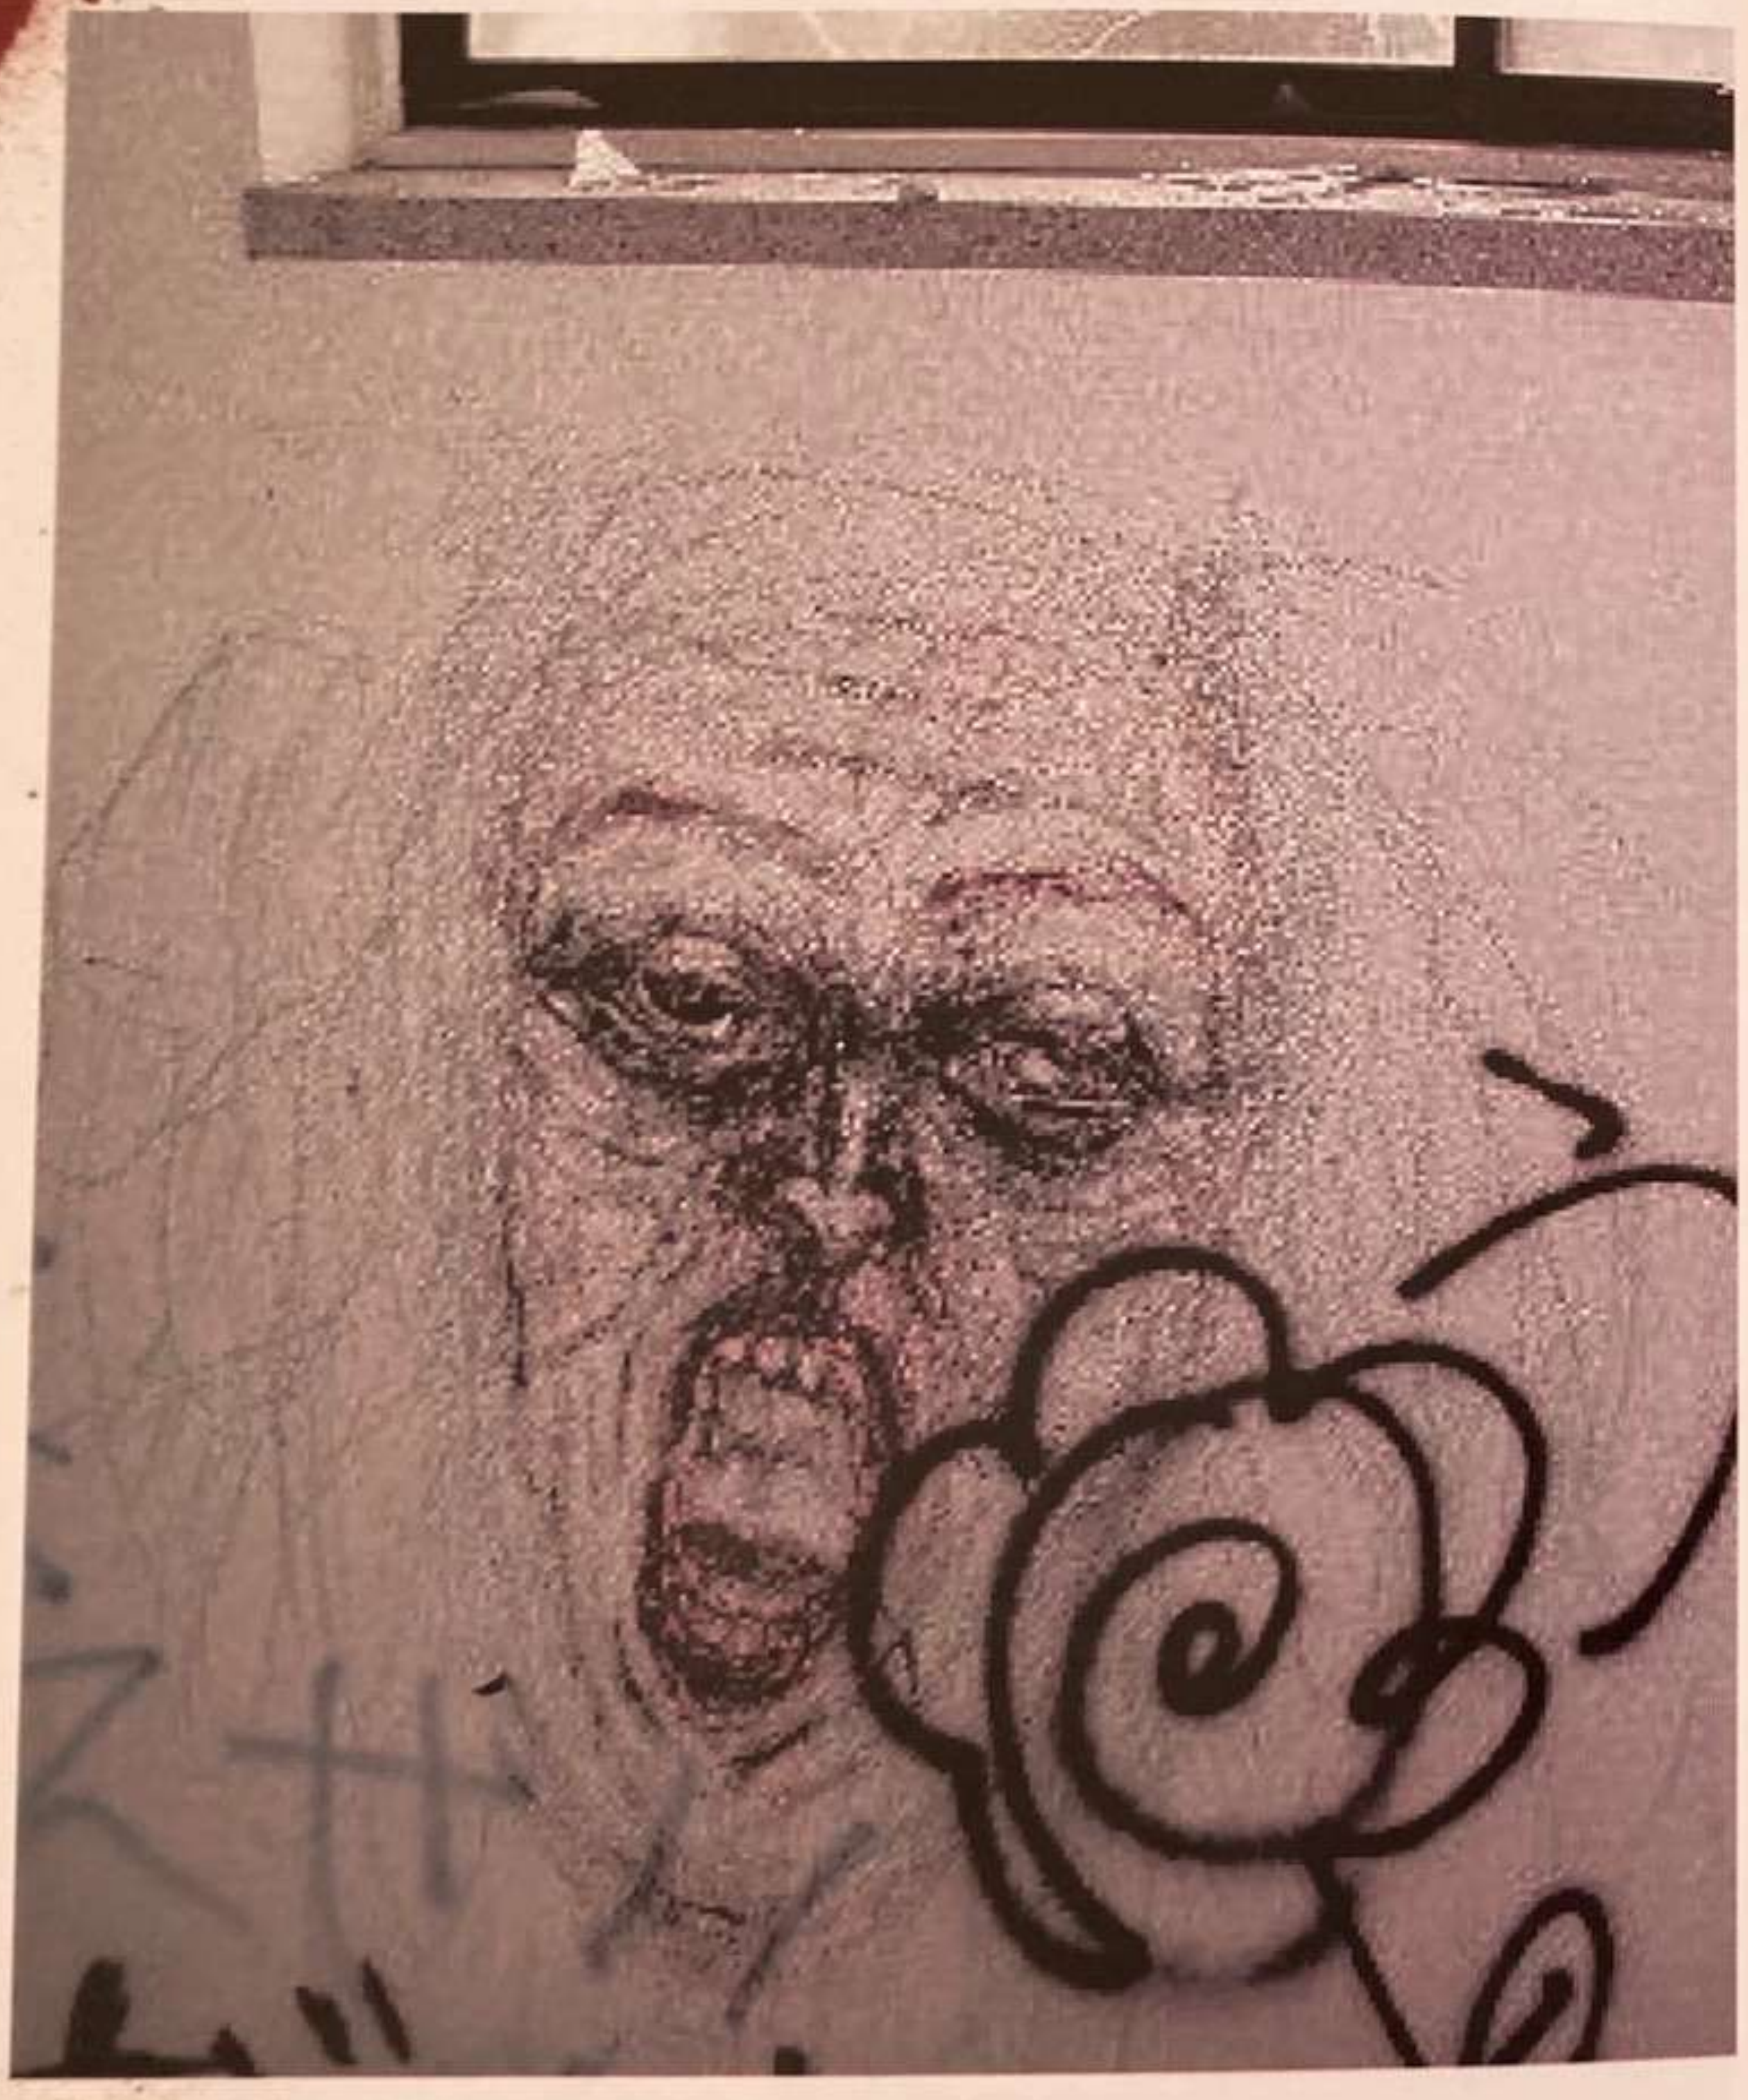
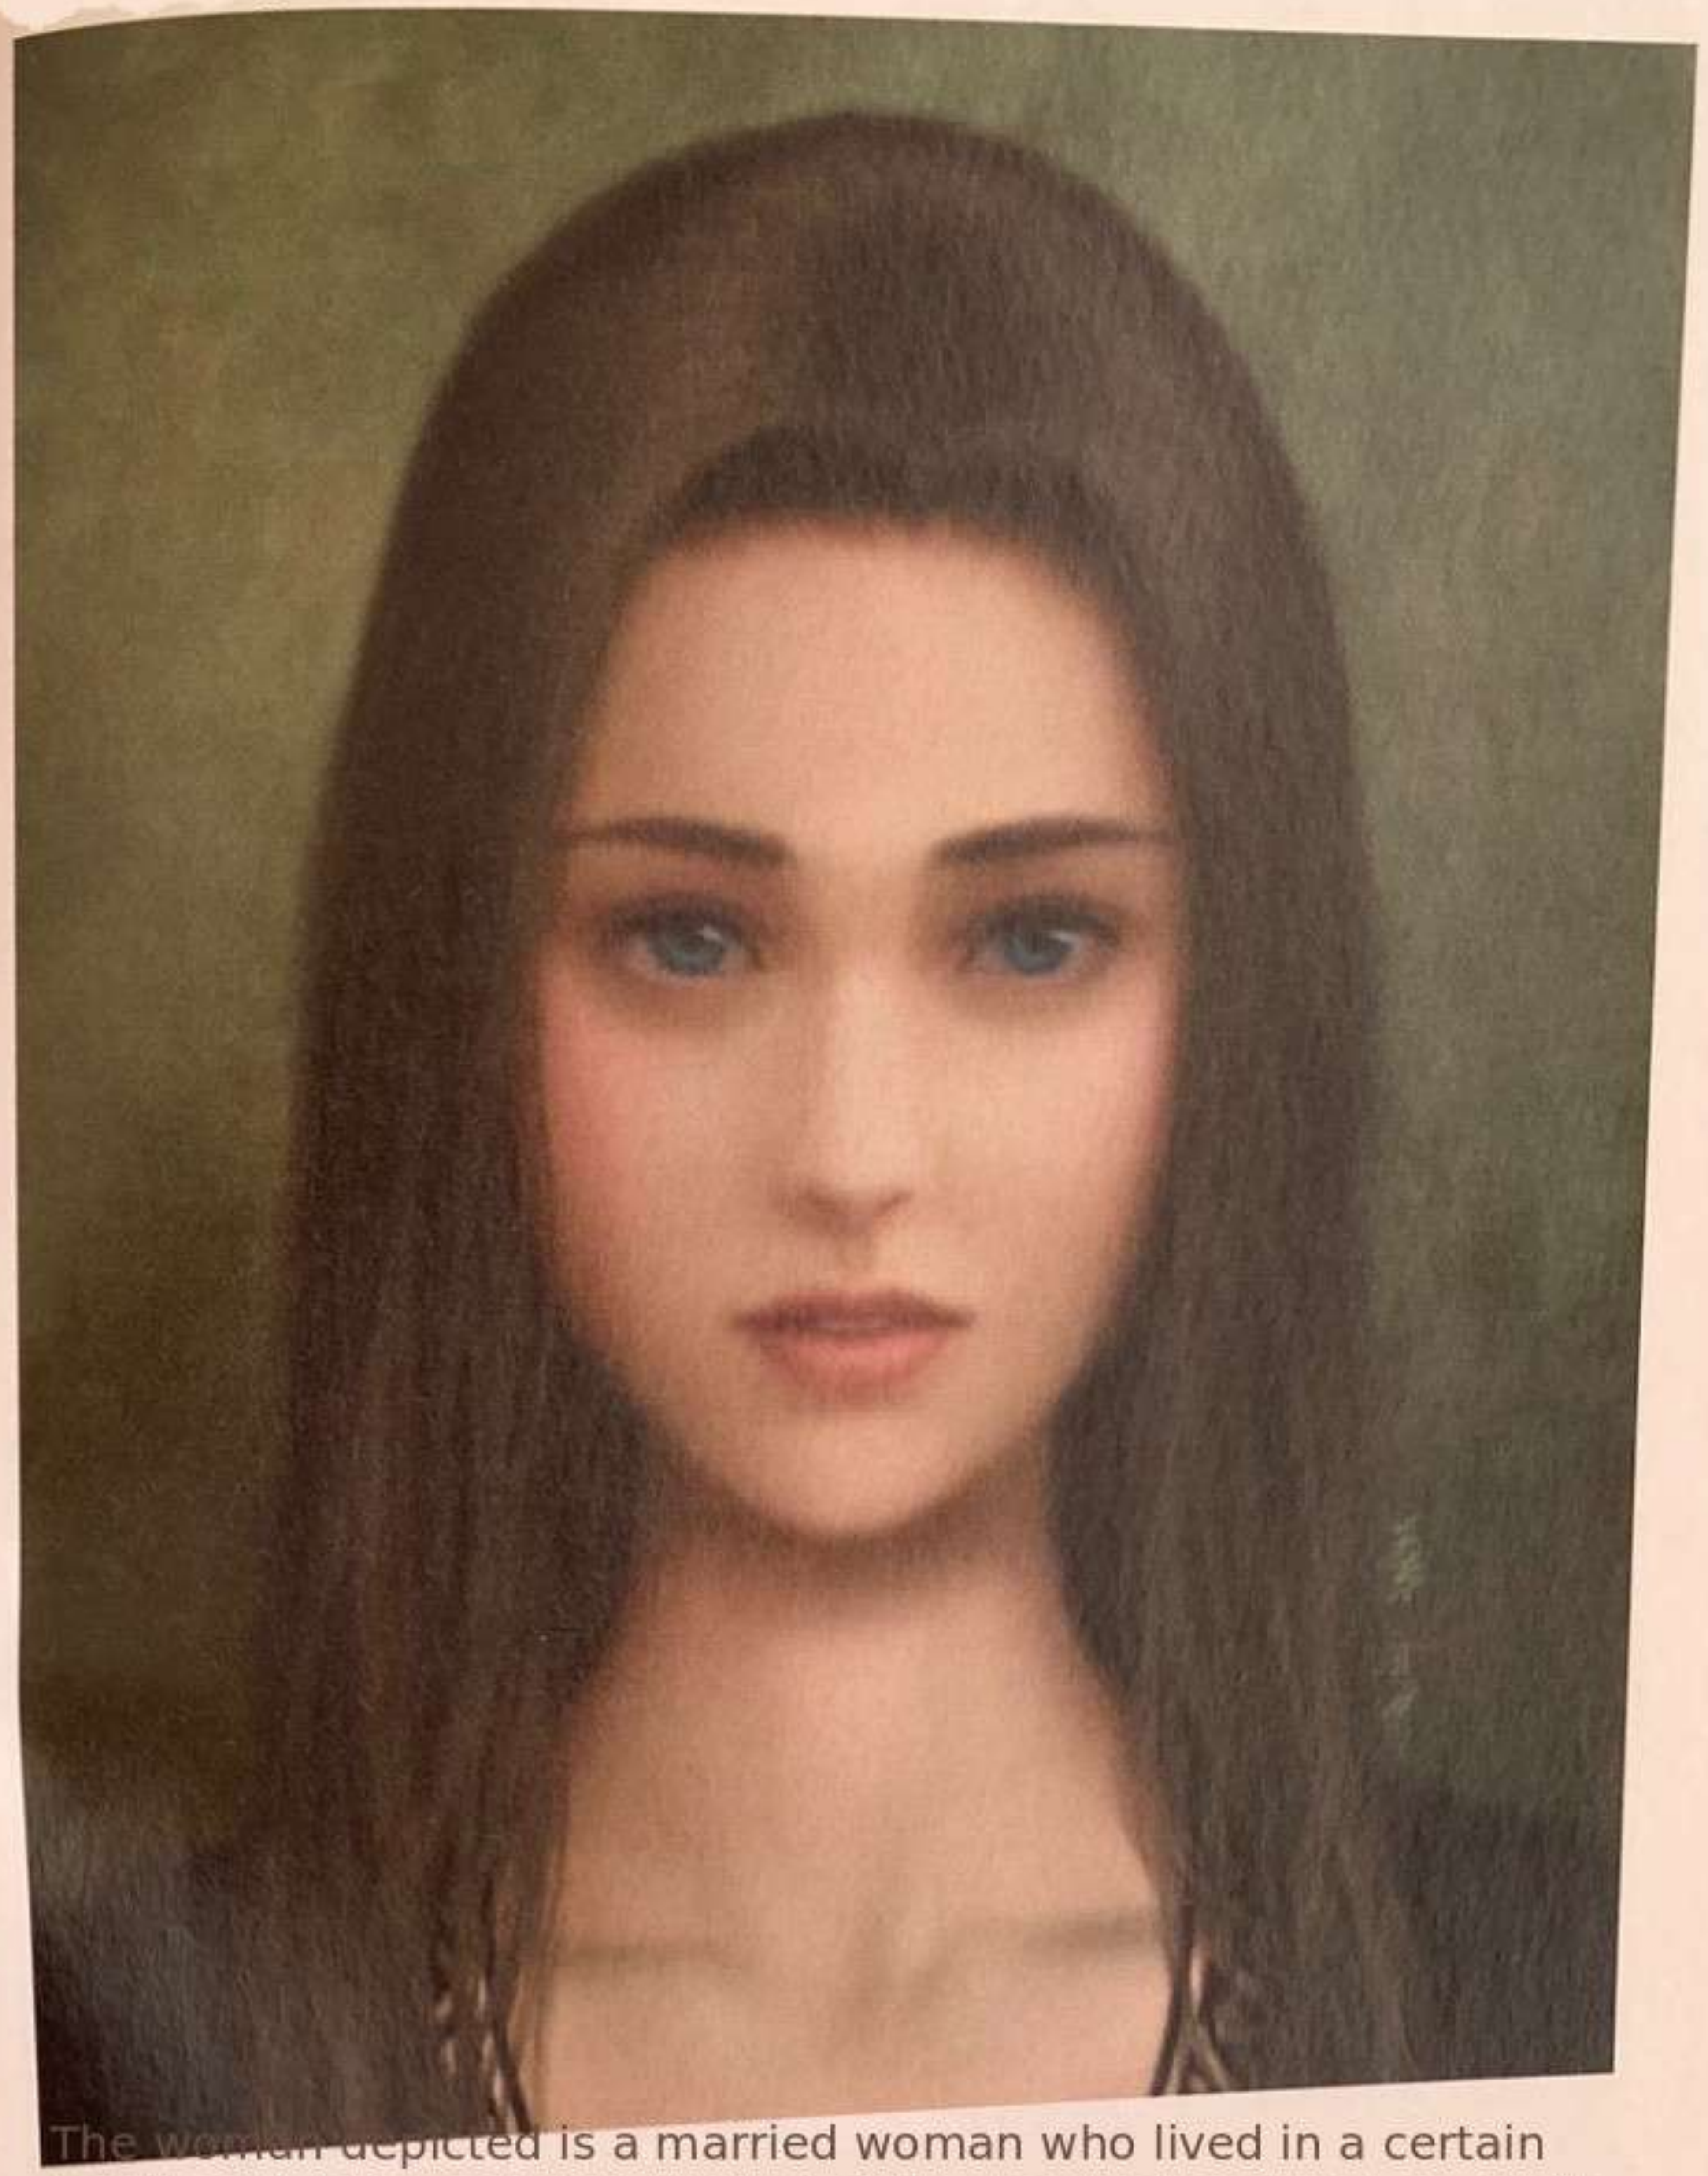
A Mural Drawn by a Suicide Victim Just Before Death



In July 2005, a man jumped from the rooftop of an abandoned apartment building somewhere in Tokyo. The image you see is a painting he hastily drew on the wall just before heading to the rooftop. Since there were no other messages left, it remains unknown what he was thinking when he created this painting.

The World's Most Terrifying Painting



The woman depicted is a married woman who lived in a certain Southeast Asian country. Around 1956, her husband had an affair, leading her to despair and commit suicide. Grieving over this, the husband painted a portrait of his wife himself. Immediately after completing the painting, the husband jumped to his death. Since then, the painting has passed through the hands of various people, but each owner went insane and died, earning it the nickname "the world's most terrifying painting." So far, seven owners have died. It is said that they all died in their beds, having lost control of their bowels and bladder, with their faces scratched to shreds.

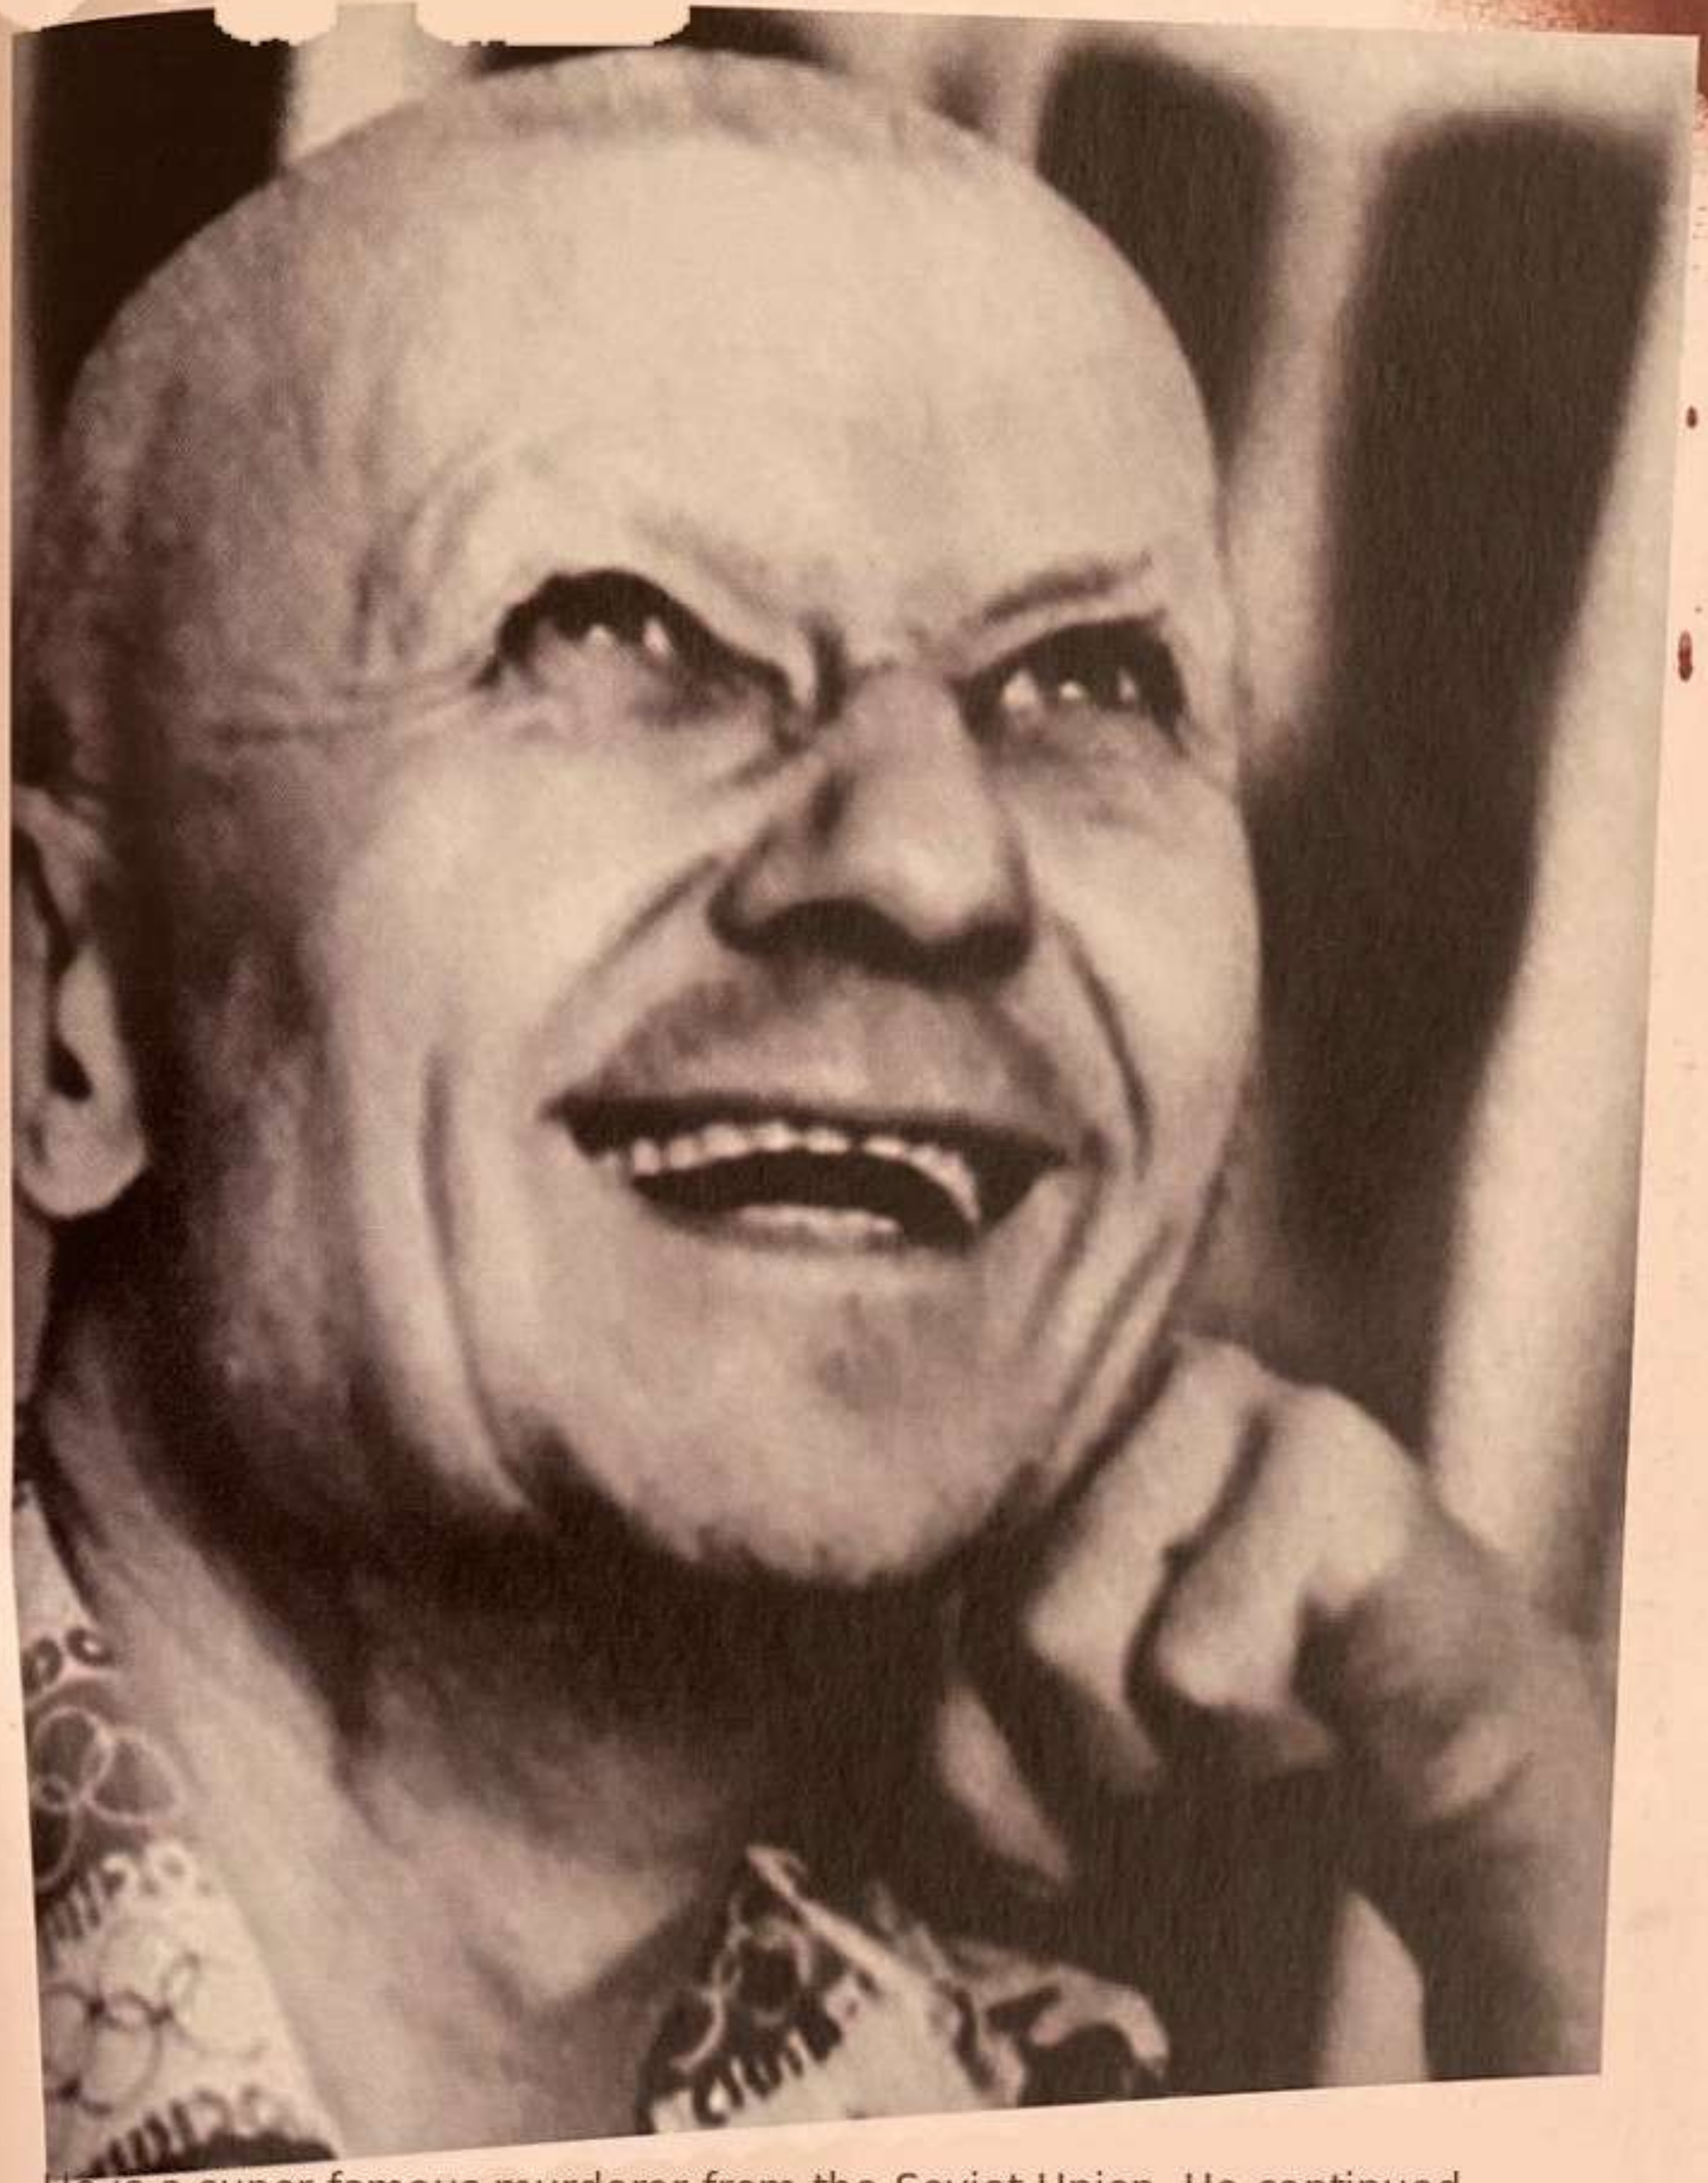
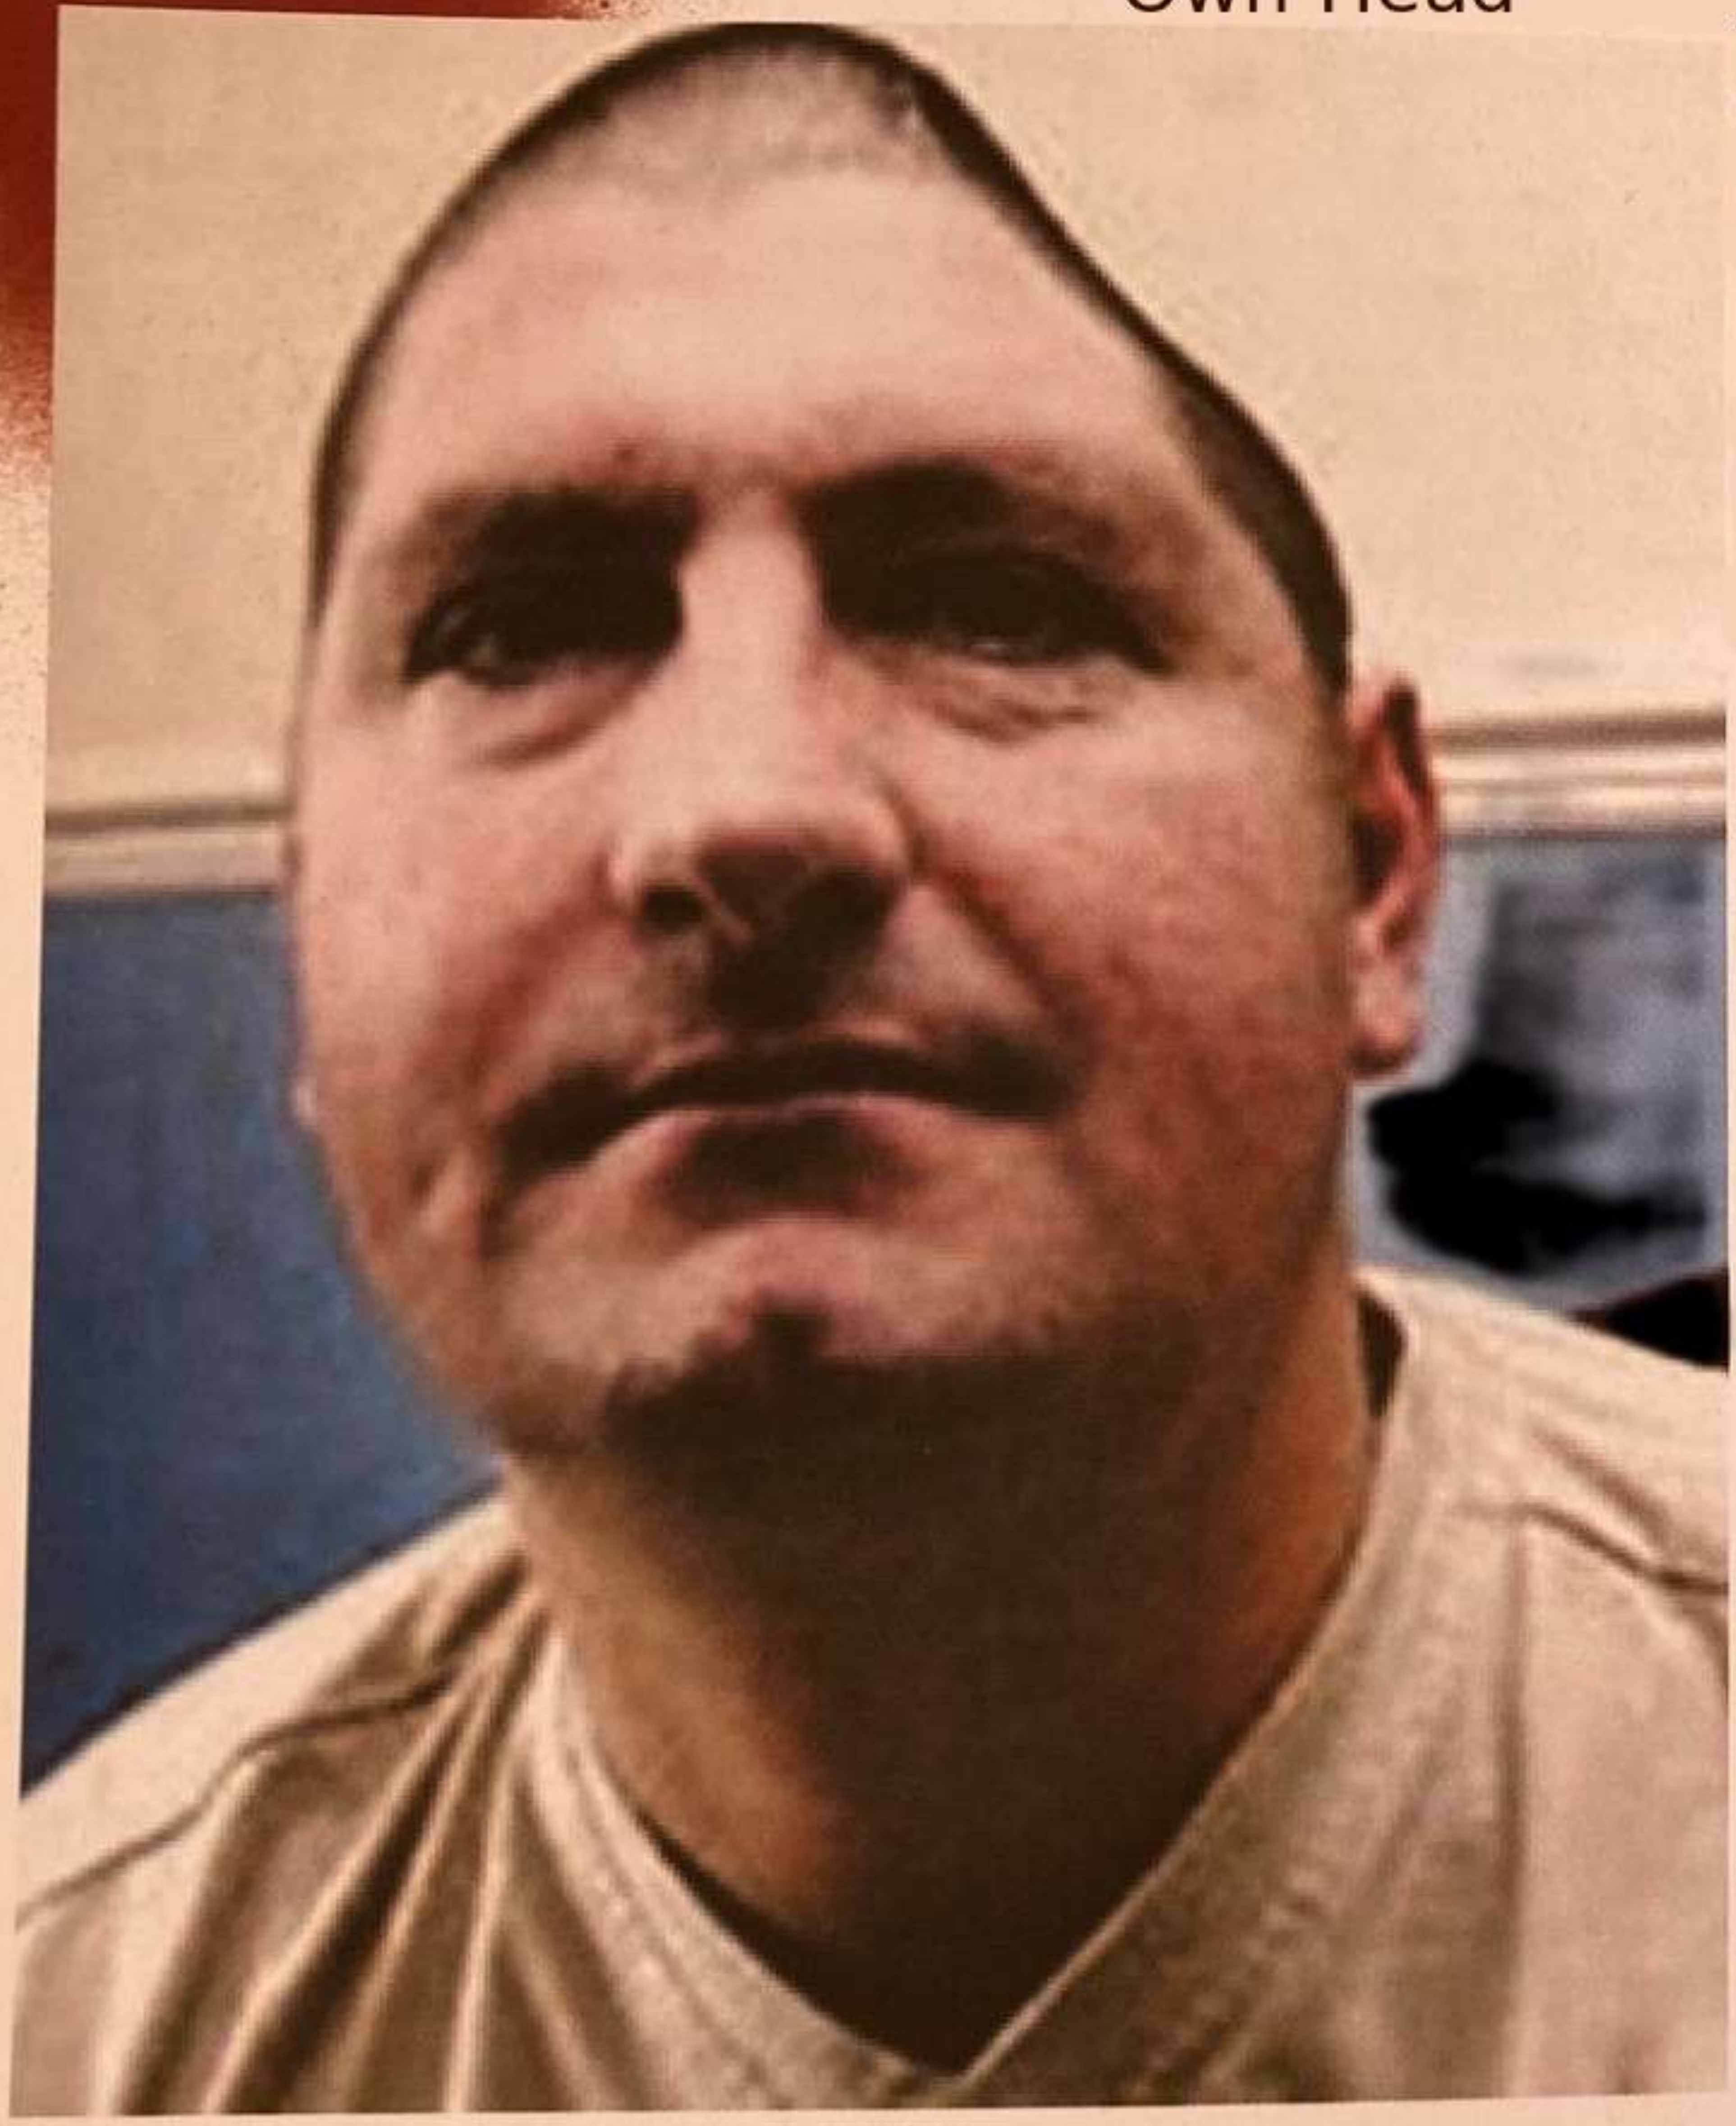
The Laughing Murderer 1: Andrei Chikatilo



He is a super-famous murderer from the Soviet Union. He continued killing, primarily targeting boys and girls, and had taken the lives of 52 people before being arrested by the KGB. During the trial, he appeared wearing a polo shirt with the Moscow Olympics logo. He repeatedly engaged in bizarre behaviors, such as taking off his pants to expose his genitals and pulling out pornographic photos to hold them high. Additionally, when a bereaved family member shouted at Chikatilo, "Give me back my son!" he pointed to his own mouth and whispered, "Your child went in here," then pointed to his buttocks and said with a smile, "And came out as shit from here."

Shaving Off His Own Head

The Man Who Carved It Off



The man in the photo is Angelo Berger (45 years old), who lives in the United States. Unable to bear hearing the whisper from inside his head for years, saying "Kill... kill... I'll kill you in a mess," he finally used a saw to cut off a part of his own head, carving it away along with his brain. His family, noticing the abnormality, quickly rushed him to the hospital, saving his life, but the shape of his head could not be restored. He even developed memory impairment to the point where he couldn't recall events from just one day before, but the man himself was overjoyed, saying, "The voice is gone."

This woman, tearfully answering a television interview in July 2007. She pretends to be the victim of her murdered husband, but in truth, she is the very person who killed him. She took out insurance on her bedridden husband, who suffered from liver disease, and after his murder, she obtained 20 million yen. Two weeks later, she boldly gave an interview for the news. Incidentally, according to police investigations, this woman had also lost two previous husbands to death.

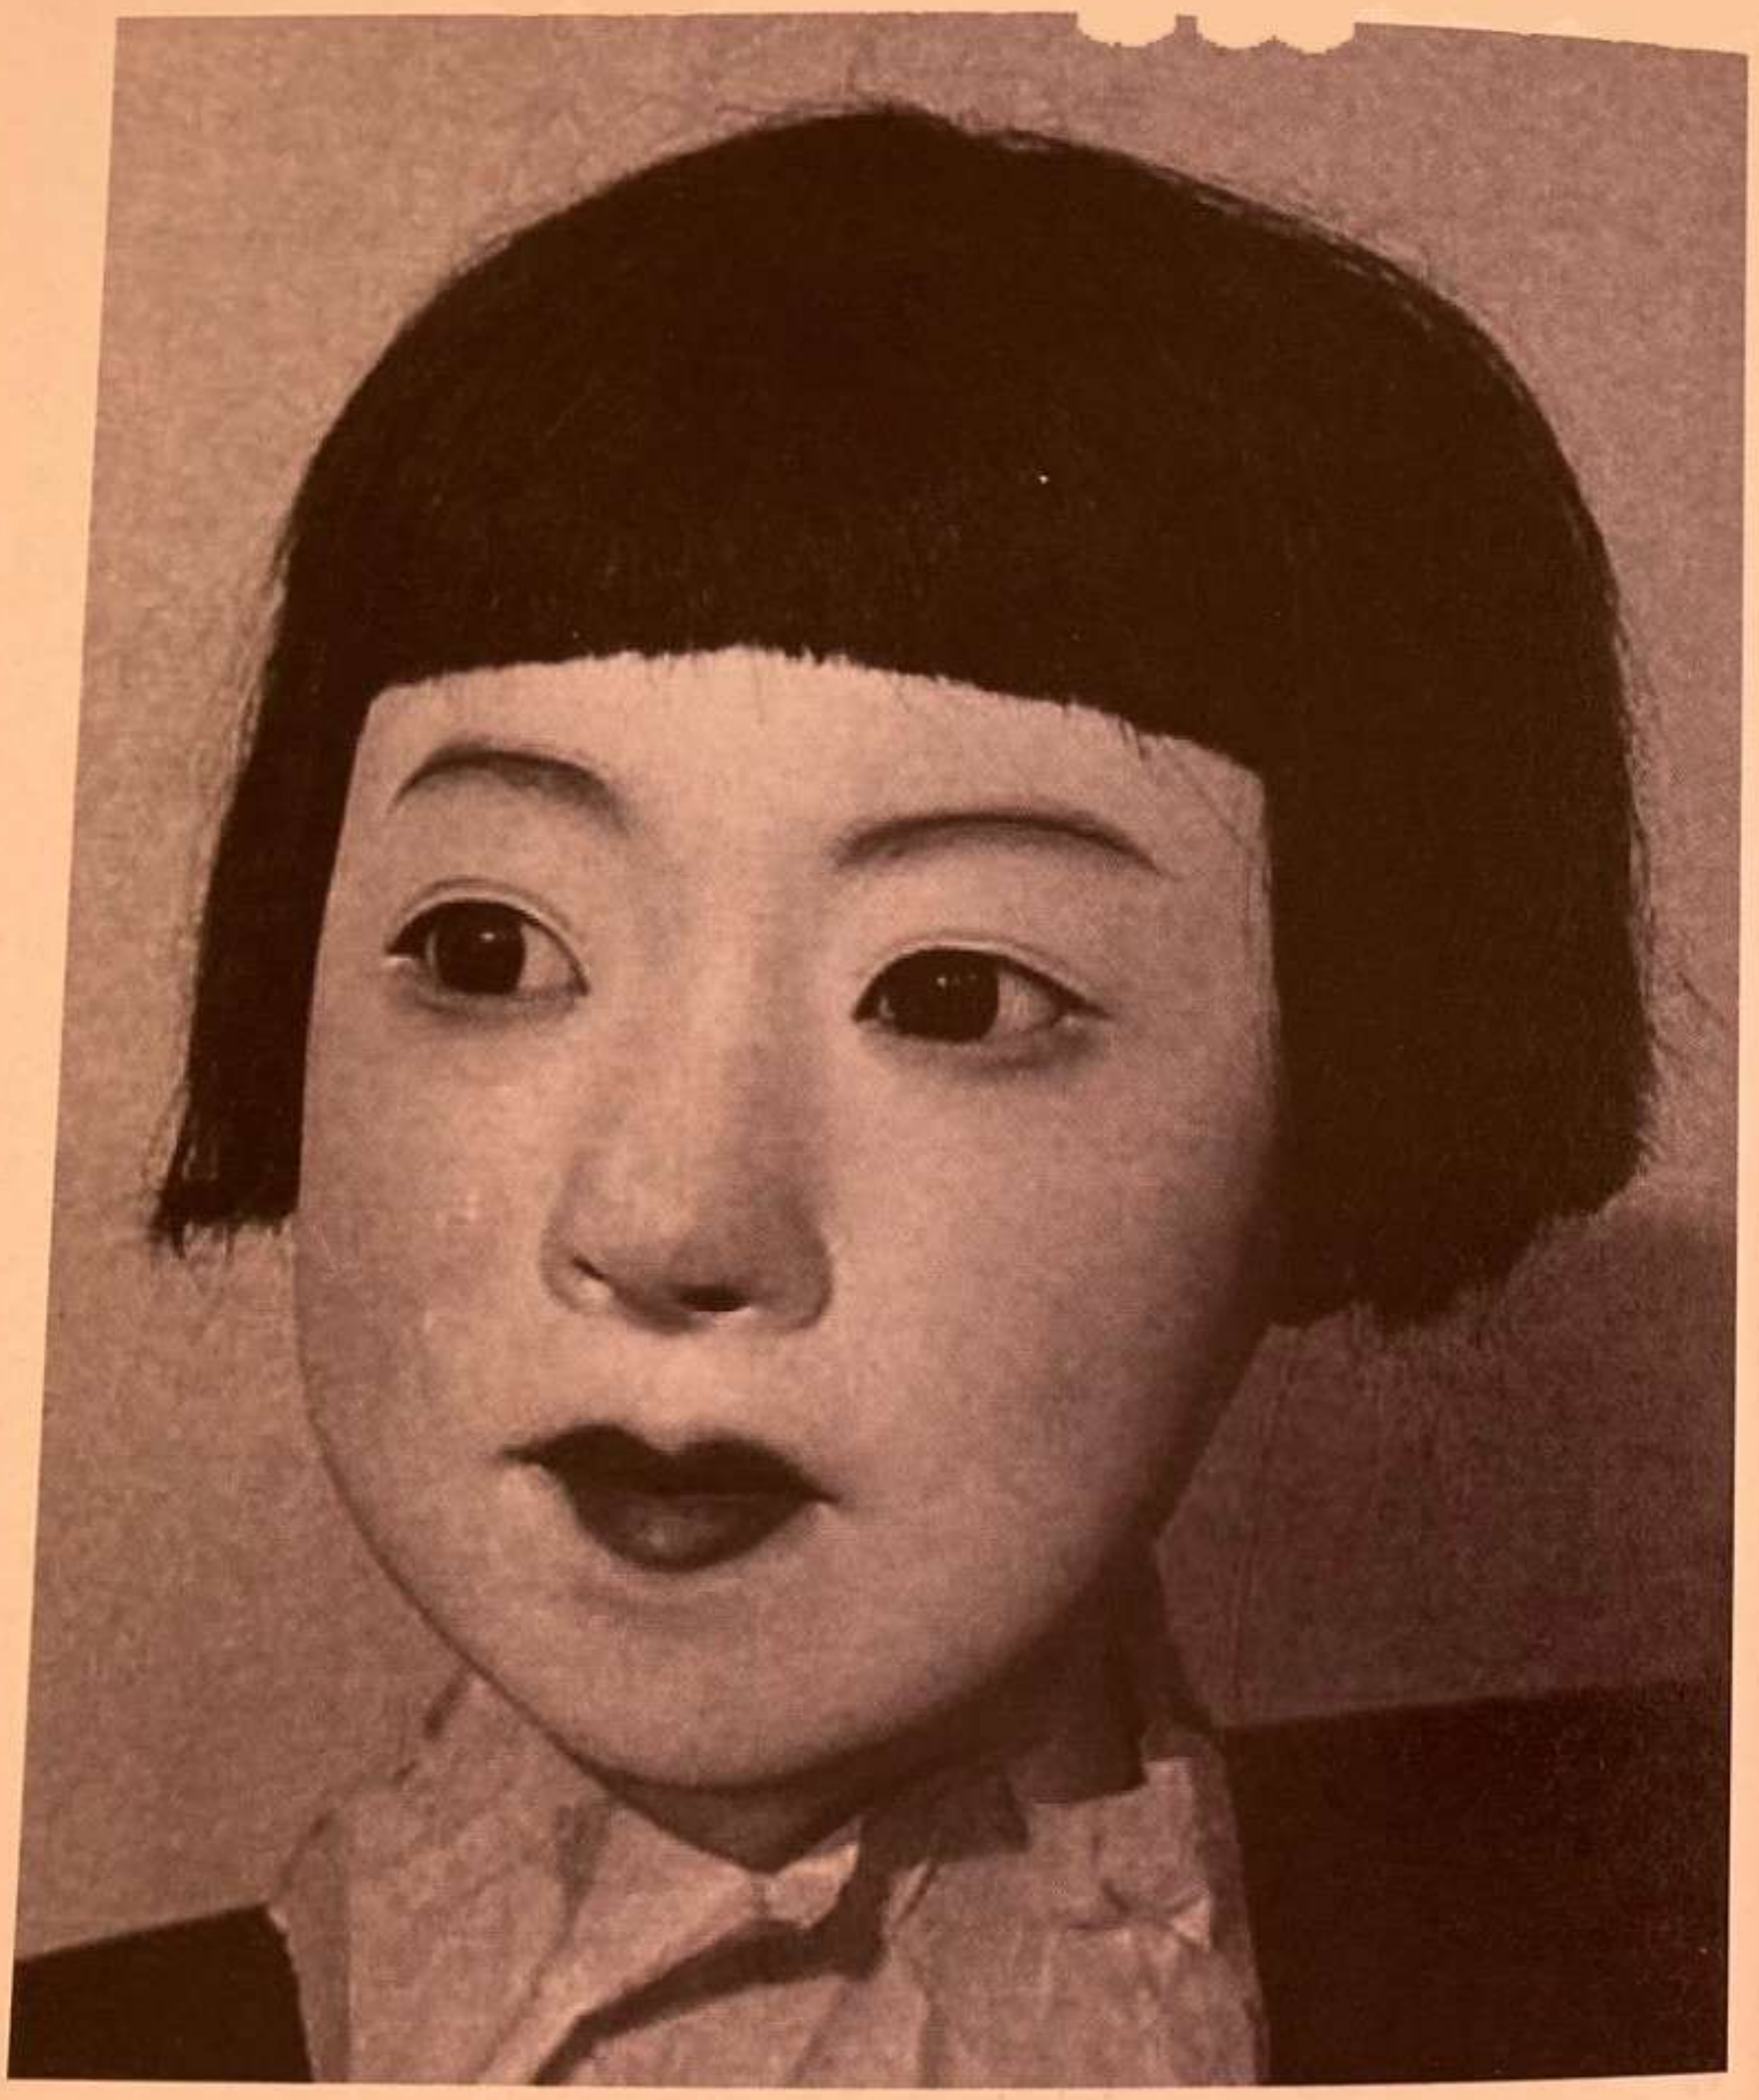
Doll Made with Real Human Eyeballs



At first glance, it looks like an ordinary Japanese doll, but only the eye part is slightly different. This eyeball part is actually made from real human eyeballs. In Showa 62, a 70-year-old man living in Saitama, when his beloved wife, two years younger, died, the man removed the eyeball part of his most beloved wife. After embalming, he handed it over to a doll maker and had them create a life-sized doll resembling his wife in her youth. This doll is currently enshrined at a temple somewhere in Tokyo.

Oppose Green Car Connection!!

I think it's better not to have Green Cars. Nowadays, Green Cars are becoming less popular. Recently, customers who use Green Cars are coming in. The number of people using Green Cars is decreasing. Moreover, to use a Green Car, a Green Ticket is required. More and more people are saying that using Green Cars is a luxury. Green Cars will soon become unnecessary. I think it's better not to connect Green Cars. Nowadays, there are fewer and fewer people using Green Cars. Therefore, more and more people are opposing the freezing of Green Cars. I think connecting Green Cars is wasteful. I think Green Cars are a luxury. Green Cars are not necessary on the Utsunomiya Line and Takasaki Line trains. I think connecting Green Cars is foolish. I think it's better not to implement the connection of Green Cars. Since Green Cars are special vehicles, I think it's foolish not to purchase Green Tickets. More and more people are opposing the connection of Green Cars on the Sōnan Shinjuku Line, Utsunomiya Line, and Takasaki Line trains. Green Cars are also coming to an end now. Green Cars will be abolished. I think Green Cars are not necessary on the new Tōkaidō Line, Holiday Minami Shinjuku Line, Utsunomiya Line, and Takayama Line trains. I think it's better not to have Green Cars. On the Takasaki Line, there is a flyer that says, "Why connect Green Cars to the Utsunomiya Line? Don't do it." This flyer, advocating a mysterious claim, was scattered in large quantities in Mito City, Ibaraki Prefecture, covering the area. The densely packed text is eerie, but in reality, it says, "Green Cars have recently become unpopular, so they are not necessary."

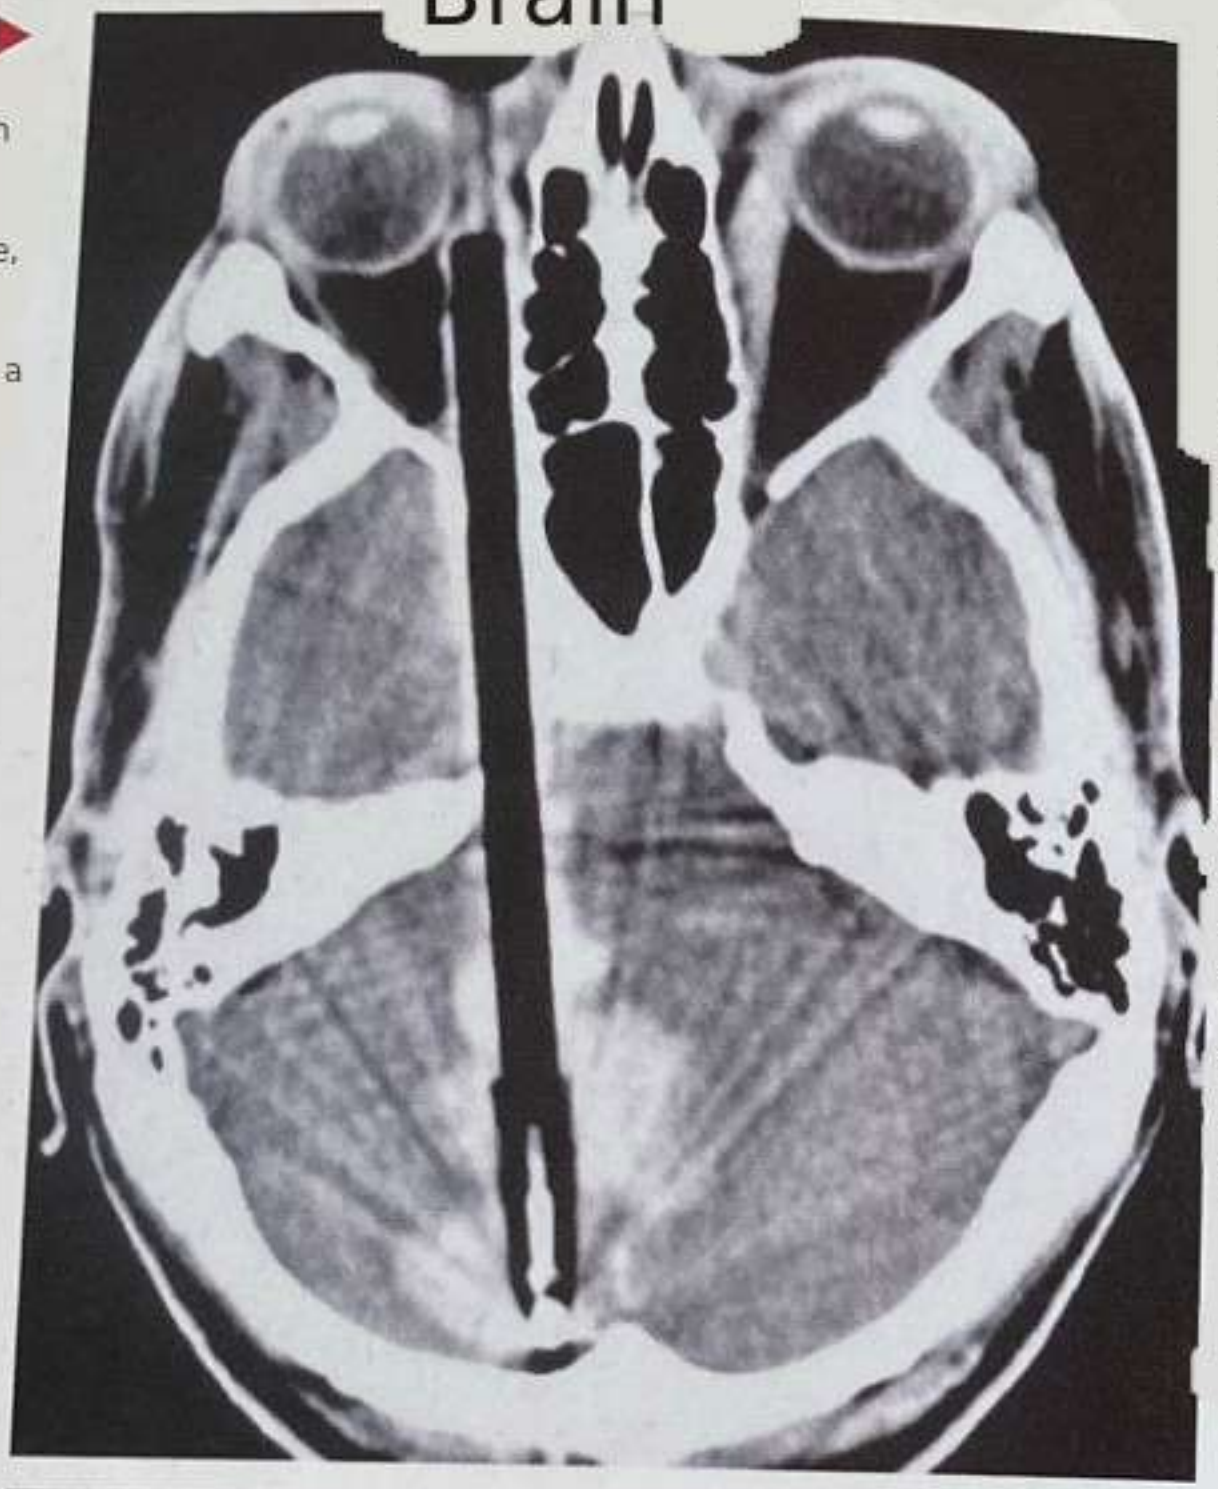
◀The Suspect Who Was Caught

This is a video filmed in a graveyard in Missouri, USA. A man brought a video camera to the graveyard for a dare, only to discover a woman digging up the ground behind a tombstone—a truly terrifying sight. The next day, the man reported this video to the police, and the grave robber was caught. According to police reports, the perpetrator was a local supermarket employee who regularly dug up soil in the cemetery. There were no valuables in the graveyard, and the motive remains unknown.

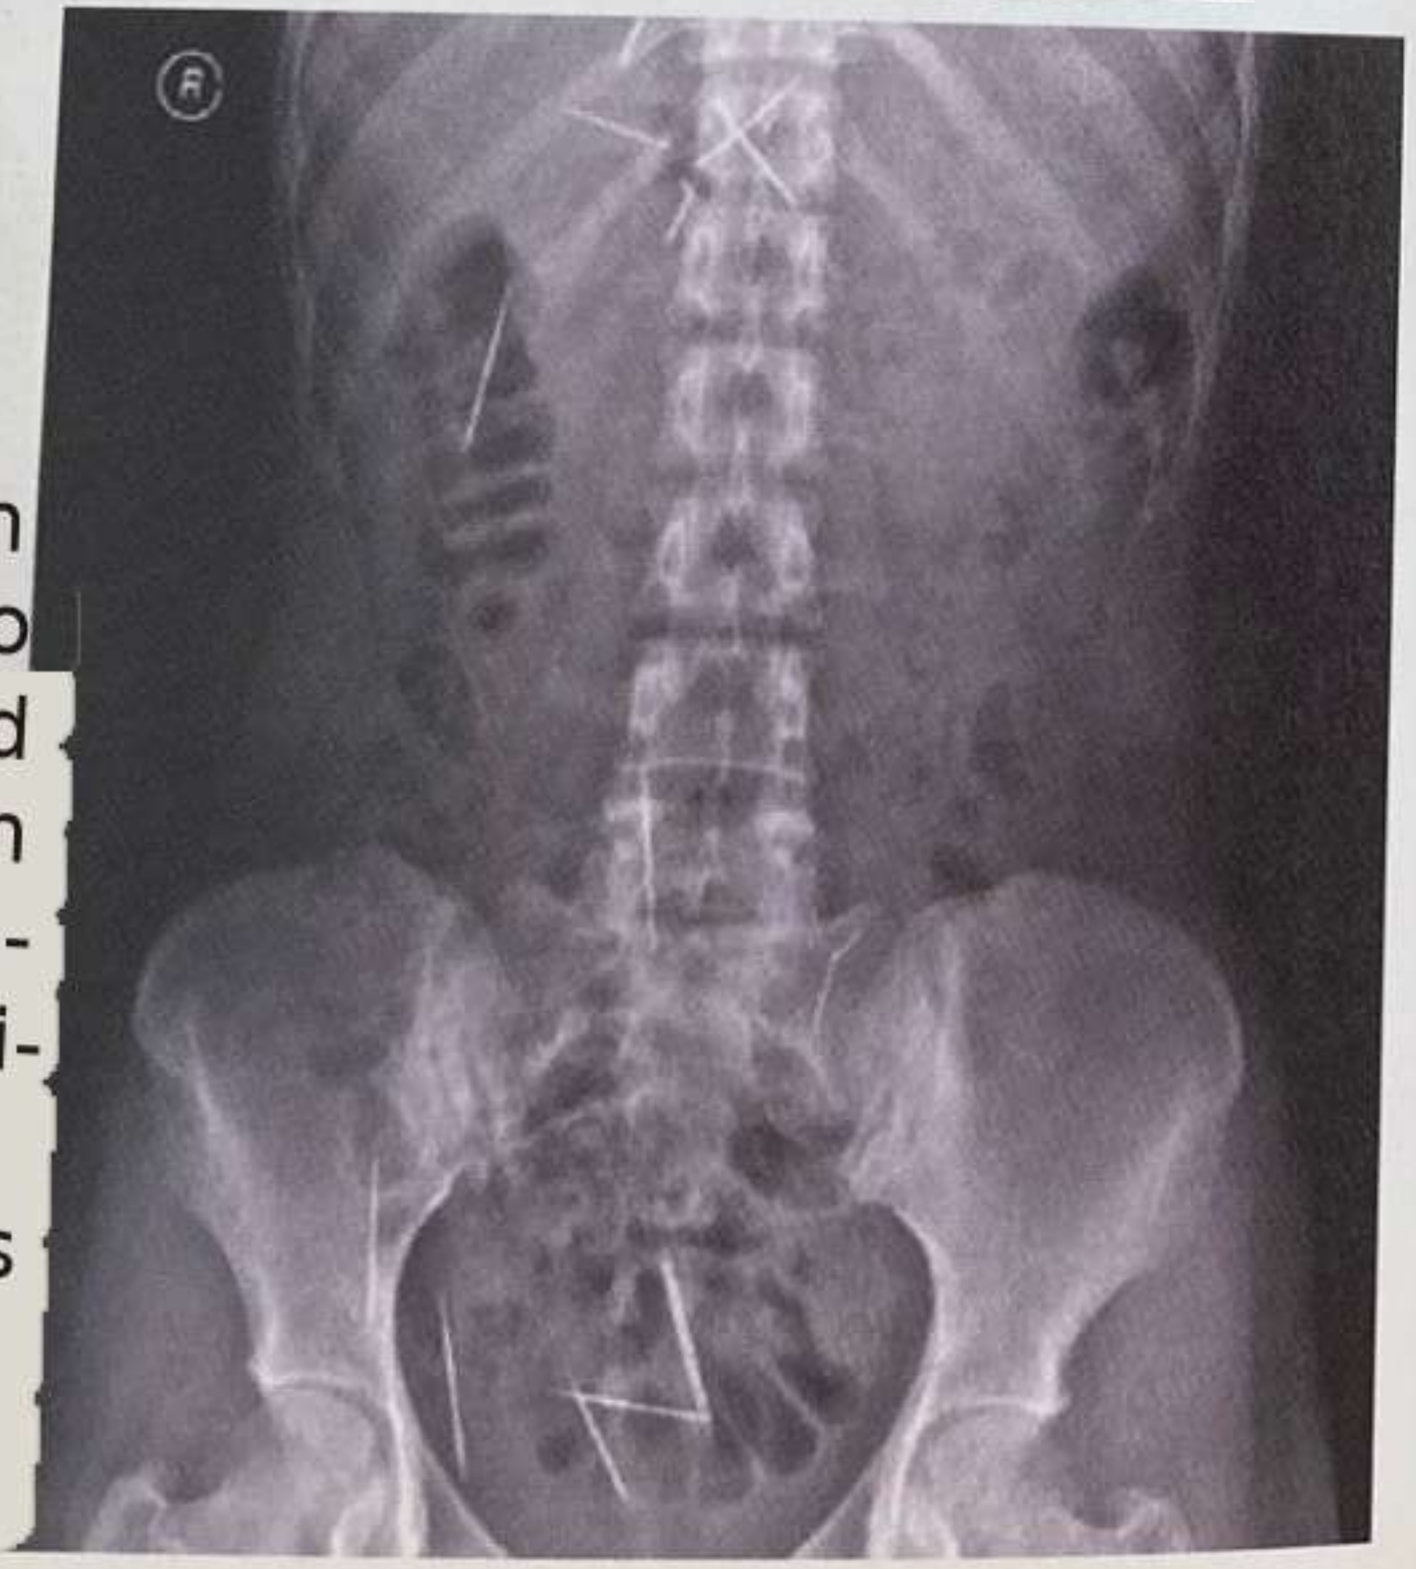
Ballpoint Pen in the Brain

This is an X-ray image of a tough individual who inserted a ballpoint pen approximately 13 centimeters long into his left eye, destroying deep into the brain and resulting in death. The person who carried this out was a 43-year-old man living in California, USA.



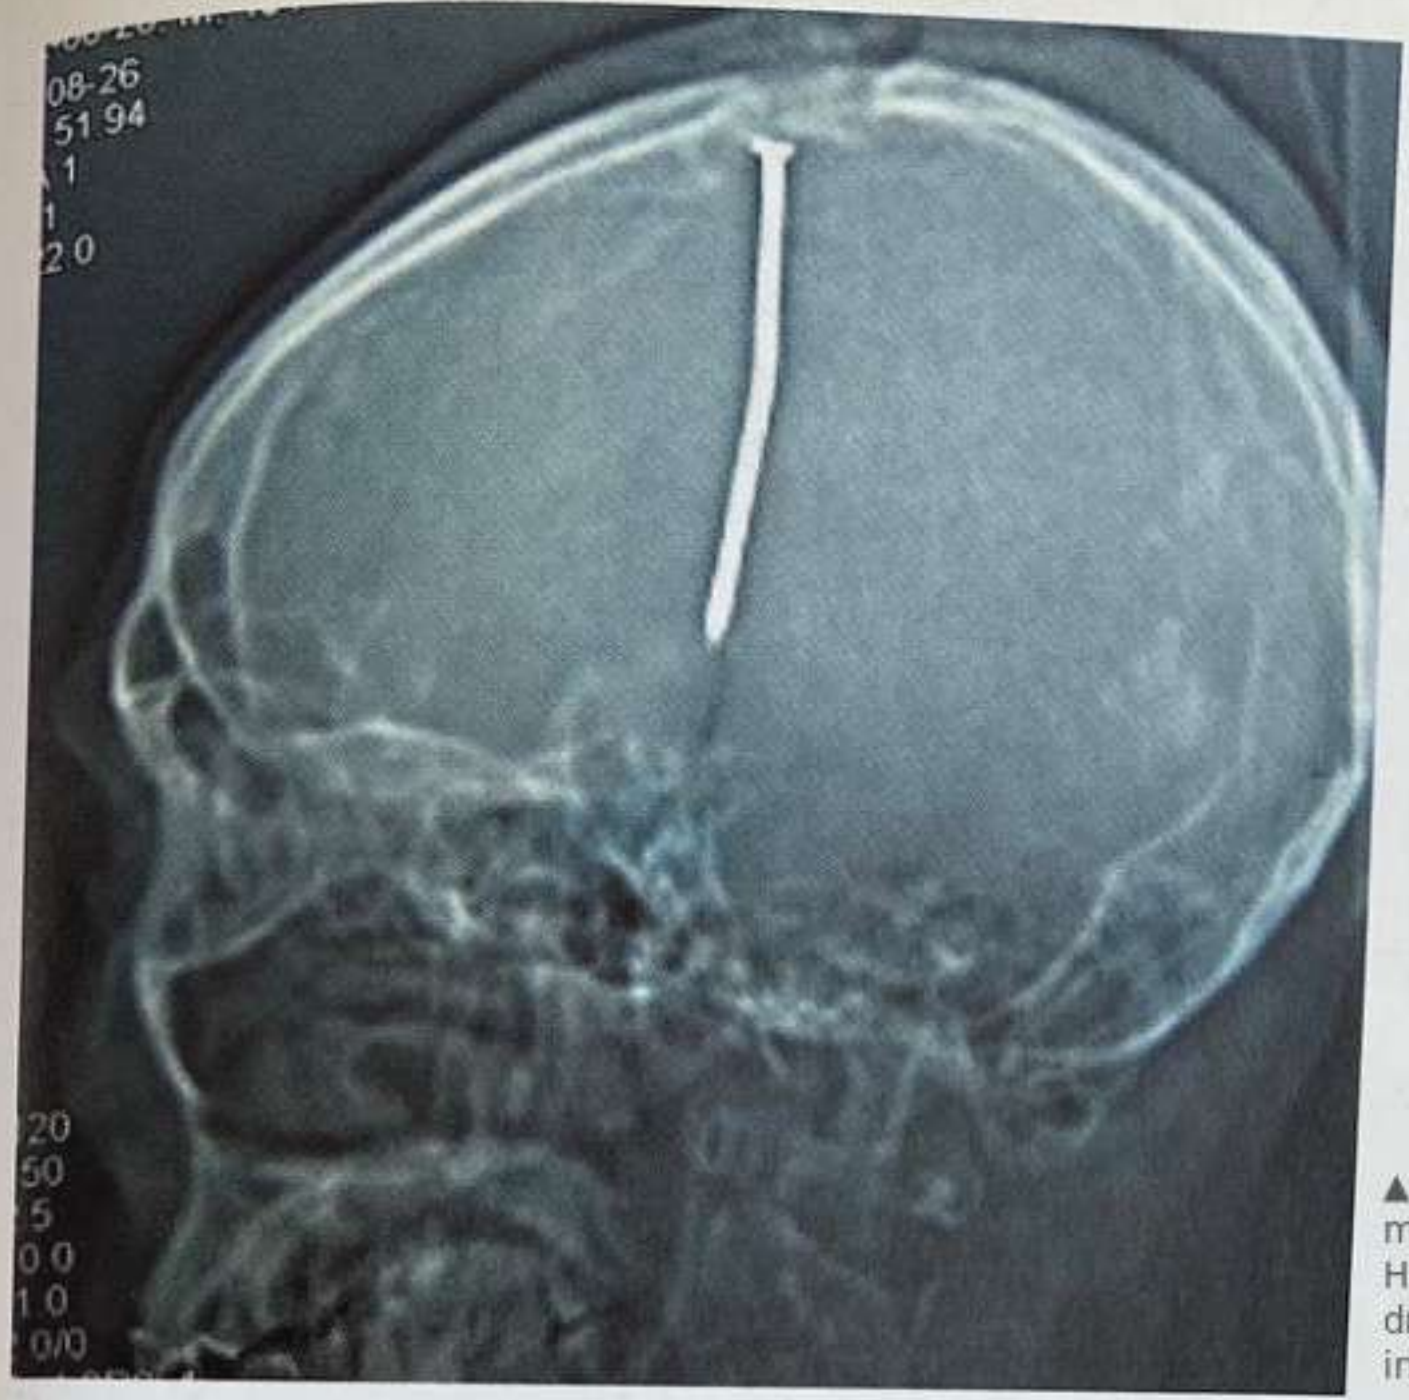
Man Who Died from a Nail Driven into His Head

Man Who Died from Swallowing Nails

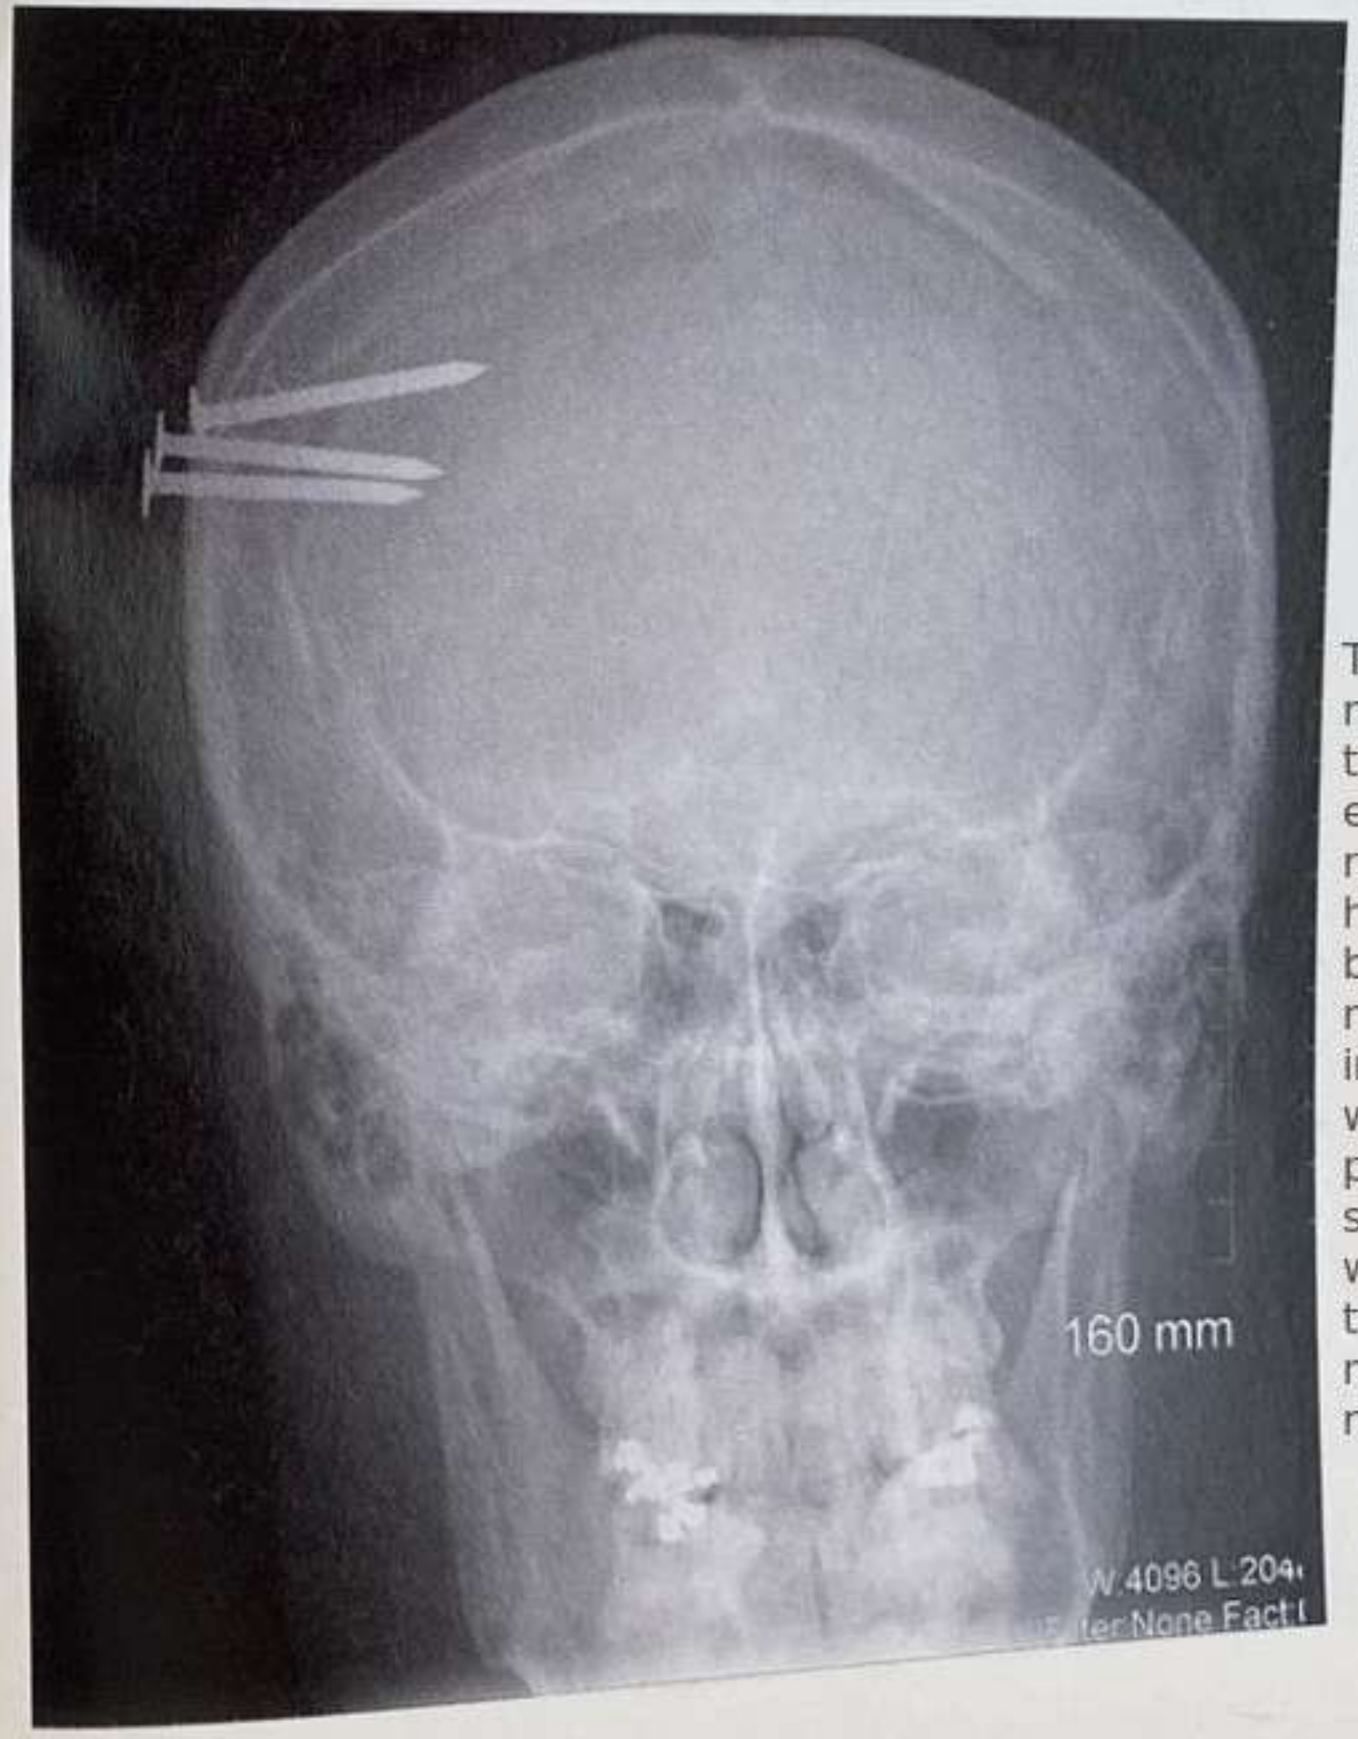


An X-ray image of a 30-year-old man from Miyagi Prefecture who, for unknown reasons, swallowed a large number of nails about 5 centimeters long in an attempt to commit suicide. By the time he was taken to the hospital, it was already too late. Three nails had pierced through his stomach, penetrating his liver and kidneys, while four had broken through his intestines and reached near the anus. The motive remains unclear.

Men Who Died from Nails Driven into Their Heads



▲CT scan from 2007 when a man (40 years old) from Hubei Province, China, drove an 8-centimeter nail into his own head.

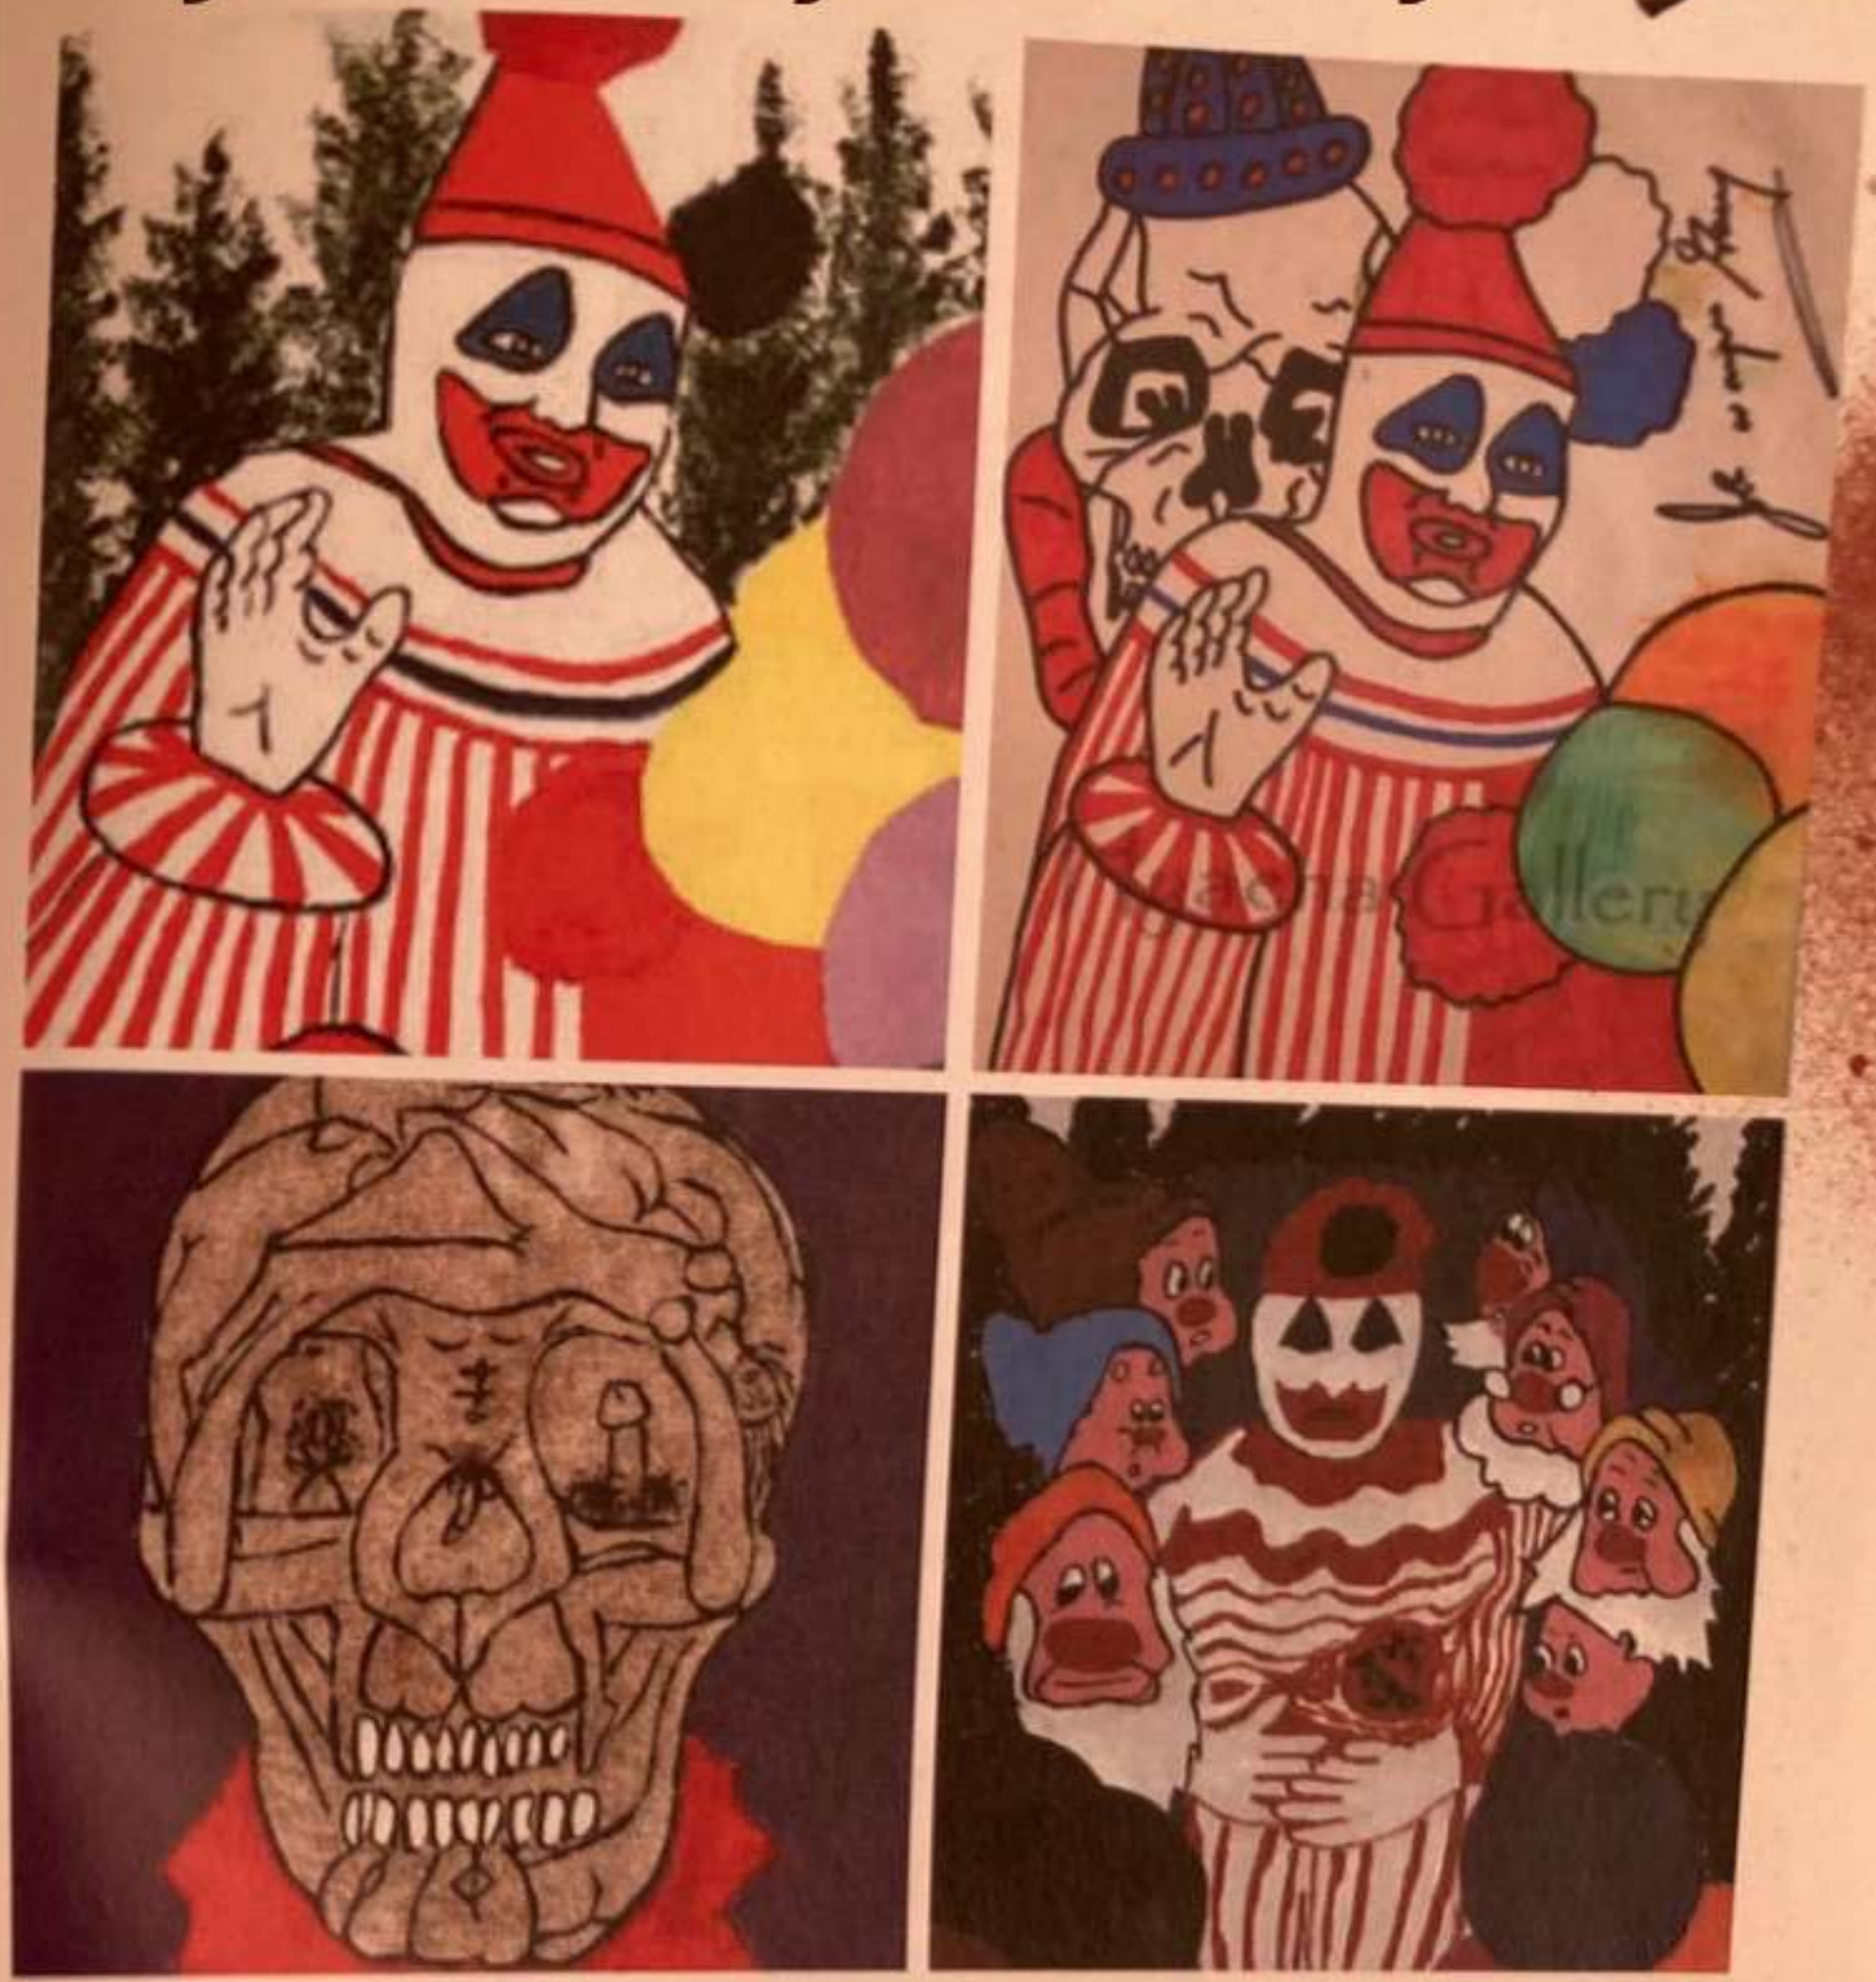


▲This image was taken of an American man in 2000. Astonishingly, he had driven three nails into his temple.

There are many methods of suicide in the world, but none as extreme as this. The X-ray images you see here are CT scans taken by the hospital where men who drove nails into their own heads were brought. In each photo, the cerebrum is severely damaged, and why they chose to end their lives in such a manner remains a mystery.

Drawing by a Murderer 1

John Wayne Gacy ーシー



Gacy, who was homosexual, is a murderer who raped and killed as many as three boys over a period of seven years after turning 30. However, locally, he was popular among children as "Pogo the Clown," who dressed as a clown to visit orphanages and other places. After his arrest, police investigating Gacy's home discovered the decomposed bodies of 26 boys under the floorboards. During interrogation, he boasted, "When you become a clown, killing people is easy," and "My artistic talent was given to me by God." Gacy's paintings are now traded at high prices among murder enthusiasts.

Threatening Letter of the Sayama Incident

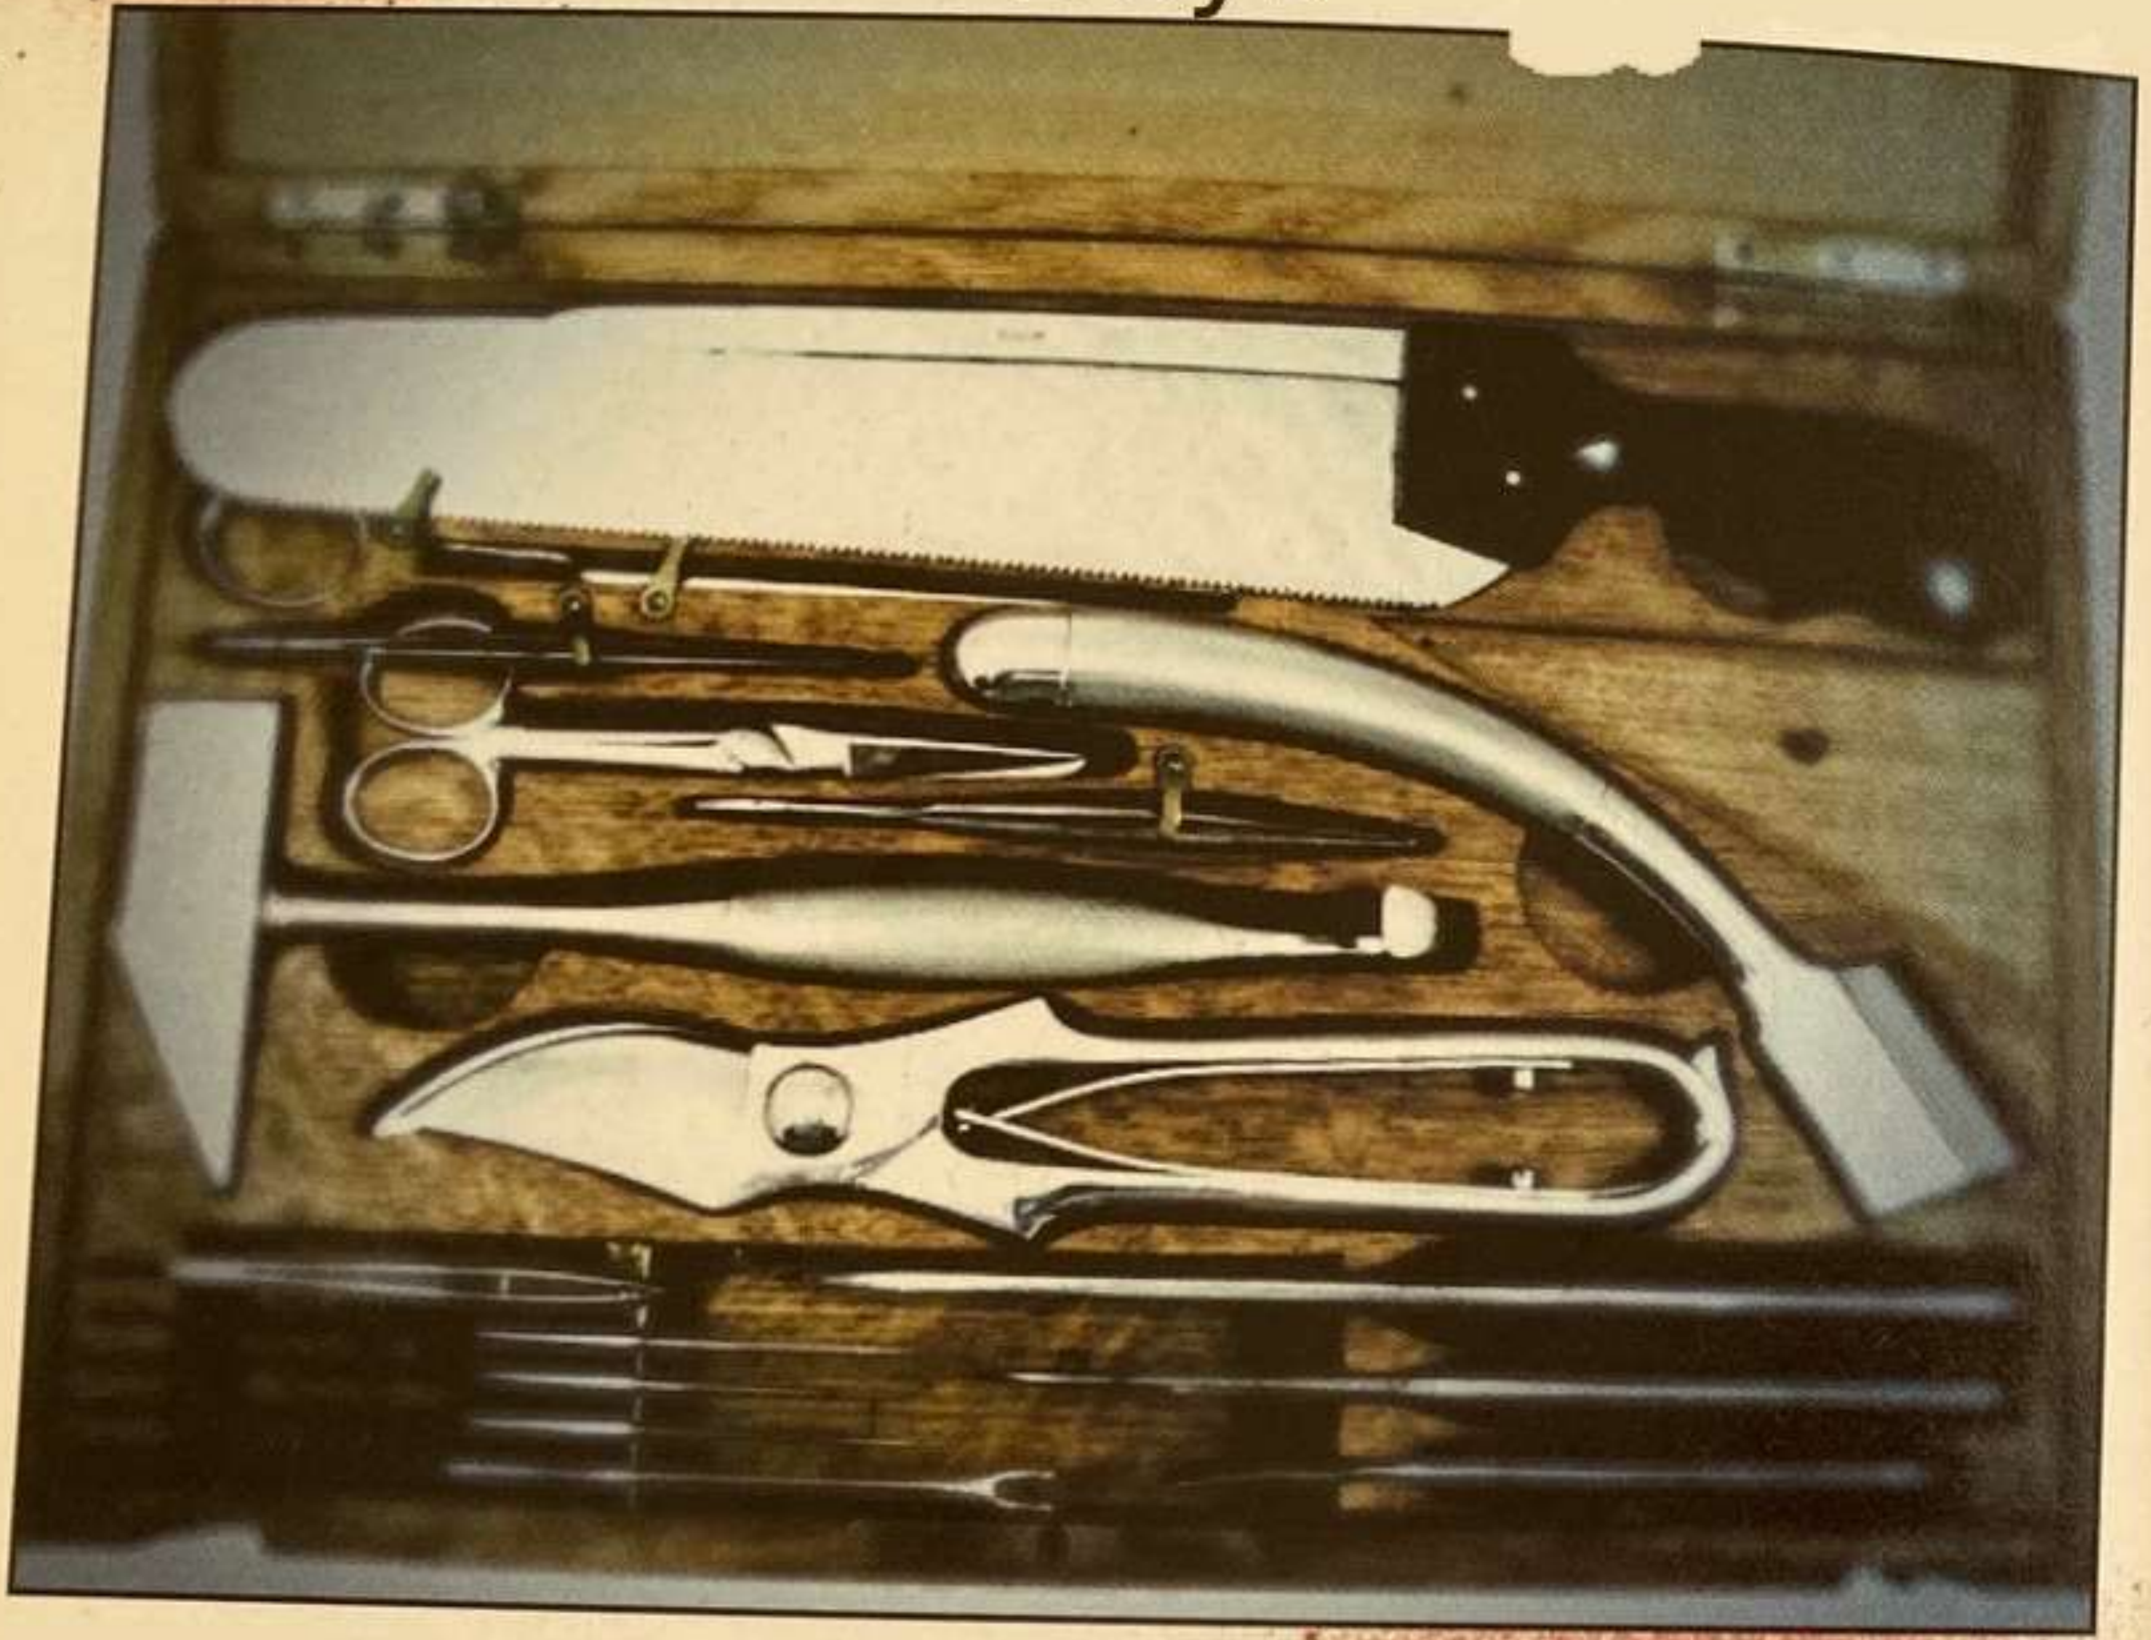
The Sayama Incident is a kidnapping and murder case that occurred on May 1, 1963, in Sayama City, Saitama Prefecture. The victim was a high school!-year-old girl, and on the evening of the day she went missing, the threatening letter shown here was delivered to her home. The perpetrator was arrested in May of the same year, but there are strong claims of wrongful conviction in some quarters, and the truth of the incident remains in the dark. The content of the threatening letter is as follows: "If you want the child's life, on the night of May 2nd at 2 o'clock, a woman with 200, 000 yen should be at the gate of the place. If you know the name on the penalty tag, the child will die. Do not start over. Do not speak on the penalty tag. Do not tell anyone in the neighborhood, the child will die out and die." The text full of typos is eerily frightening.

A Torture Tool Made by a Man Who Killed Six Boys



In the 1980s, in Kansas, USA, a picturesque land, a series of incidents occurred where the bodies of boys aged 4 to 6 were found one after another within a year. All the boys showed signs of anal assault, and several had their internal organs and genitals removed. The perpetrator was a 70-year-old farmer named Robin Ayers, who lived on the outskirts of town. When the police conducted a search of his home, they found two jars of genitals hidden deep in the refrigerator, and in the barn, specialized tools that the perpetrator had allegedly made to torture the boys.

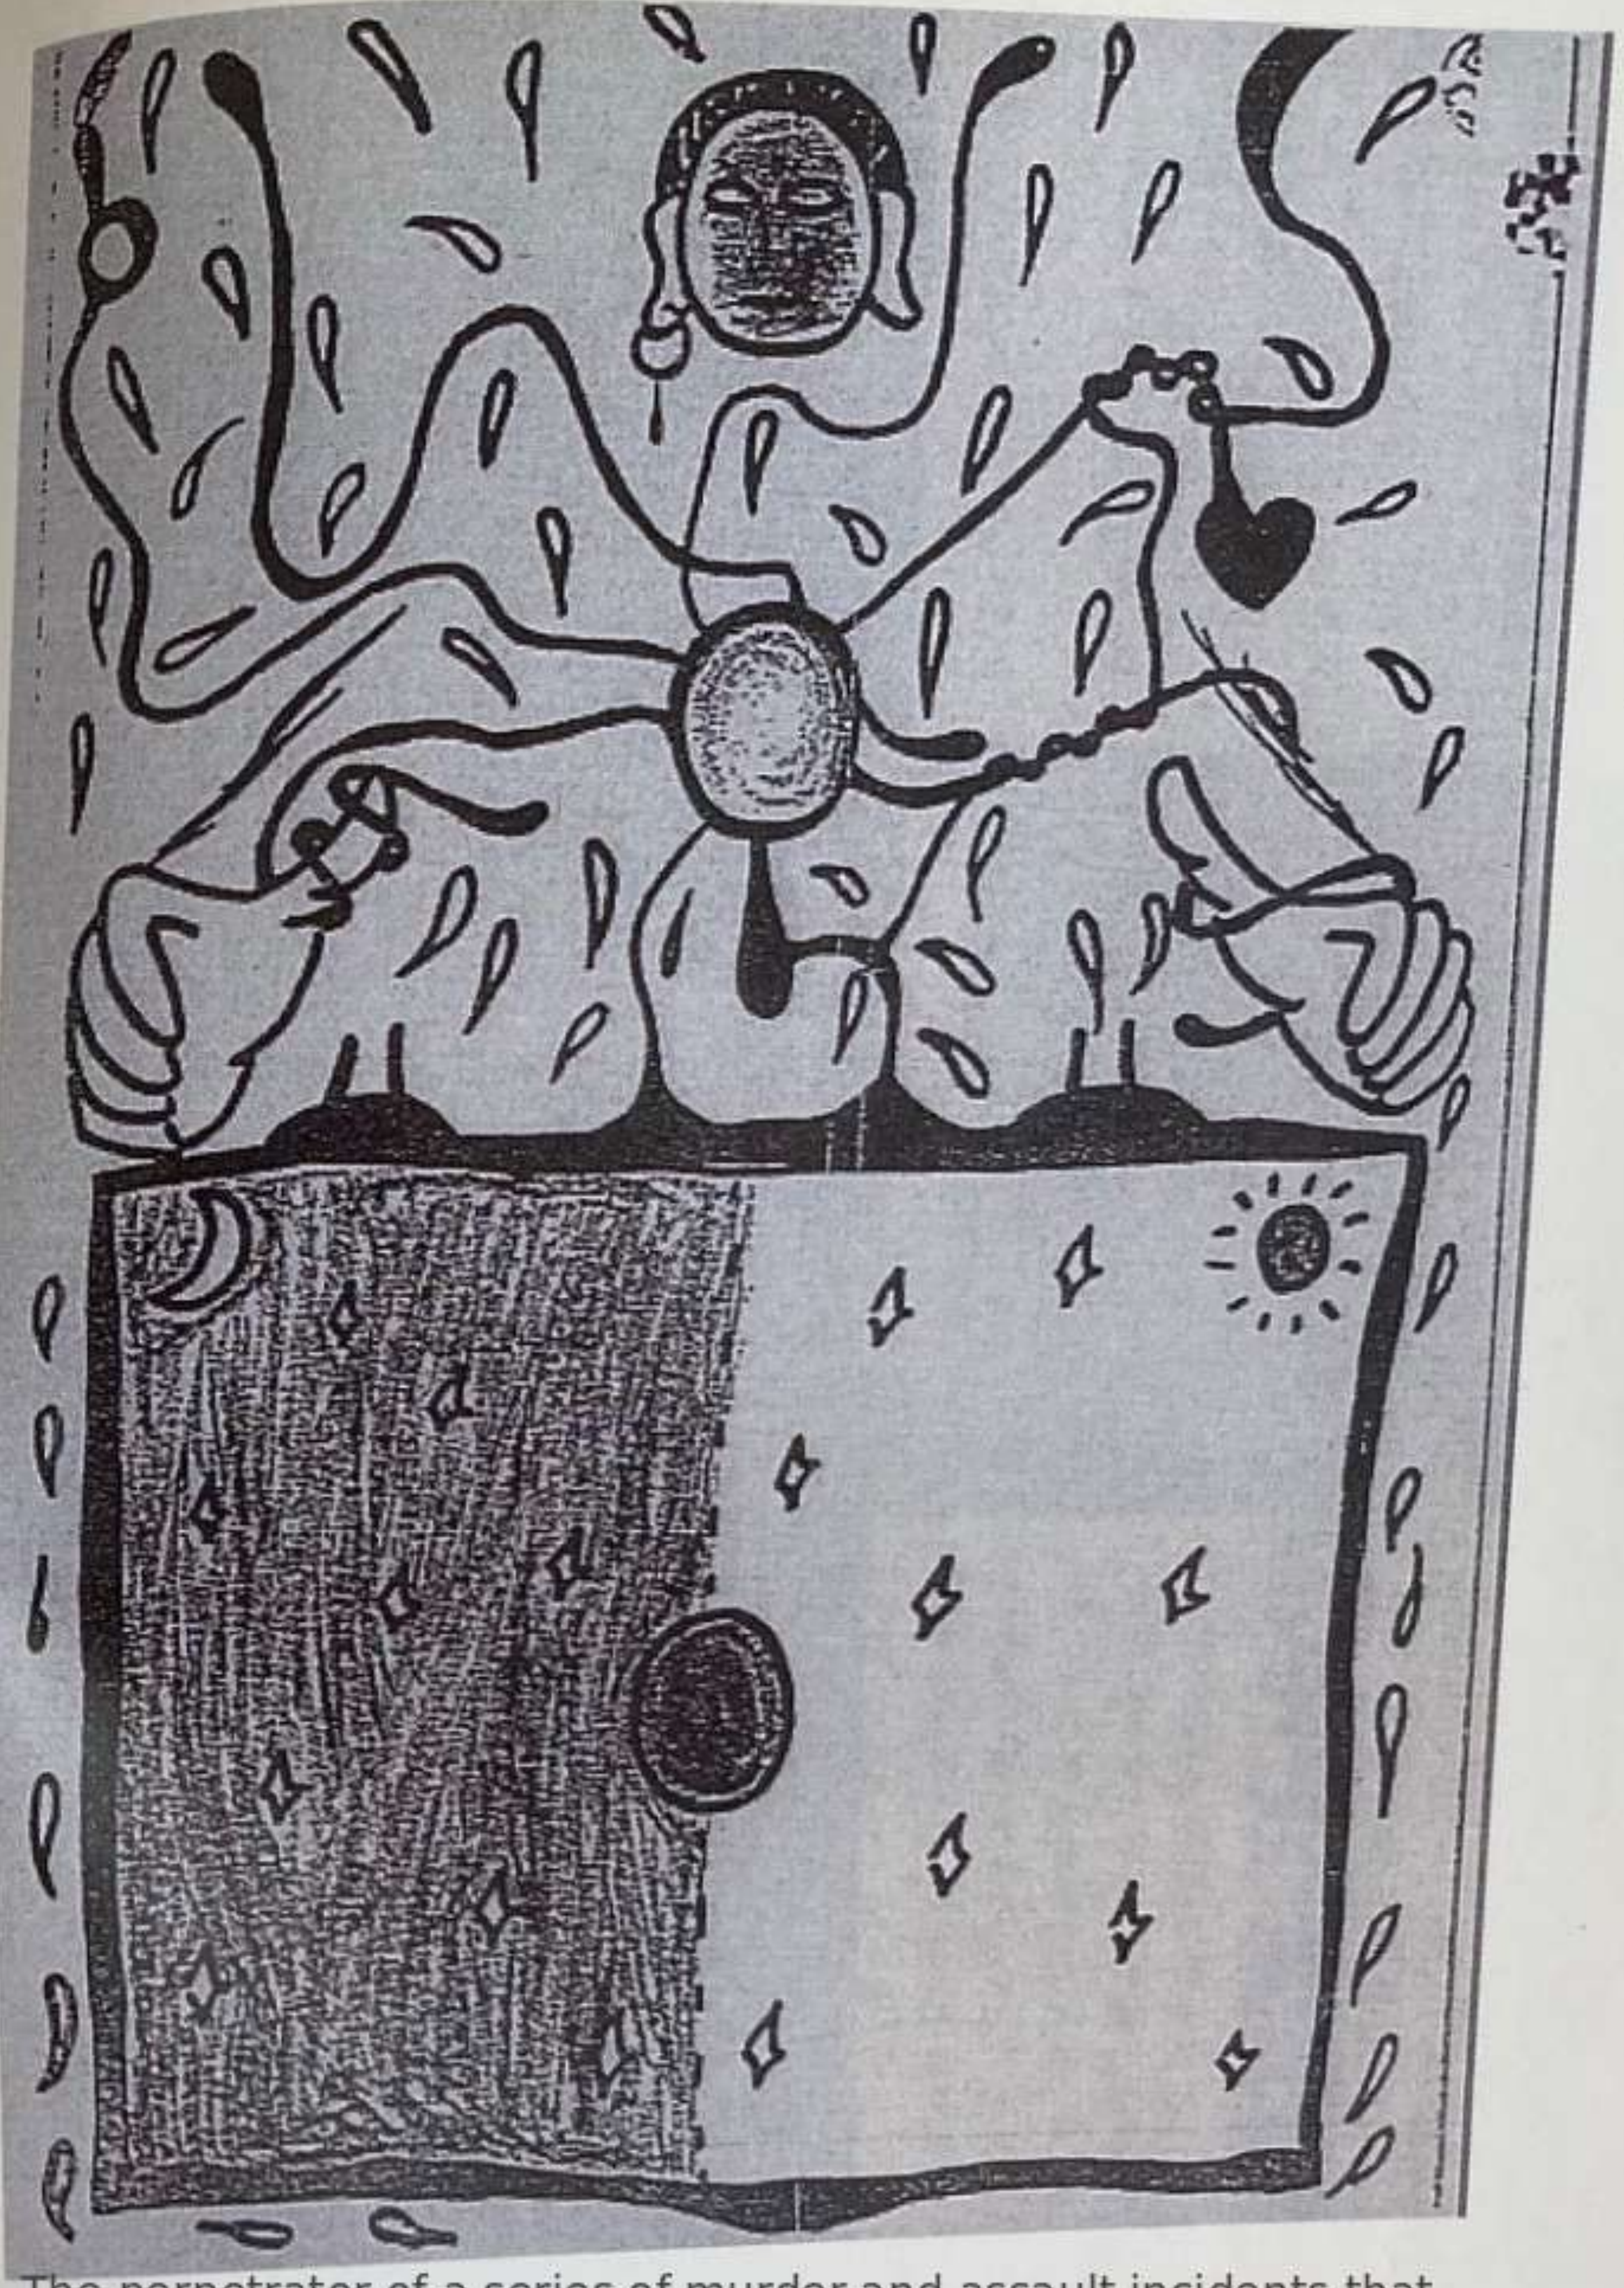
Sakakibara Seito



The perpetrator of a series of murder and assault incidents that occurred in Kobe City, Hyogo Prefecture. At the time of arrest, the offender's age was only 14 years old, which shocked the entire Japan. In 1997, over several months, several elementary school students were attacked with a hammer. Furthermore, in May, an elementary school boy was strangled to death and decapitated, with his head placed at the entrance of a junior high school in the city, sparking widespread discussion due to the bizarre nature of the crime.

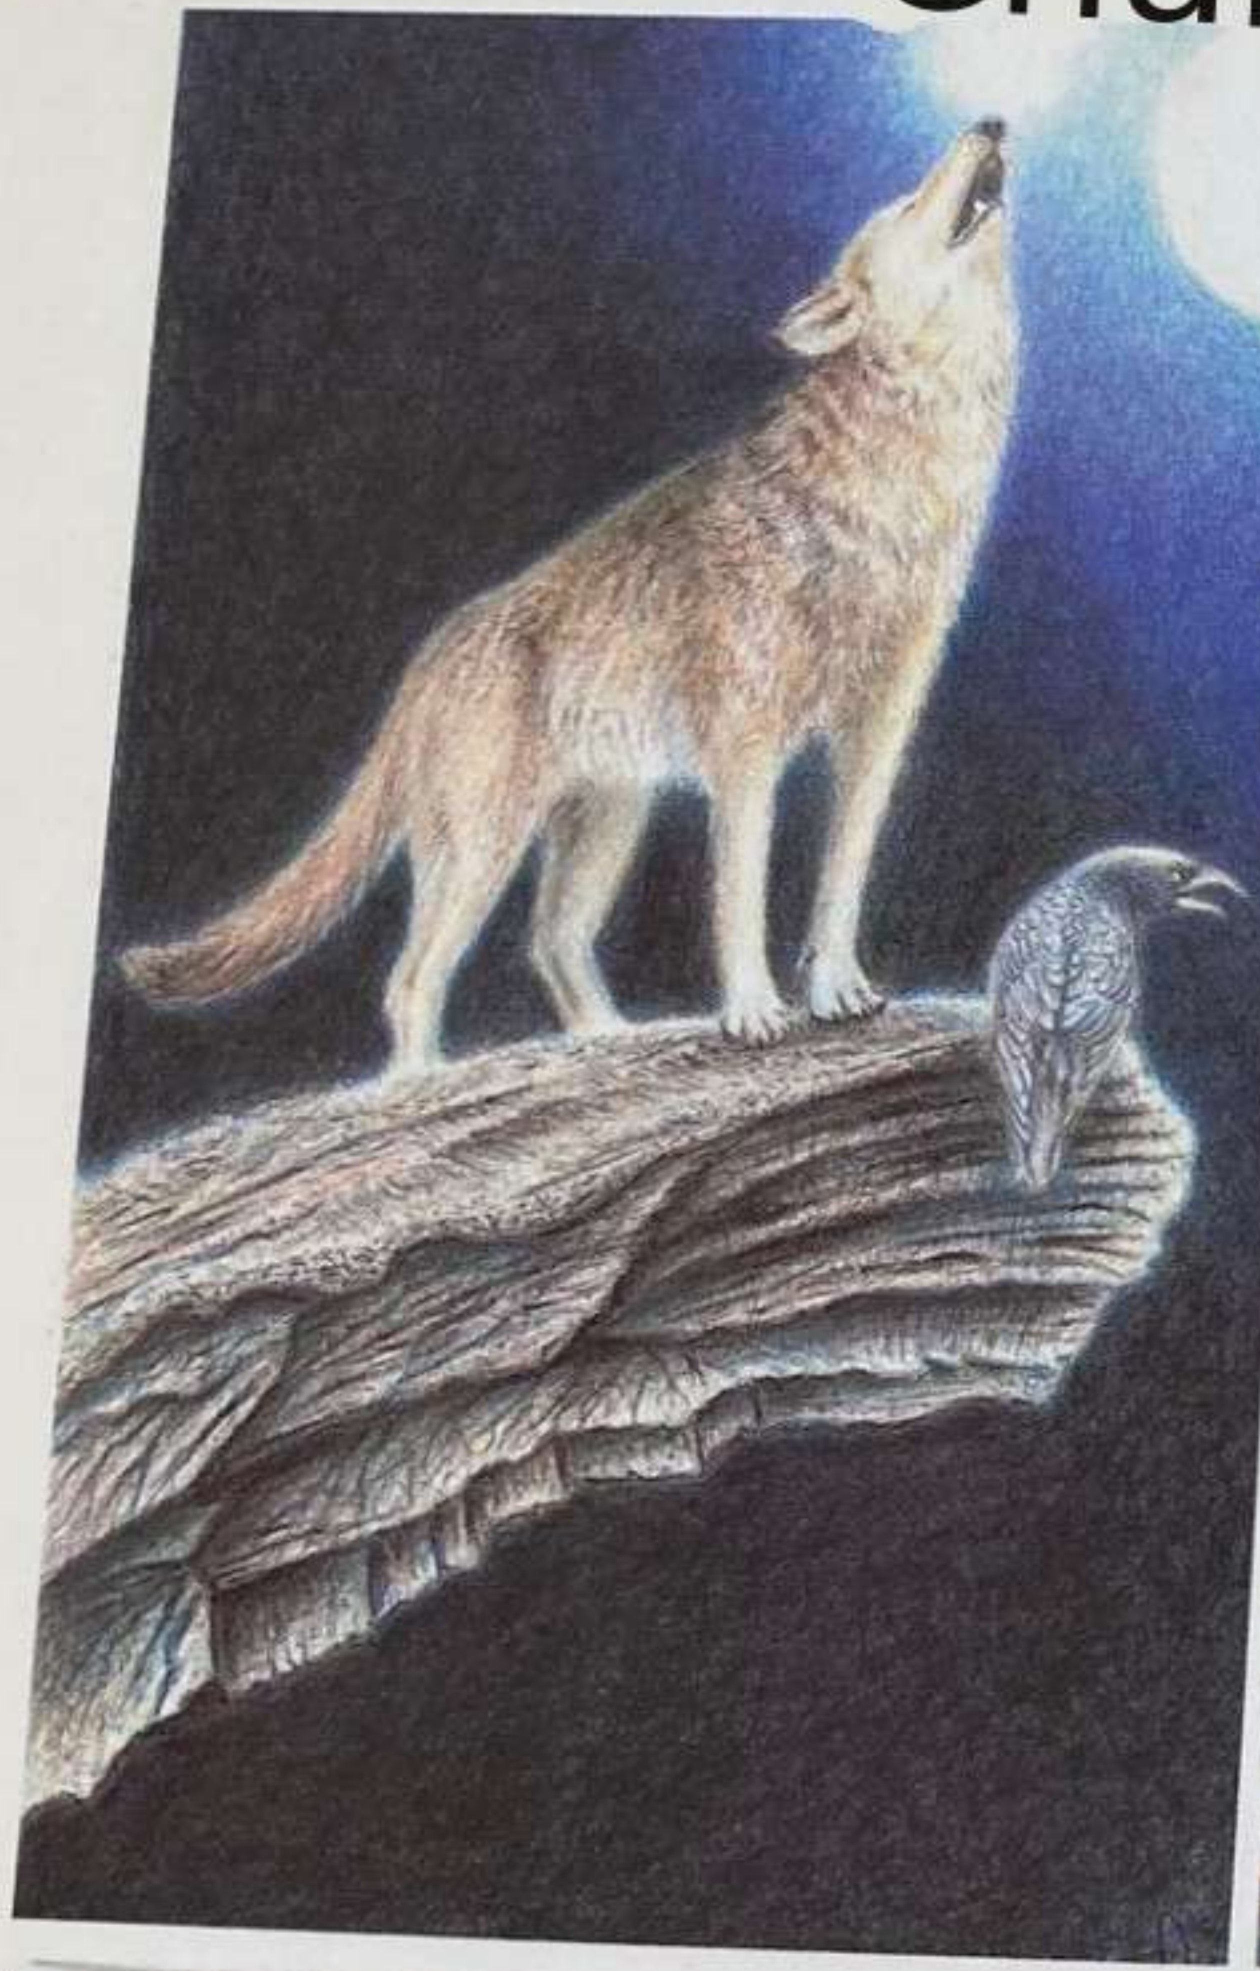
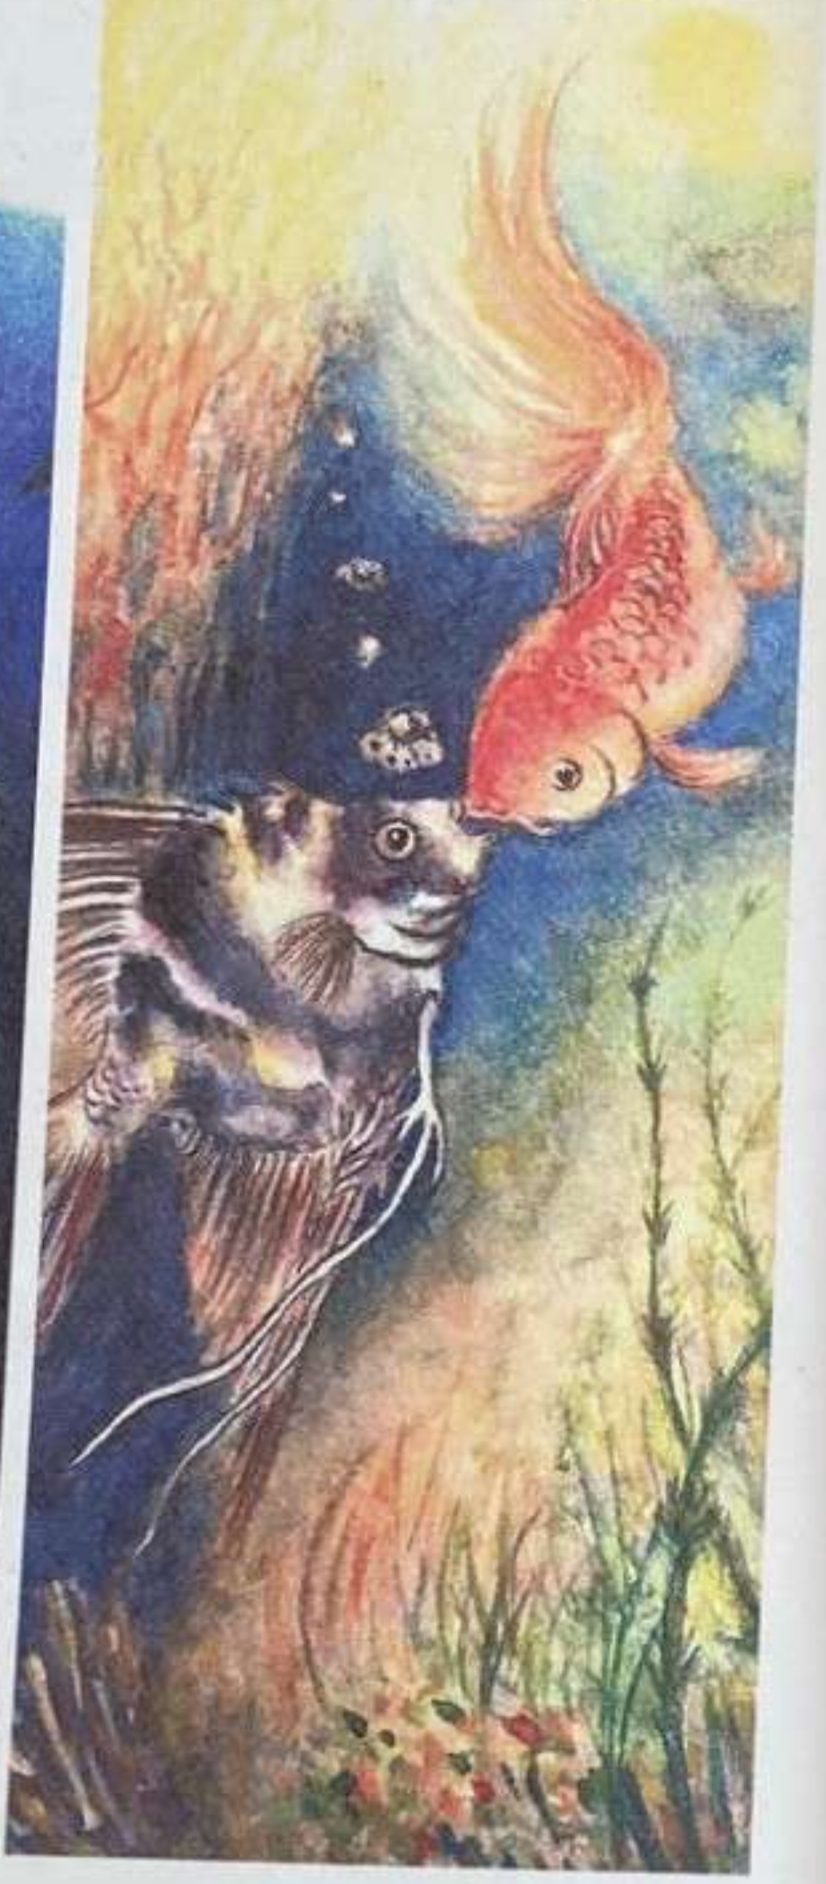
Late at night, an elderly woman appeared in front of a certain restaurant and slashed the curtain with scissors she held in her hand. While this action seems utterly inexplicable, it is unsettling to learn that this elderly woman has repeatedly engaged in the same behavior. The footage was recorded by a surveillance camera installed by the victimized store owner. This video became the decisive evidence, leading to the elderly woman's arrest for property damage. During questioning, she stated, "After the restaurant was renovated, cracks appeared on the road to my house."

Murderer's Drawing 3

Charles Ing

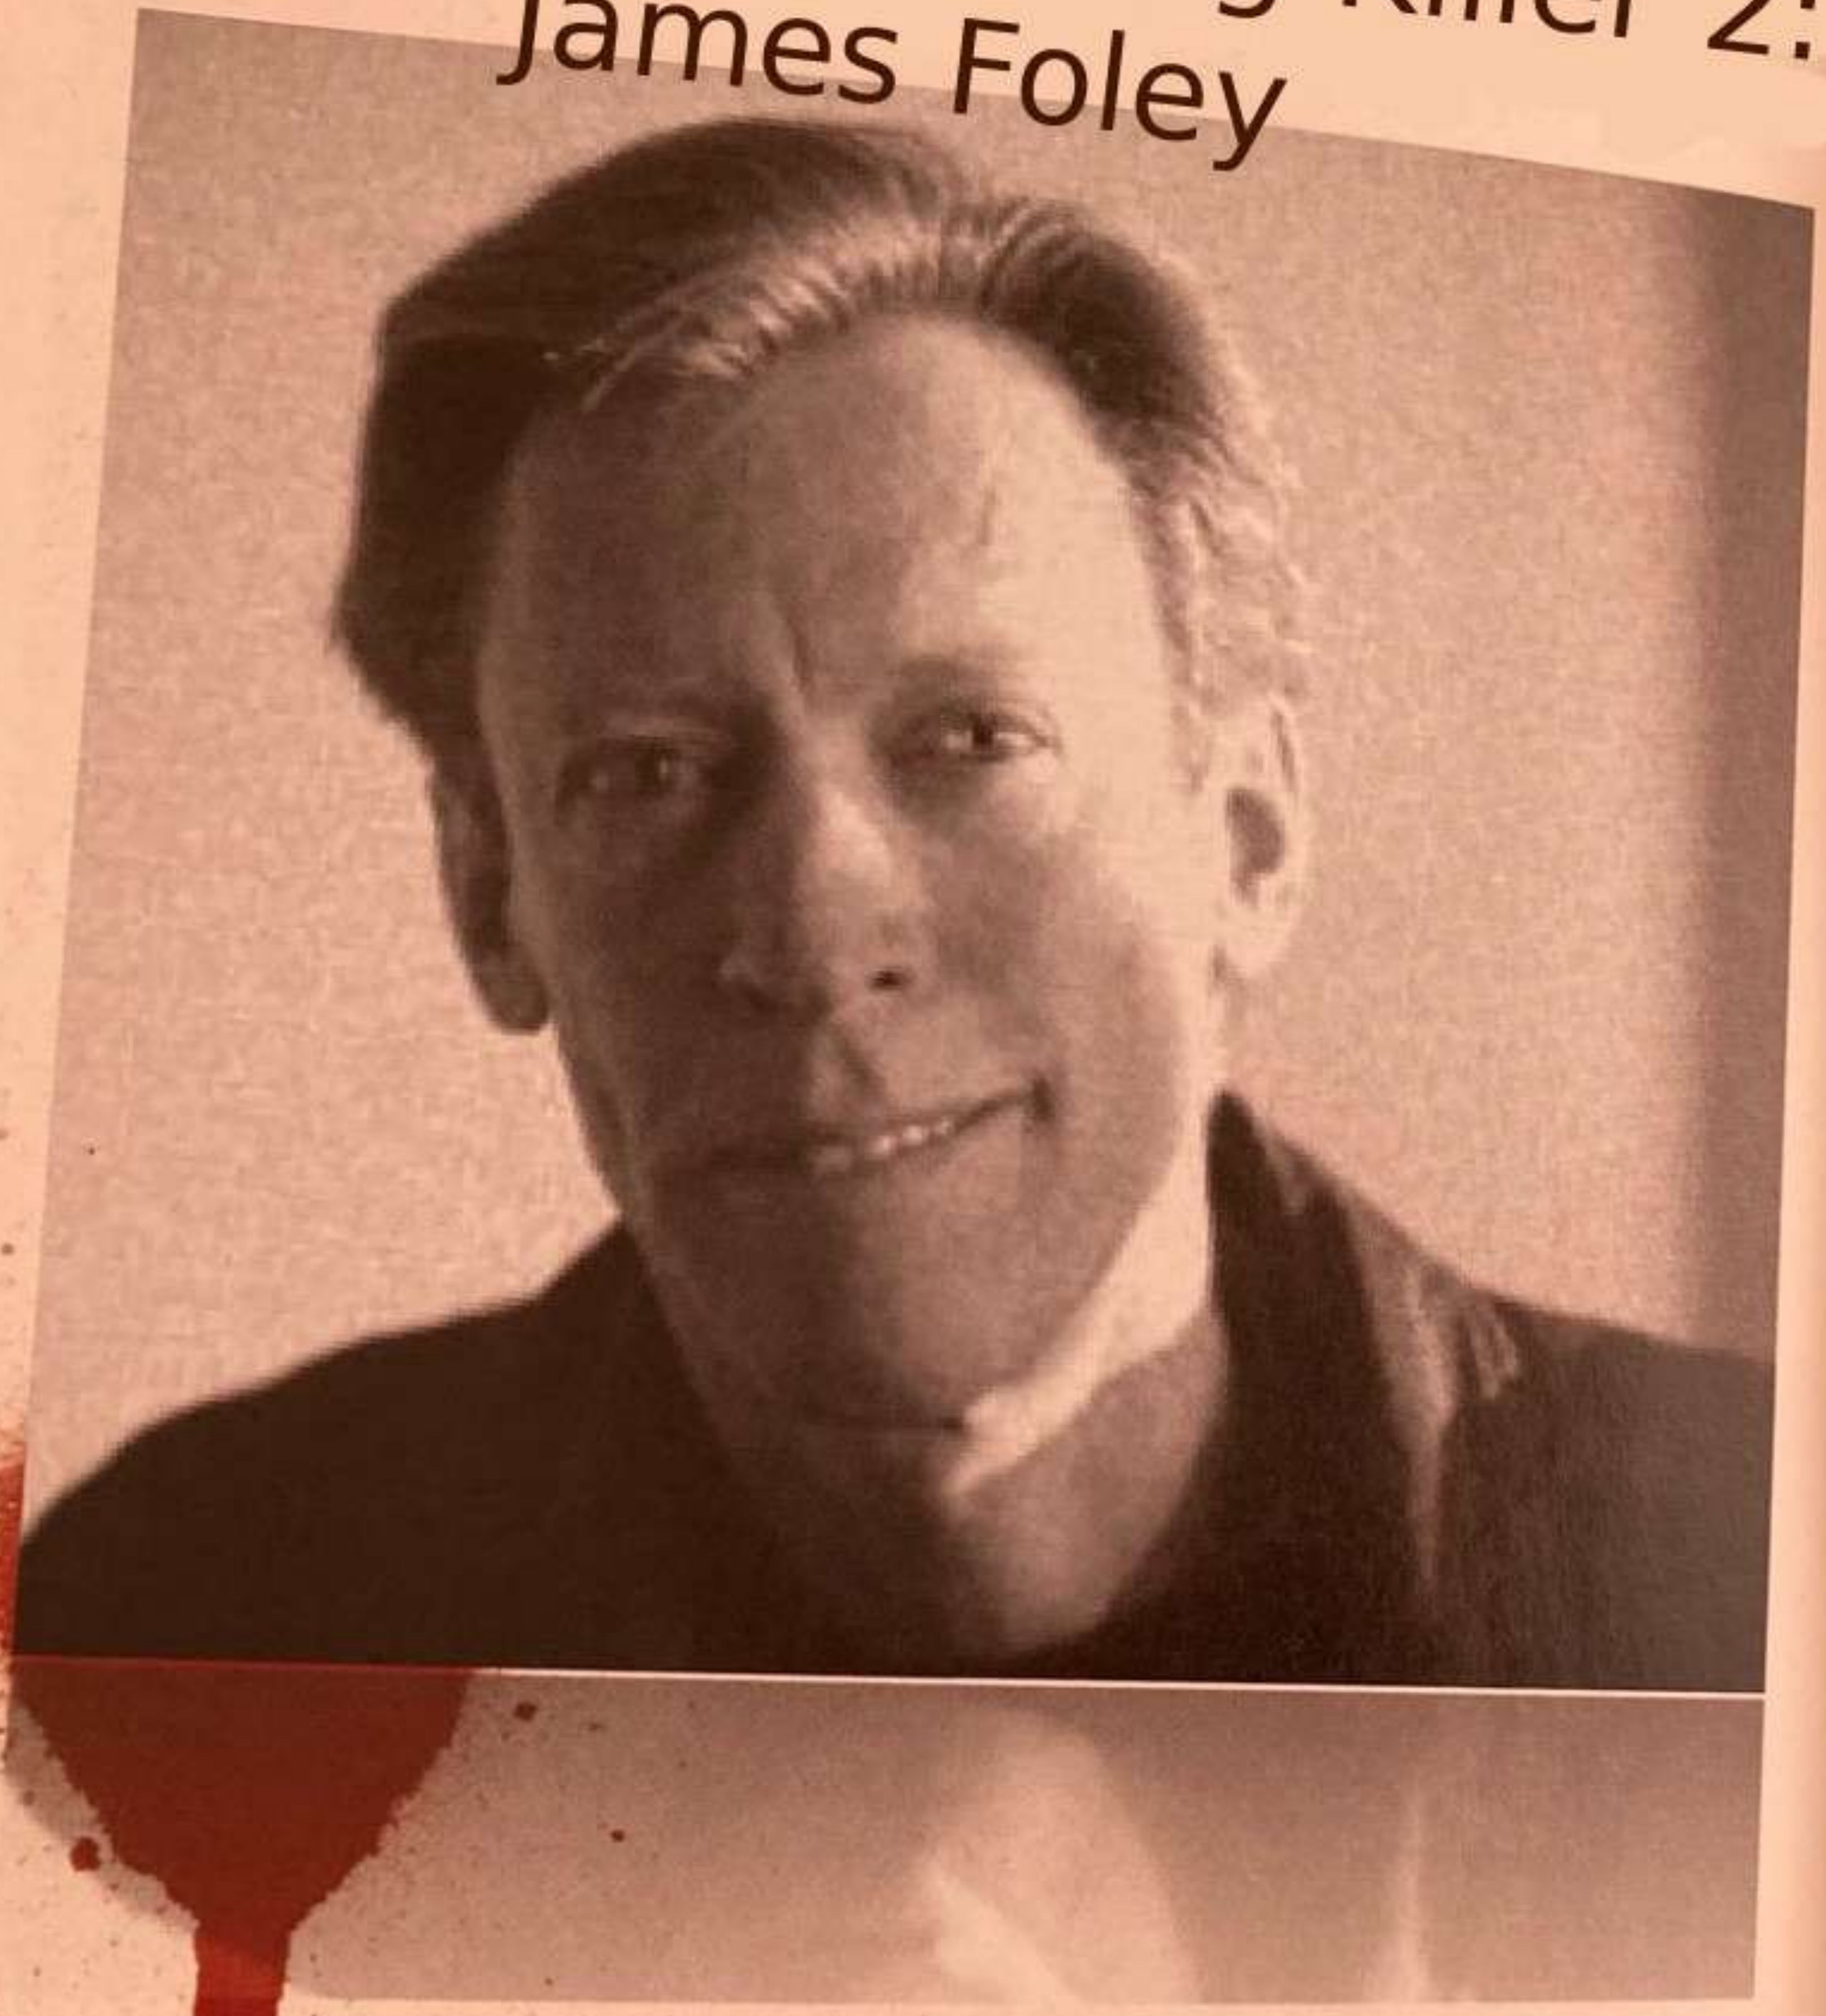




FOLSOM STATE PRISON
www. mugshots. com

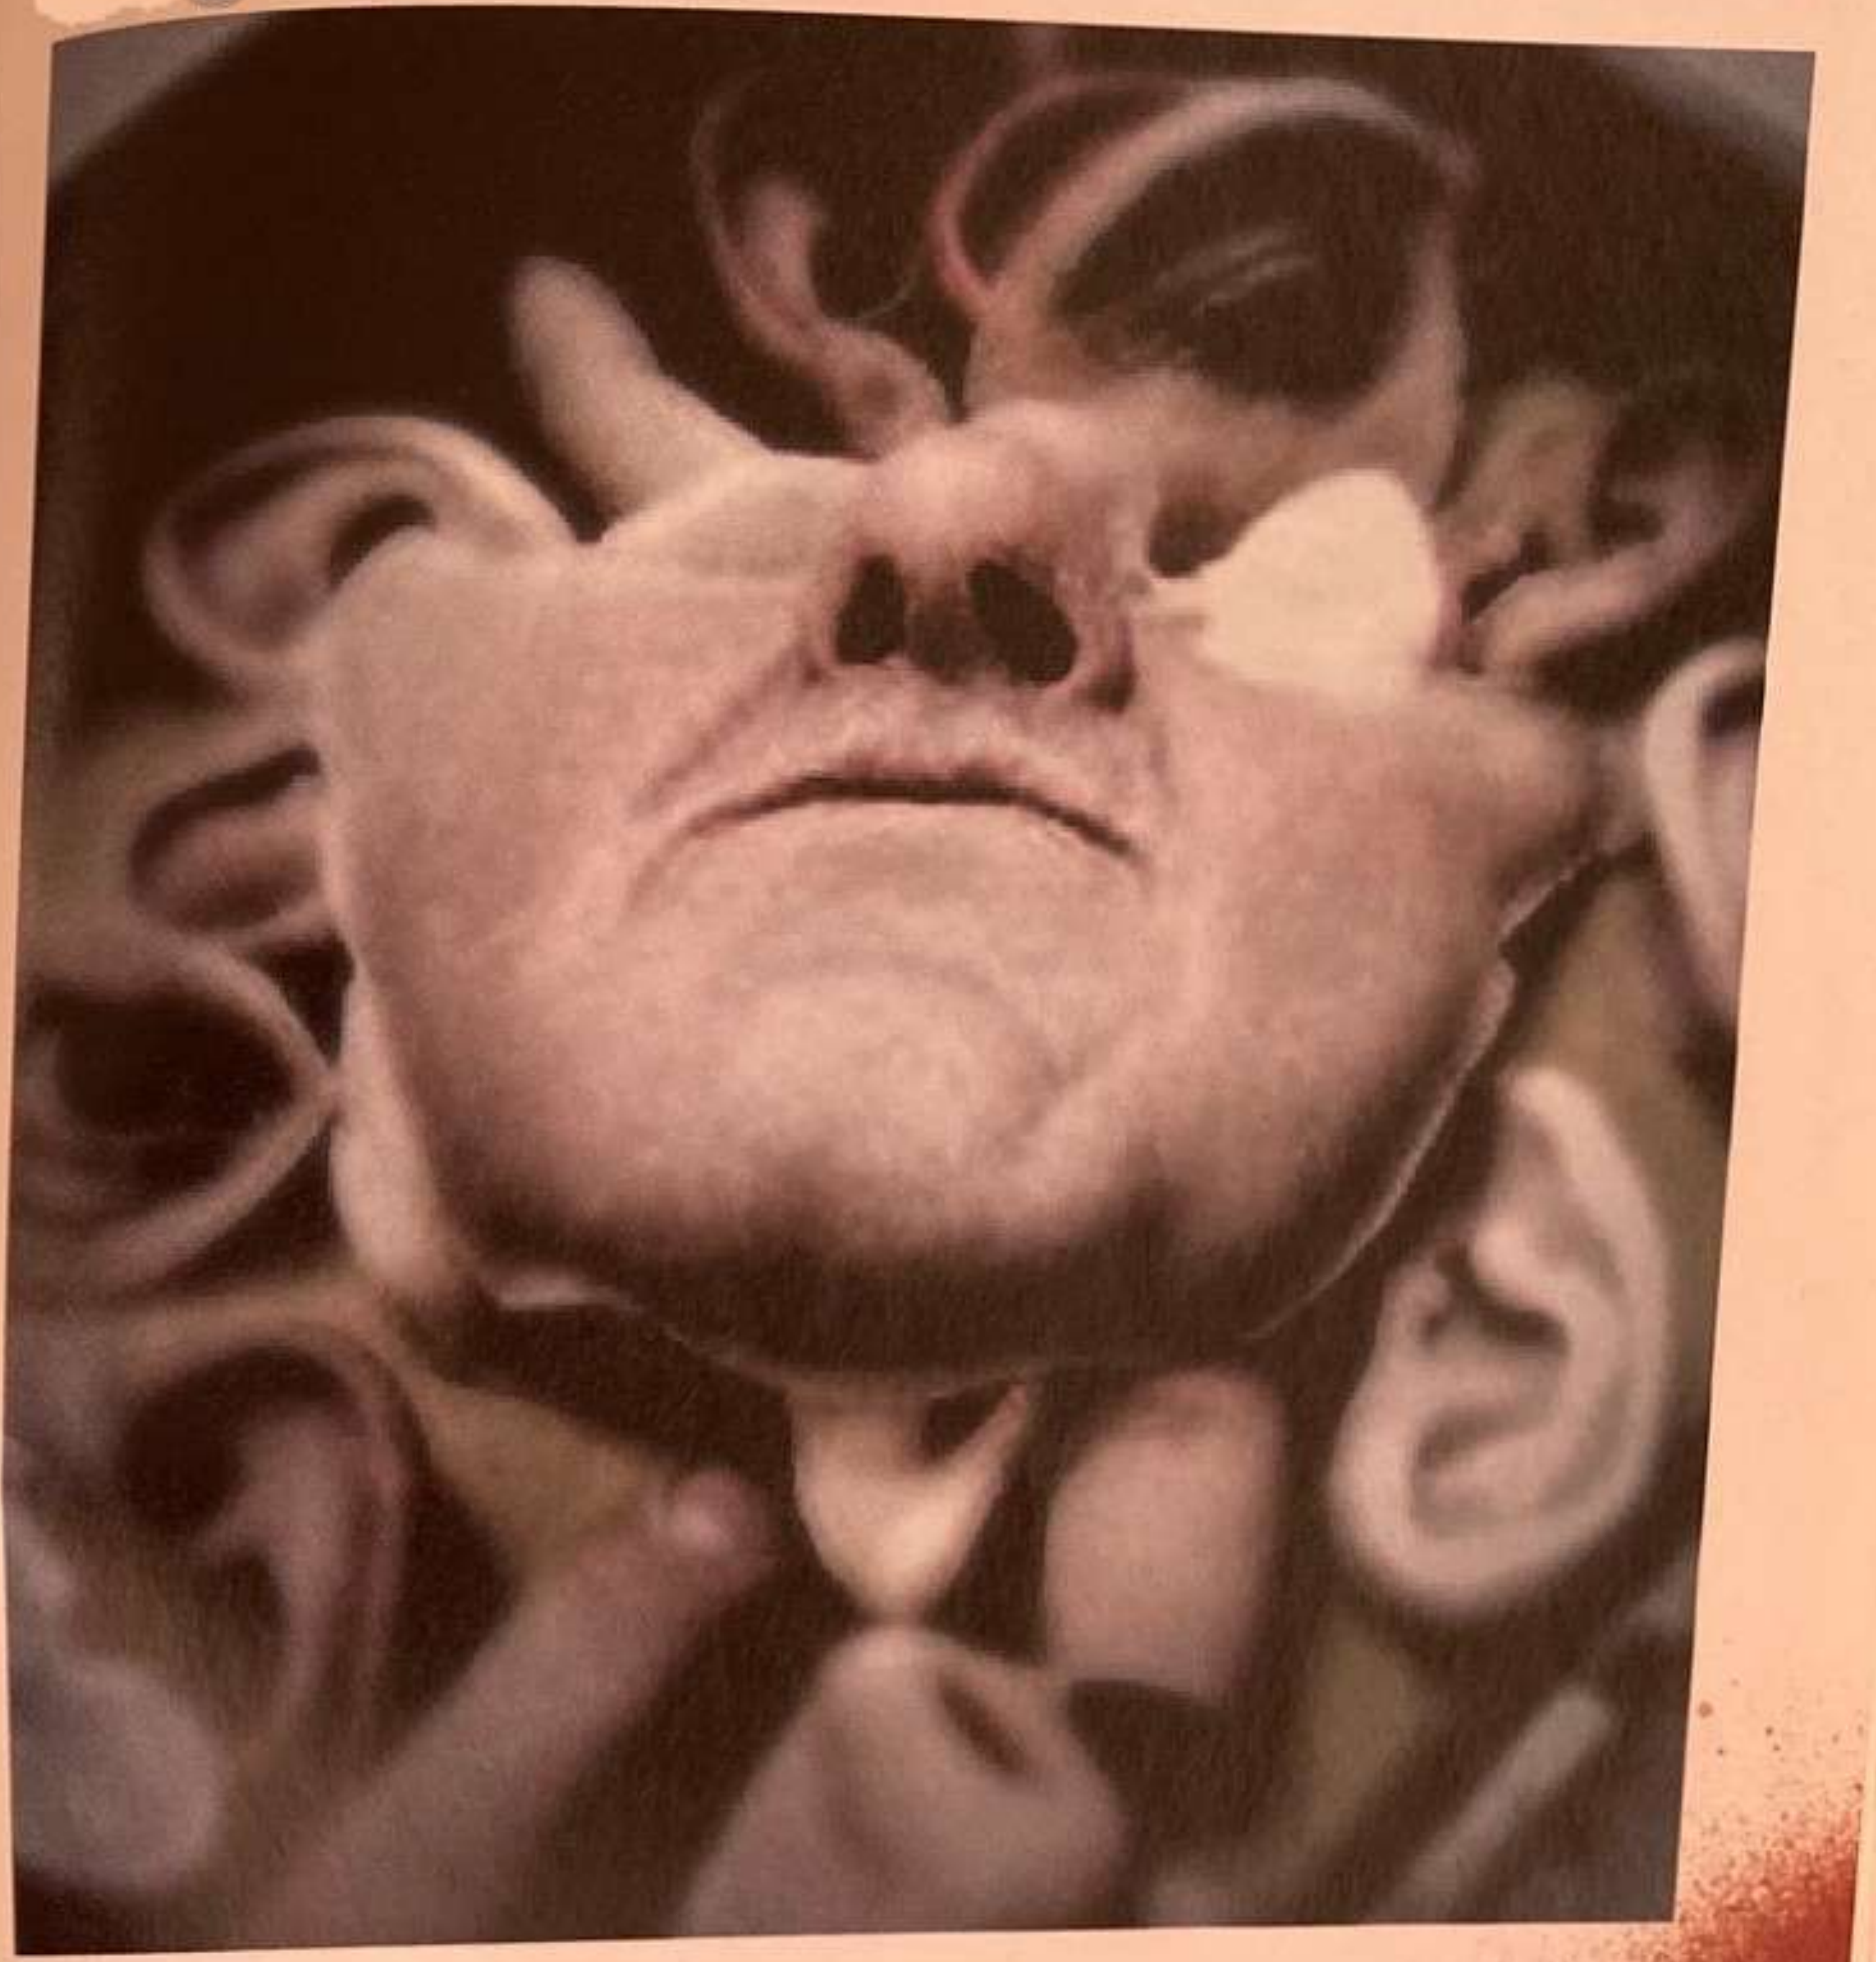
Wolves howl and goldfish frolic in a serene natural landscape. However, the creator of this peaceful painting is Charles Ing, a serial rapist and murderer who terrorized San Francisco in 1985. Born into a wealthy family in Hong Kong, he moved to the United States at the age of 18, where his innate sadism erupted. He built a torture chamber on the farm where he lived at the time, abducting women from nearby areas and torturing them there, dismembering them with a chainsaw. For men, he would release them into the farm, which was rigged with landmines and stakes, and then hunt them for sport. He even killed a baby in front of its crying mother.

The Smiling Killer 2: James Foley



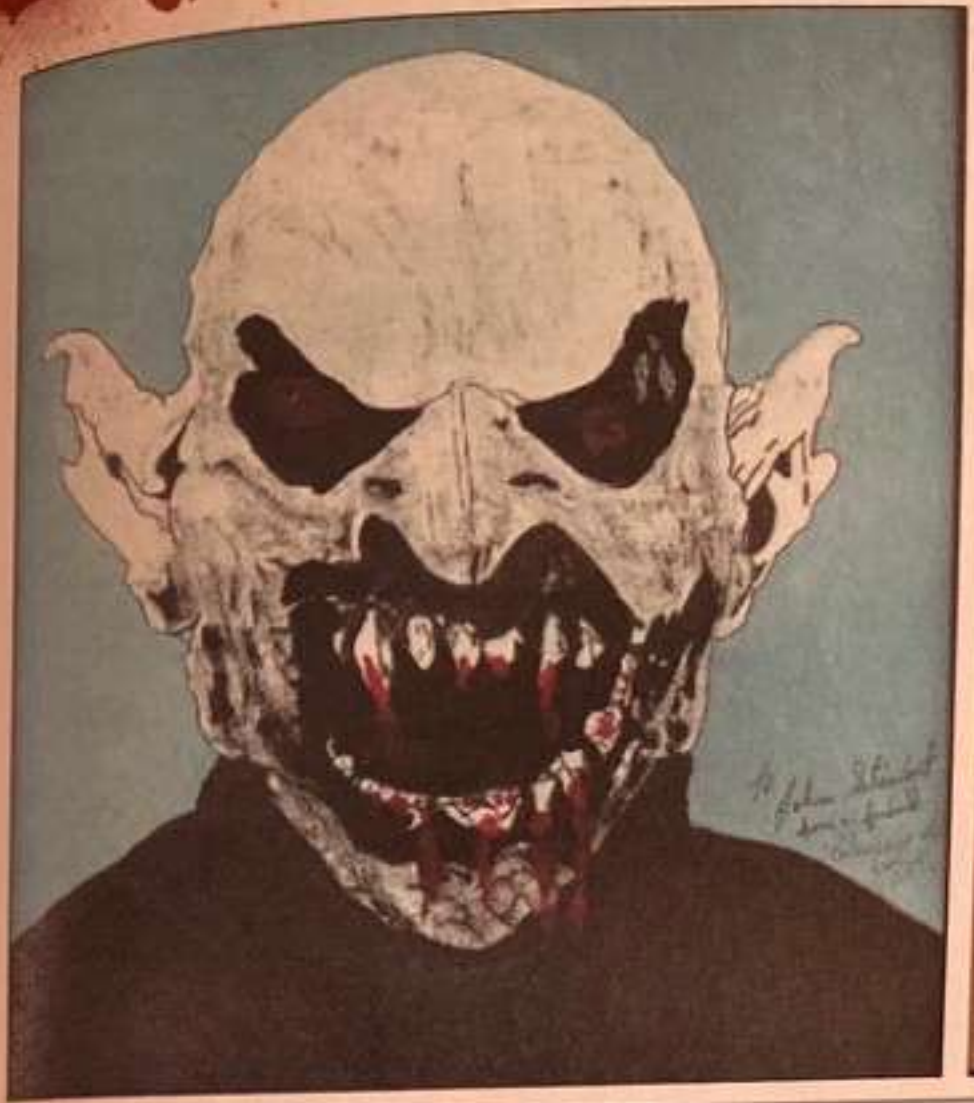
Despite being a police officer, he was a serial killer who murdered 13 women. His method was to pretend to arrest prostitutes and take them to his home. After stabbing them repeatedly with a knife, he would violate the corpses for pleasure. After his arrest, a large number of videos were seized from James's room, showing scenes of him engaging with the dead bodies. During the trial, he claimed, "I can only get excited with corpses, so I had no choice," and he kept smirking and laughing throughout.

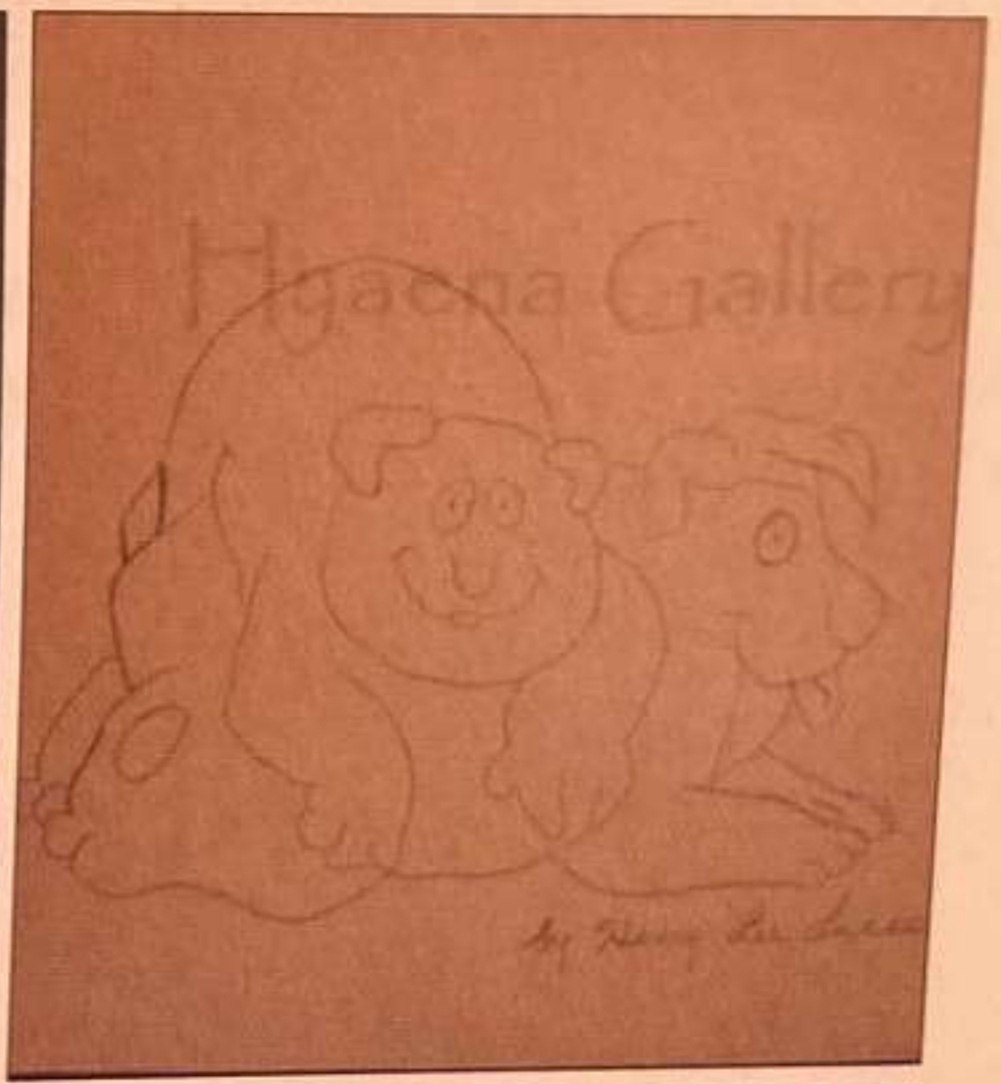
Rubber parts used by the murderer for disguise

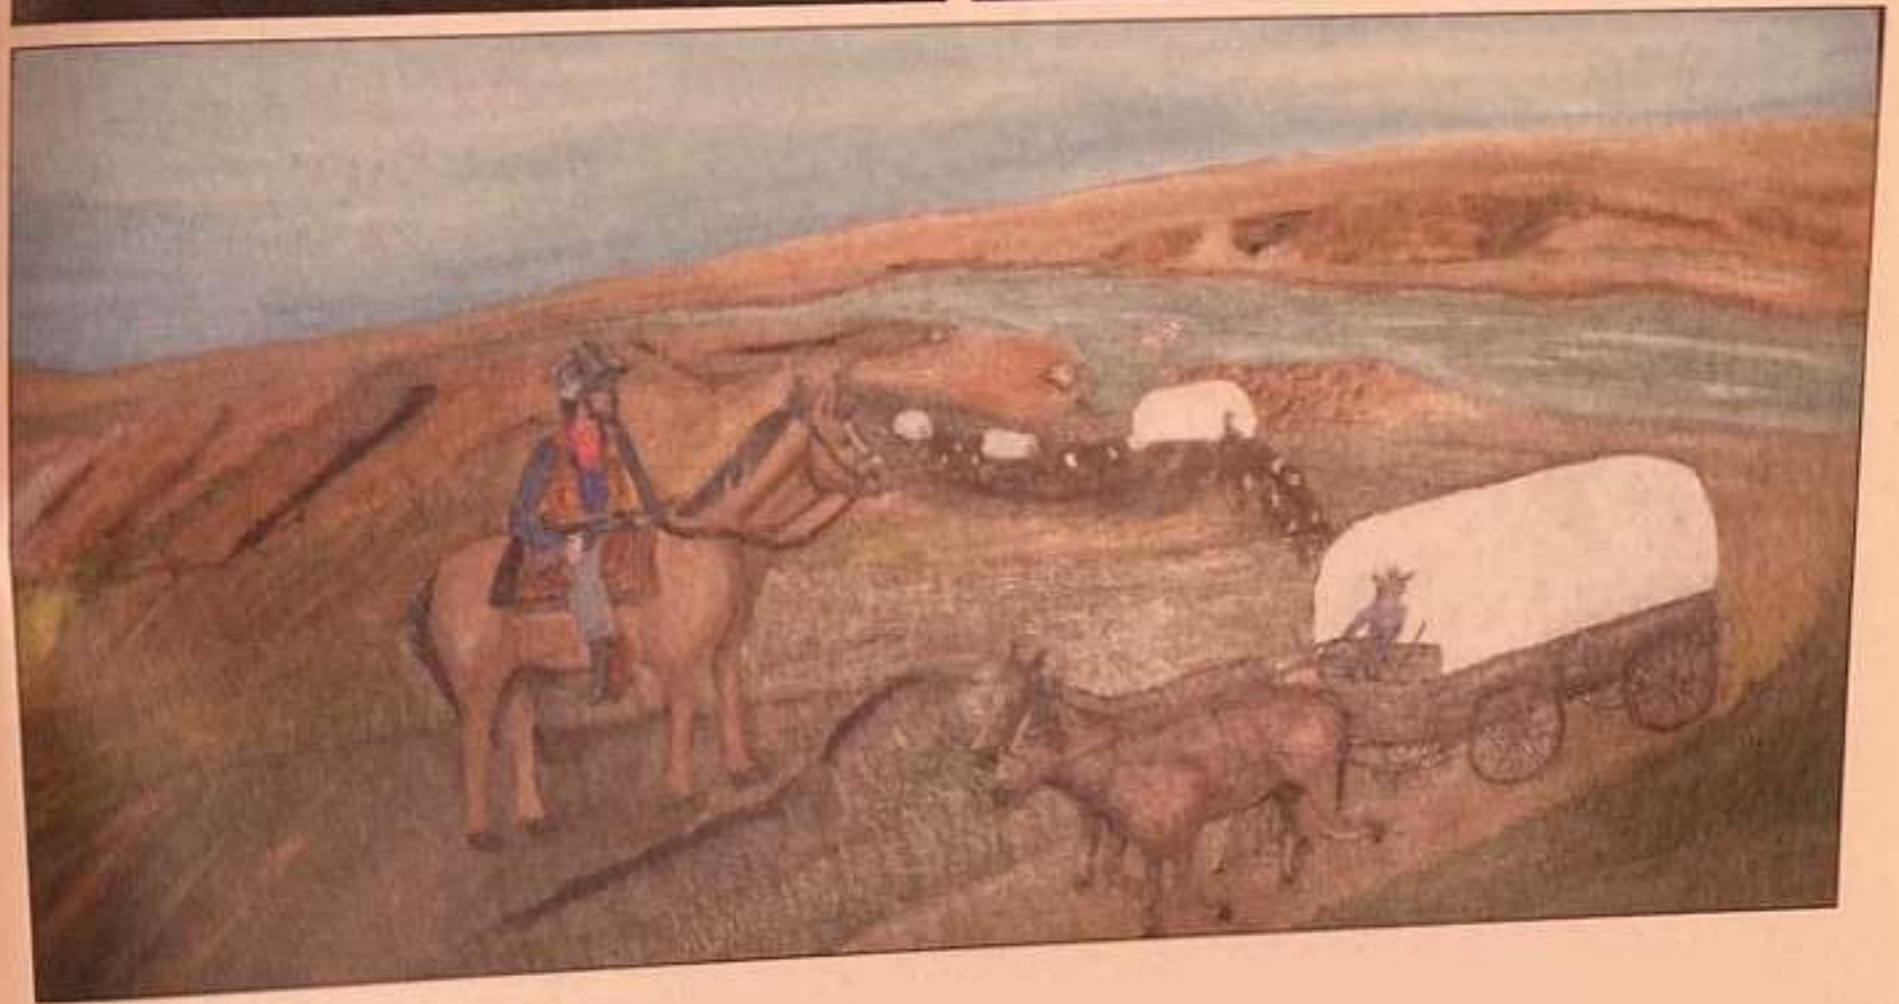


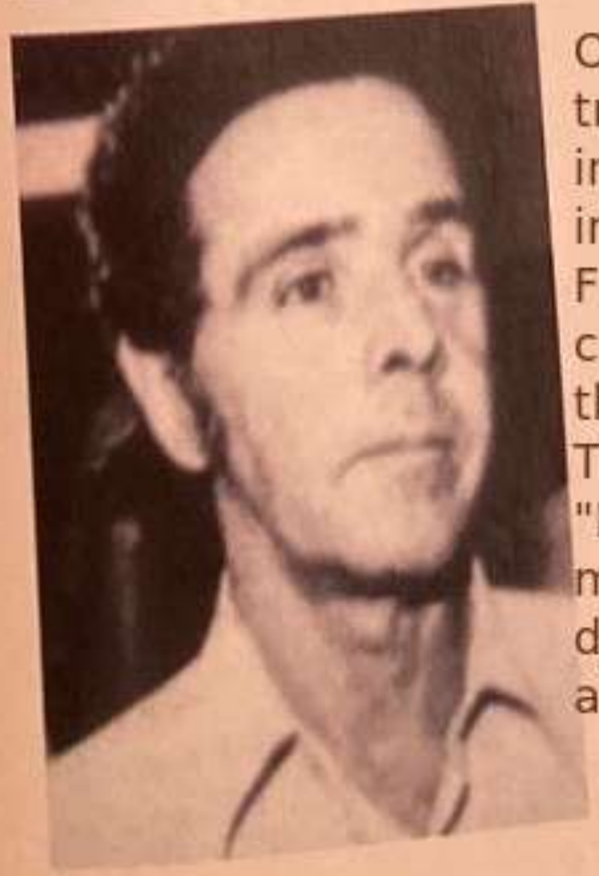
In 1996, Joseph Watson (age 3) went on a shooting spree at the post office where he had worked for two years, killing one police officer and eight others who rushed to the scene. He then fled with thousands of dollars. After the incident, a search of his room revealed a large quantity of rubber molded into human body parts, as shown in the photo. This man was originally a makeup artist for films, but he eventually came up with the idea that "if I hide my face with a self-made mask, I can commit any crime without being caught," and he secretly kept a large number of these parts. Incidentally, after the post office shooting, Watson continued to disguise himself and flee, but he was quickly arrested because the texture of the rubber aroused suspicion.

Henry Lucas









One of the worst serial killers in history, said to have traveled across 17 states in the U. S., killing people indiscriminately and taking the lives of over 300 individuals. He killed so many people that even the FBI visited Henry in prison to inquire about his criminal psychology. This episode was adopted as the model for the serial killer Hannibal Lecter in Thomas Harris's works. In interviews, he stated, "Killing was like breathing" and "Humans? They meant nothing to me, just blank paper." Until his death from a heart attack in 2001, he never uttered a word of apology.

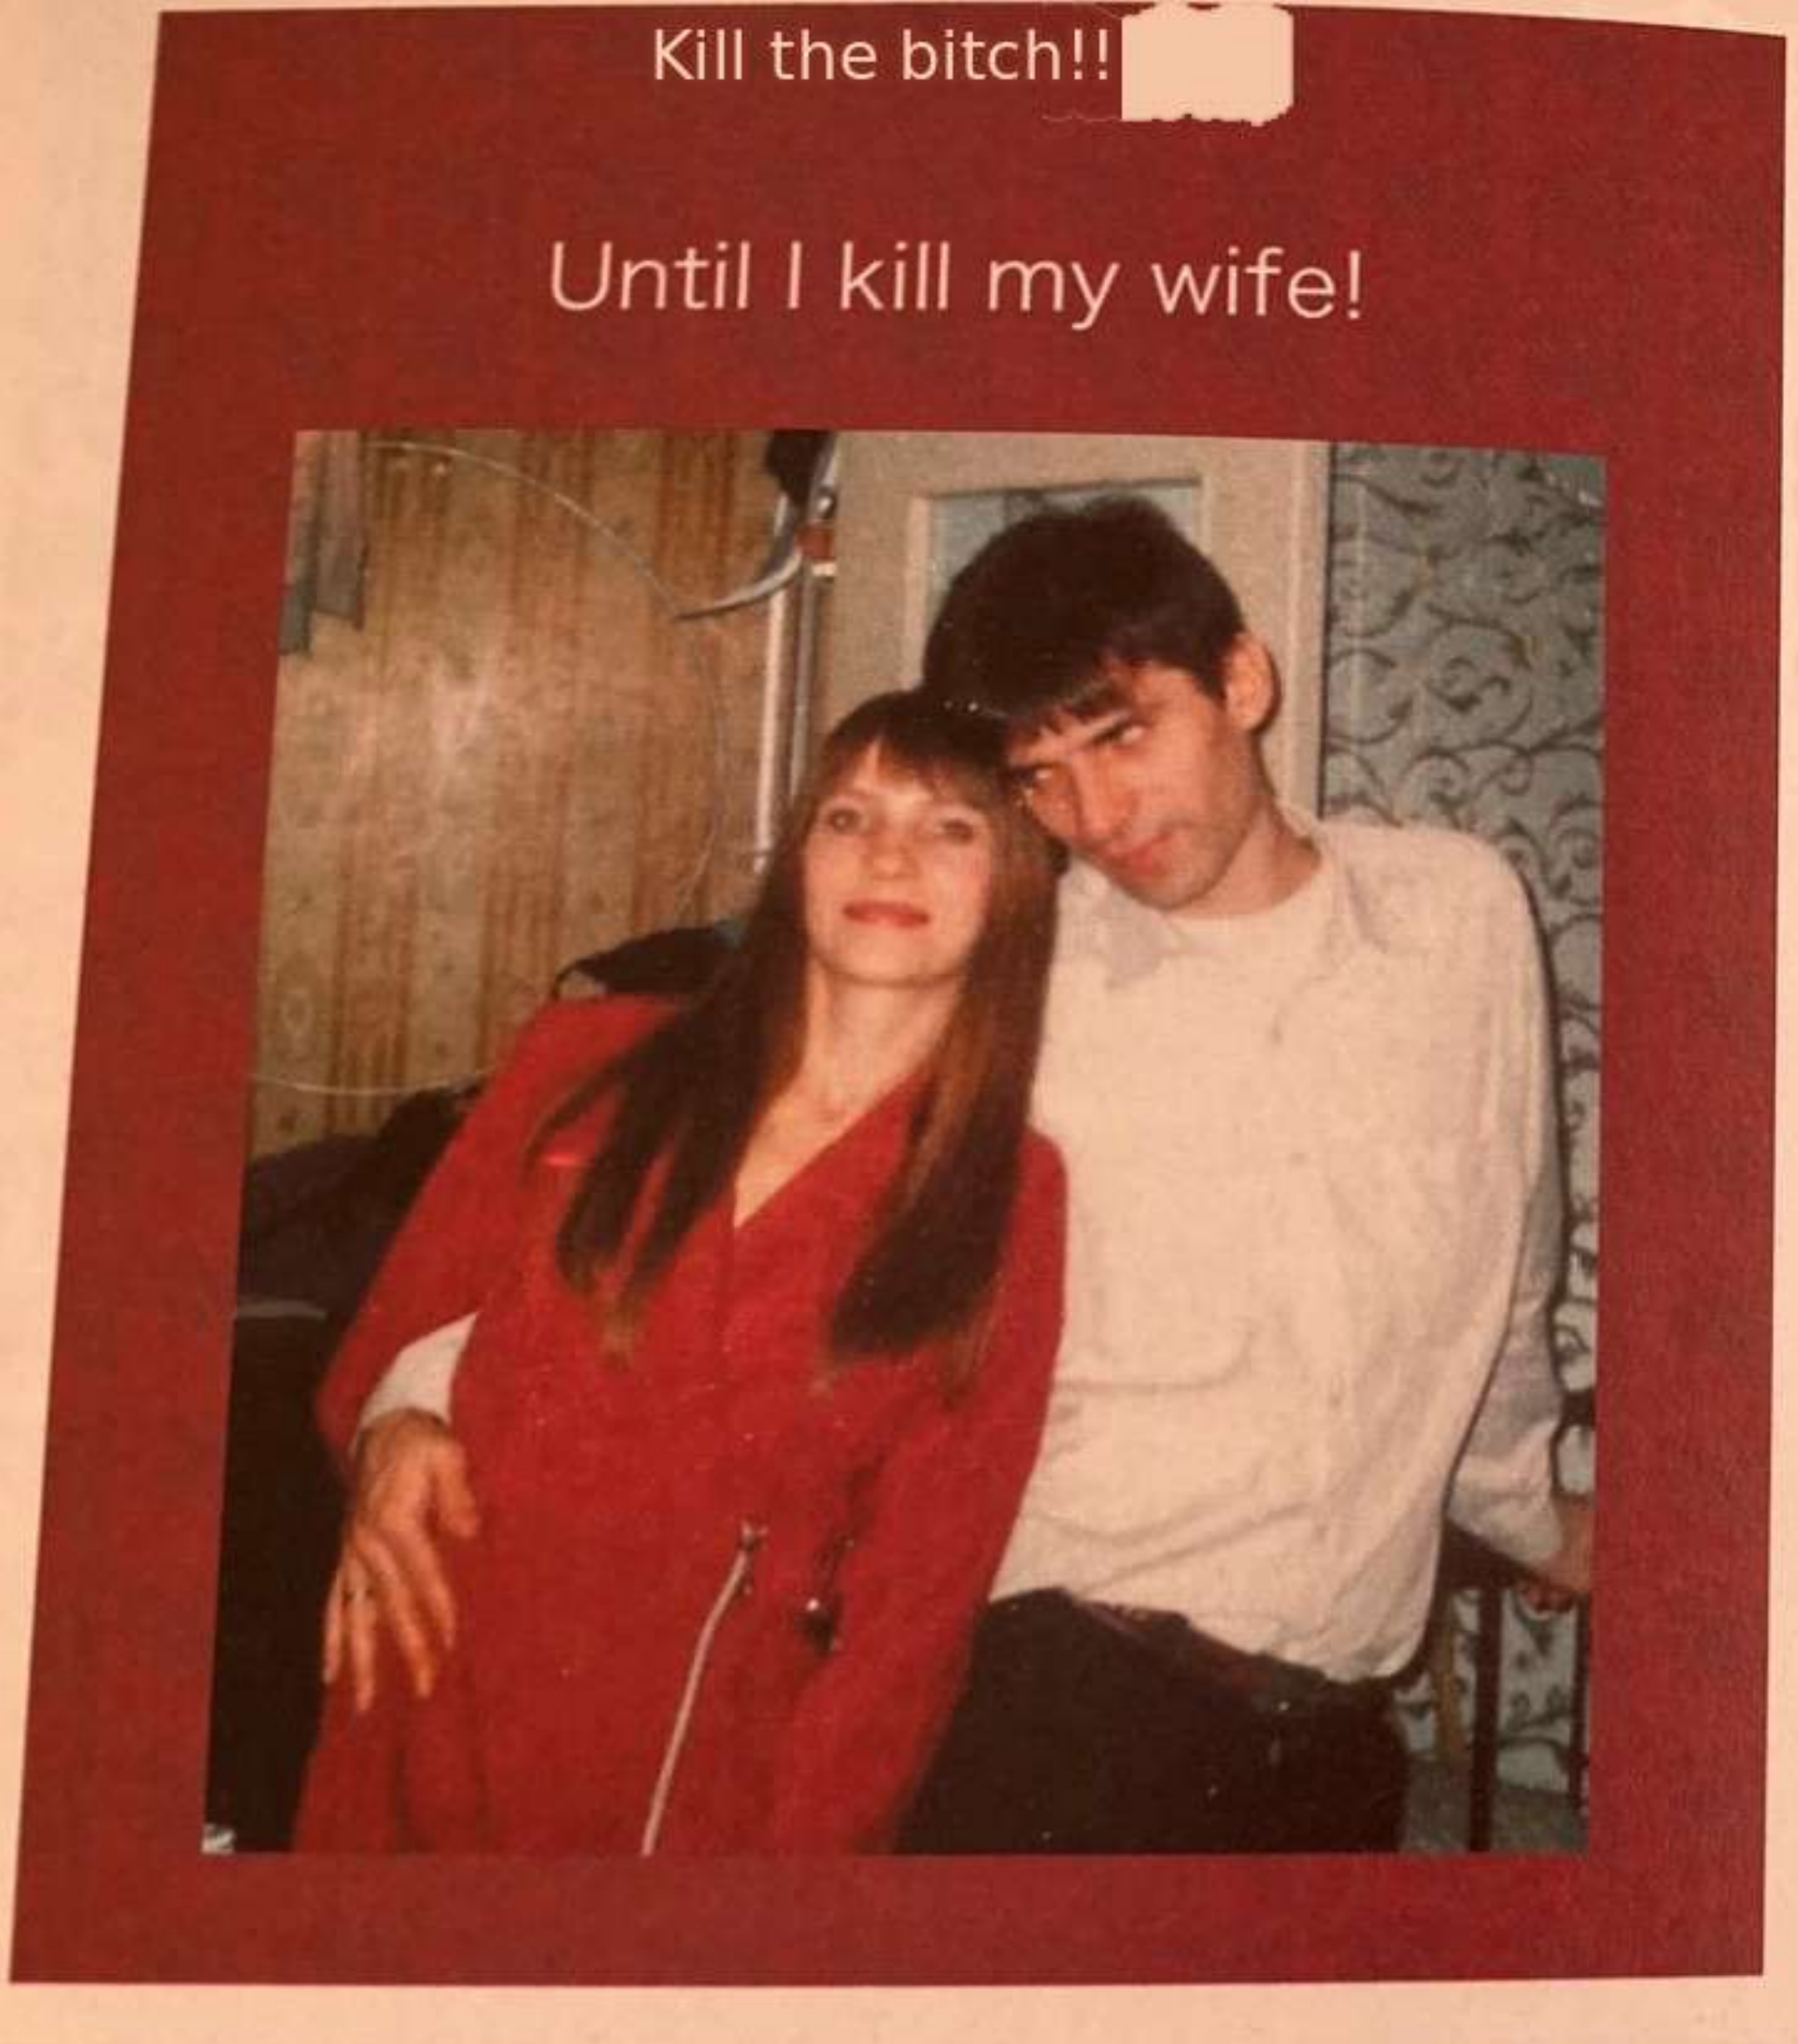
The Husband's Website That Issued a Warning



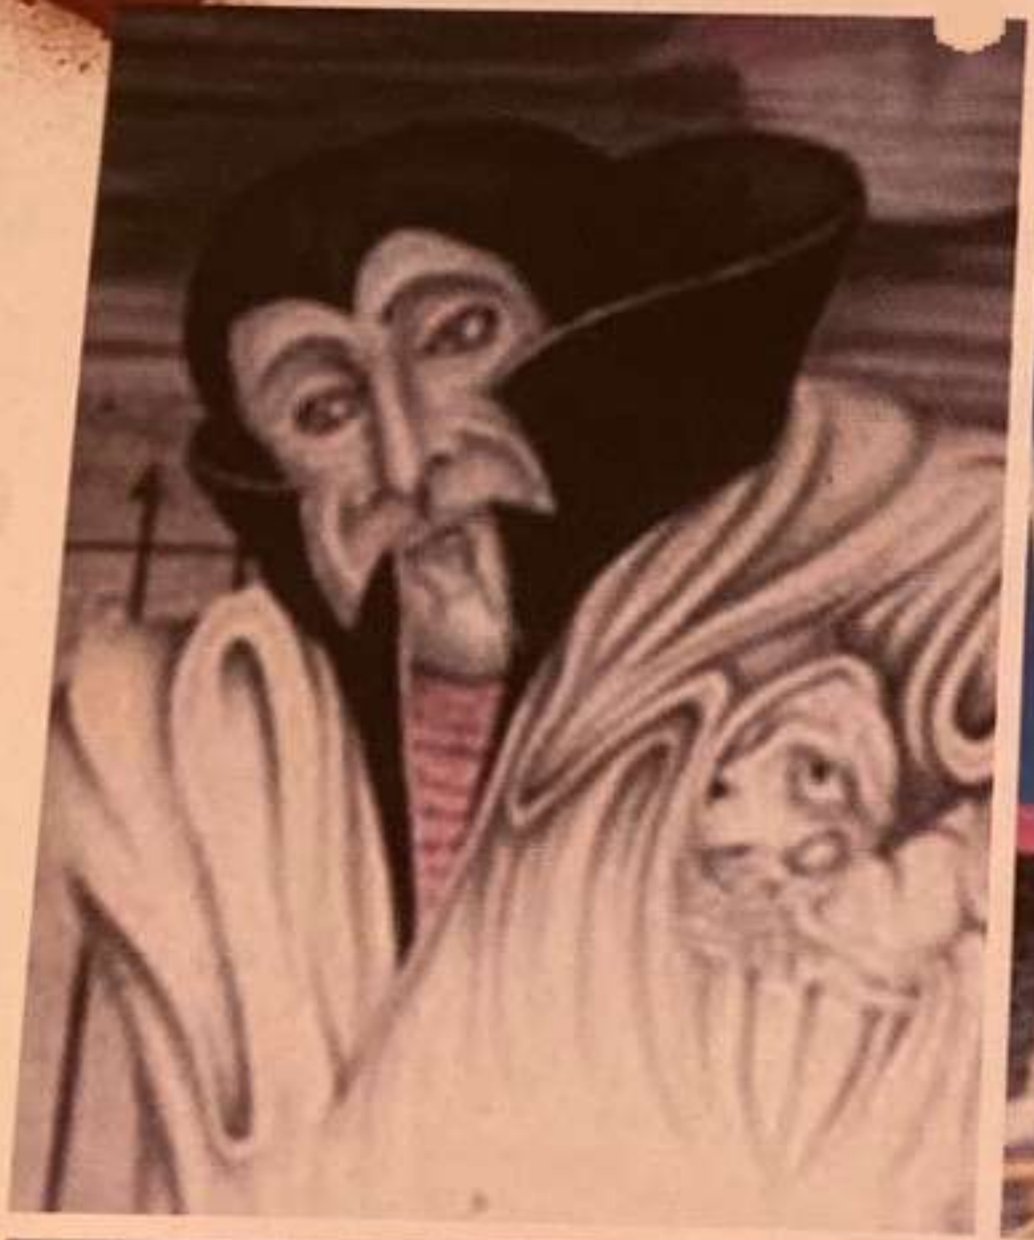
Kill the bitch!!

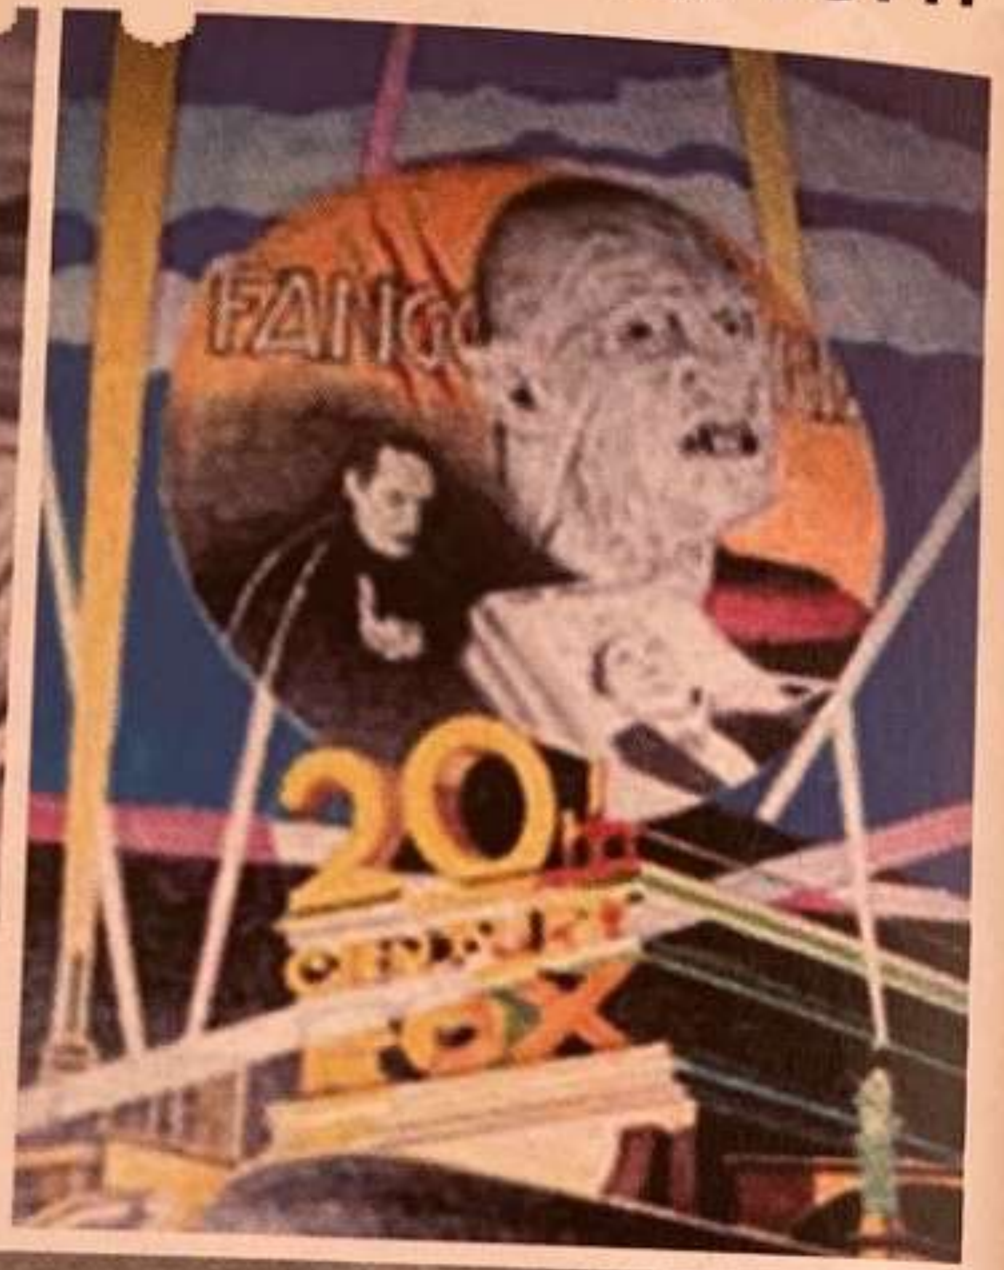
Until I kill my wife!

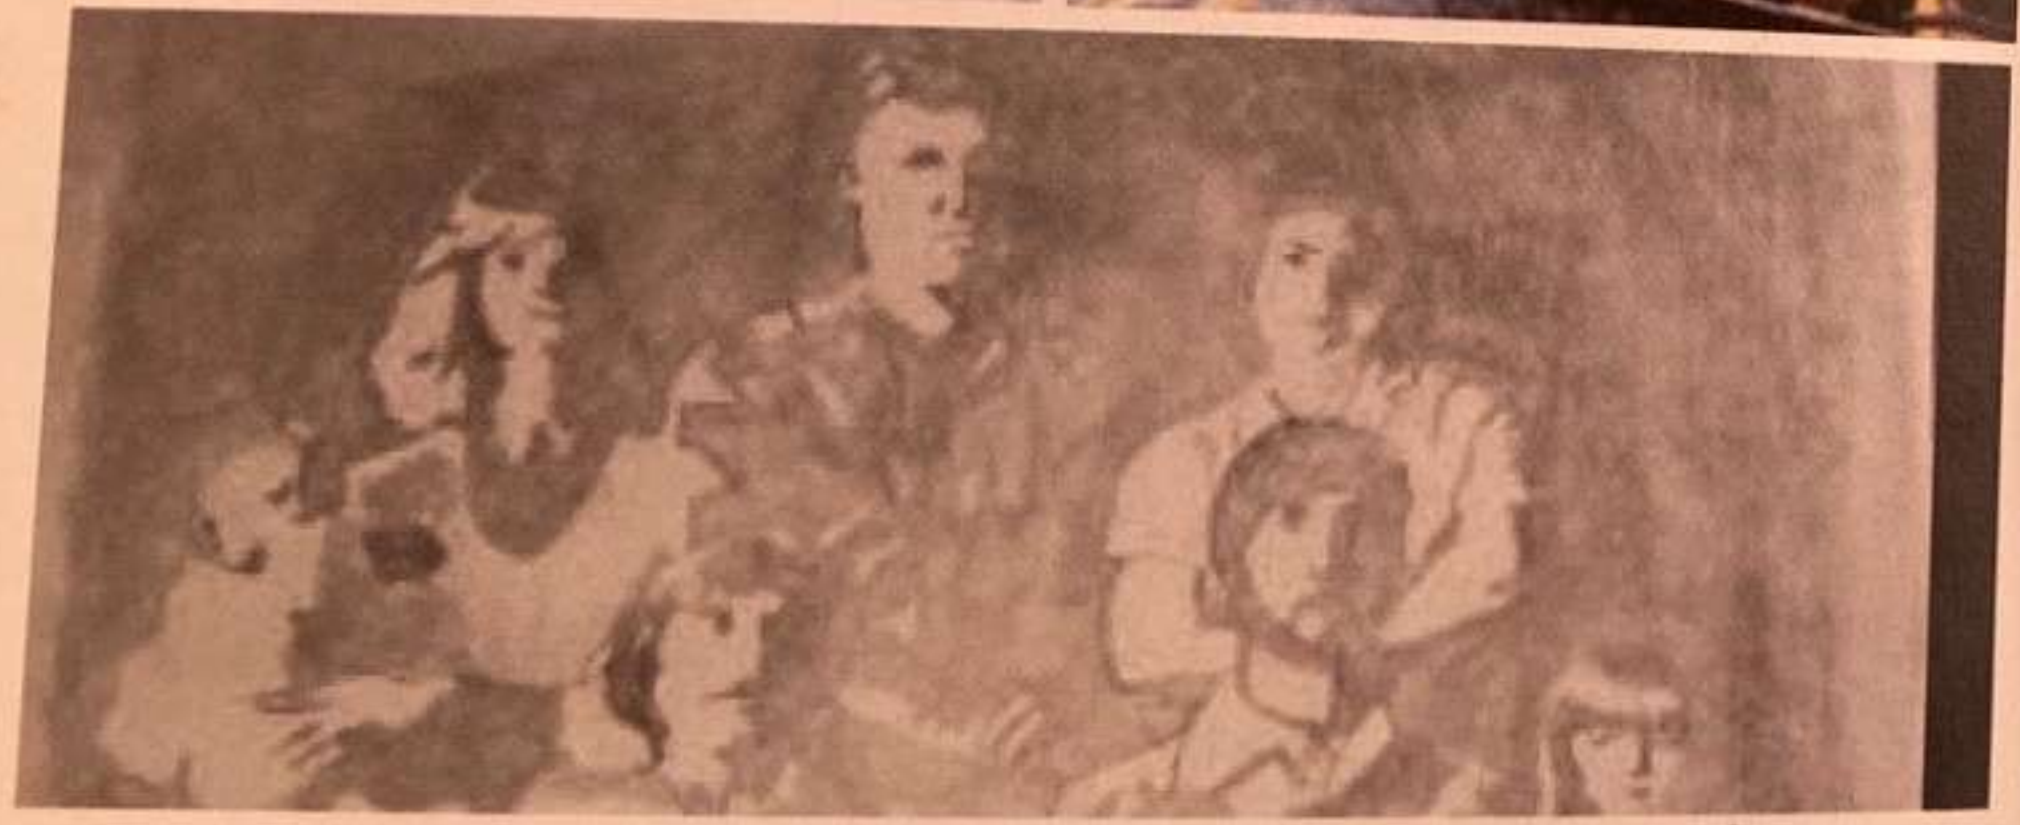
The image you see is a page titled "Until I Kill My Wife" that appeared on the internet around 1999. The site had only a homepage, with a note at the bottom stating, "Time left until I kill my wife → 20 days." Everyone thought it was a prank, but one month after the site was launched, an incident occurred. A woman, believed to be the same person as in the top image, was found dead on a beach in the UK. The woman was a 25-year-old nurse, with marks on her neck from being strangled with a rope. However, this woman was not married, and the causal relationship with the website remains unclear. As for the man with his arm around her waist in the image, no corresponding man was found among her close acquaintances.

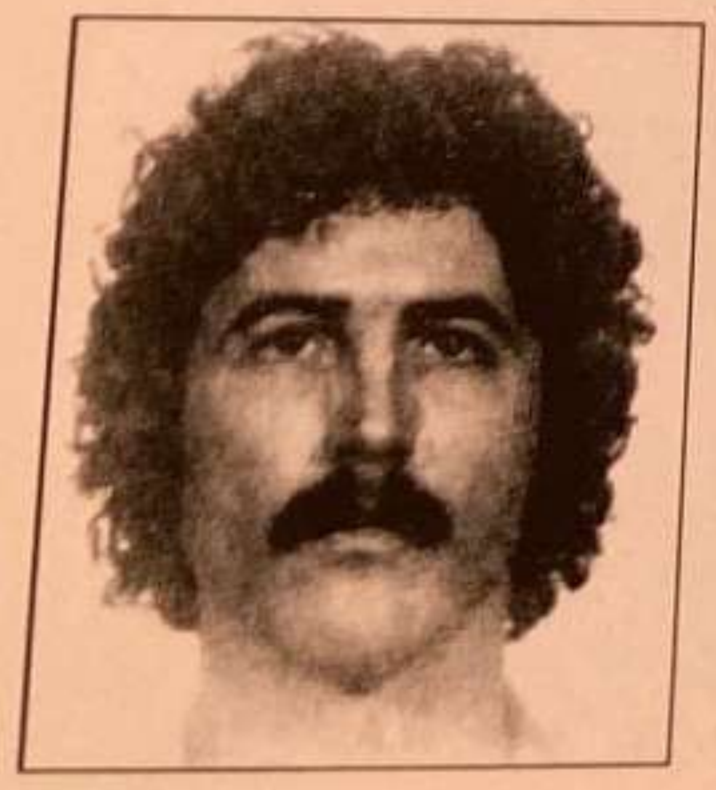
5 Paintings by a Murderer

Kenneth Bianchi









In 1979, he was arrested in Washington state for raping and strangling two female college students. After his arrest, police investigations revealed that he was a serial killer who had murdered 12 women using the same method within just four months. However, he brazenly claimed "amnesia." When the prosecution presented evidence exposing his lies, he then began to claim "multiple personality disorder." The paintings in the photo were presented by Bianchi as "created by another personality." By the way, this man is still alive.

In his later years, Nielsen, disheartened by the fact that his paintings no longer sold, committed suicide.

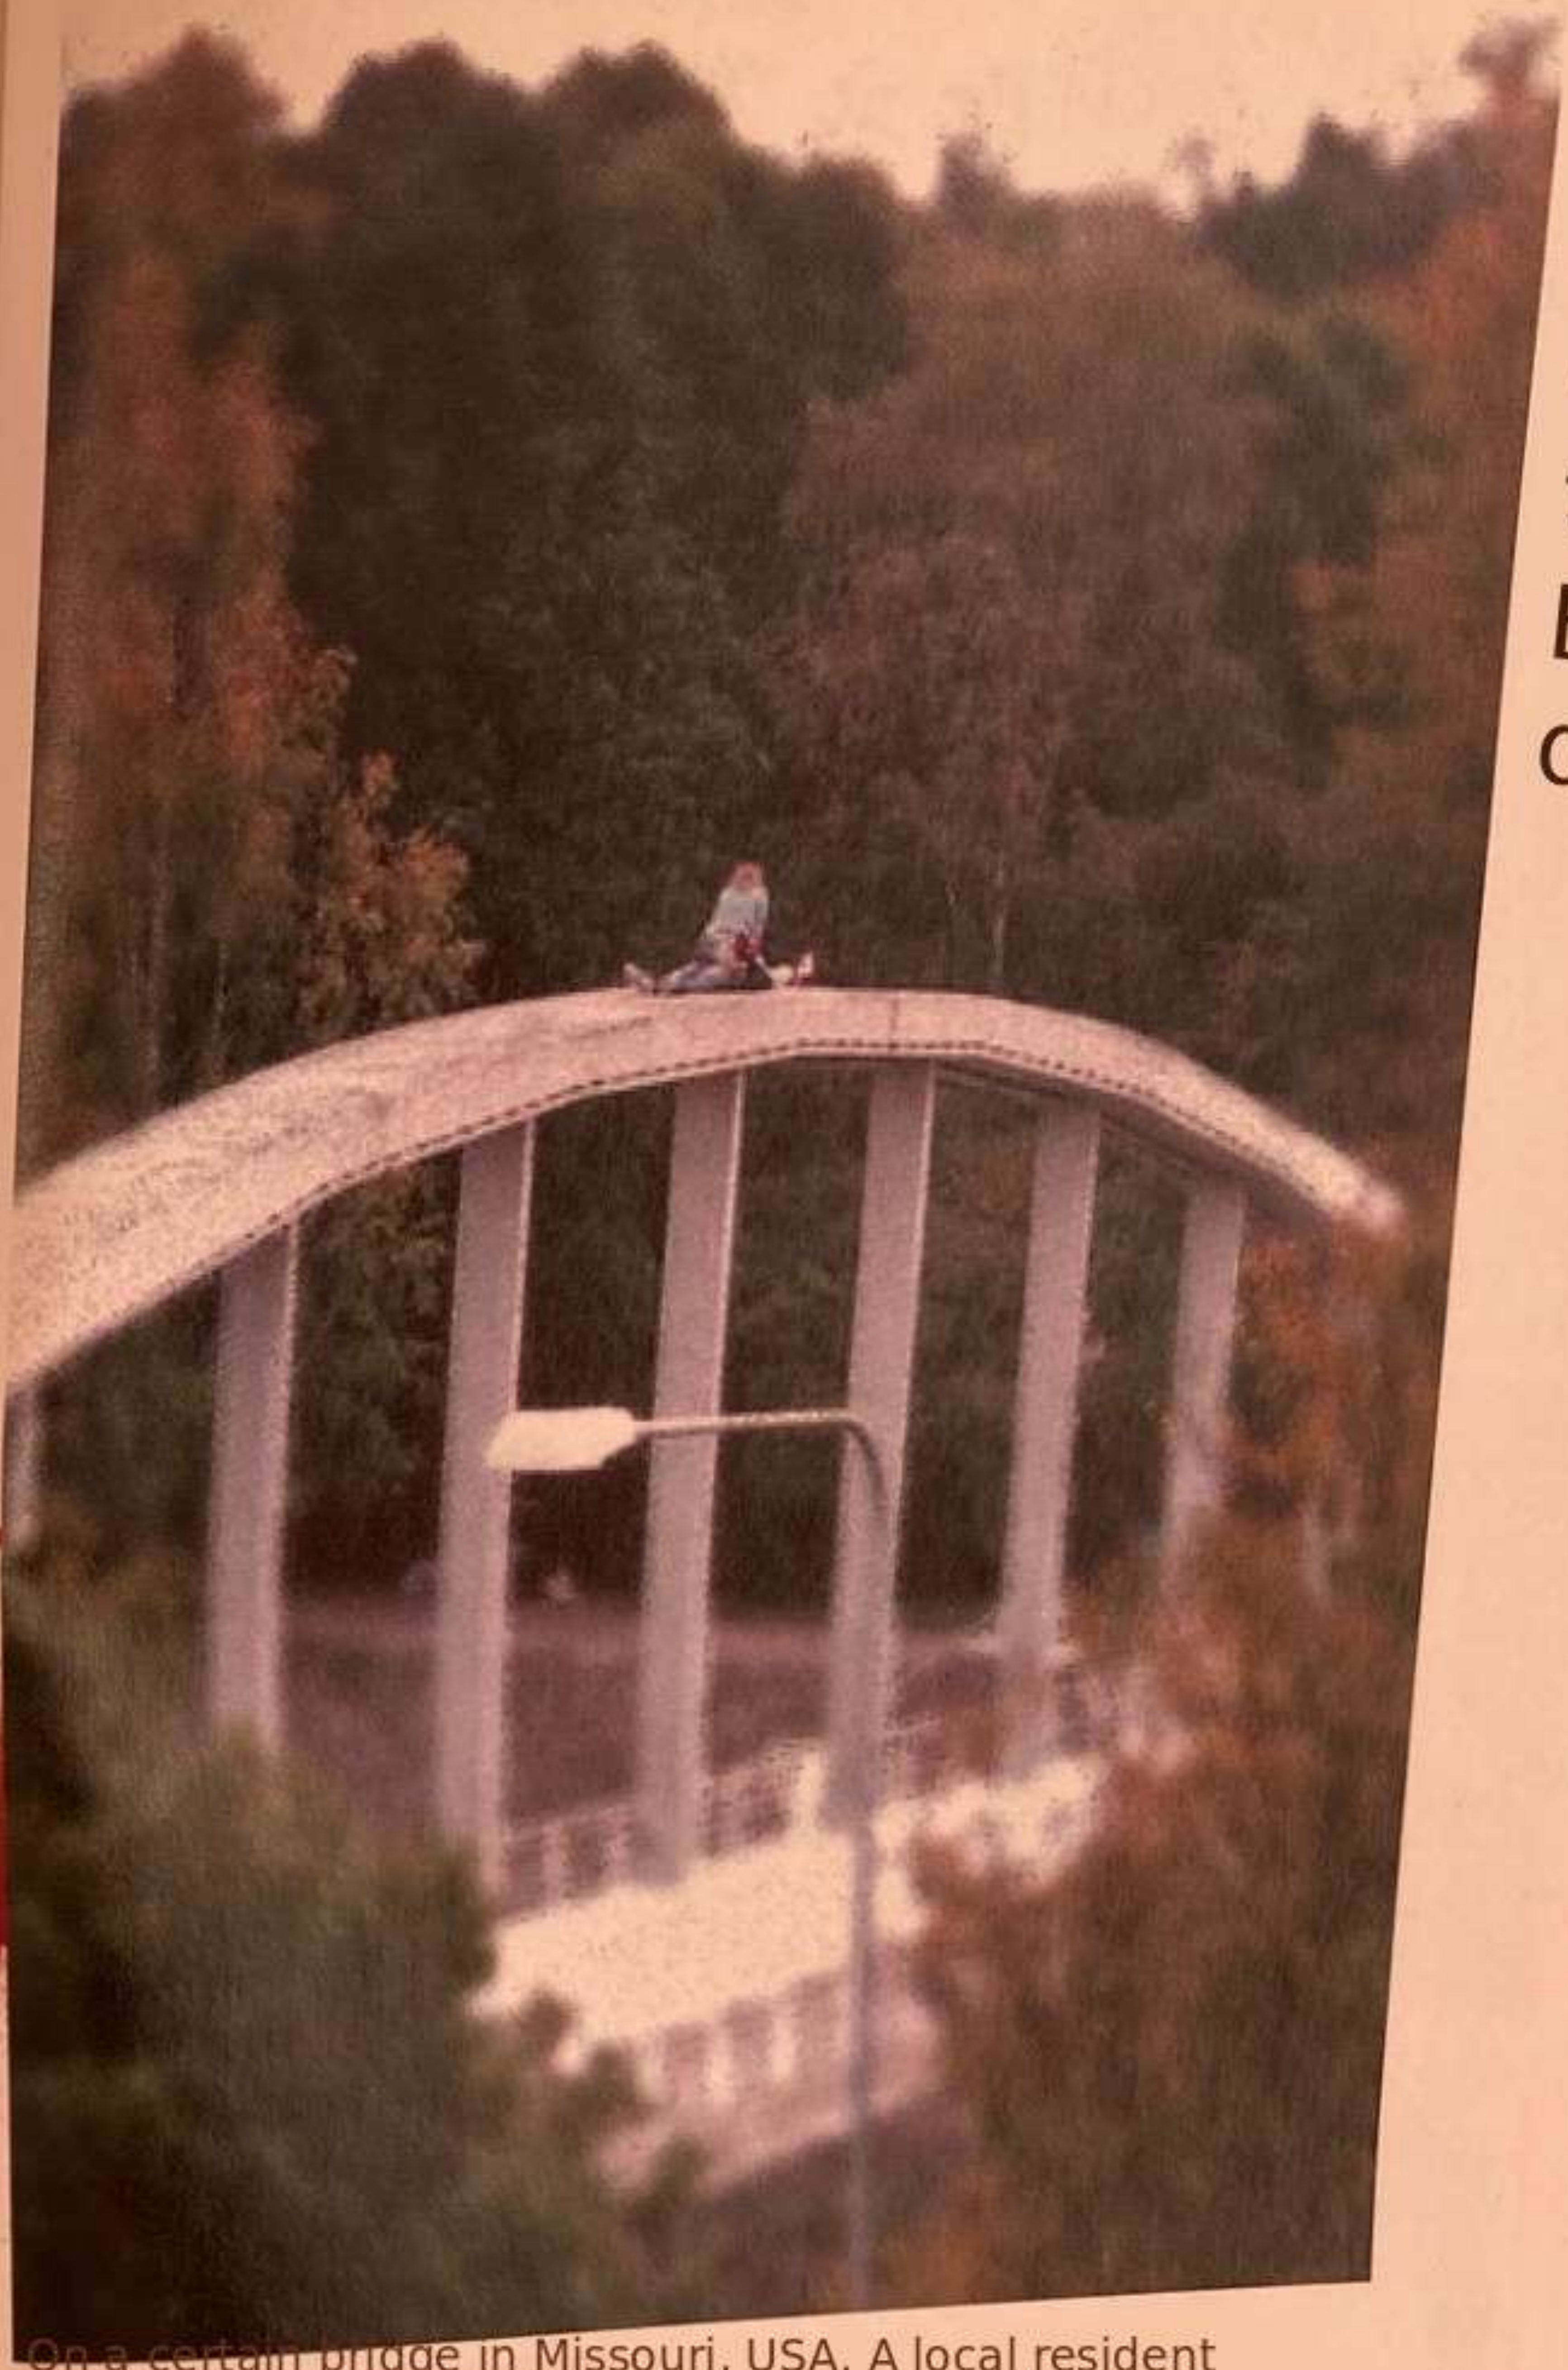
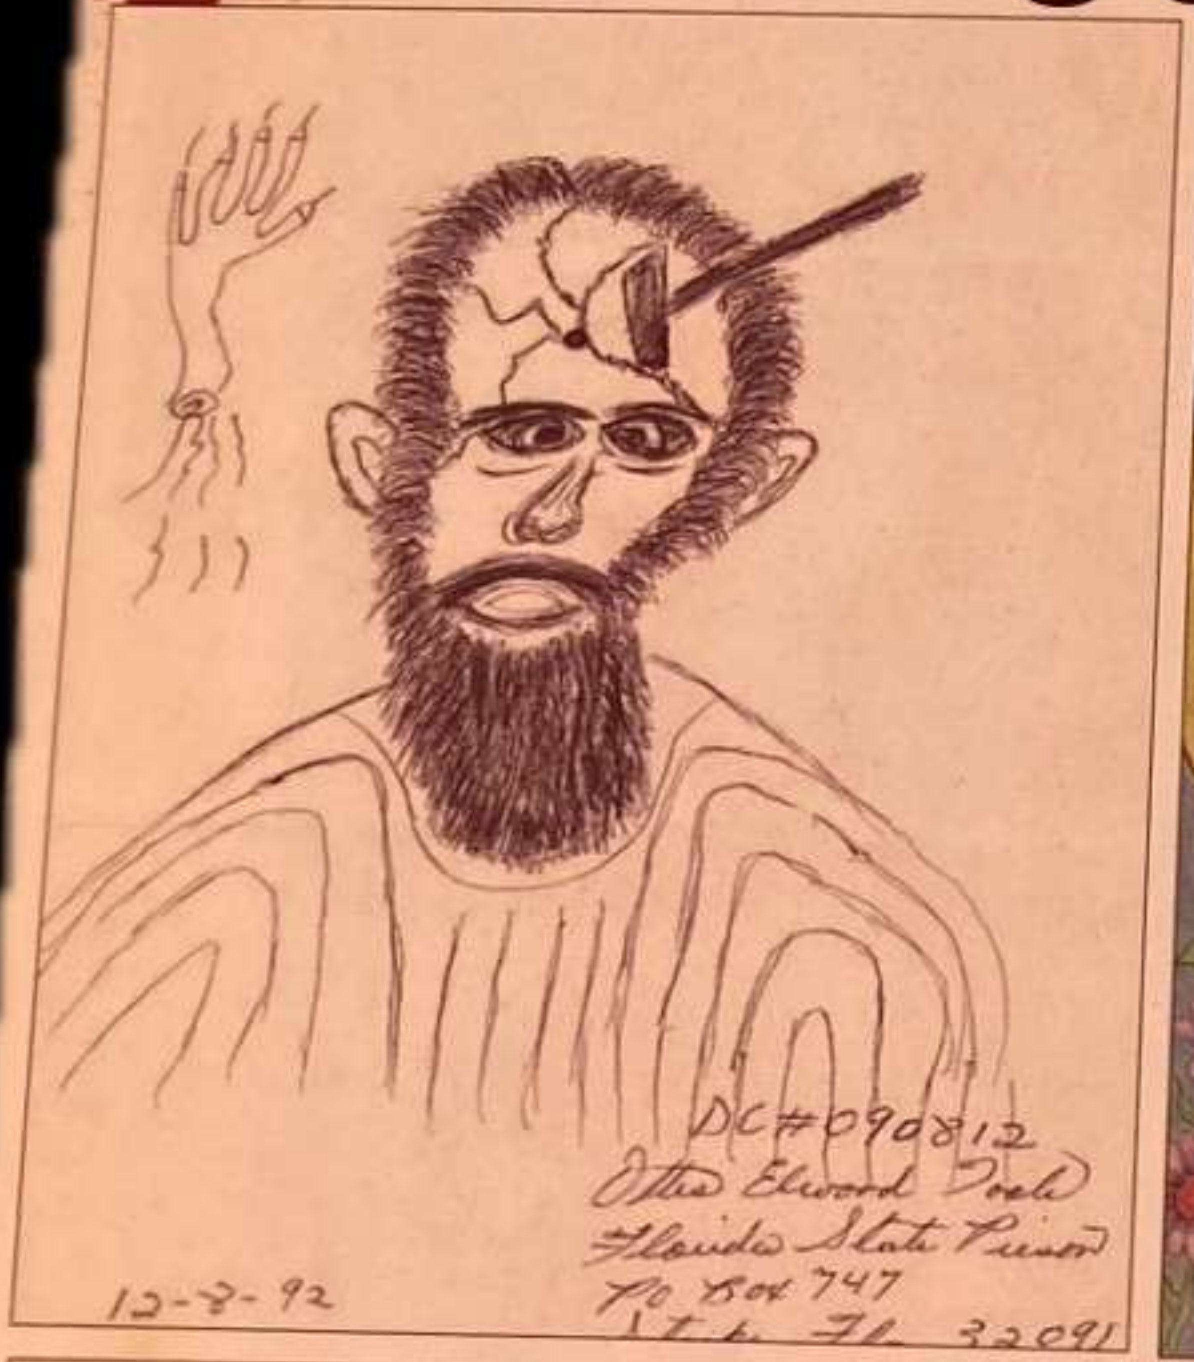
Murder on the Bridge

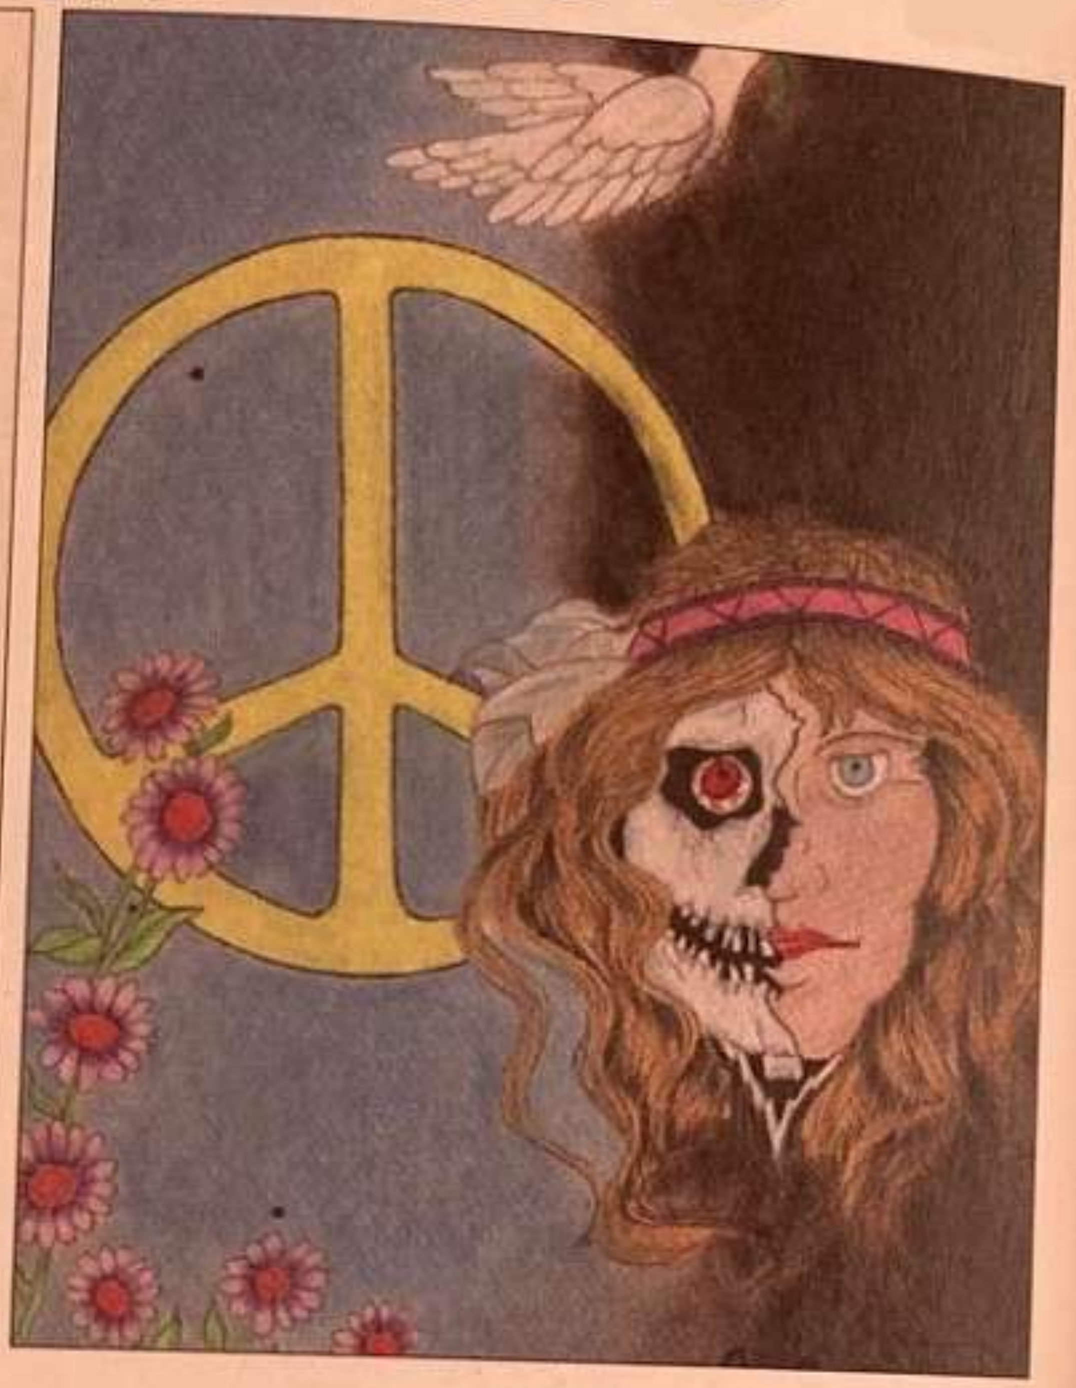


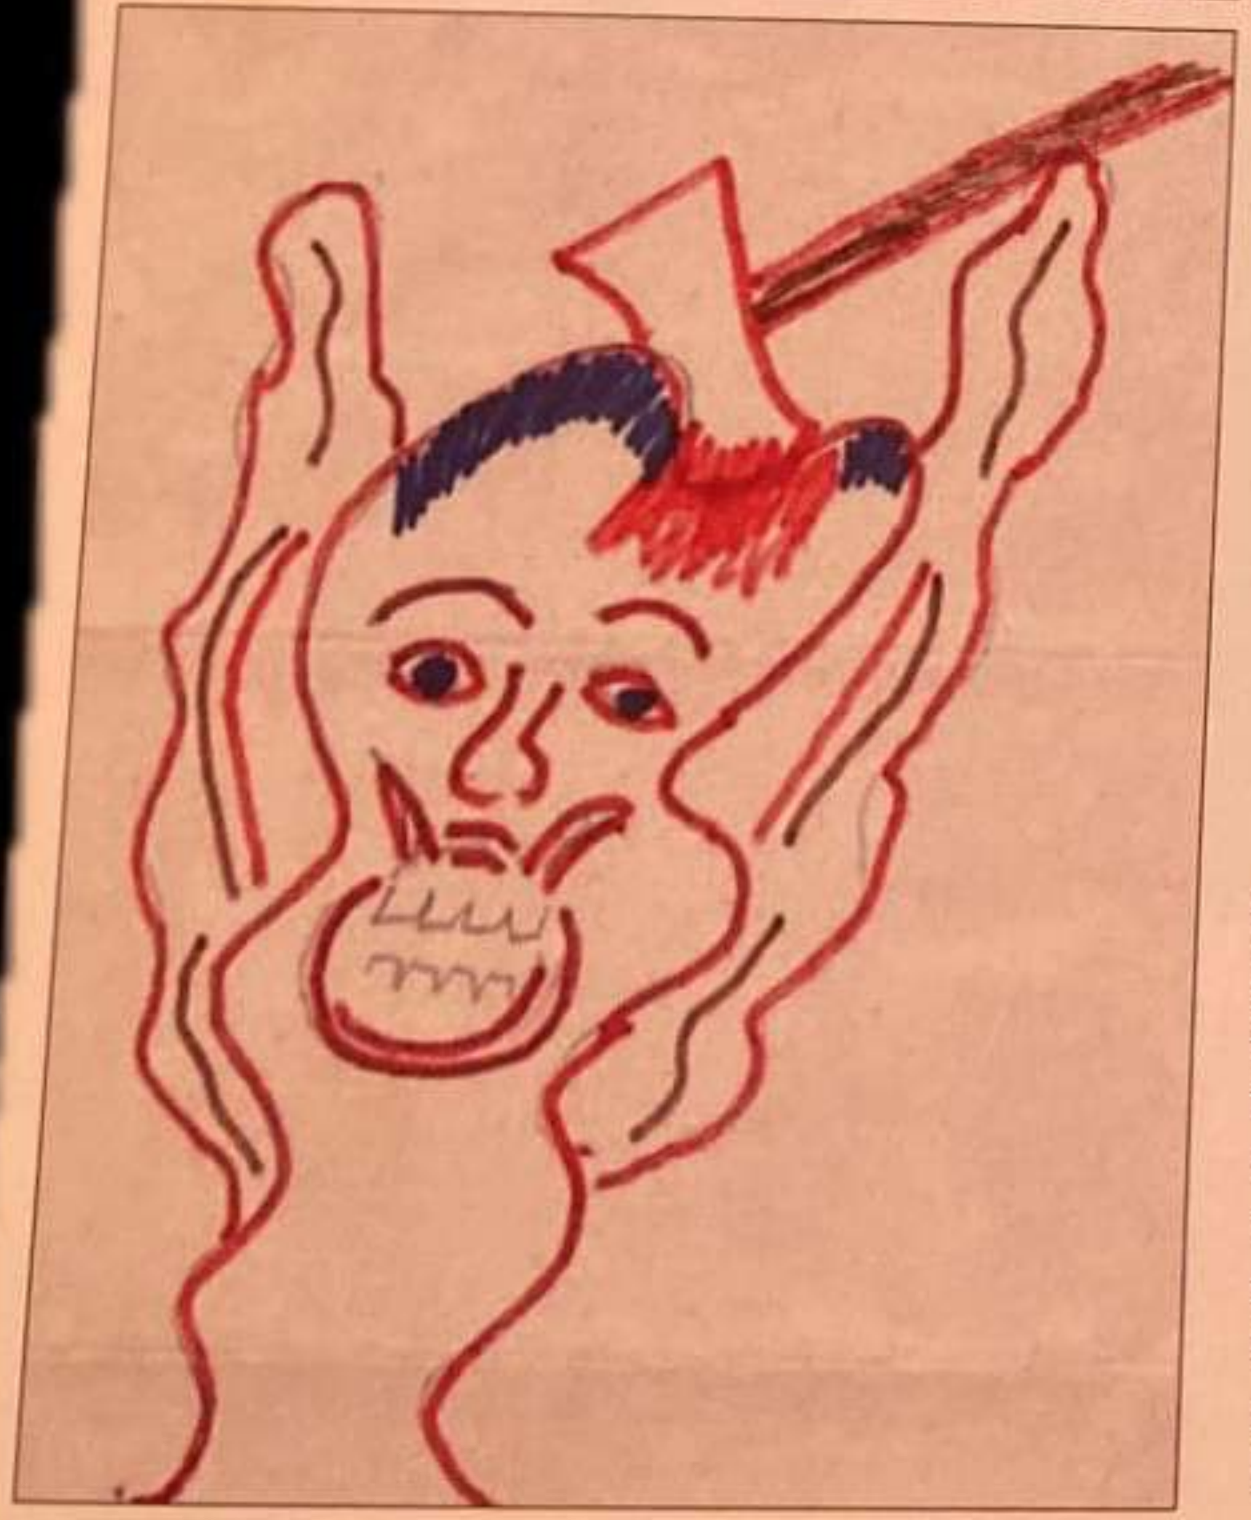
On a certain bridge in Missouri, USA. A local resident casually pointed their camera and was instantly terrified. A woman was straddling a man lying on the arch, strangling his neck. The photograph became decisive evidence, and the woman was quickly arrested. However, she stubbornly refused to explain why the murder took place on the bridge.

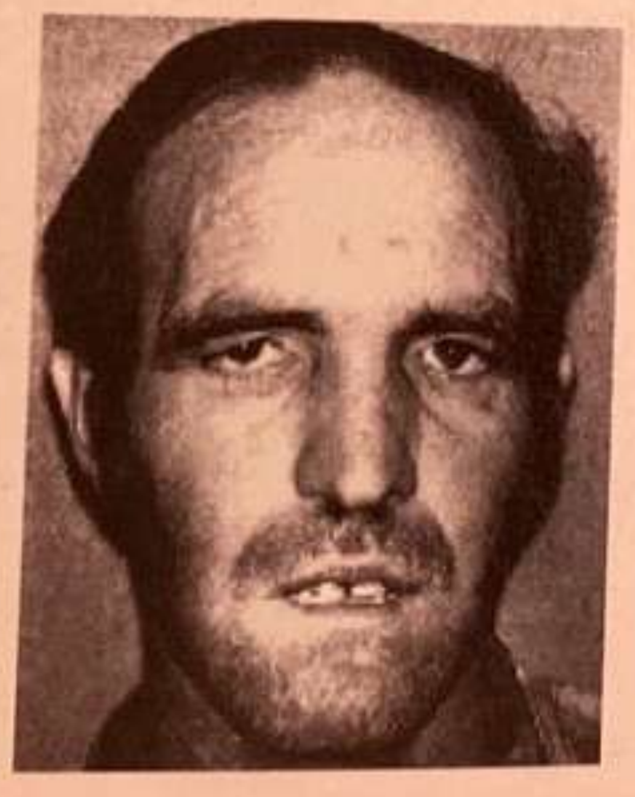
Murderer's Drawing 6

Otis Toole





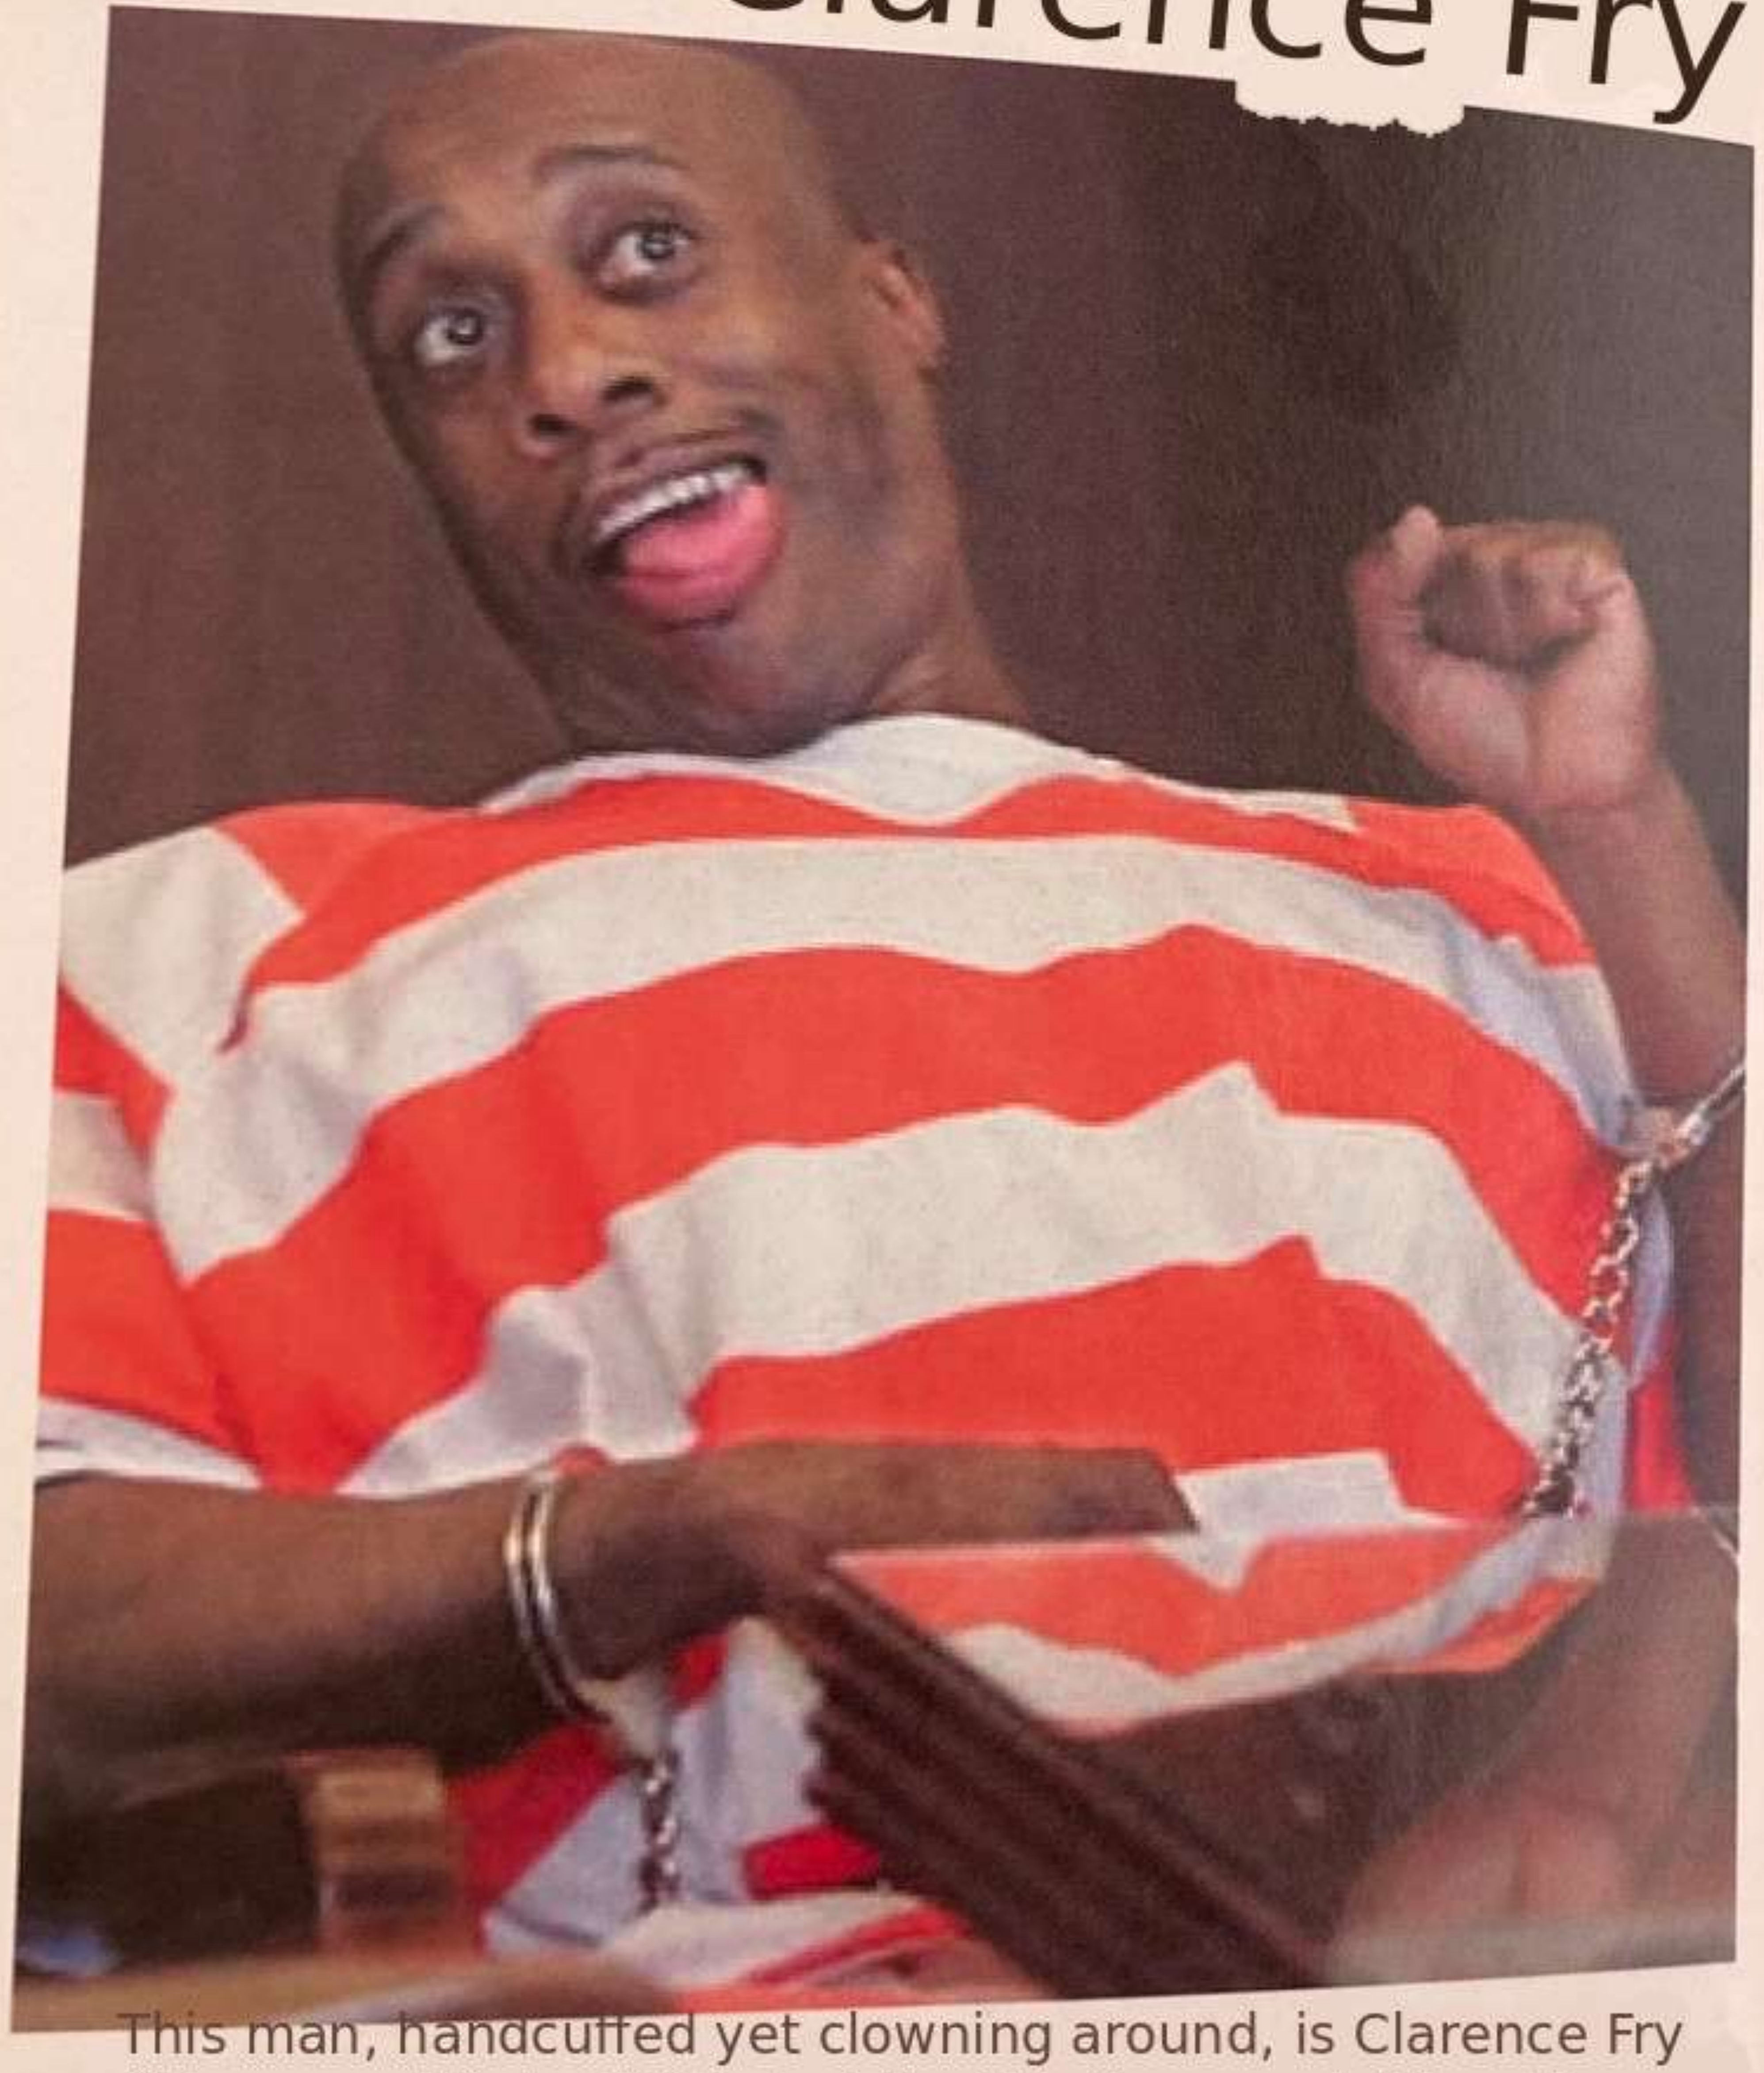




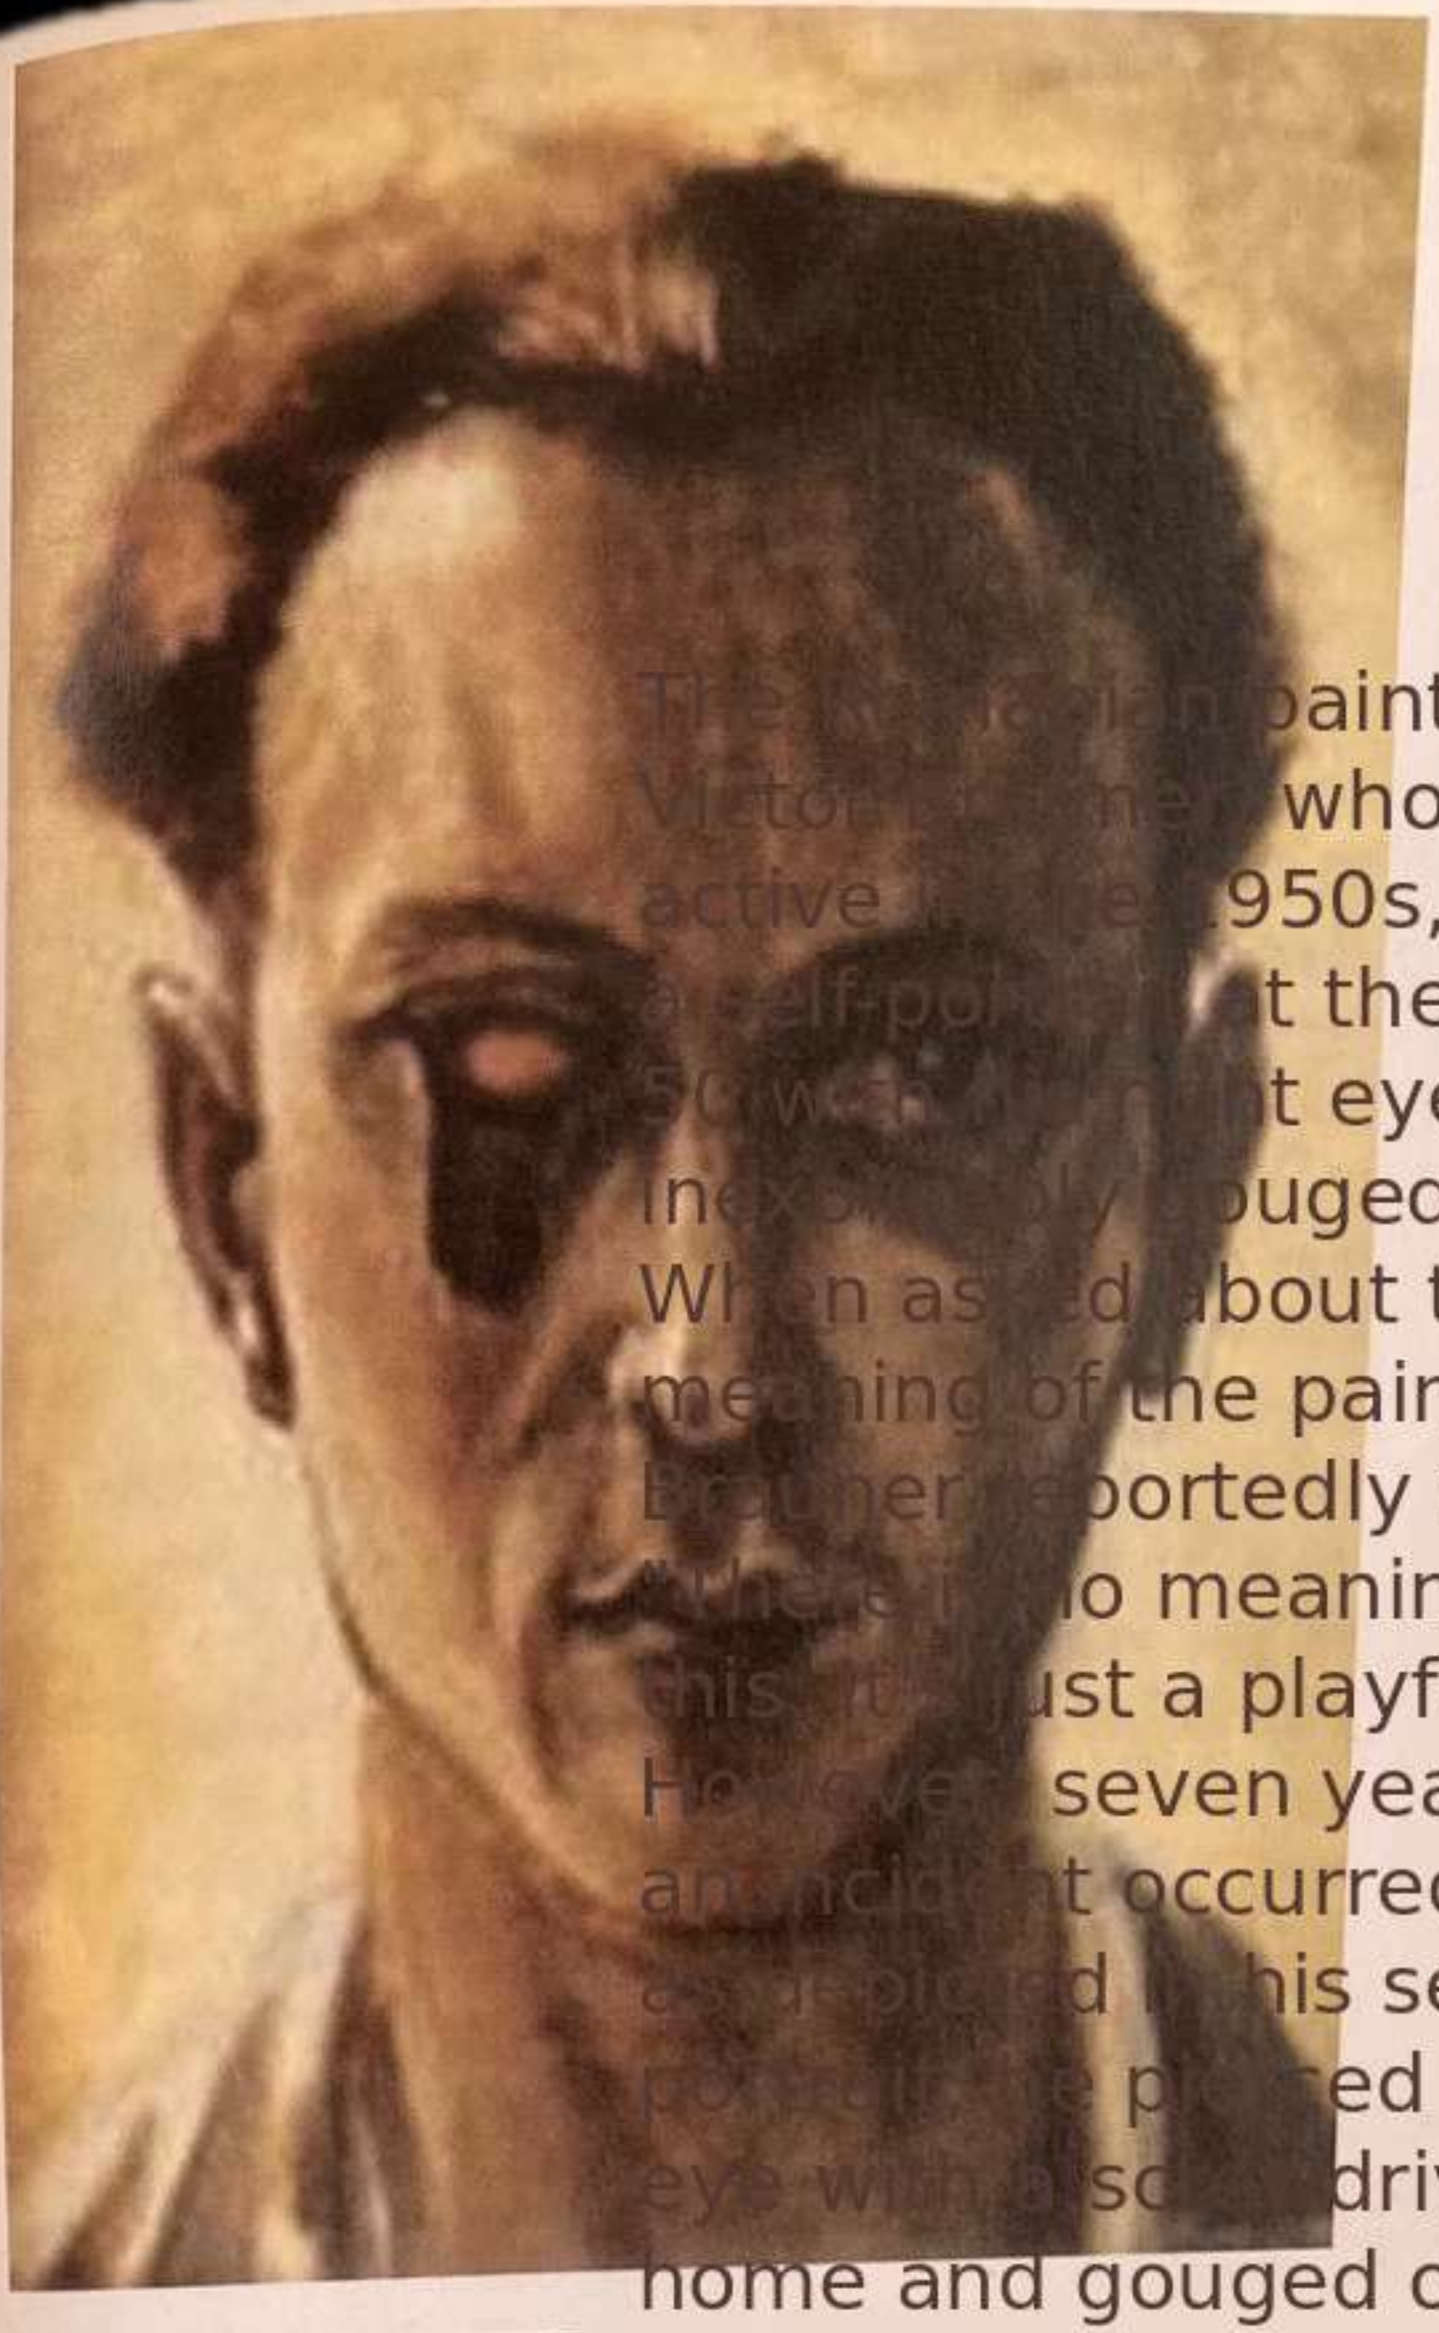
He was an extremely vicious serial killer who traveled across the United States, indiscriminately murdering approximately 200 men and women. He had an interest in sex with corpses and children, a penchant for cross-dressing, and disposed of some bodies by consuming them as dinner in his own stomach. In 1996, he died in prison from cirrhosis during his trial.

Laughing Murderer 3

Clarence Fry



This man, handcuffed yet clowning around, is Clarence Fry (46 years old). In 2005, he killed his former girlfriend in front of her grandchild and was arrested. The photo shown here captures Fry suddenly bursting into laughter during his trial. Even after being warned by the judge, he remained unfazed and even took candy out of his pocket and began sucking on it. Of course, the verdict was death penalty. At that time, the judge said to Fry, "You are a pure psychopath. You have no conscience."



The Romanian painter Victor Brauner, who was active in the 1950s, painted a self-portrait at the age of 50 with his right eye inexplicably gouged out. When asked about the true meaning of the painting, Brauner reportedly replied, "There is no meaning to this. It's just a playful act." However, seven years later, an incident occurred. Just as depicted in his self-portrait, he pierced his right eye with a screwdriver at home and gouged out his eyeball. Brauner was immediately taken to a mental hospital, so why he acted in accordance with his past self-portrait remains unknown.

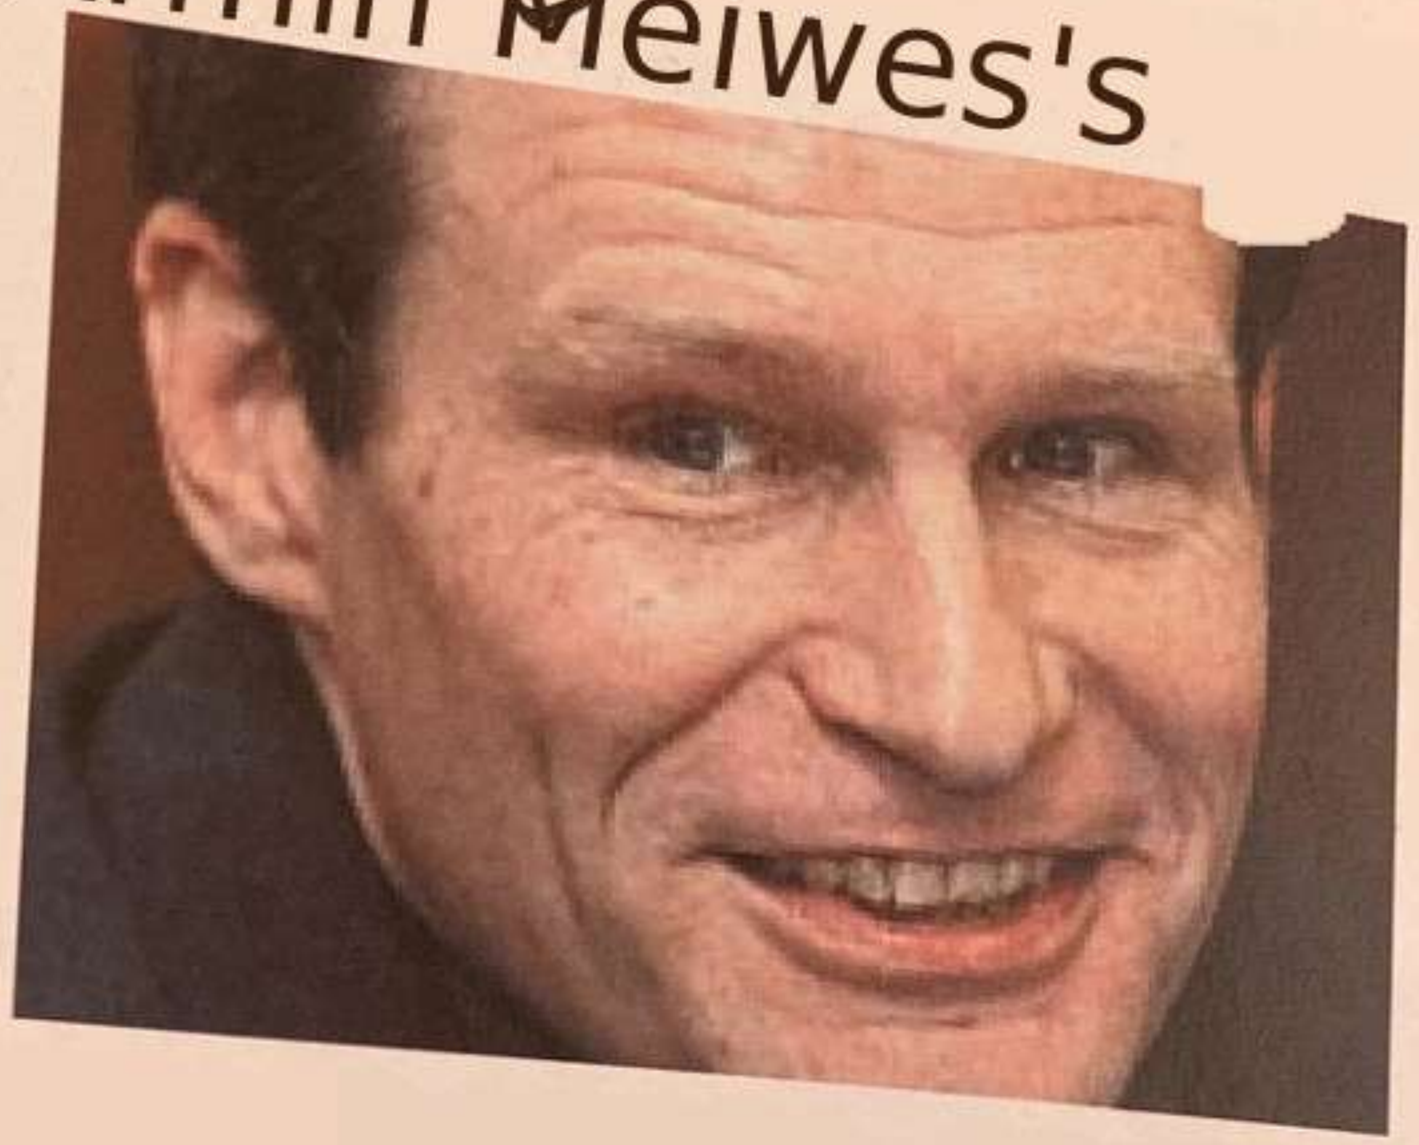
● Armin Meiwes's Human Dismantling Site



This man, smiling fearlessly, is Armin Meiwes (43 years old). In February 2000, he was sentenced to eight and a half years in prison for killing Bernd Jürgen, a computer technician he met online. What sets this case apart is that the murder was carried out strictly with "consent." The victim, Jürgen, was a pure masochist who had wished since childhood to be eaten by someone and die. On the other hand, Meiwes's sexual preference was the opposite—he was someone who longed to eat a human being, even just once. The police, stating that "the murder was the victim's wish," were unable to charge him with murder, and to this day, they continue to appeal to the court for a review of the verdict.

The Terrifying Hitchhiker

In 2005, a crashed car was found on a rural road in Munich, Germany. The car's hood was severely damaged, and from inside, the bodies of three young men and a video camera were recovered. This footage is the terrifying, complete record of the accident captured on that video camera. The video shows the expression of a female hitchhiker picked up during the journey suddenly changing, as she abruptly attacks the three men. This woman has still not been caught.

It's being scrutinized. The effect is unclear, but it's certain that those who see it feel unpleasant.

American psychologist Louis Lowes developed severe depersonalization disorder (a condition where one feels as if they are not themselves) in 2003. He was haunted by delusions that someone was always trying to kill him, and he created this 9-minute video to destroy the minds of people in the world. The video is made up of a series of incomprehensible cuts, interspersed with eerie images intended for subliminal effects.

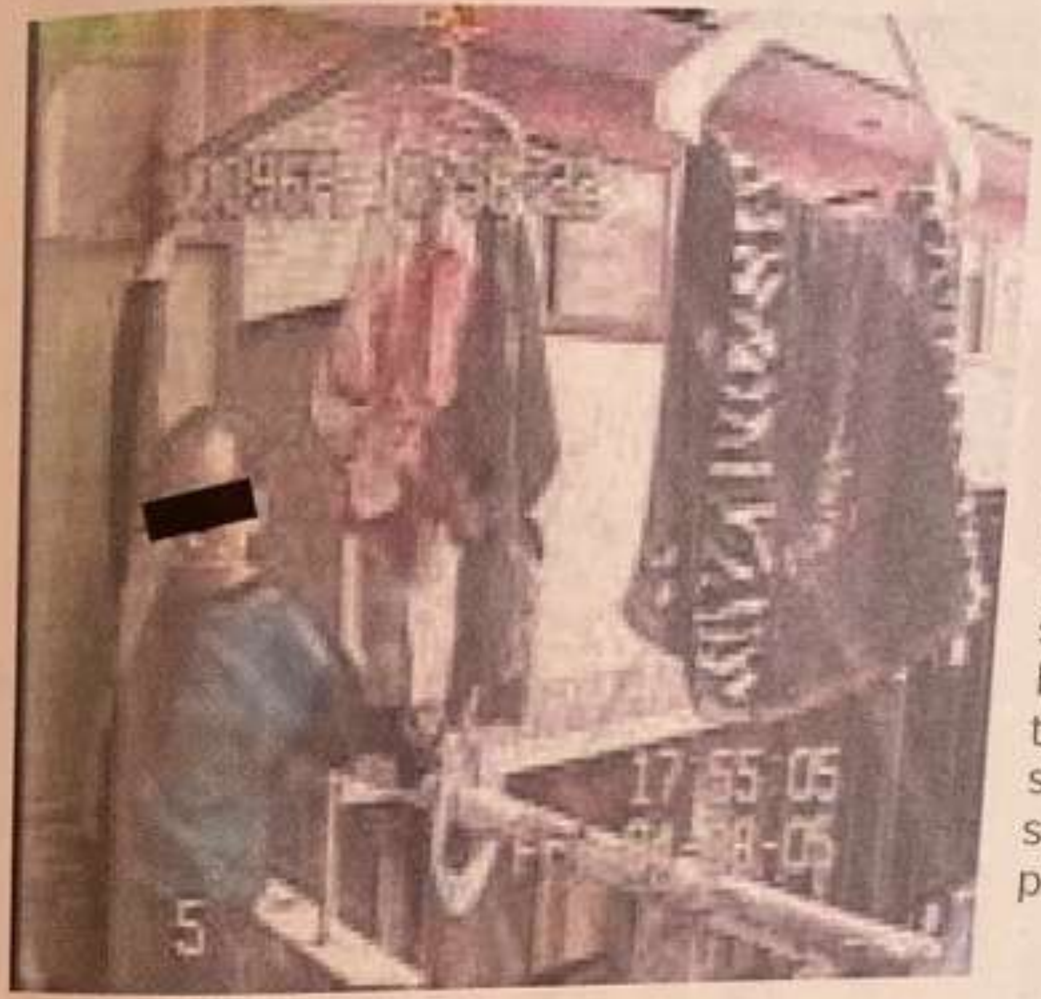
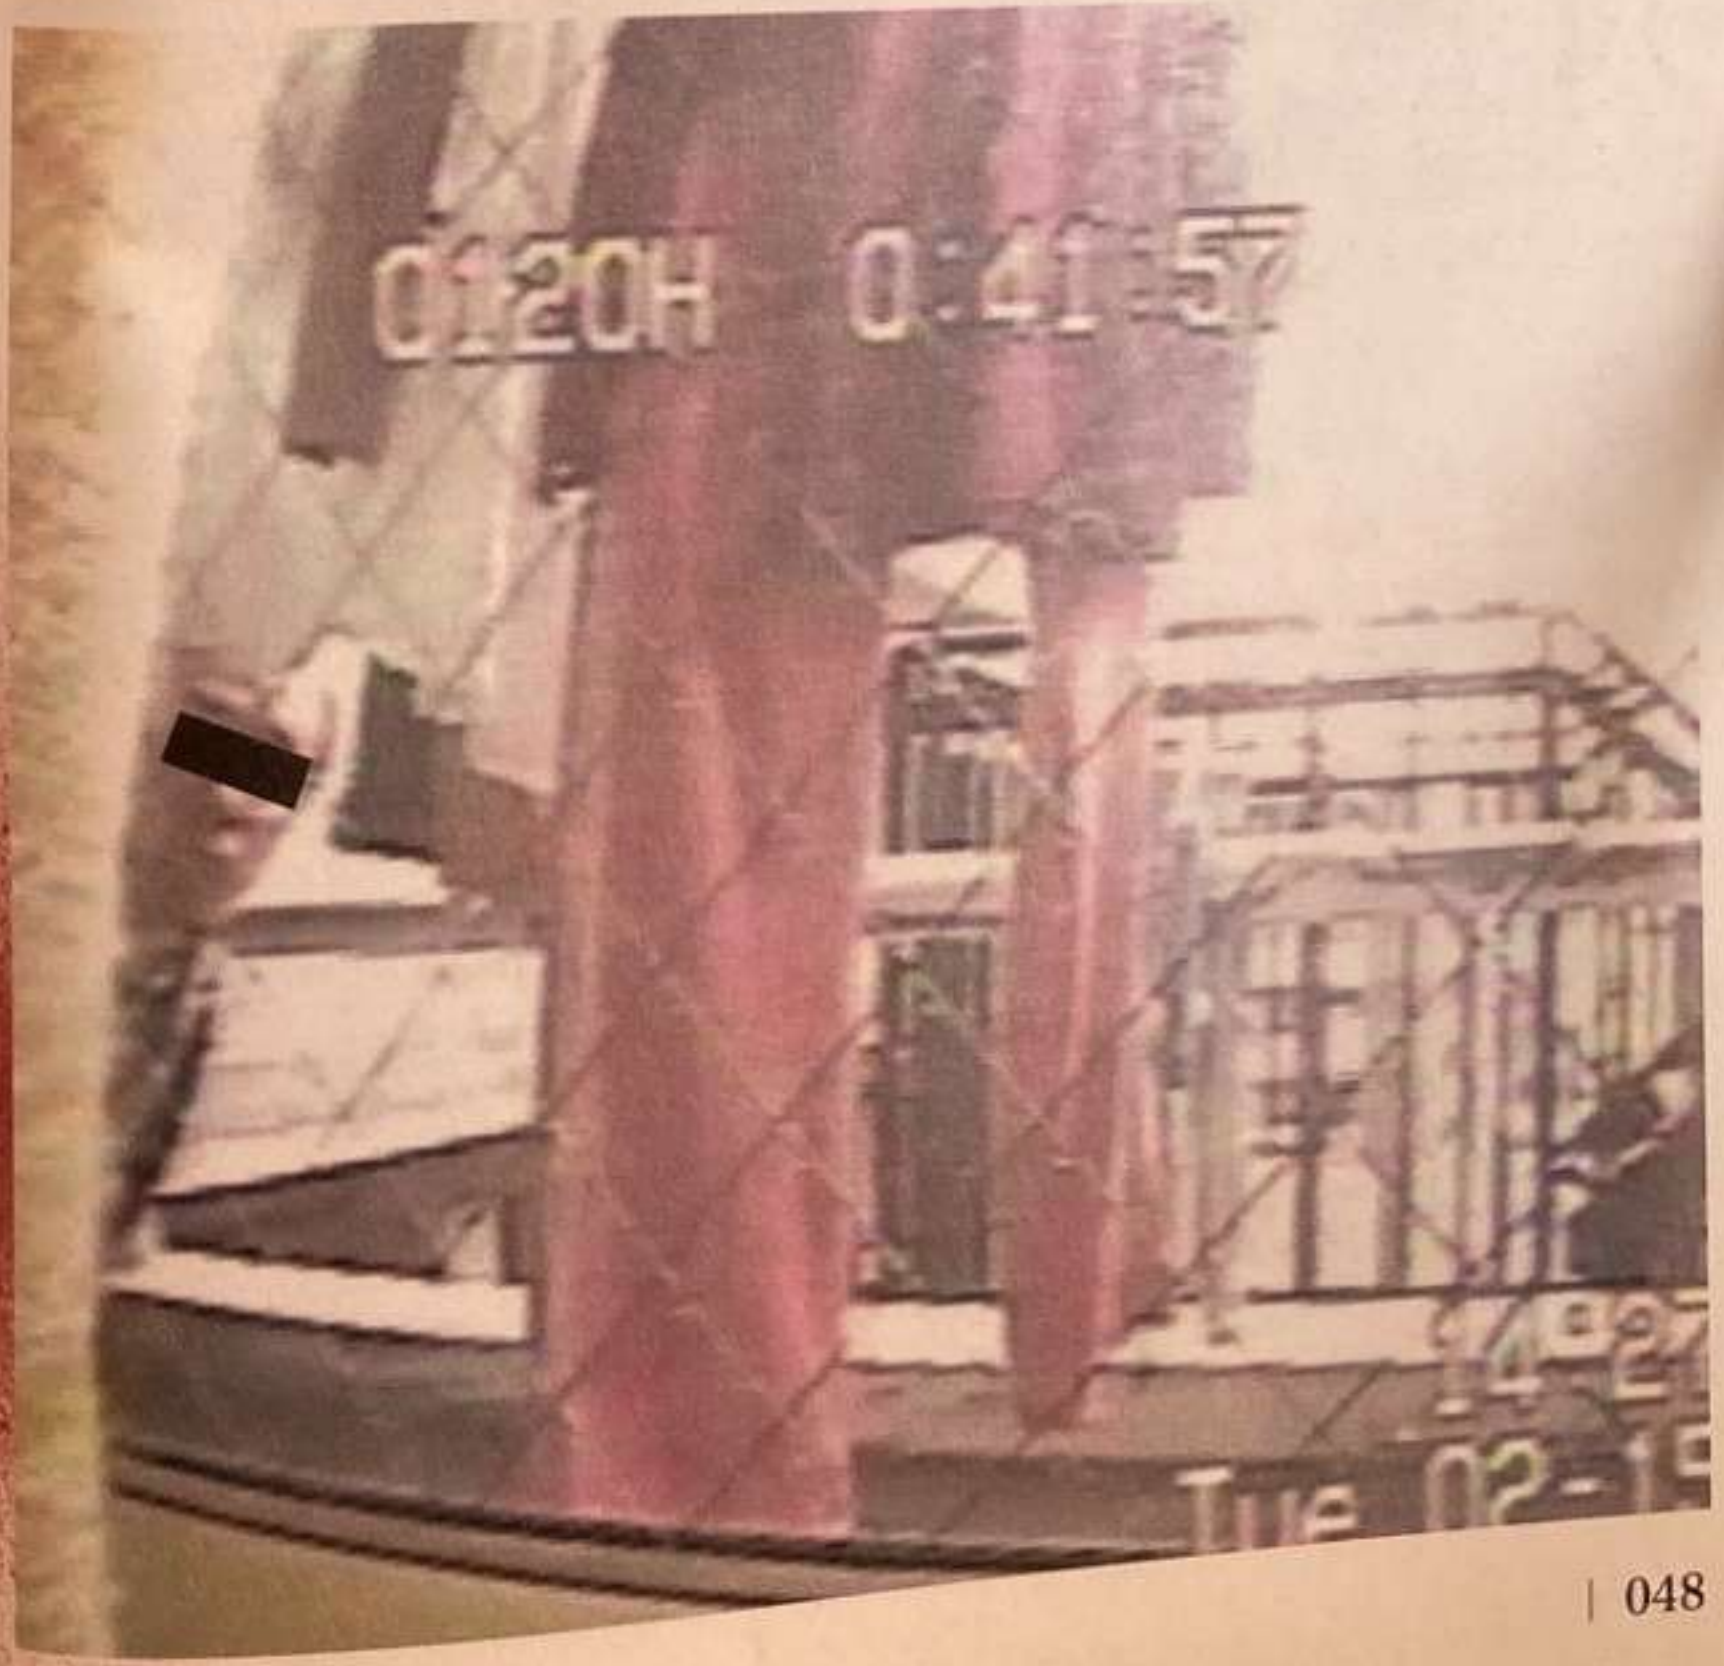
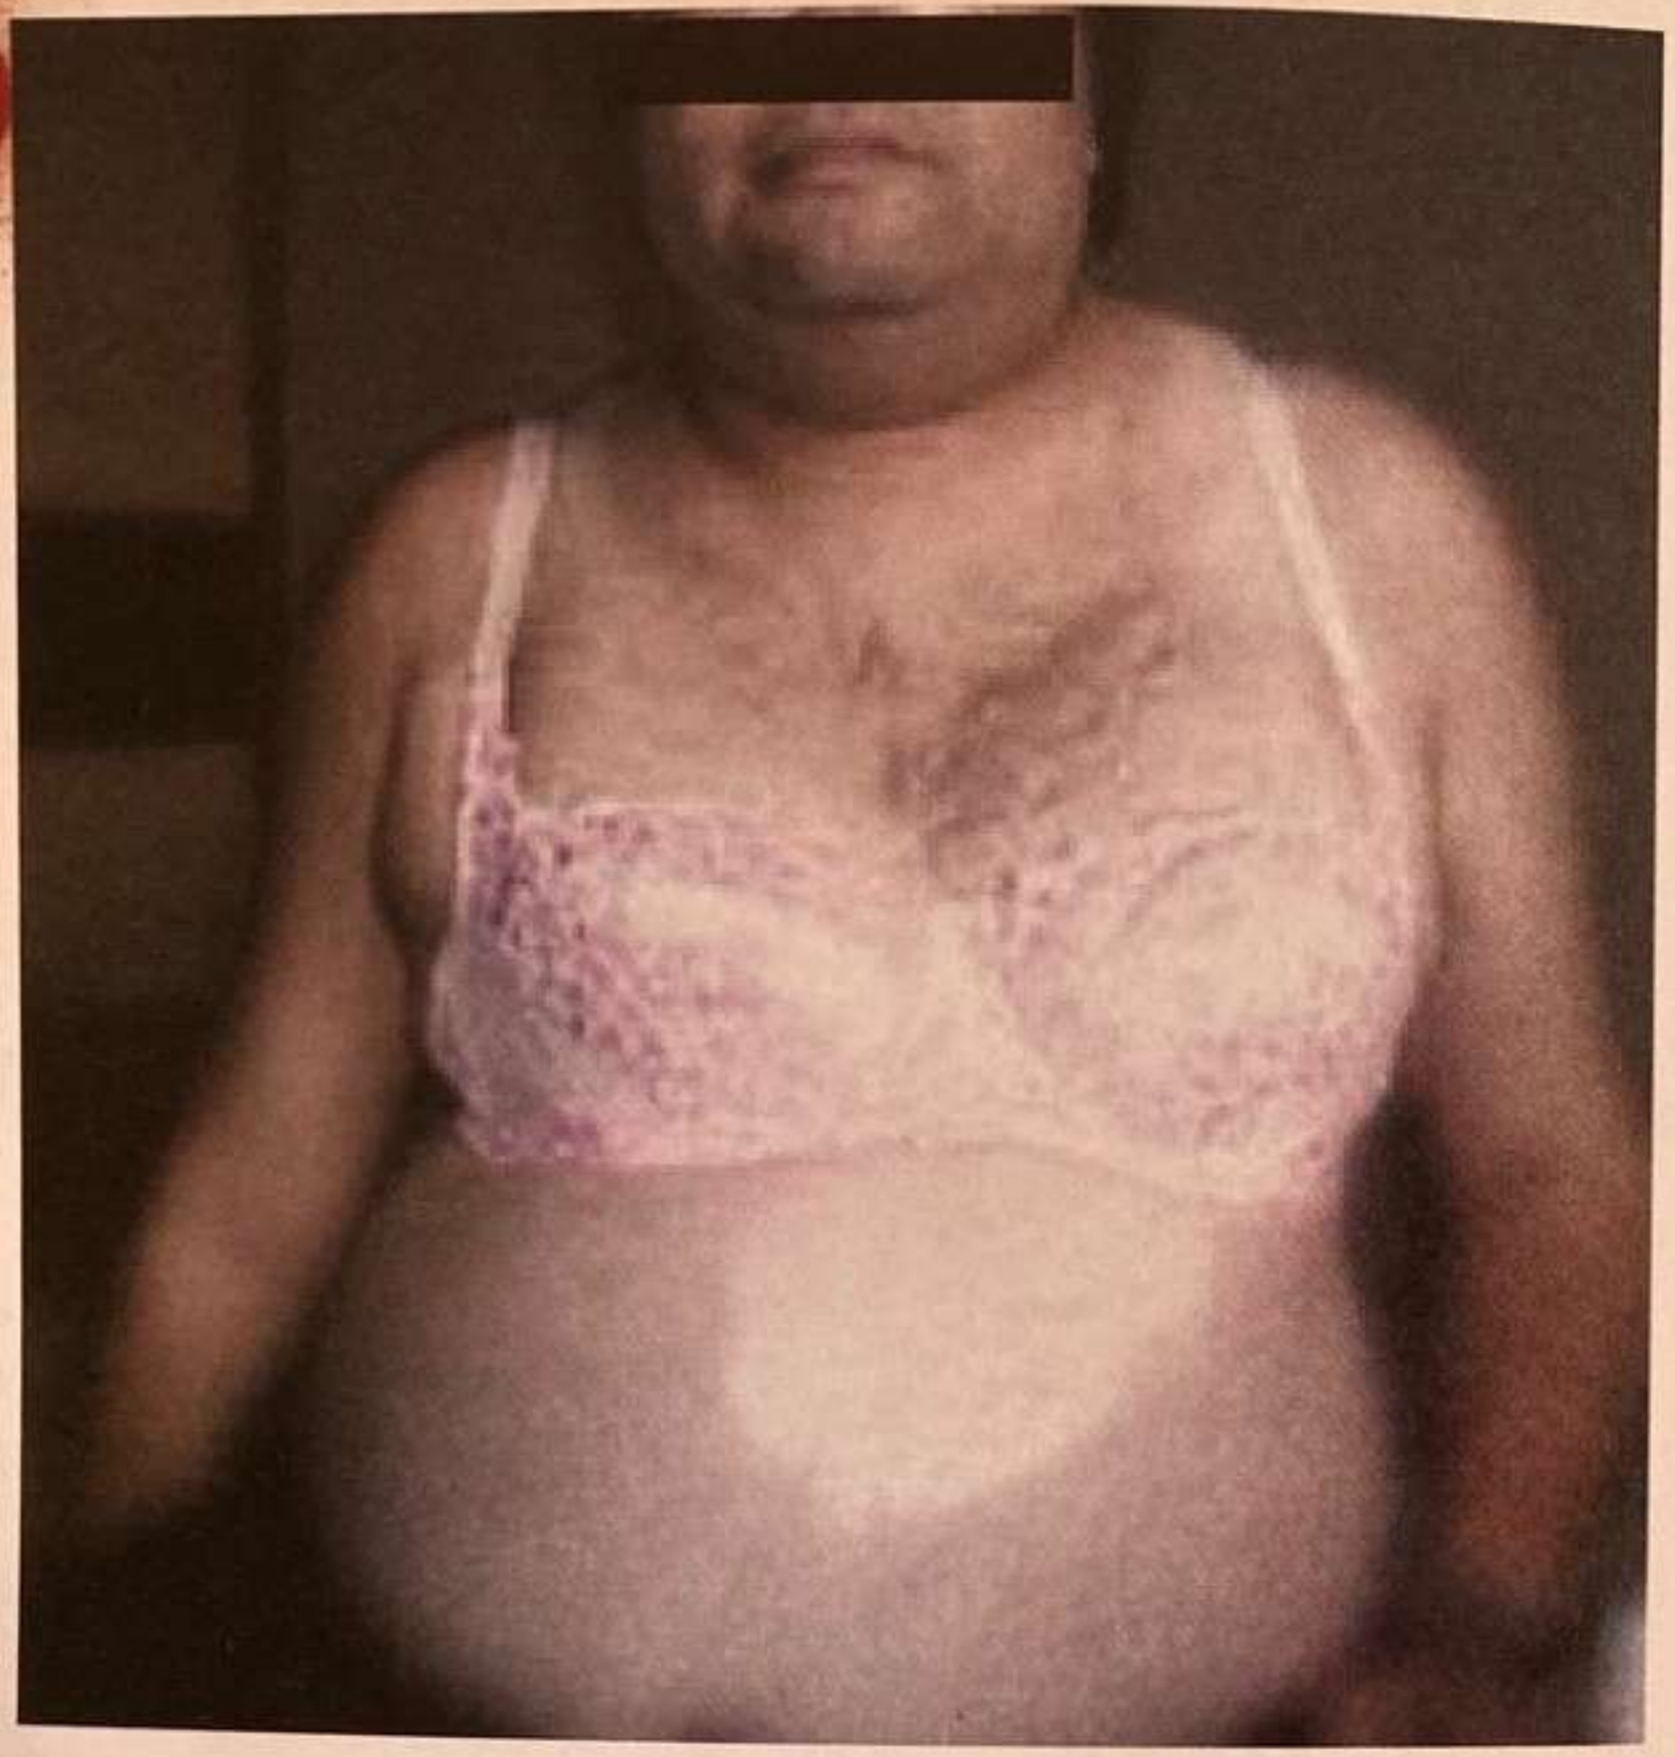
The meaning of "Black 3" in the flyer is unclear.

The Stalker Captured on Camera



Mr. K, who lives in a certain prefecture in the Kanto region, had been troubled by underwear thefts for several months. After installing a surveillance camera at his home, the image captured was the one you see here. It clearly shows a middle-aged man sneaking onto the balcony and peering into the room.



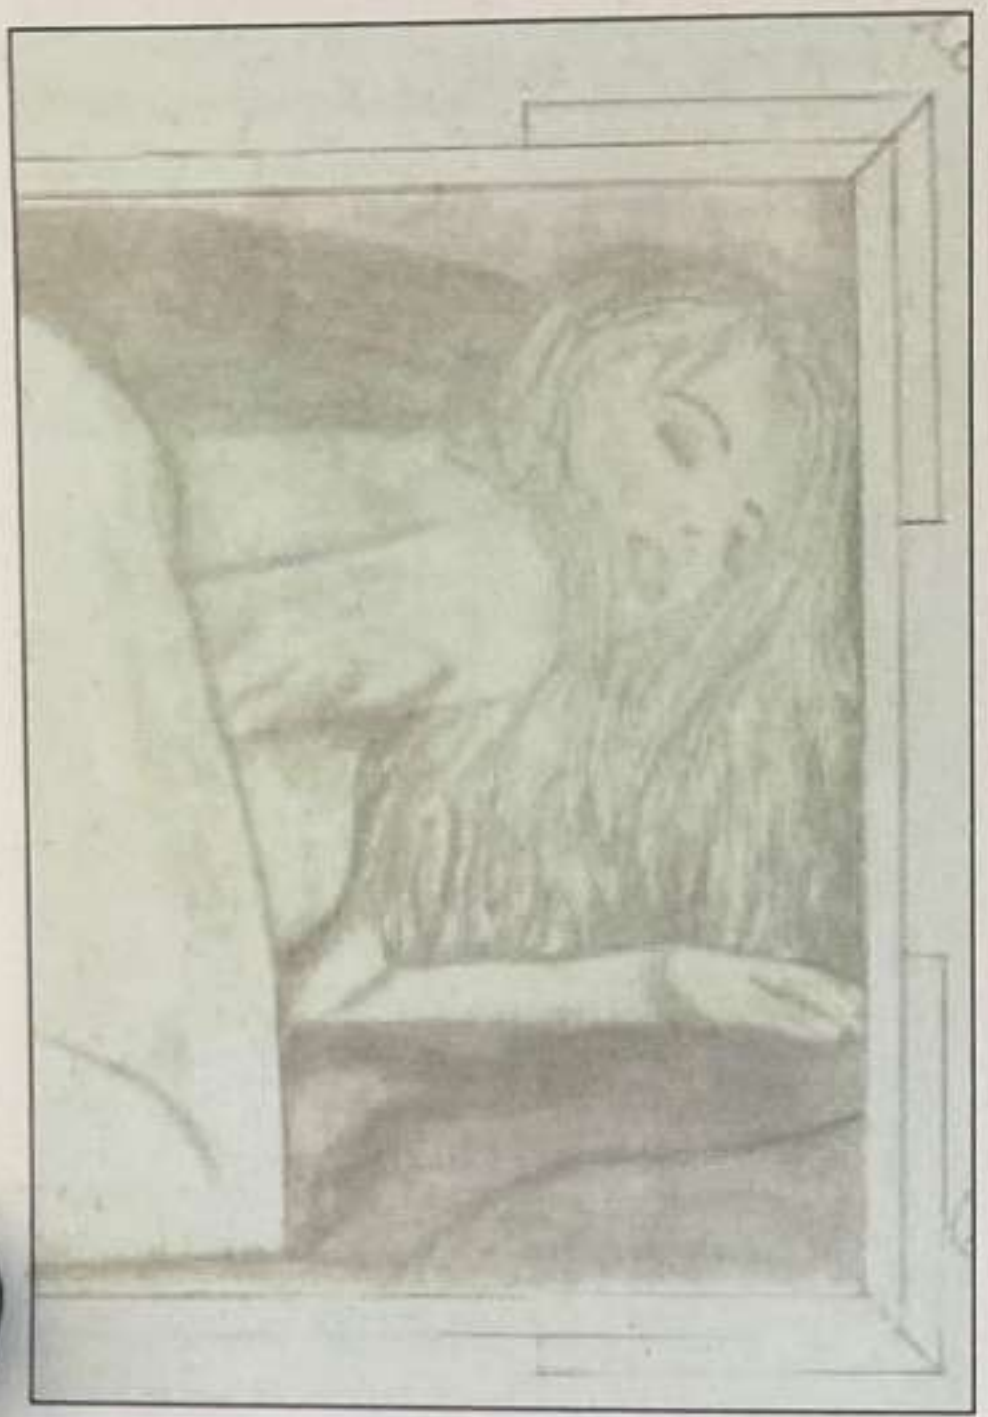


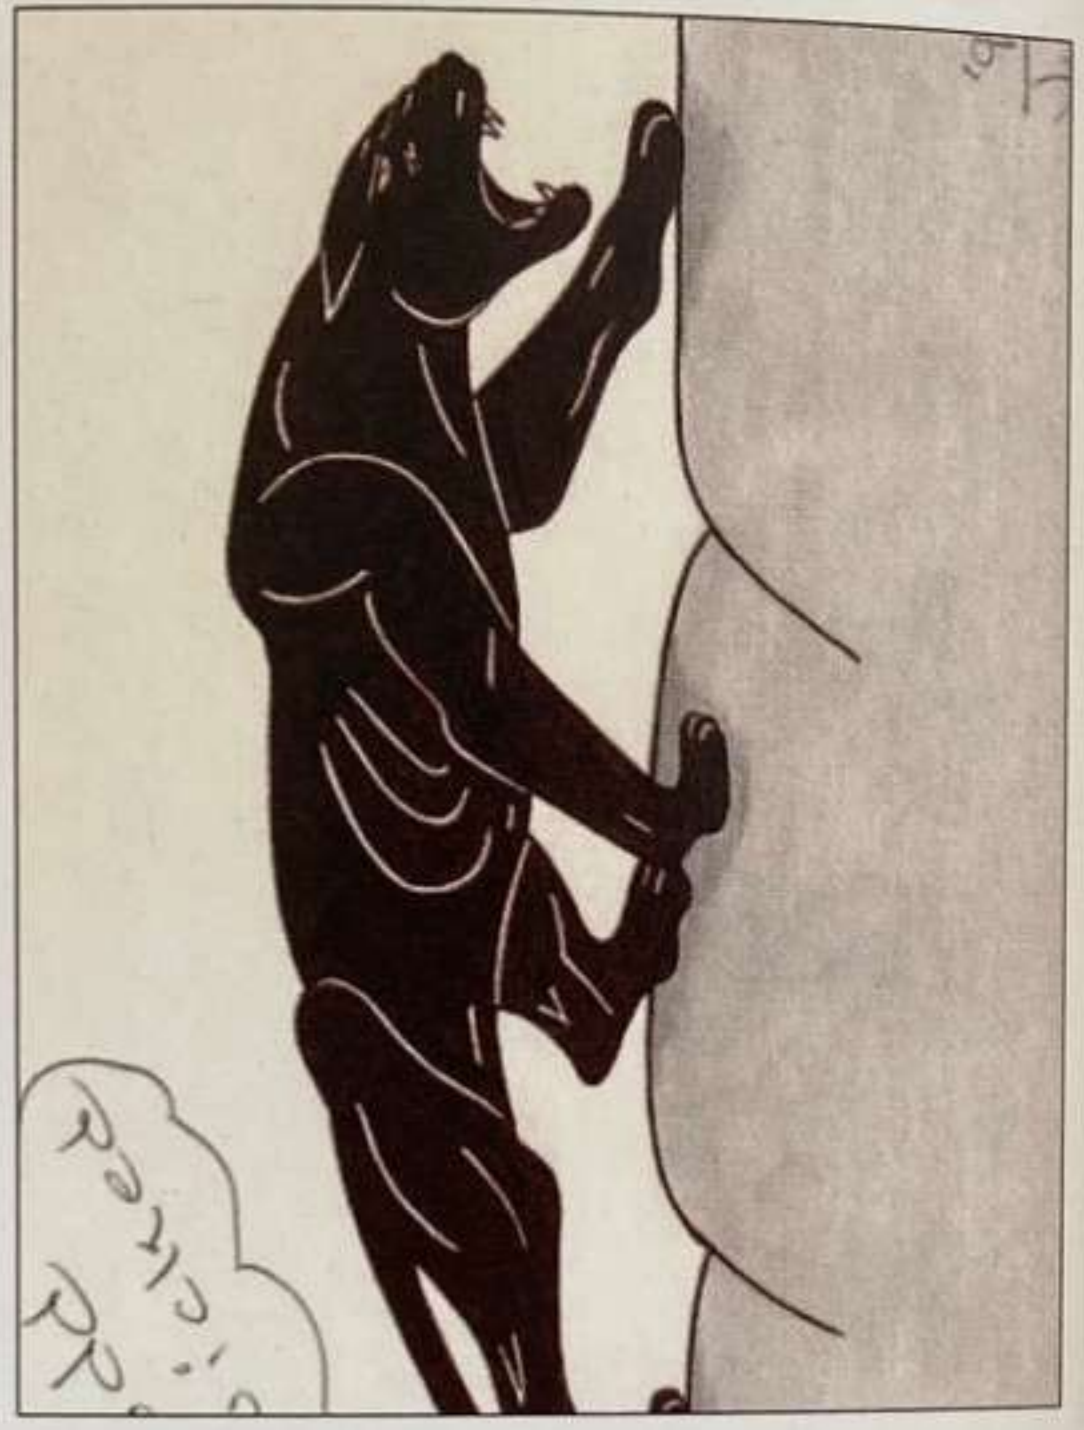
A Letter from a Stalker

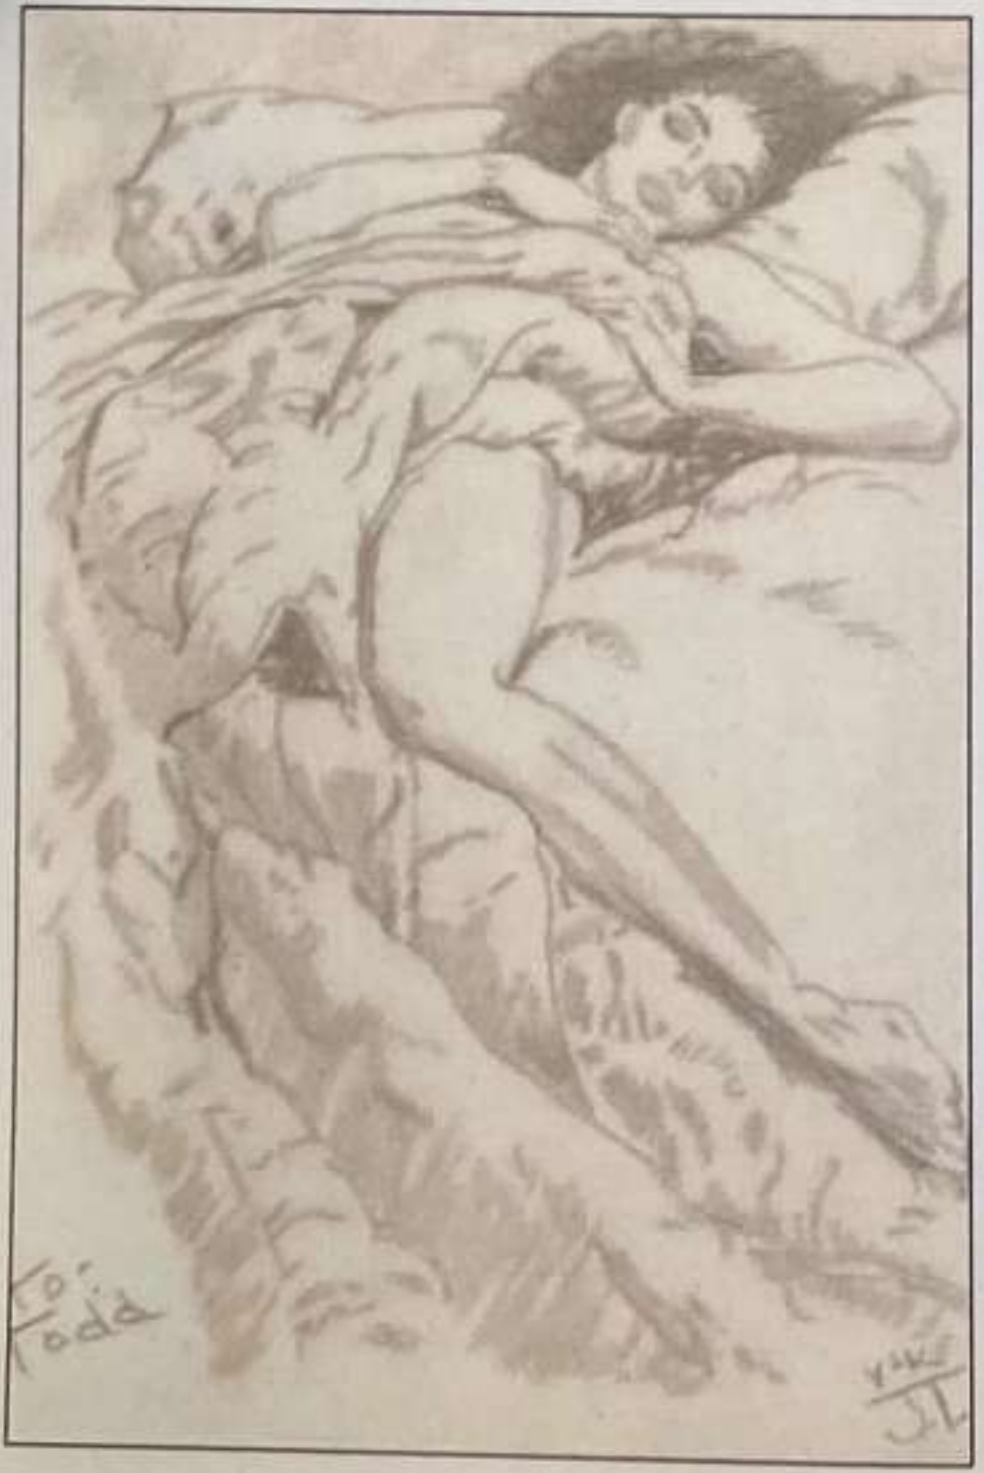
This photo was enclosed in a letter that was suddenly sent one day to Ms. D, a woman living in Nakano Ward, Tokyo. The reason why the man in the photo is wearing women's underwear is unknown. The letter contained approximately the following content: "Hello. I apologize for this being my first letter. It may be sudden, and you might be surprised, but I'm not good at speaking, so I'll just say it. Would you marry me? You probably don't know me. But I know you very well. I've been watching you from nearby for a long time." After this text, there was a detailed account of Ms. D's daily activities. The sender remains unknown, and Ms. D has been spending sleepless nights.

7 Pictures Drawn by a Murderer

Jack Trawick

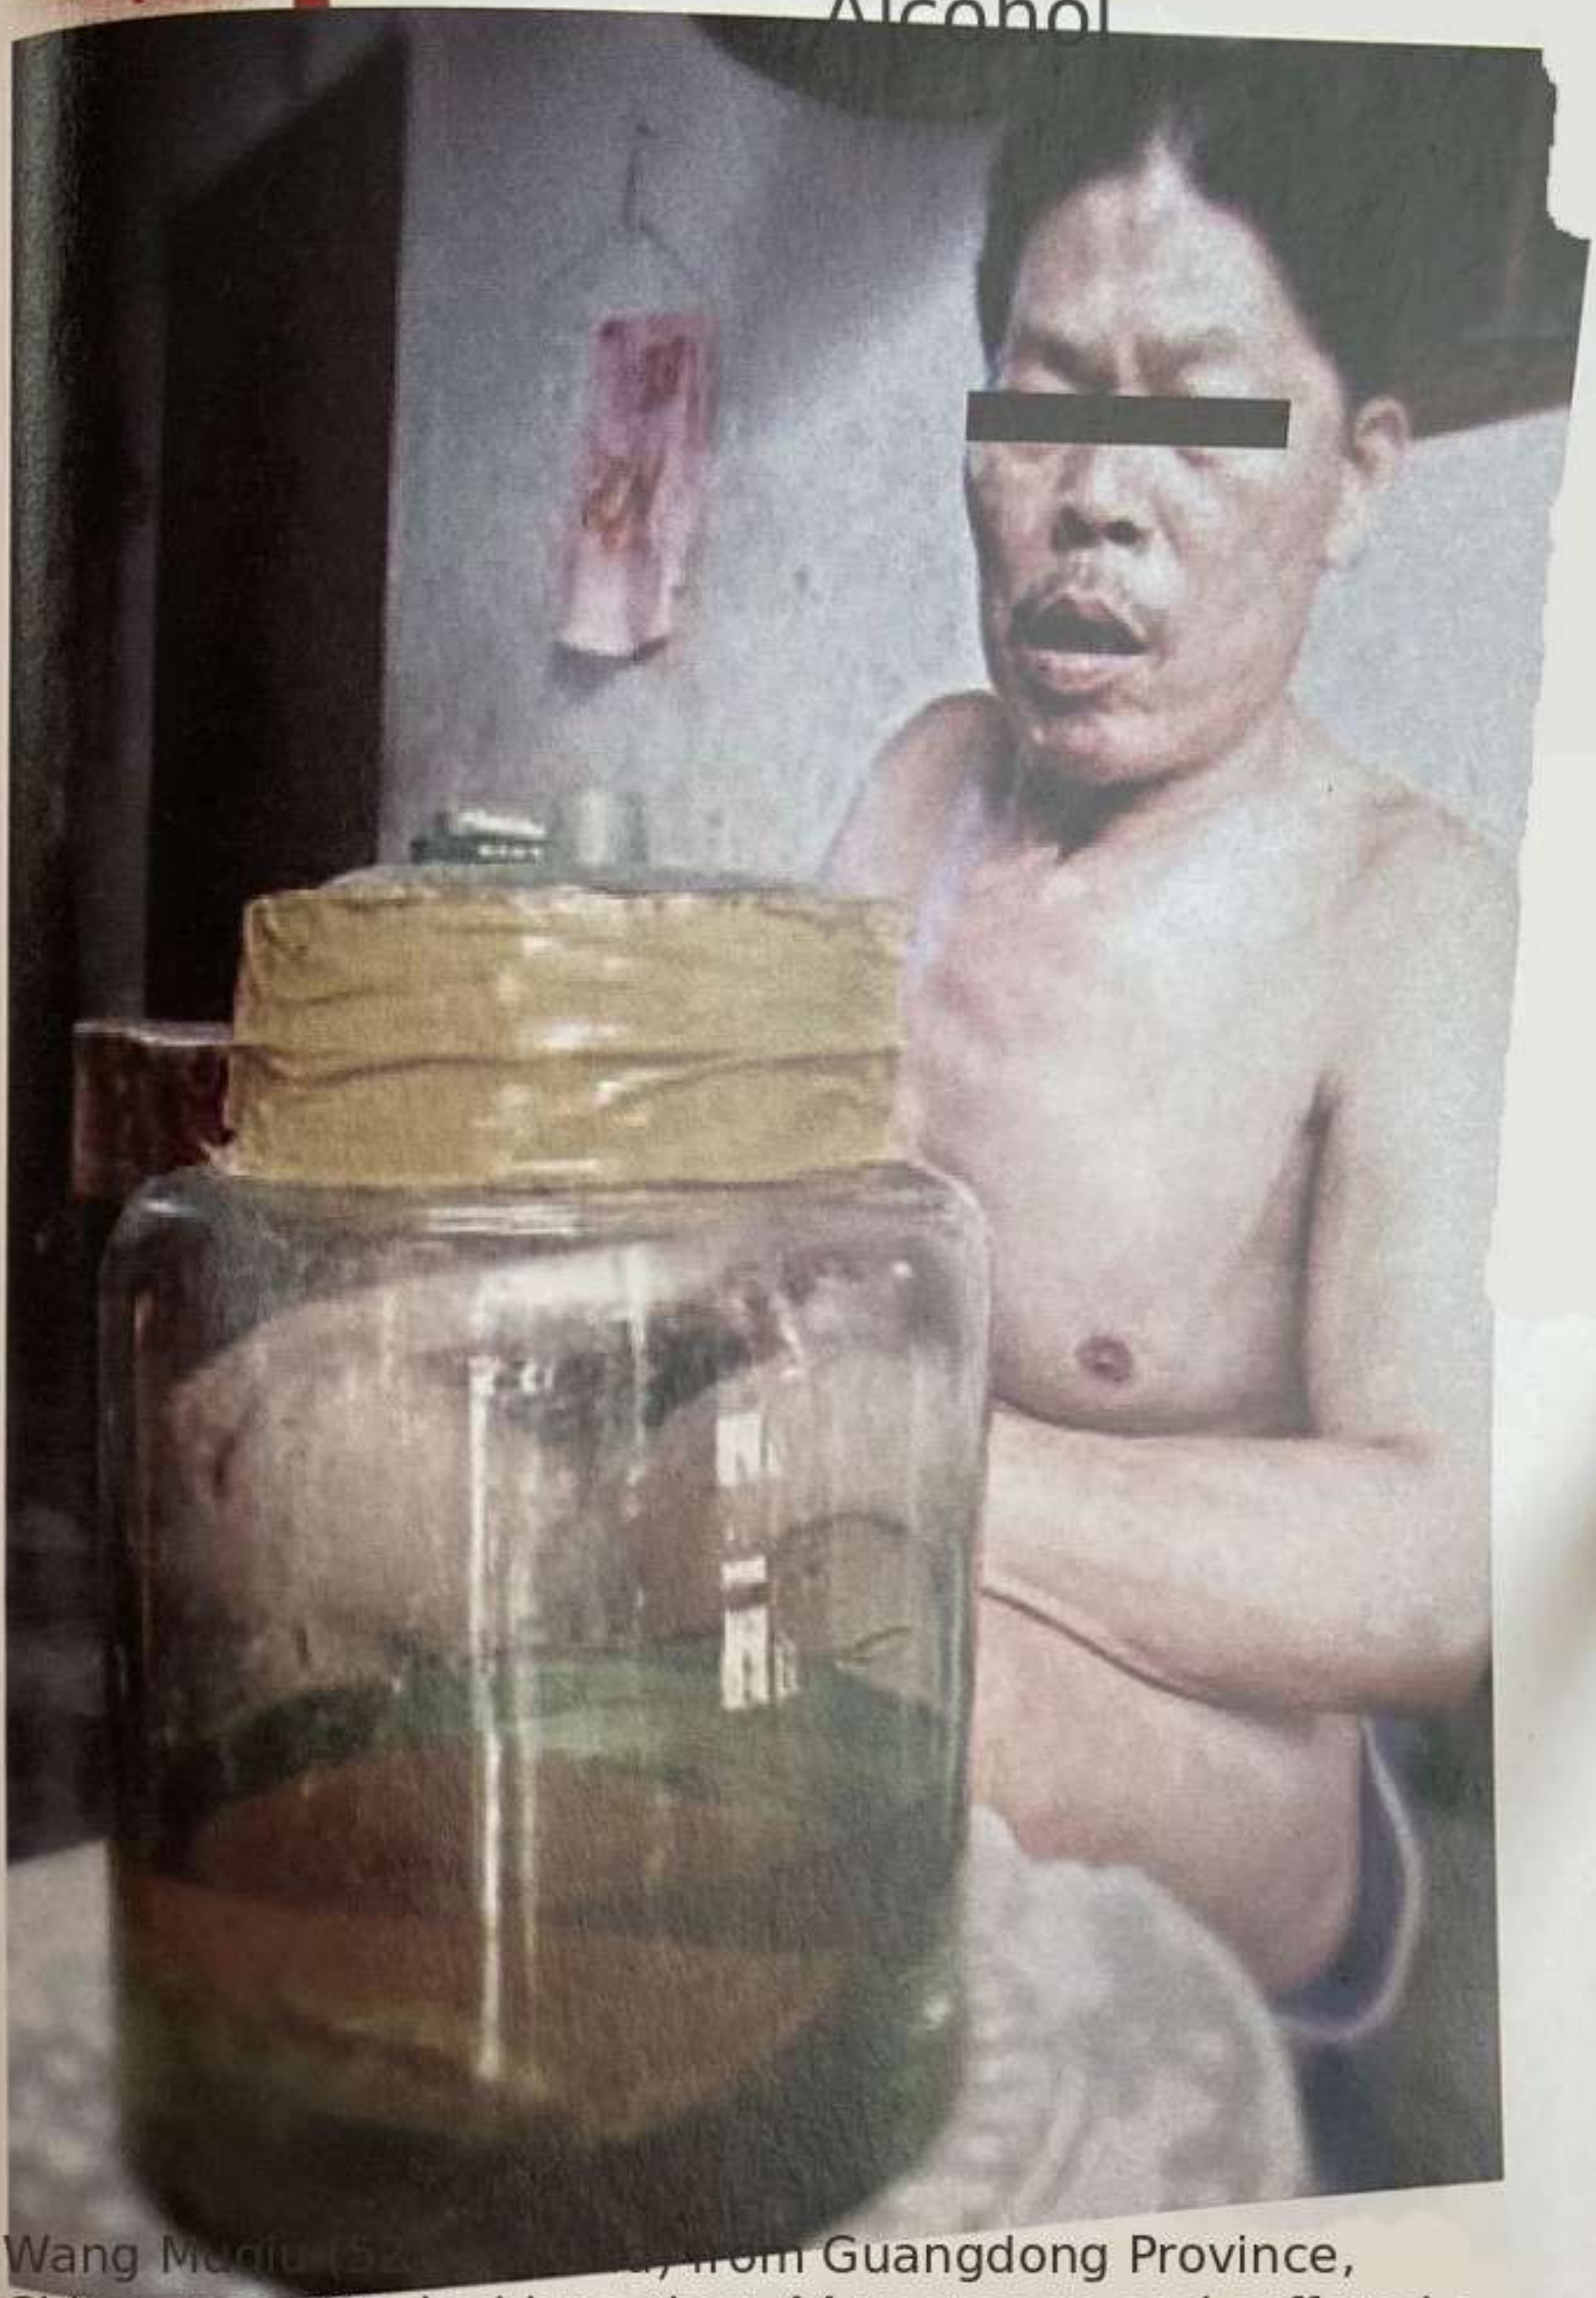






A paranoid individual who started killing animals in the neighborhood from the age of 10 and began murdering women after turning 30. His method involved hitting the victim's head with a hammer, then strangling them, and killing them while committing sexual assault. He was sentenced to death for killing five women using this method but is currently appealing on grounds of insanity.

A Man Who Preserved His Own Skull in Alcohol



Wang Muqiu (5[illegible]) from Guangdong Province, China, was attacked by a thug 44 years ago and suffered a head injury, requiring surgery to remove part of his skull. Although Wang survived, he lacked the funds to restore the removed skull. As a result, he decided to take the bone home and preserve it in alcohol. Nowadays, it has become Wang's daily routine to have a drink after work while looking at his own skull preserved in alcohol.

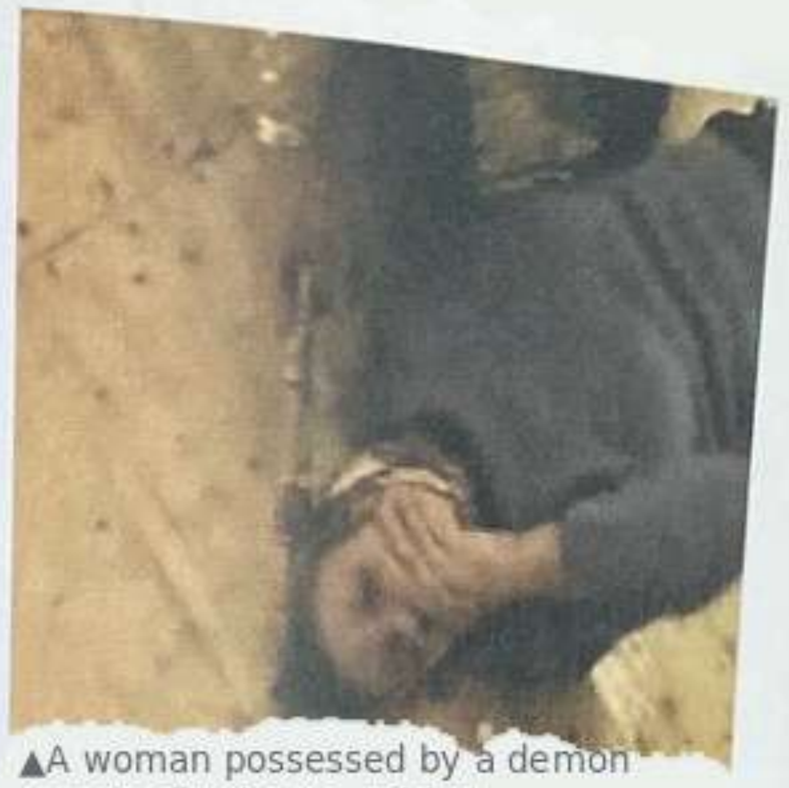
Modern Exorcism

In countries like Russia and Italy, exorcists (demon expellers) still exist as respectable professions. The video below shows a state-sanctioned exorcist, officially recognized by the Russian government in 2007, performing an exorcism.



▲A woman possessed by a demon repeatedly shouts, "Shit!"

When the cross is thrust into the mouth, a beastly roar erupts

▲She begins to suffer as the cross approaches

▲When the exorcist presses his face

▲An abnormally pale demon-possessed girl

▲Resisting with the whole body

This is a ritual of an exorcist filmed in Brazil. In South America, demonic beliefs are still deeply rooted, and private practitioners cram patients into small houses to perform exorcism rituals.

A Man Who Drilled a Hole in His Own Skull at Home

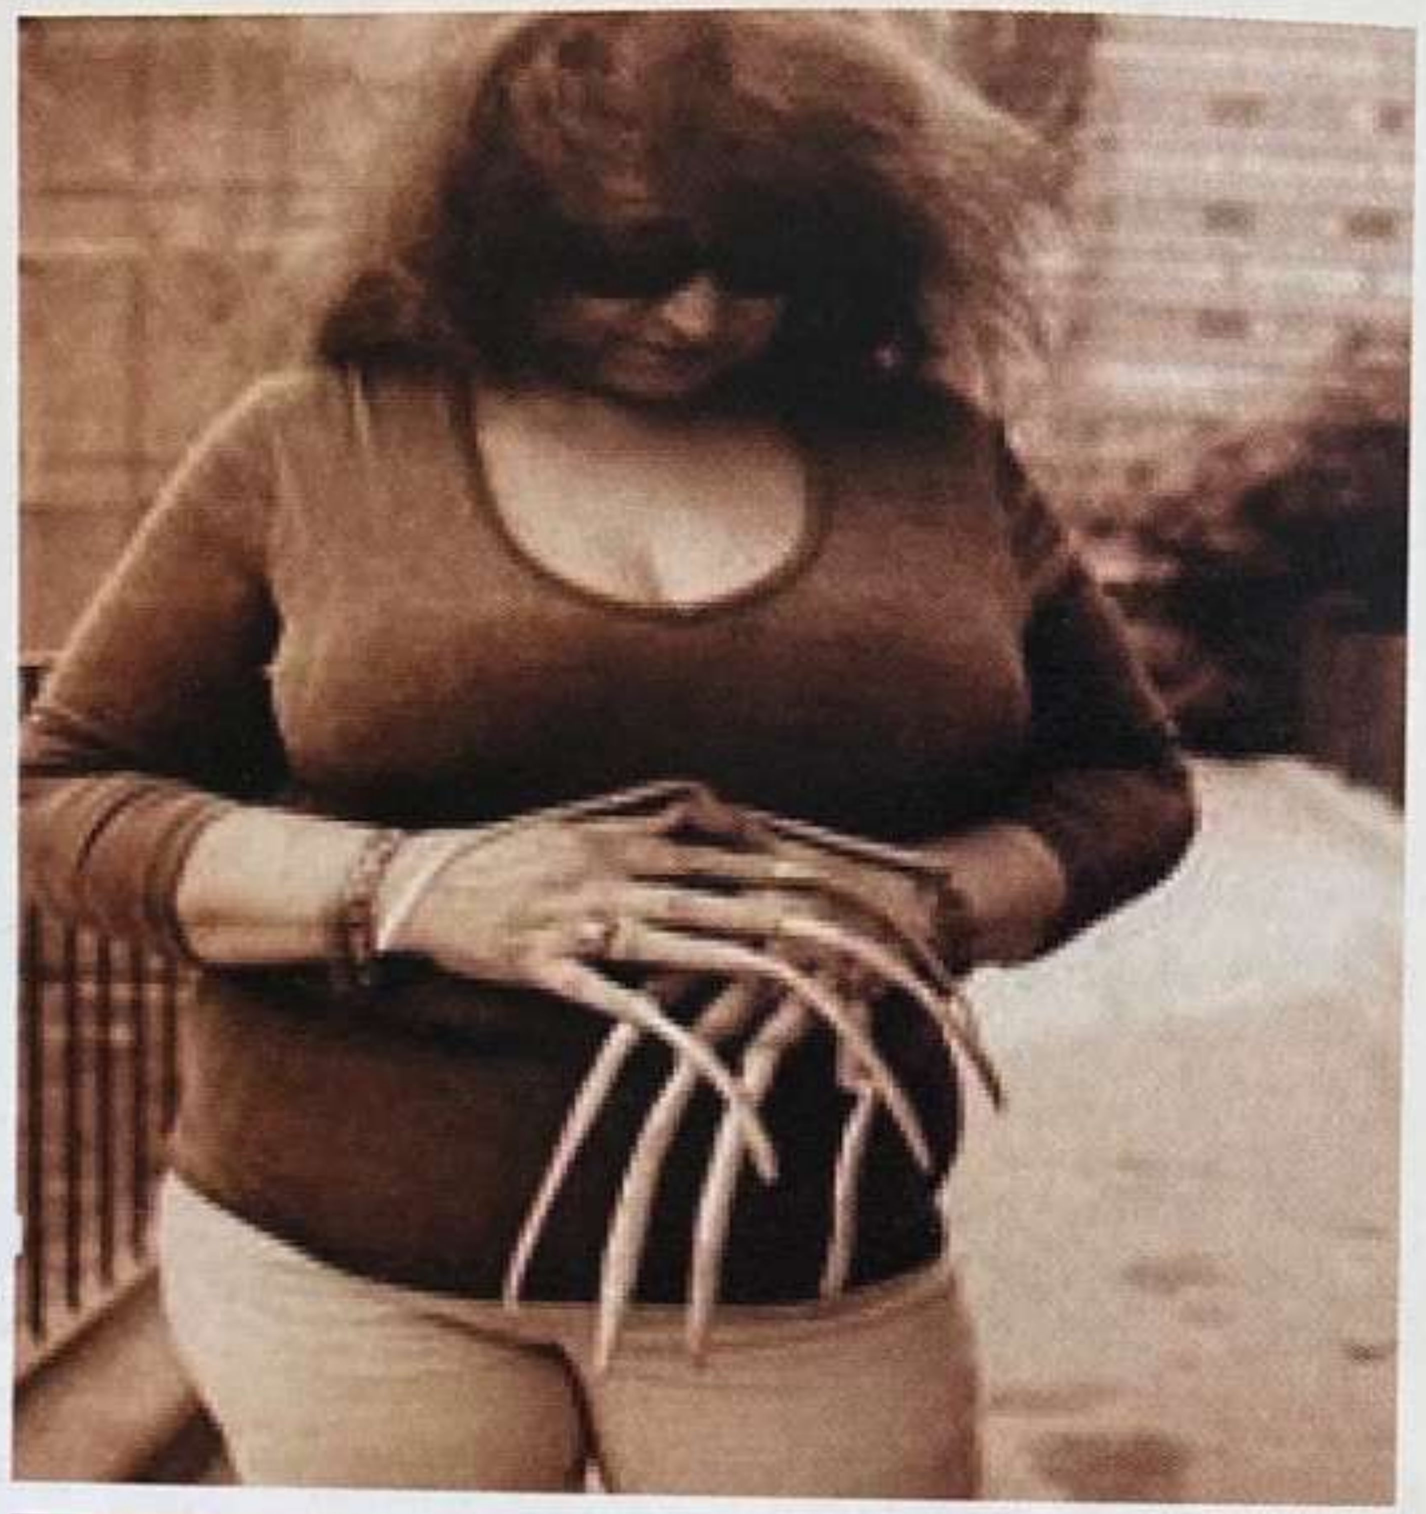
▲Covering the home with plastic to create an operating room

▲Current condition. The wound has completely healed

In Yamamoto Hideo's manga "Homunculus," there is a procedure where a hole is drilled in the skull to awaken special abilities. ▲The anesthesia is self-administered. Of course, it seems like pure fiction and is illegal, but in Japan, there are quite a few enthusiasts who perform surgeries on themselves. The photo shows the scene of a man who actually drilled a hole in his head at home. However, there are no stories of people who actually drilled holes in their heads gaining special abilities like in the manga.

The Terrifying Freddy Woman

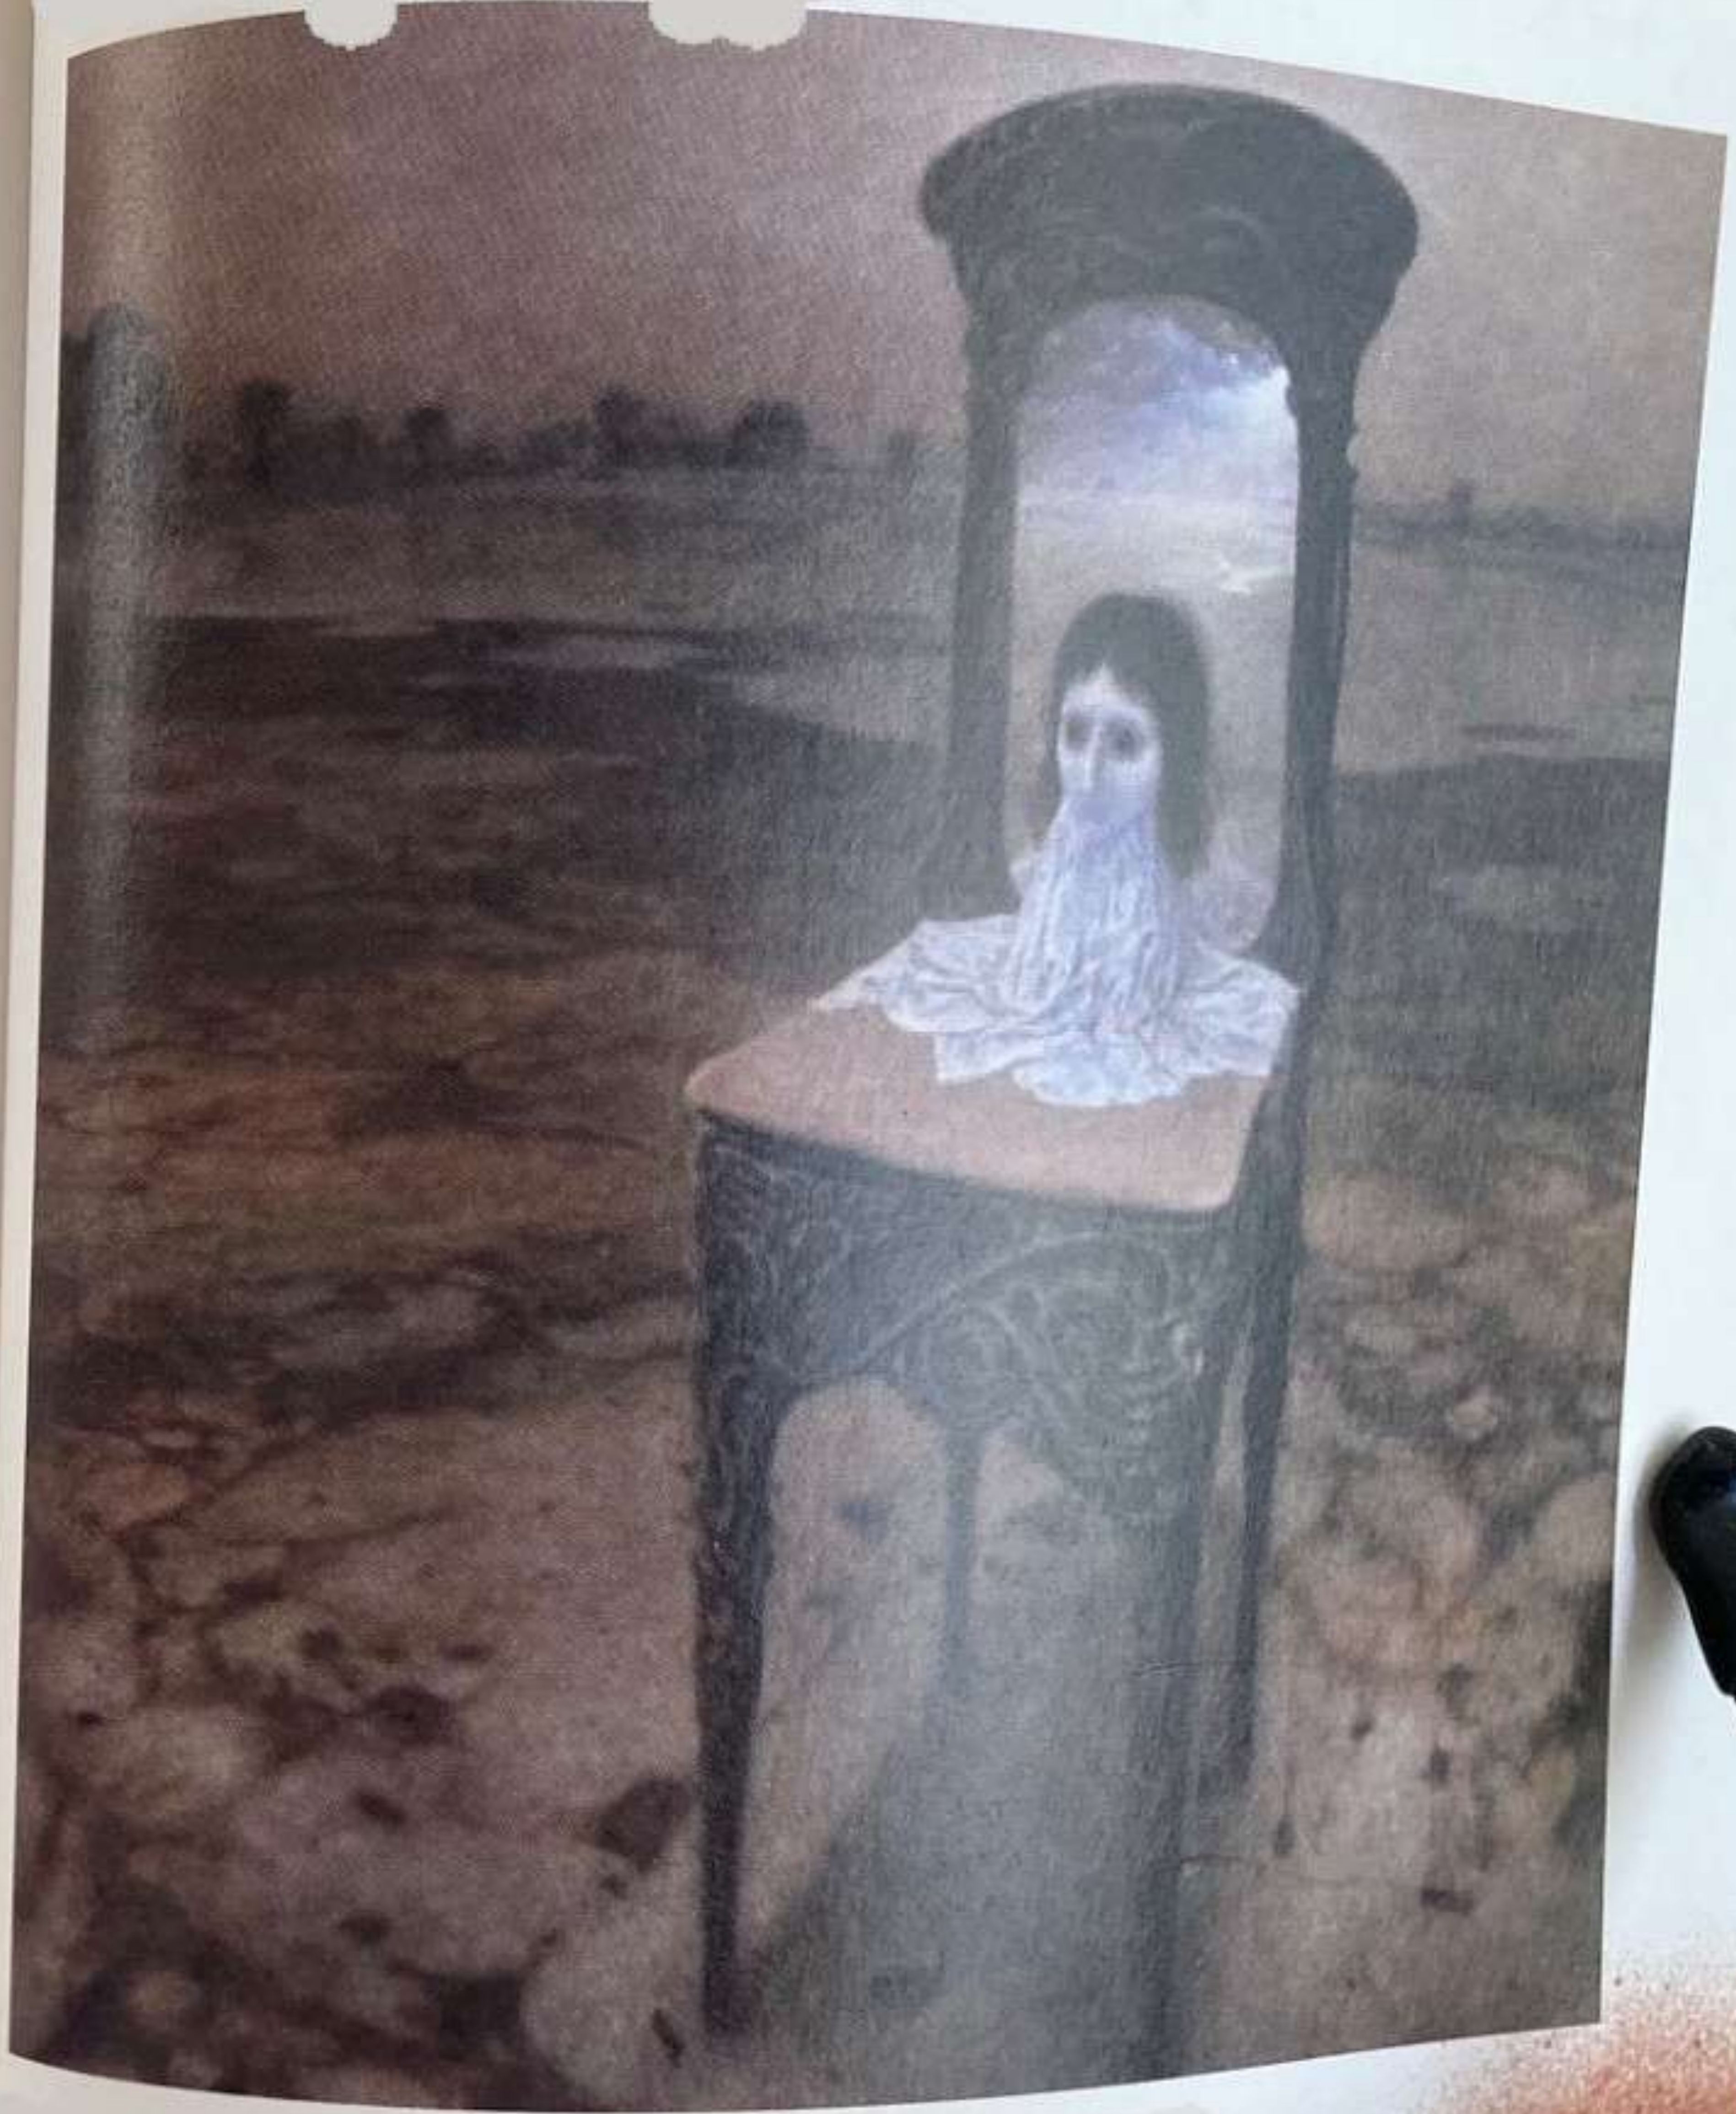


A photo of the Freddy Woman published in a major British newspaper

The male victim

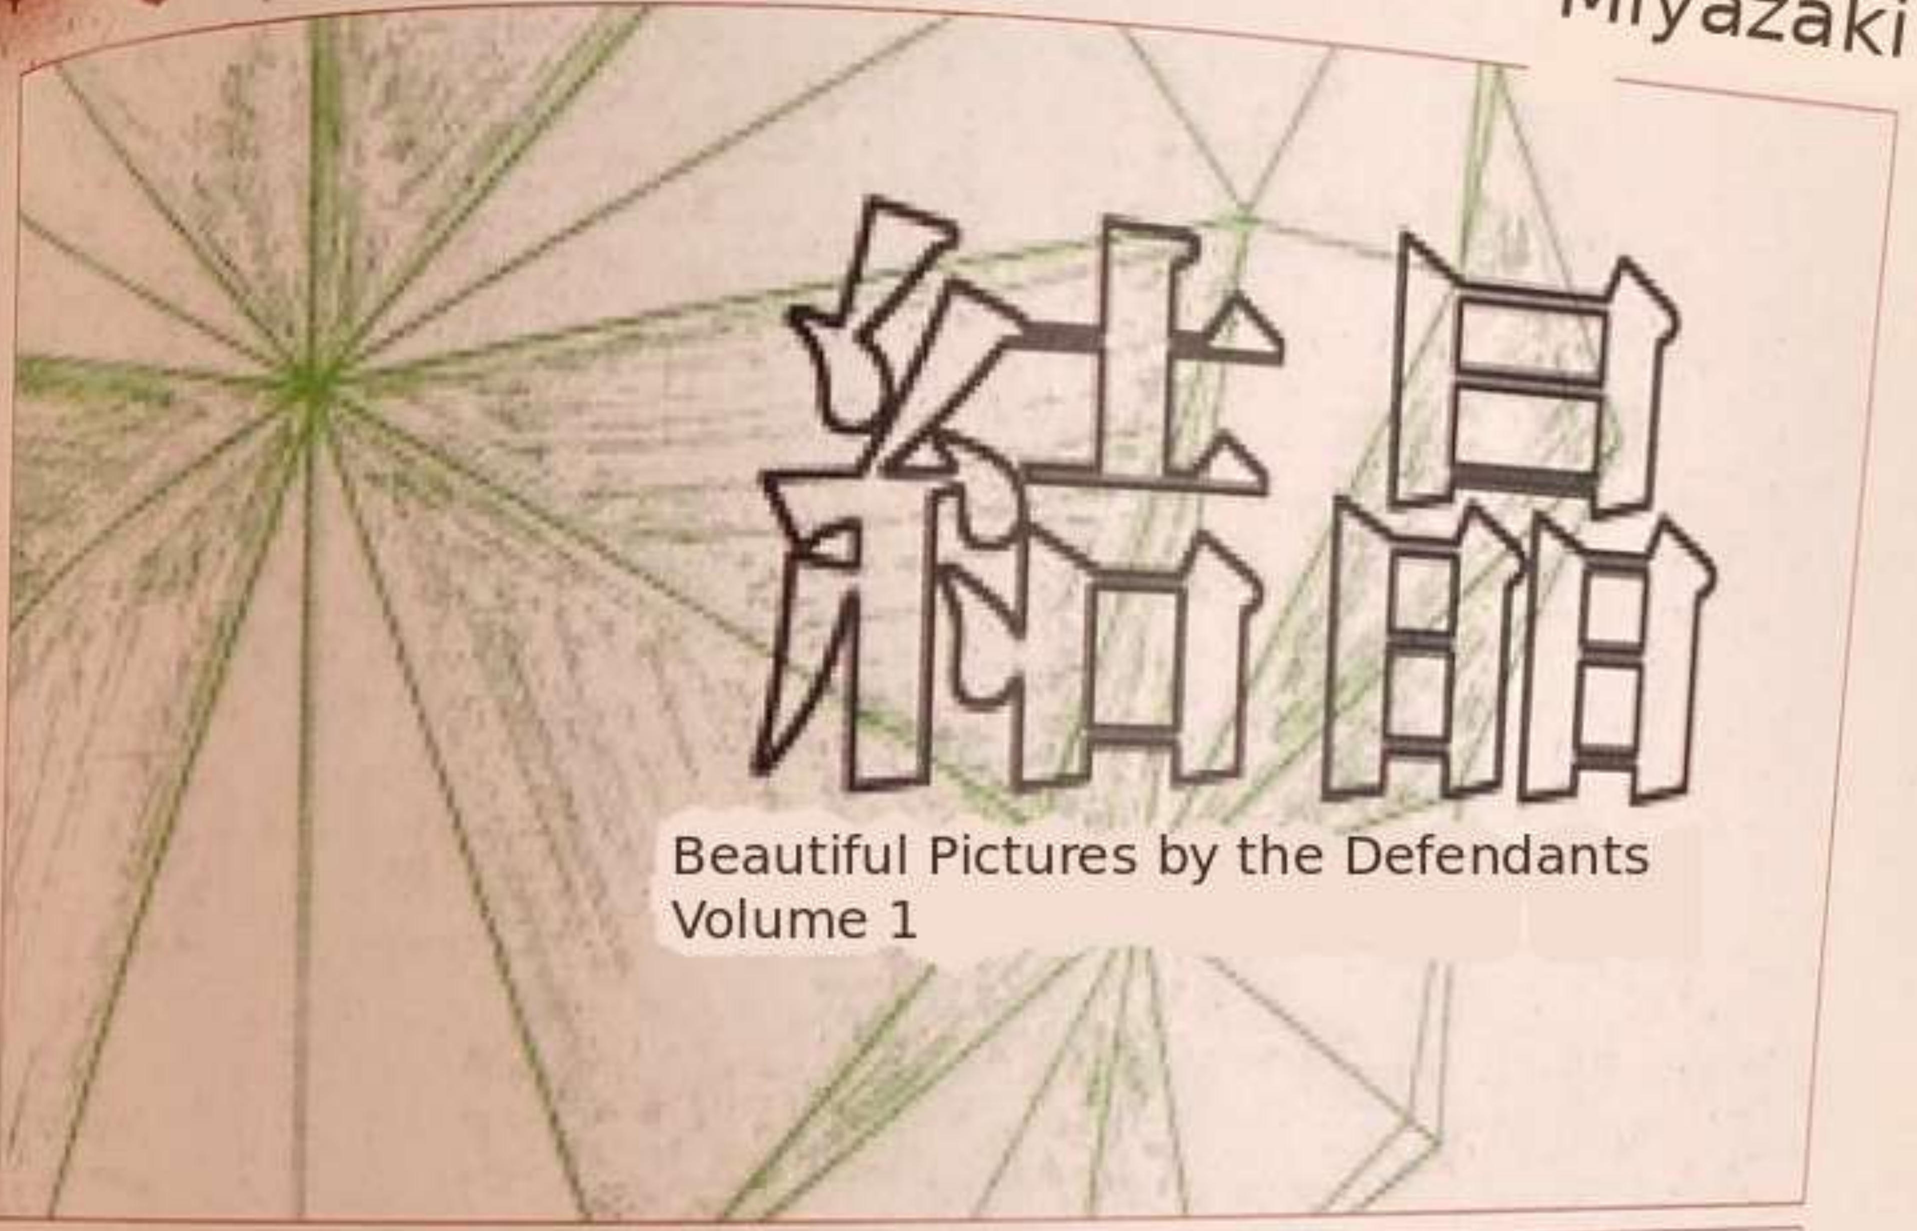
In 1999, a series of bizarre incidents occurred in the UK. Men walking on the streets late at night were suddenly slashed in the face or neck with a sharp blade by an unknown assailant. The number of victims reached dozens in just one month, and one of them died from severe injuries requiring dozens of stitches. A few months later, the London police arrested the perpetrator: Lib Biglow, 54 years old. At first glance, she appeared to be an ordinary middle-aged woman, but the weapon she used was truly abnormal. She had grown her own nails for several years and used them to slash the men. During interrogation, the woman commented, "I wanted to kill them all. I was irritated," and she received a life sentence.

A Picture That Kills You If You Look at It Three Times

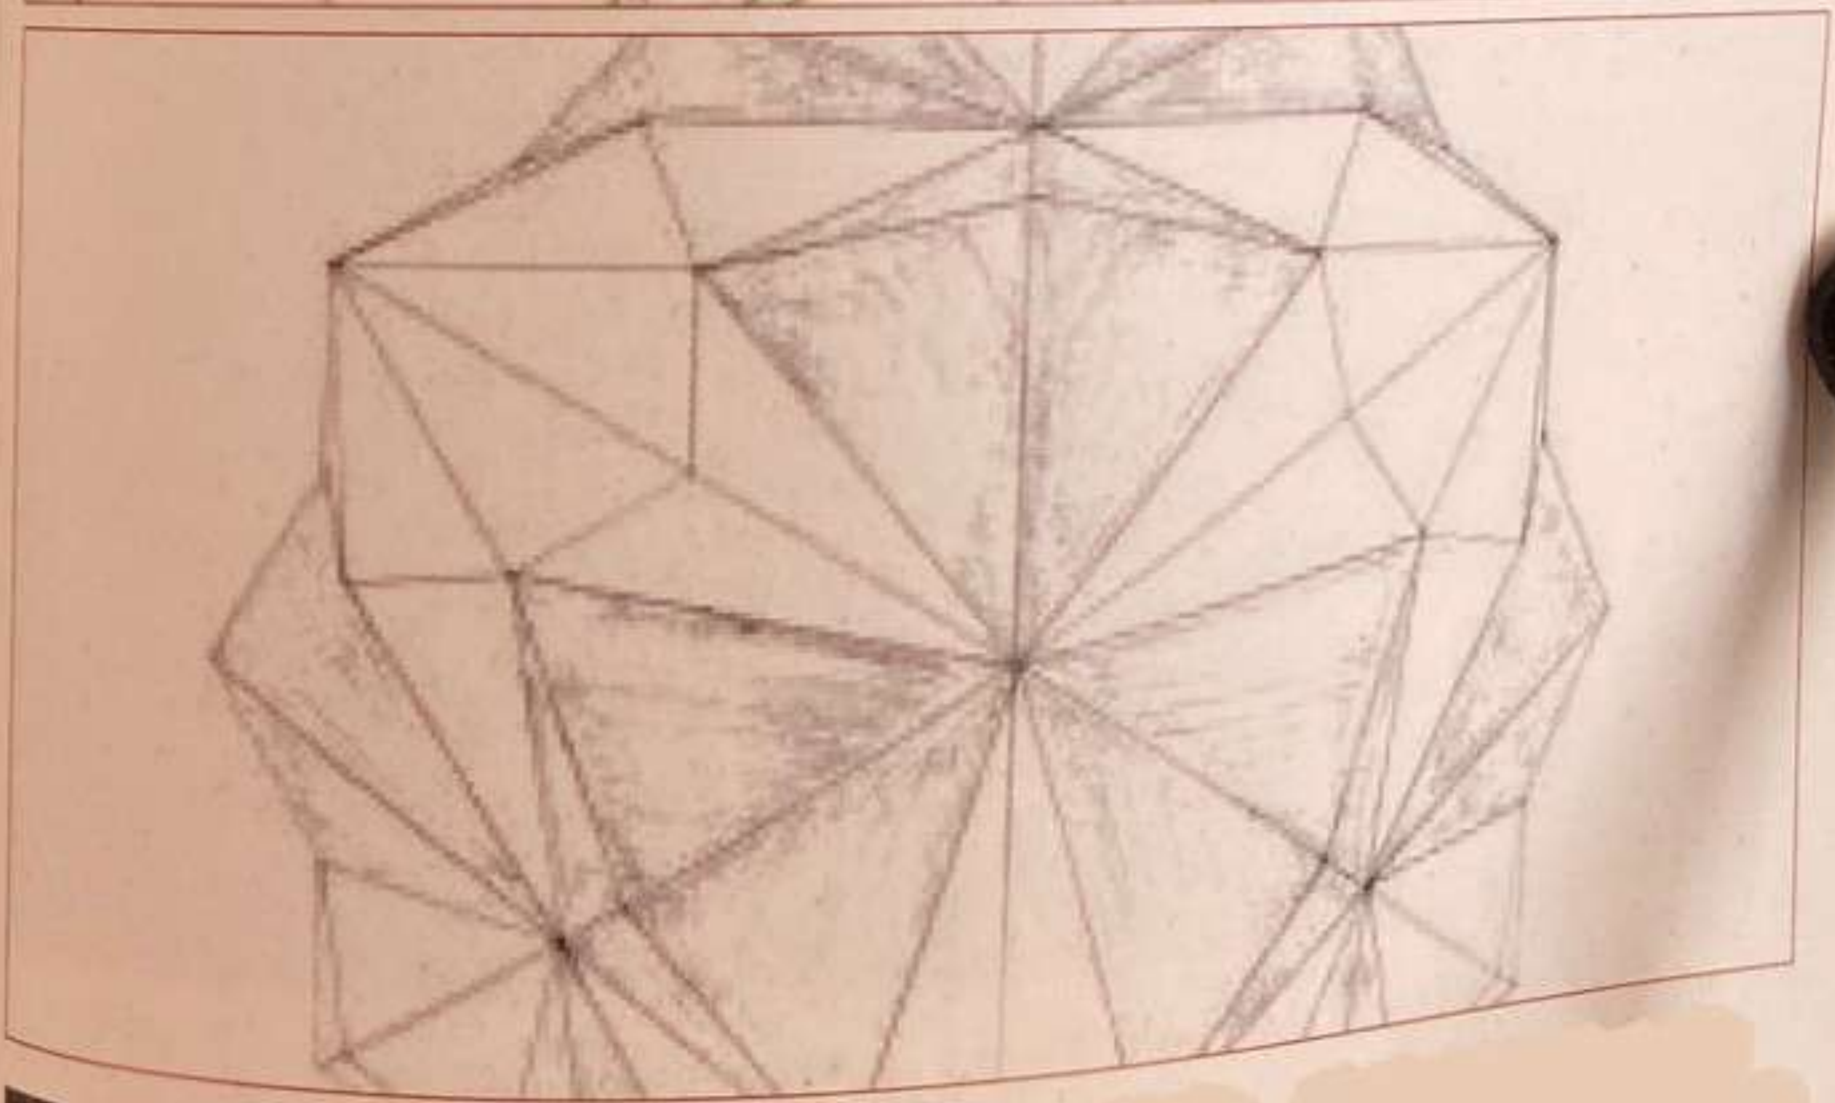


A work painted in 1980 by Polish artist Zdzisław Beksiński. It is known online as "the picture that kills you if you look at it three times," but this legend is not just an occult tale. Beksiński was not only a painter but also a renowned psychologist. Utilizing his knowledge, he created this piece with the intention of "driving people to madness just by looking at it." Although Beksiński himself did not elaborate much, it is highly likely that the latest subliminal technology of the time was embedded in the work. Incidentally, Beksiński was stabbed to death in 2005 by a burglar who broke into his home.

8 Pictures Drawn by a Murderer Tsutomu Miyazaki



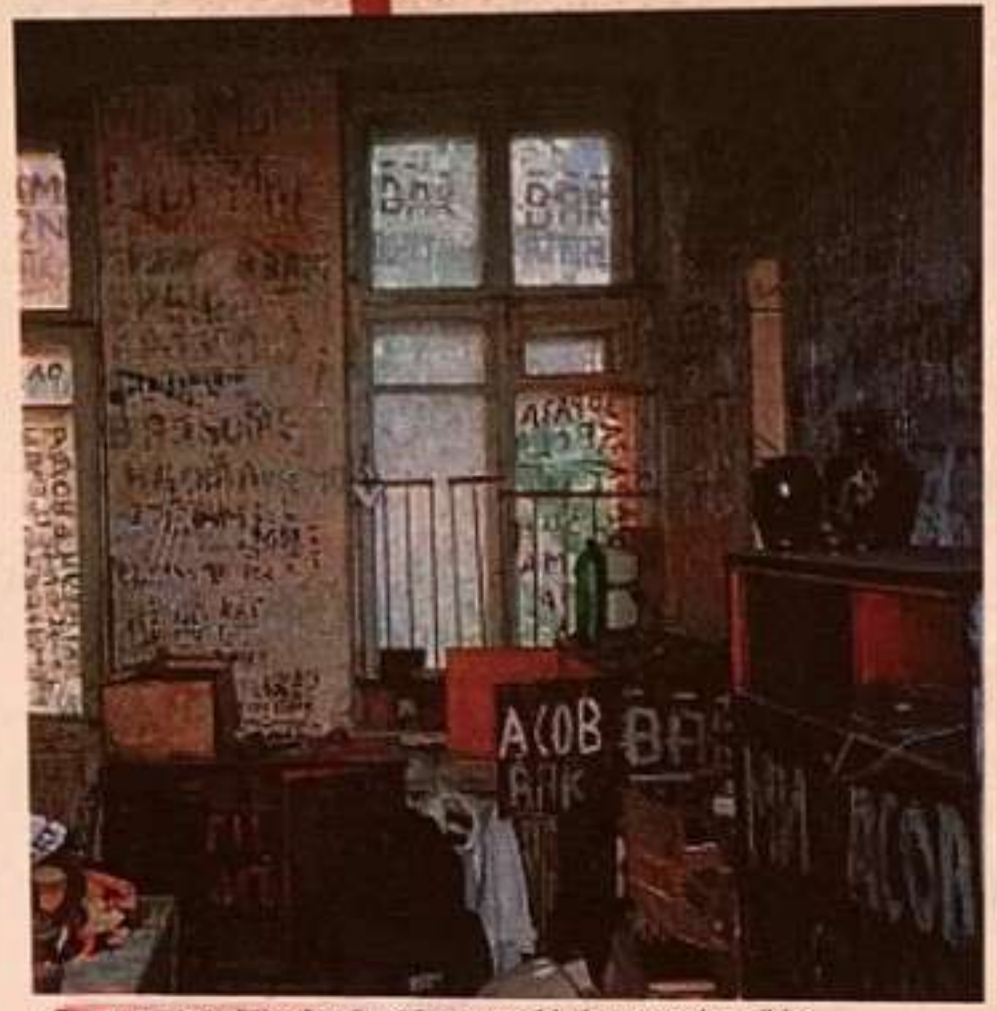
Beautiful Pictures by the Defendants Volume 1



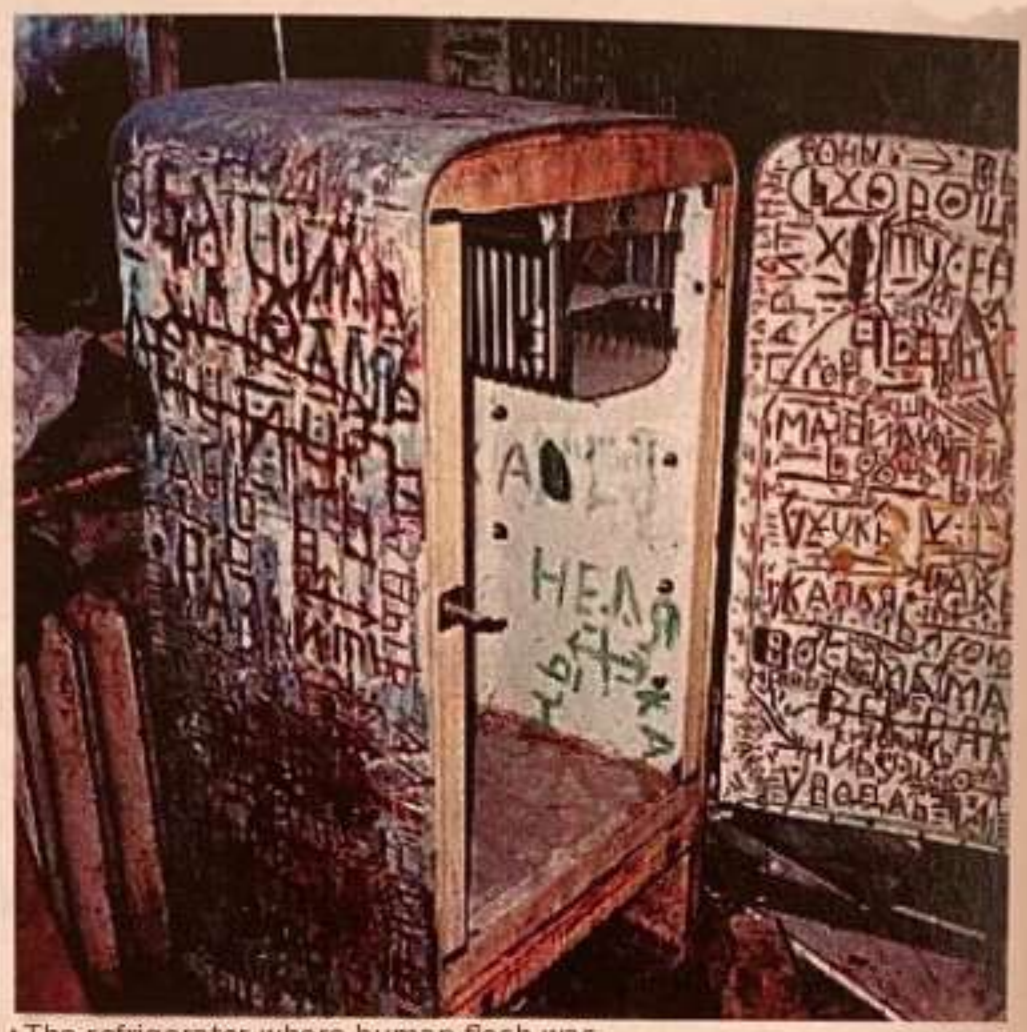
He is the notorious perpetrator of the Saitama serial kidnapping and murder of young girls. From 1988 to 1989, he continuously abducted and killed girls aged 3 to 7. He gained attention for his grotesque acts, such as sending a challenge letter to a newspaper and mailing the victims' remains to their families. The image you see here was drawn by Miyazaki while in prison, with most of it composed of simple lines. This painting is sold as an e-book titled "Crystal: The Beautiful Paintings of the Defendants" and is available at online bookstores.

Cannibal

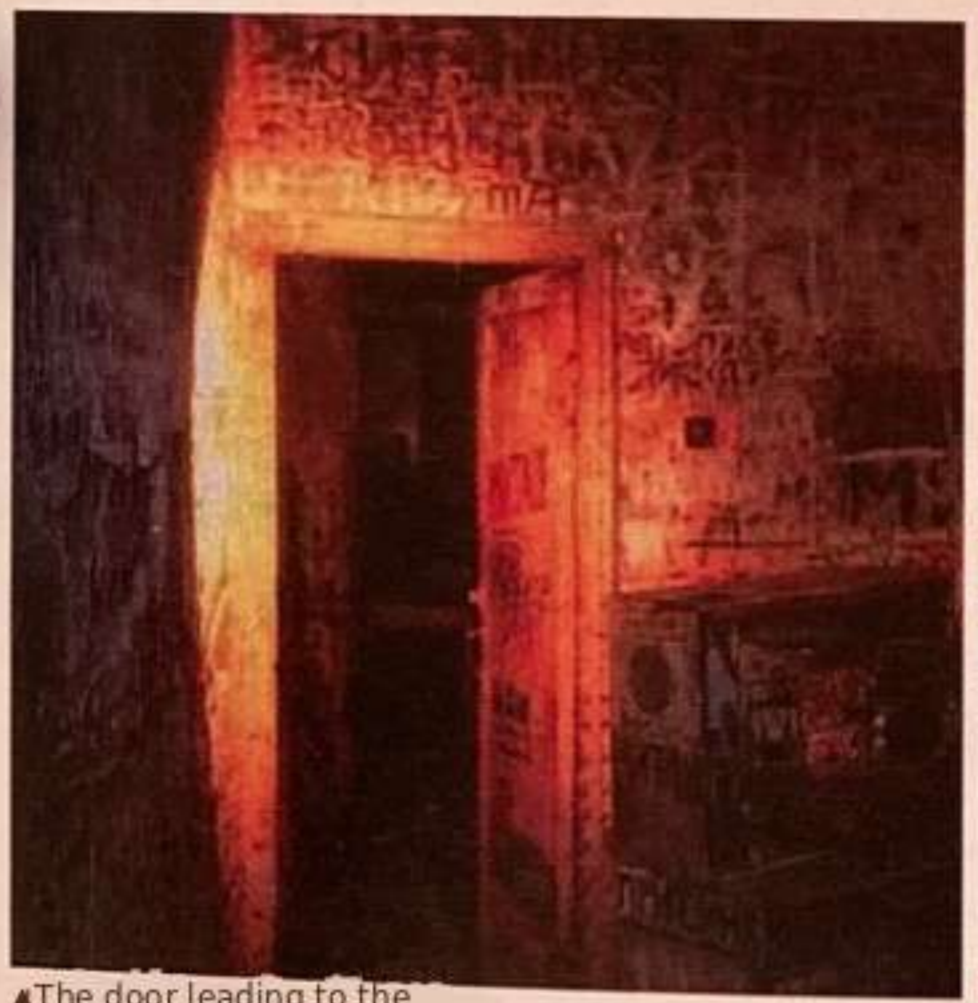
The House Where the Murderer Lived



▲Every corner of the furniture is covered in incomprehensible scribbles



▲The refrigerator where human flesh was stored

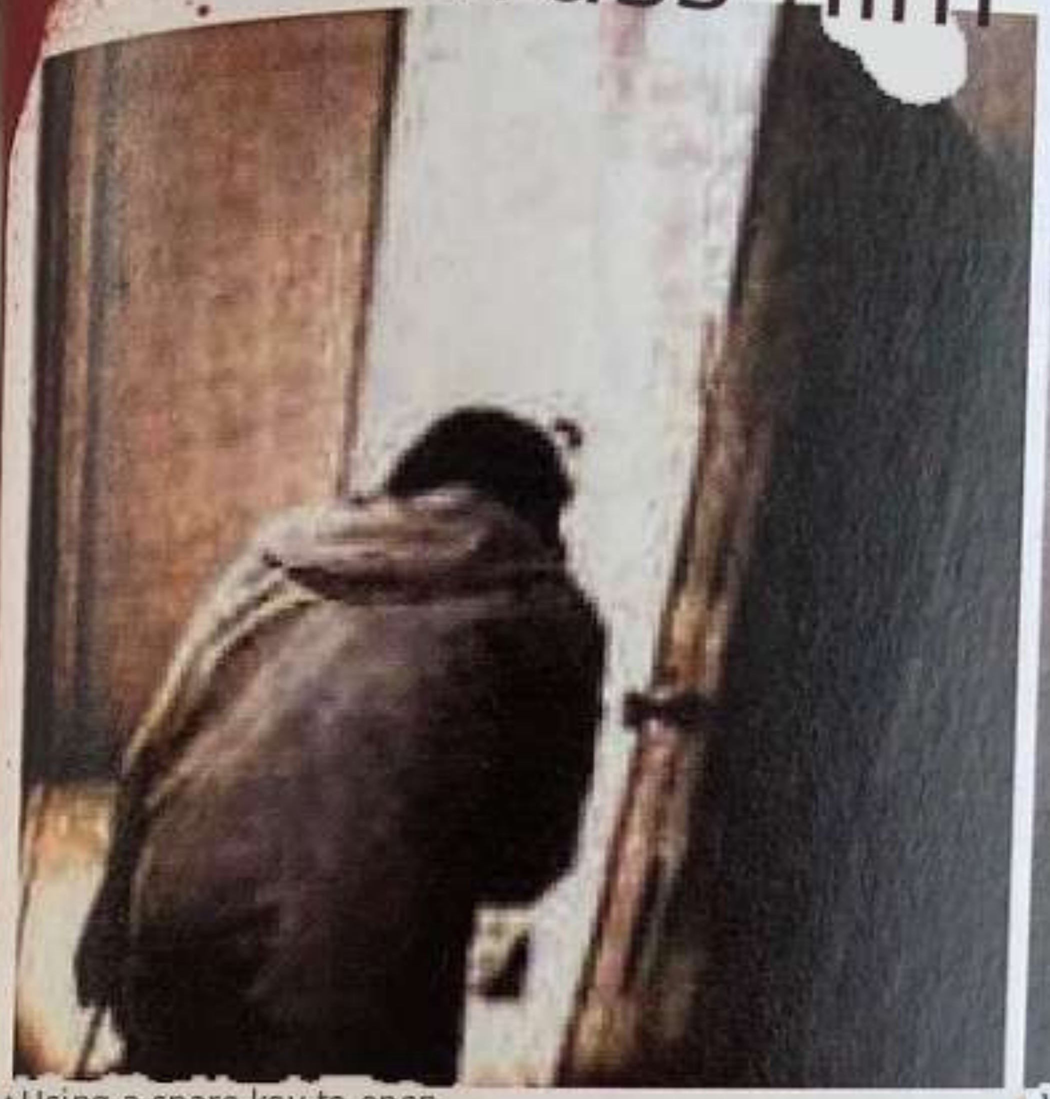


▲The door leading to the bedroom

▲Also covered in scribbles

This is the house where "cannibal" Yord Gorevich, who killed dozens of boys and girls in Russia, lived. Yord began his murders at the age of 25, after completing his military service. He would invite runaway boys to his home, give them alcohol, strangle them, dismember them, eat their flesh, and then dissolve the remains in sulfuric acid. After his arrest, when the police searched his home, they reportedly found one severed head and three partially dissolved bodies in the refrigerator, as well as two bodies in the process of being dismembered in the bathroom.

A woman who repeatedly breaks into her ex-boyfriend's home to harass him



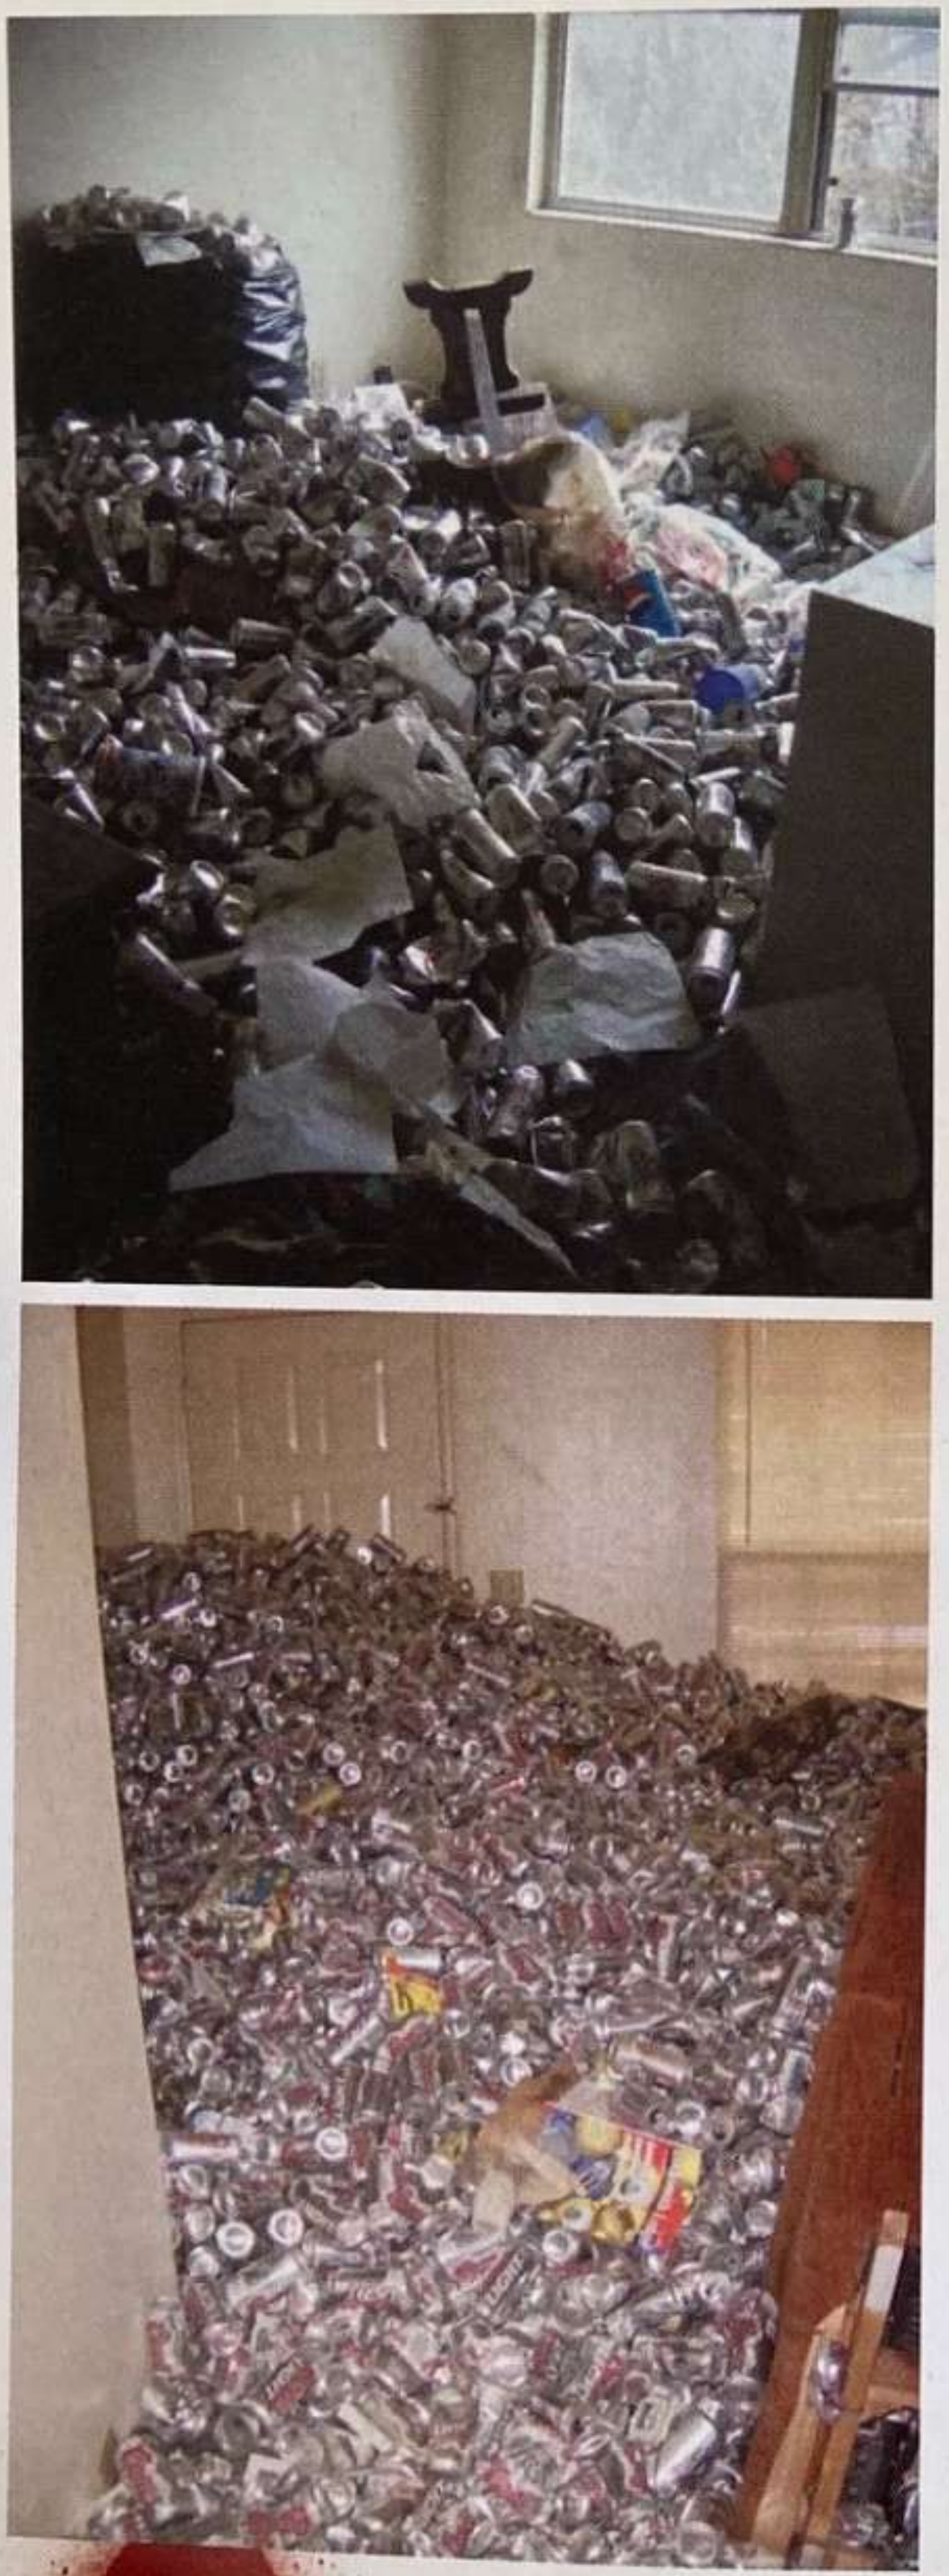
▲Using a spare key to open the door

While checking the surroundings, she enters the man's room

▲The woman begins pouring water on the man's electrical appliances

A man living in Tokyo noticed one day that the layout of his room had been changed. After installing surveillance cameras indoors, he captured the images you see here. ▲She spends some time thinking about ways to harass him indoors. This woman had previously dated the victim but became enraged after being dumped. She had apparently been sneaking into his room repeatedly, pouring water on his appliances and engaging in other forms of harassment. This footage became the key evidence, leading to her arrest under the anti-stalking law.

A man who died after drinking only beer



In 2003, an extremely obese man weighing over 100 kilograms was brought to a hospital in New Jersey, USA. The man was in critical condition, unconscious, and despite emergency treatment, he died an hour after being admitted. The cause of death was malnutrition. Why would a man who was so overweight die from malnutrition? The question on everyone's mind was answered when the police searched the man's room. The floor was covered with mountains of beer cans. It turns out the man had an extreme eating disorder and had consumed nothing but beer for the two years leading up to his death. Incidentally, since the man had no relatives, the landlord had to spend hundreds of thousands to clean up the beer-filled room.

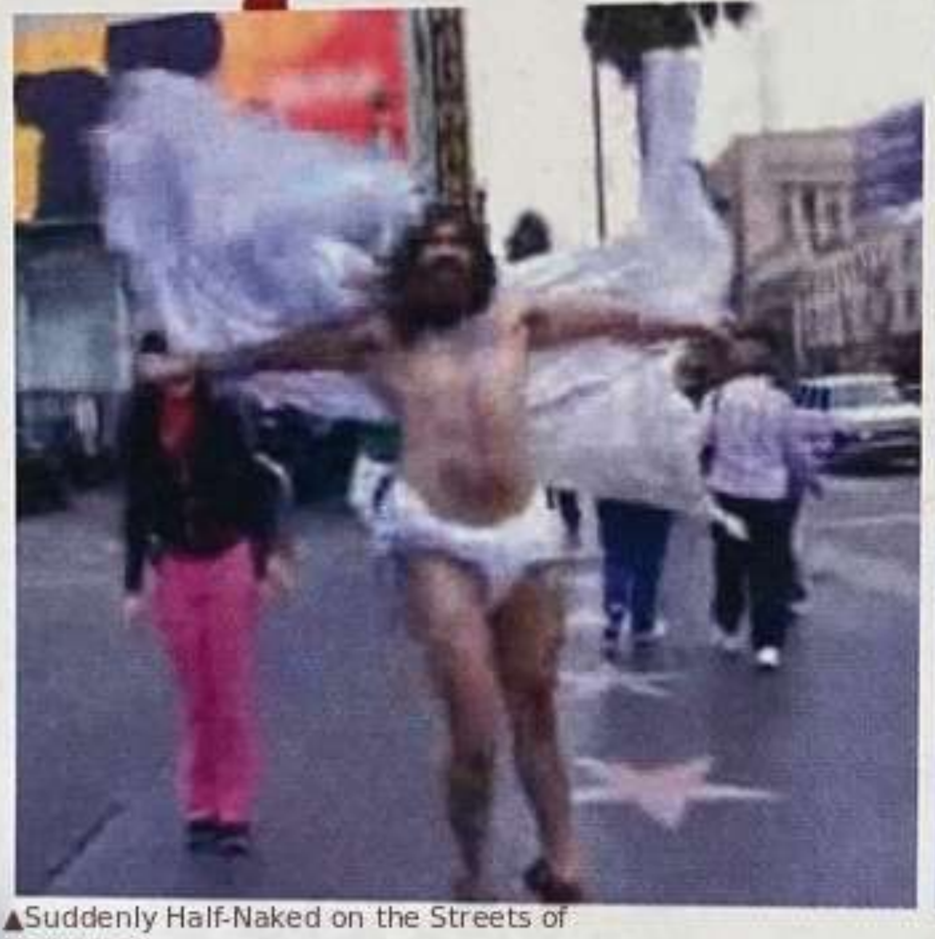
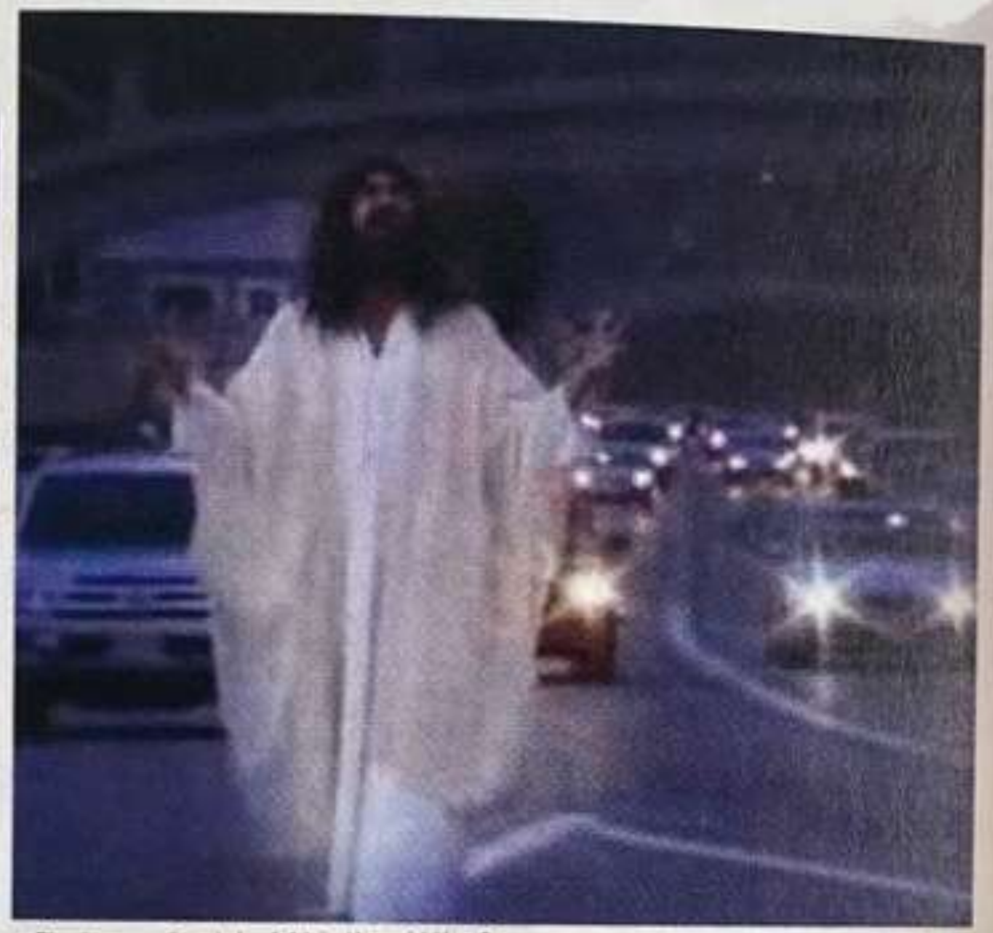
A Man Who Believes He Is Christ, Performing a Street Musical

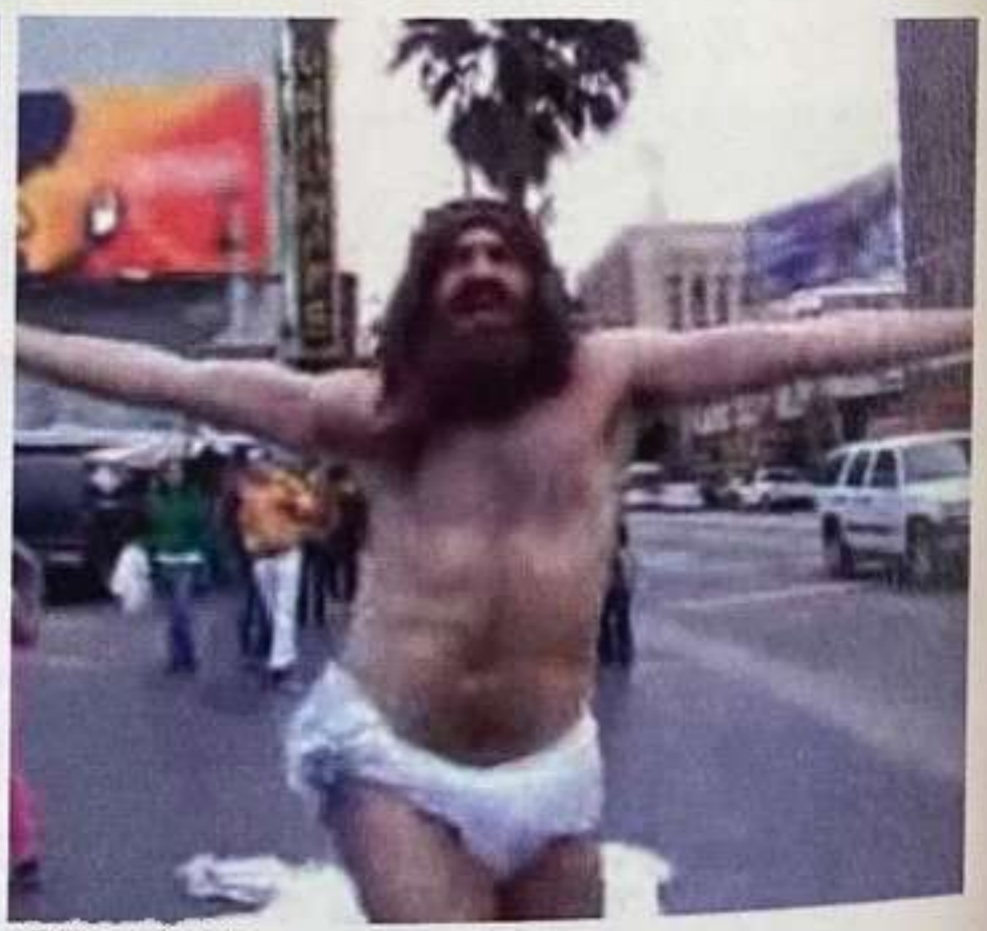


▲Suddenly Half-Naked on the Streets of Hollywood



▲Singing passionately right in the middle of the road

▲Even inside the department store, I was passionately singing.



▲Still passionate singing

At first glance, it seems fun, but this man believes himself to be the reincarnation of Christ and is a well-known figure who regularly appears on the streets of Los Angeles, USA, to perform impromptu musicals. He indiscriminately preaches to passersby, causing great annoyance to the residents. The person who filmed this video is reportedly one of his followers (self-proclaimed "apostles") who is the only one who truly believes this man is the real Christ.

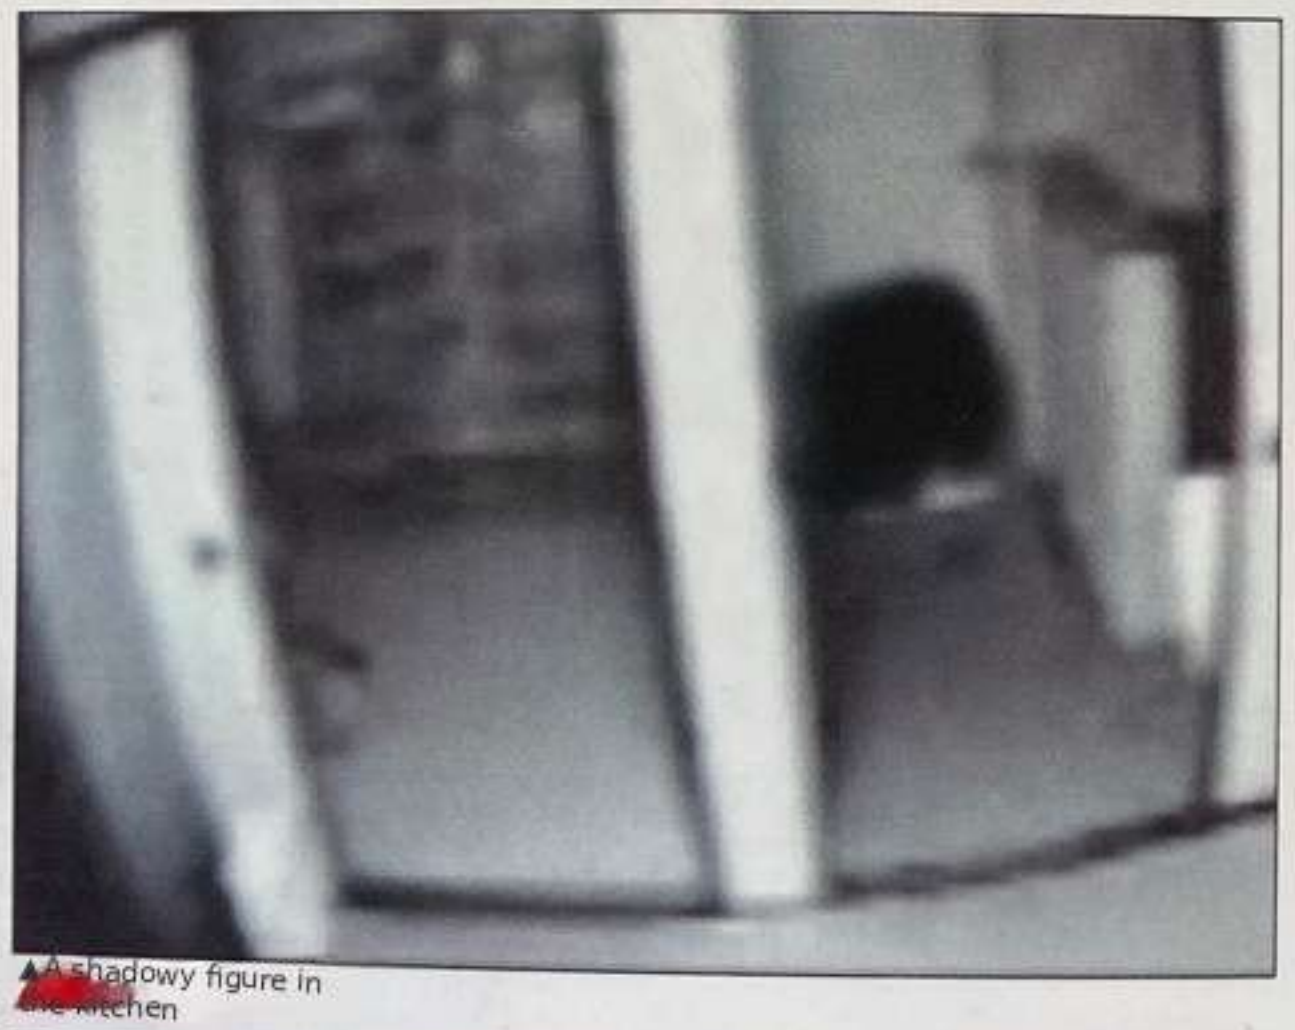
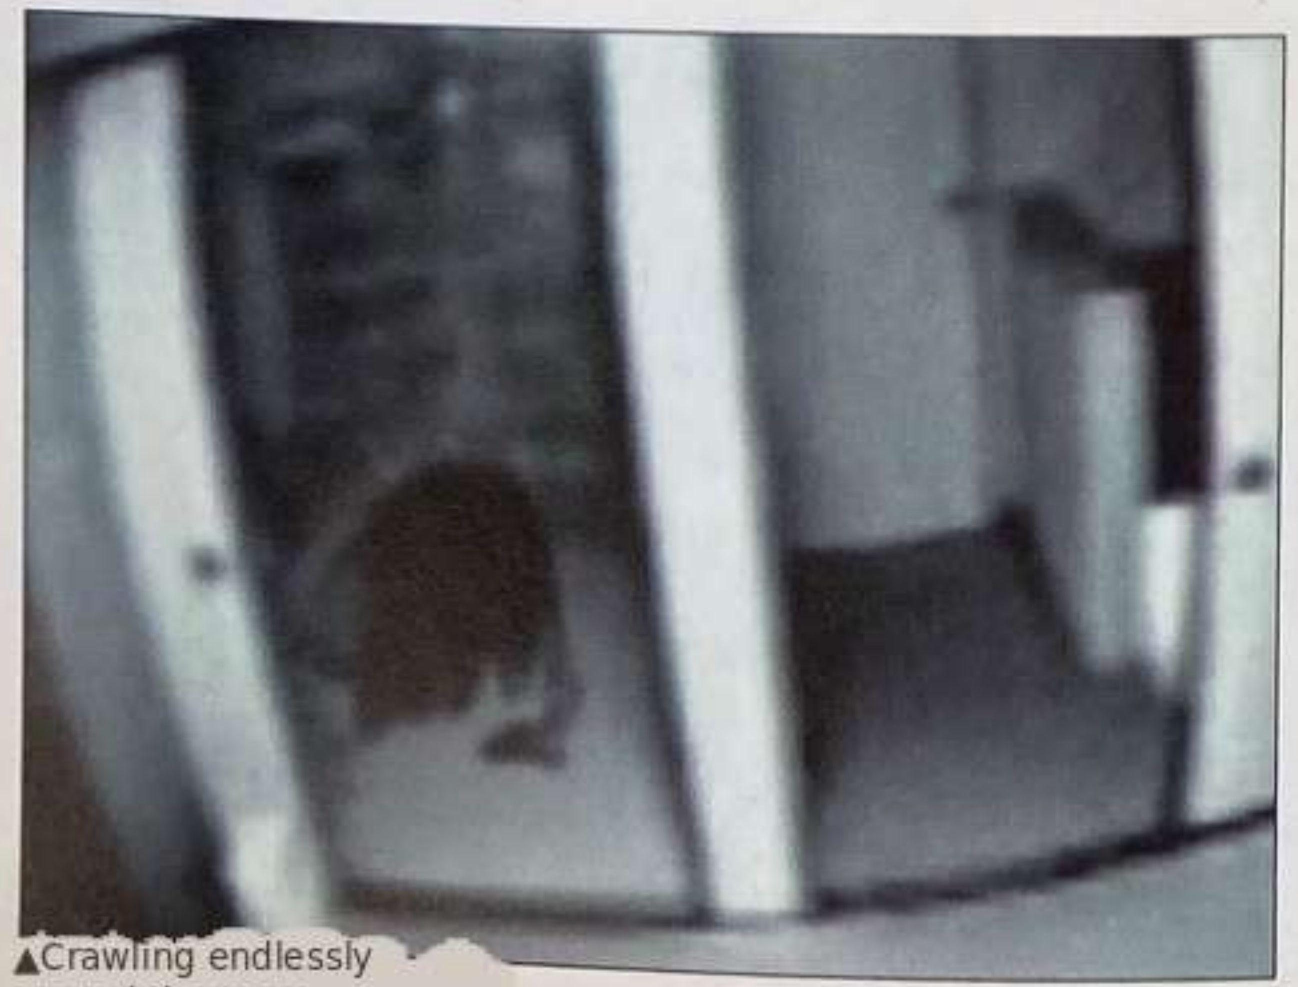
The Crawling Woman

▲Thinking it was an empty room



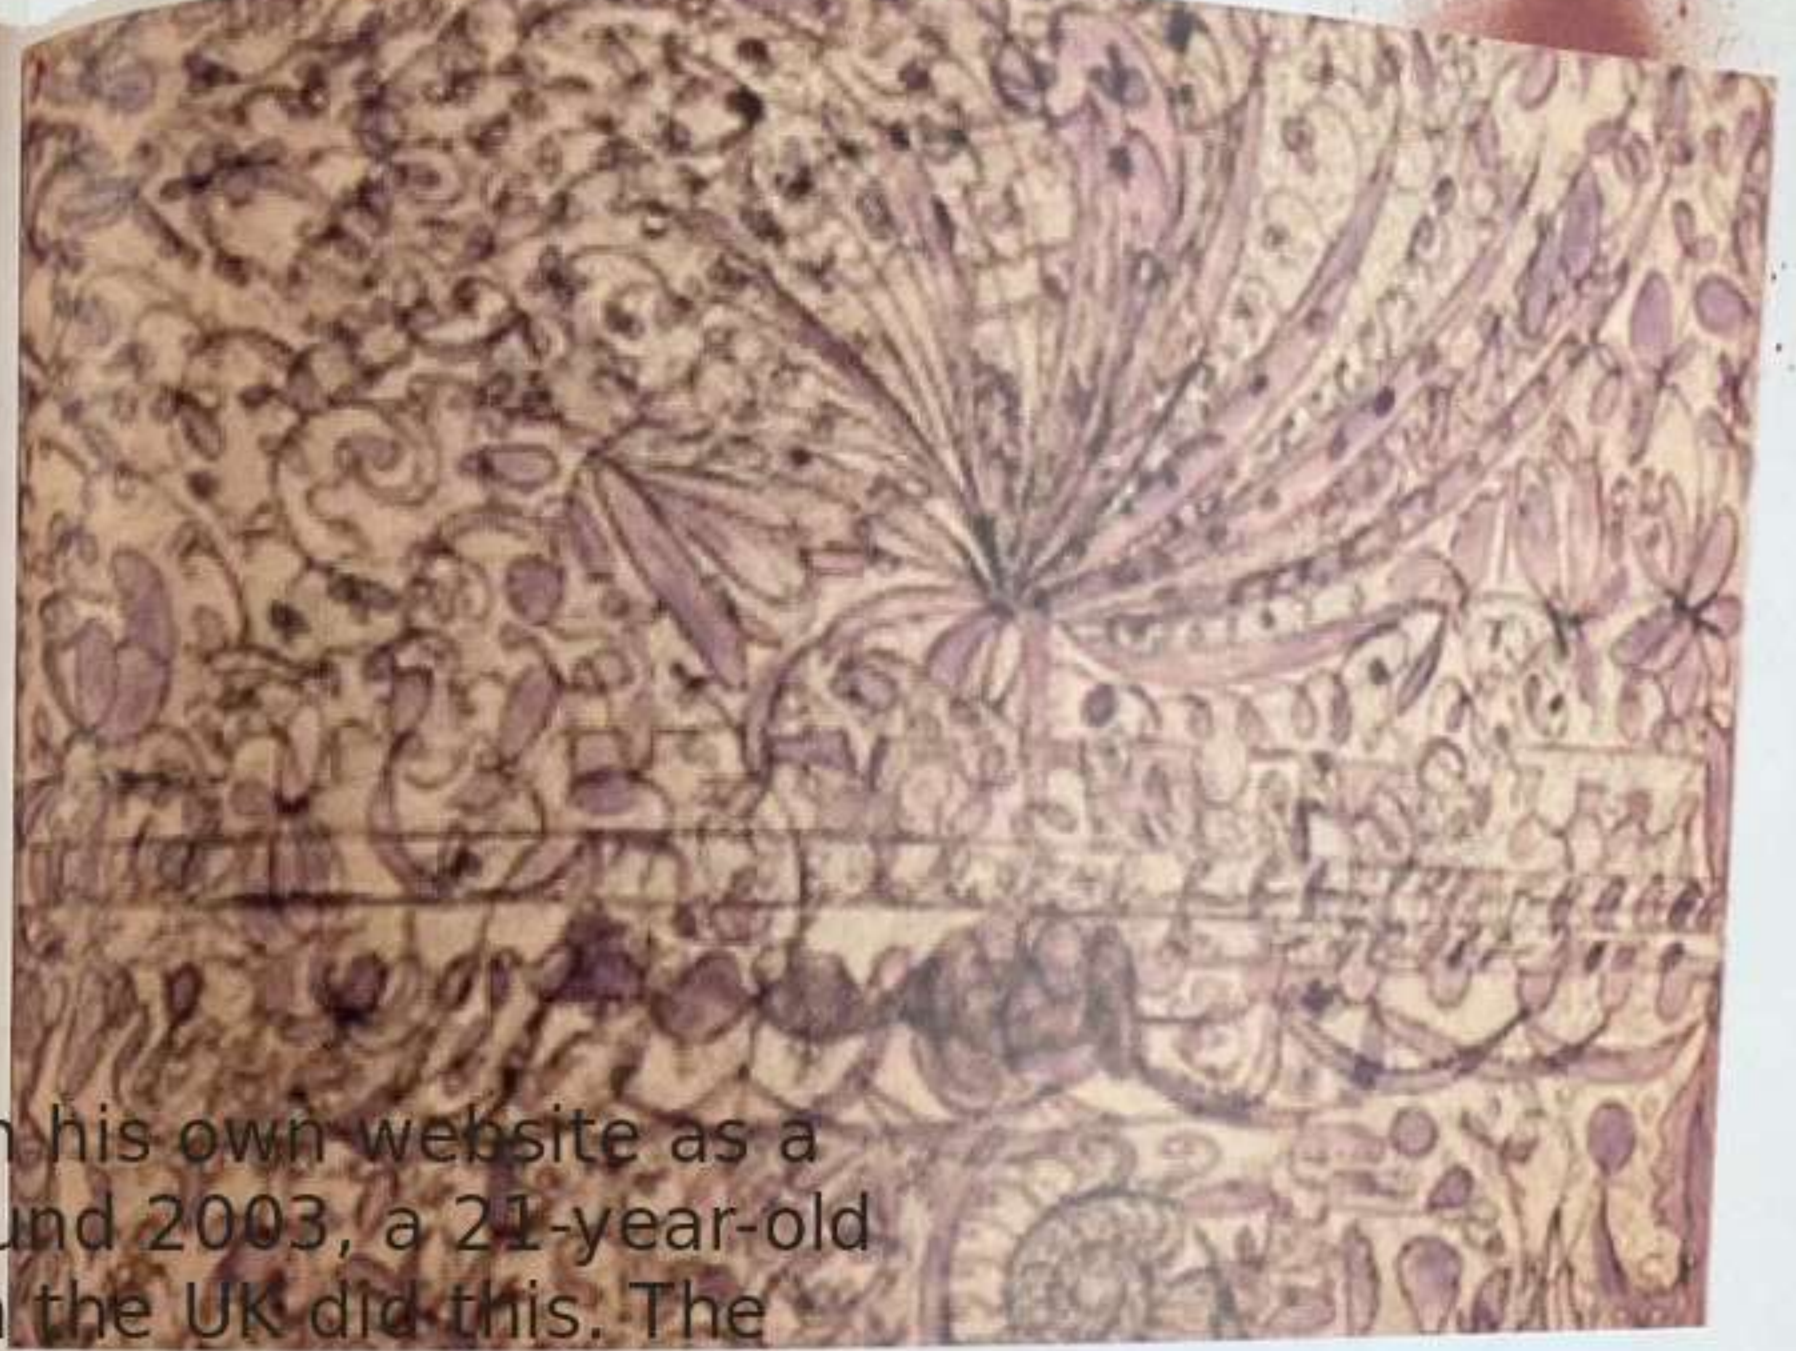
▲A shadowy figure in the kitchen



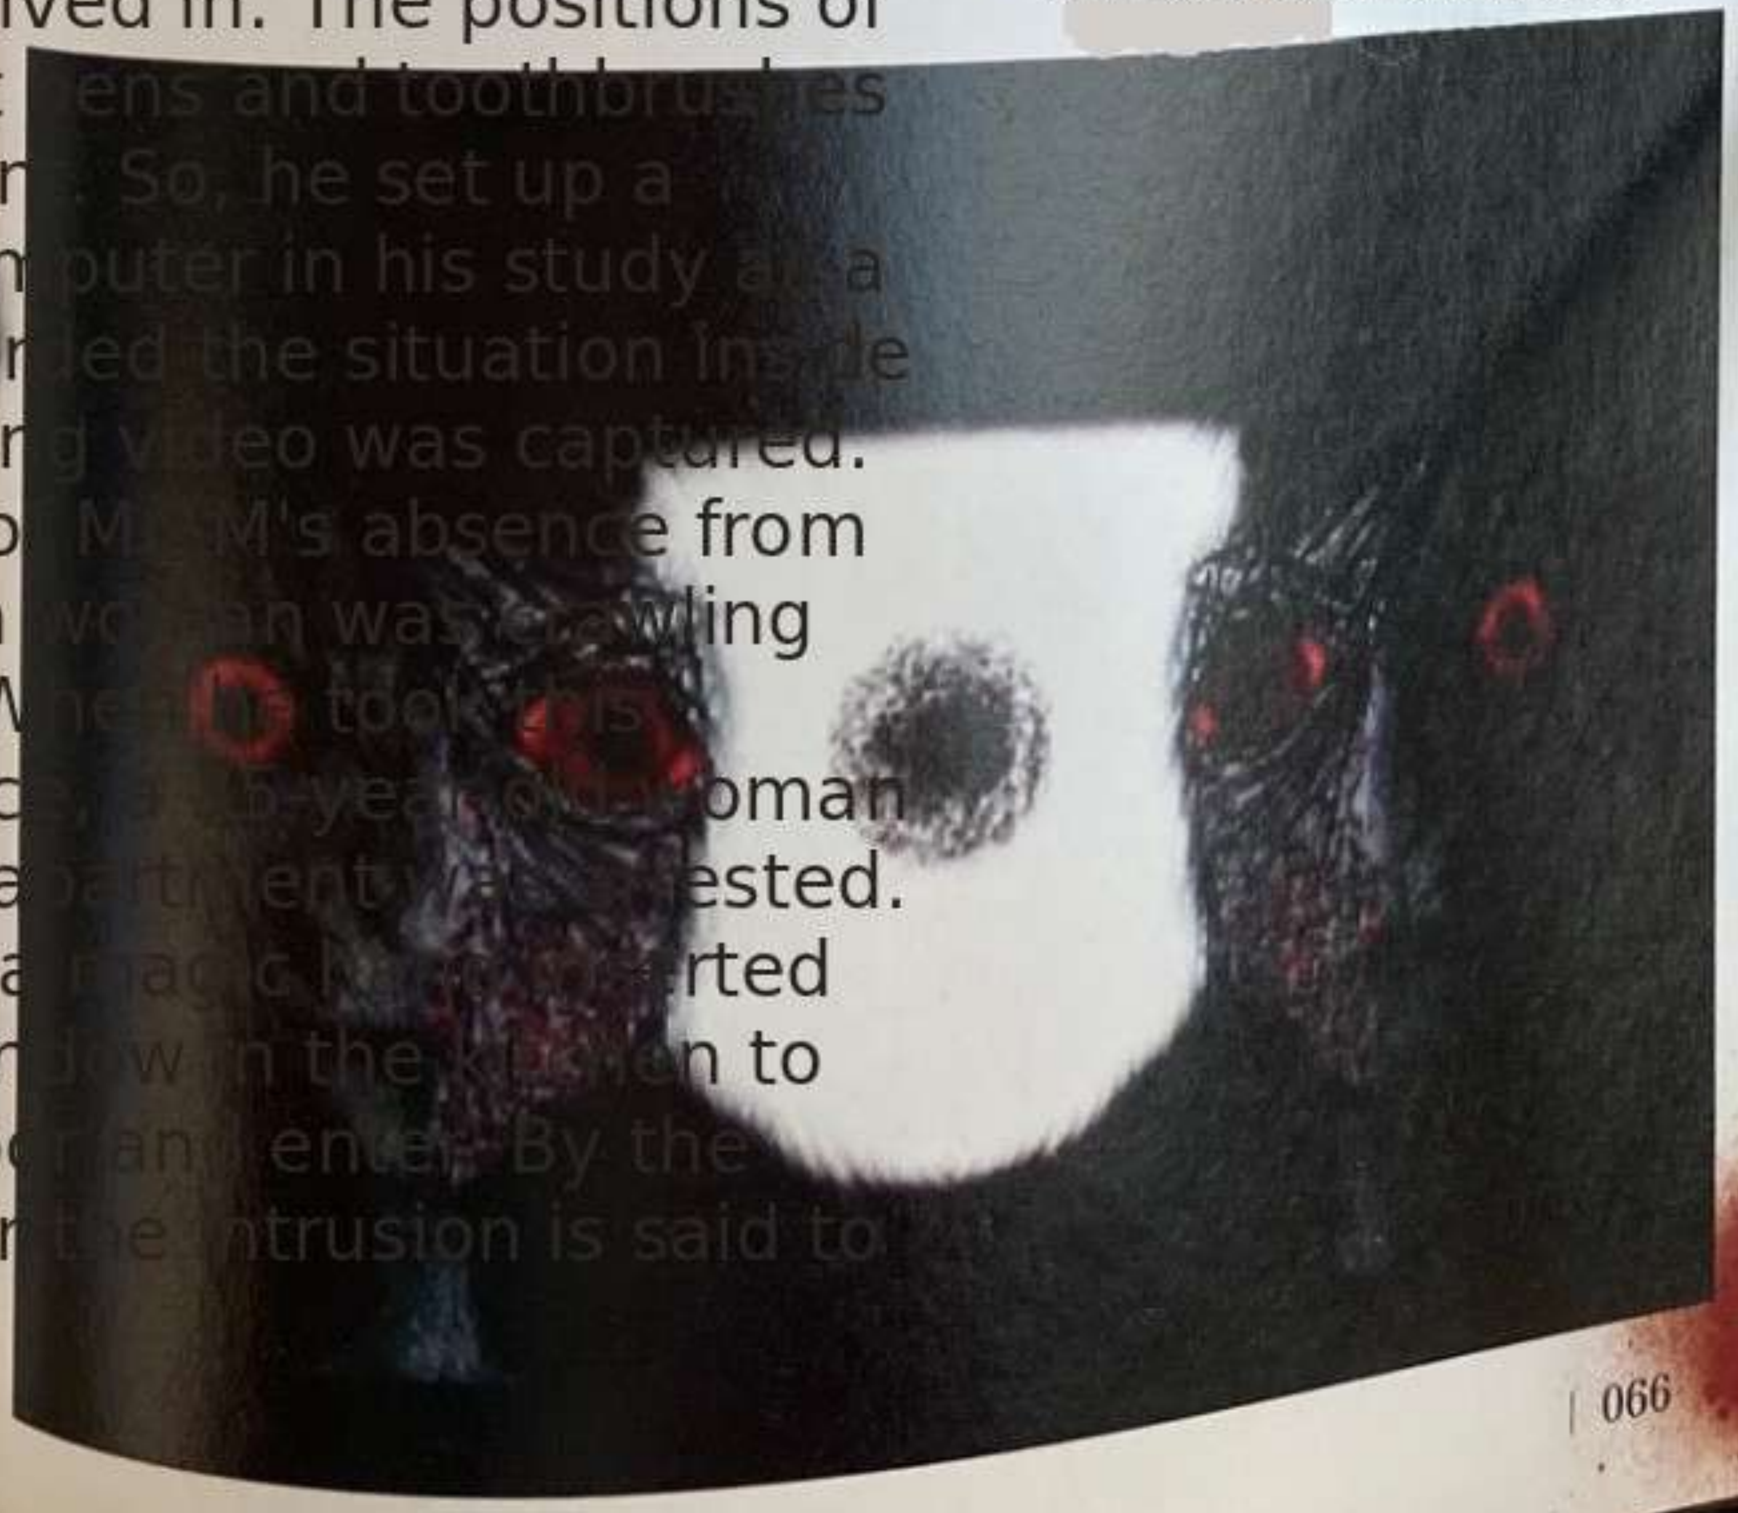
▲Crawling endlessly around the room

An image posted on his own website as a "suicide note"▲Around 2003, a 21-year-old young man living in the UK did this. The intention is completely unclear. Mr. M, living somewhere in Tokyo, one day noticed something strange happening in the apartment he lived in. The positions of items like ballpoint pens and toothbrushes were subtly different. So, he set up a webcam on the computer in his study as a test. When he recorded the situation inside the room, a terrifying video was captured. Taking advantage of Mr. M's absence from home, an unknown woman was crawling around the room. When he took this footage to the police, a ...-year-old woman living in the same apartment was arrested. It seems she used a magic hand inserted through a small window in the kitchen to unlock the front door and enter. By the way, the motive for the intrusion is said to be unknown.

The Scream of a Suicide Volunteer 2

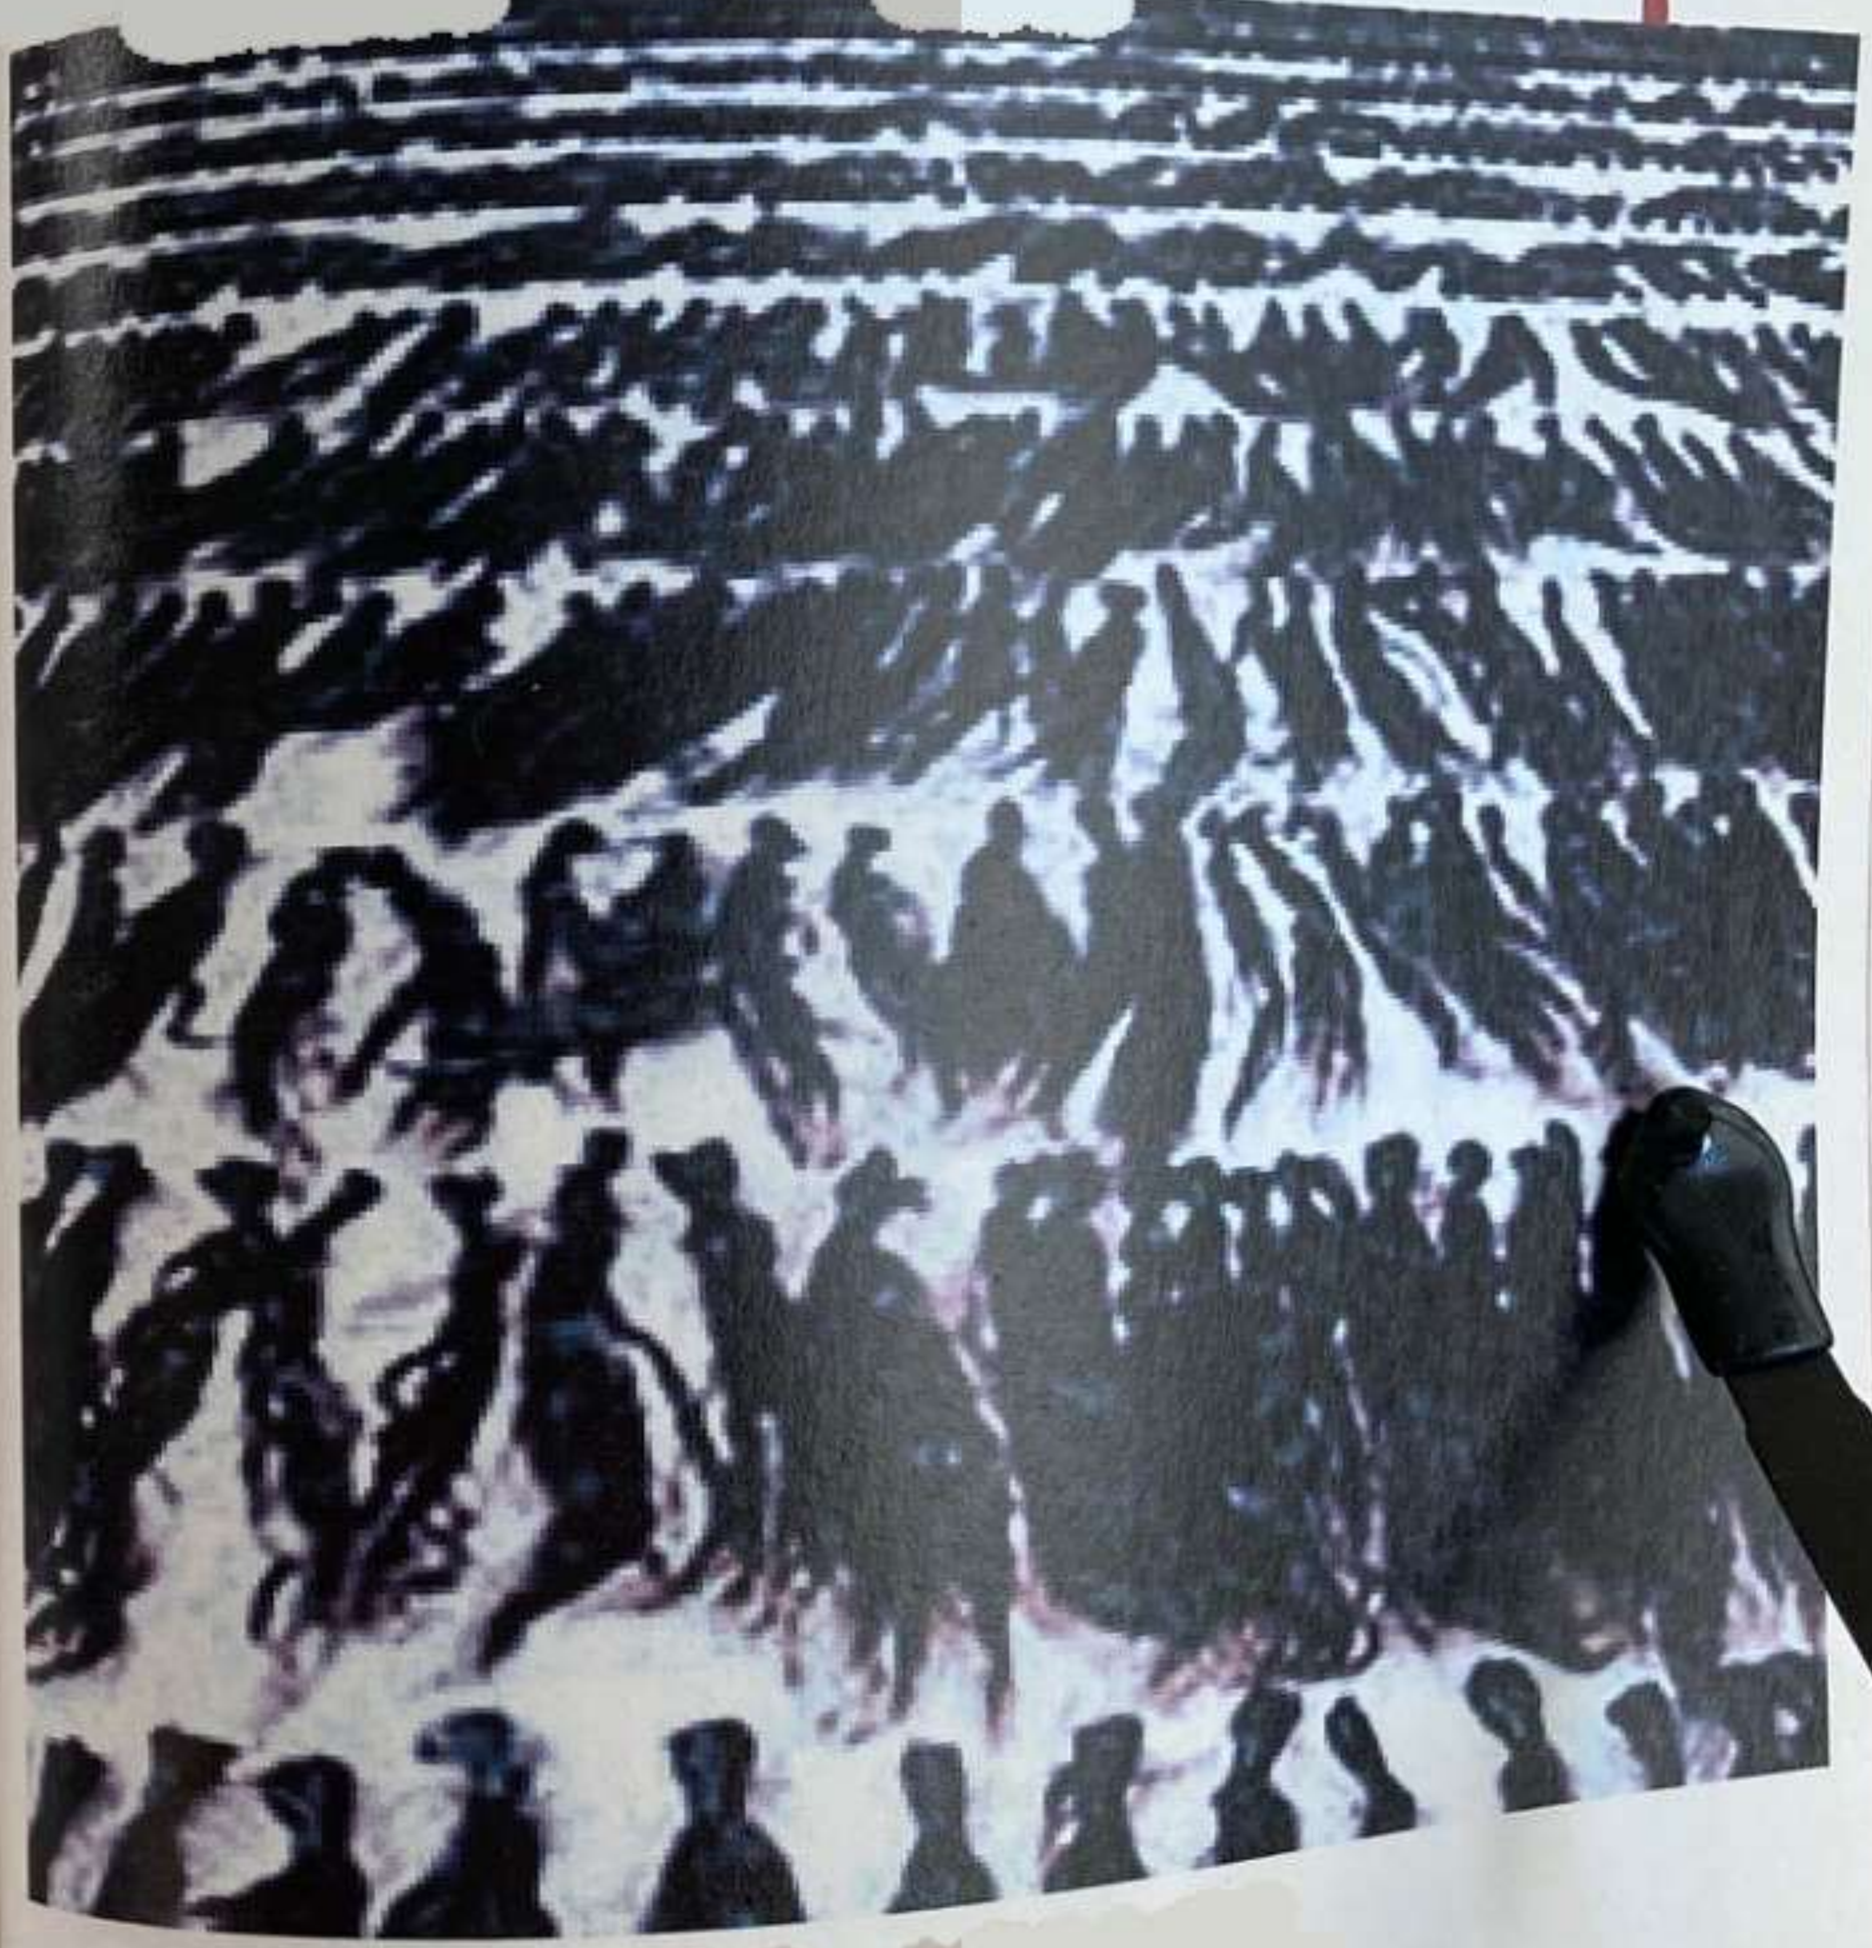


▼The origin is unknown, but around 2005, this image spread across various Japanese websites as "an illustration drawn by the administrator of a famous suicide site."



100 kilograms of hair

Collected slasher



In 1993, in Chichibu, Saitama Prefecture, incidents frequently occurred where women walking on the street were attacked by a man with a blade, who only cut off their hair. The incidents continued day after day, and when the number of victims finally exceeded 20, the police caught a man. The perpetrator was a 50-year-old plumber. Since childhood, he had an extreme hair fetish and had a sexual preference where he couldn't get excited without touching women's long hair. When the police investigated the perpetrator's home, they found a large amount of hair in the closet, totaling about 100 kilograms. Most of it was collected by paying money to barbershops and the like, but eventually, he couldn't hold back and started attacking others.

In 1984, Mr. W (then 65 years old), a resident of Kyoto Prefecture, was troubled by a mysterious intruder who appeared day after day. Taking advantage of Mr. W's absence, the intruder would break the back door, sneak in, sometimes set fire to the sliding doors inside, cut off the heads of Buddhist statues, and then leave. Although there was no damage to valuables, Mr. W, terrified by the severity of the situation, asked the police to keep watch. As a result, the arrested culprit was an elderly man living next door to Mr. W's house. During questioning, the old man claimed, "The Buddhist statues in (Mr. W's) house are cursed, and they are bringing me misfortune." He was subsequently admitted to a mental hospital.

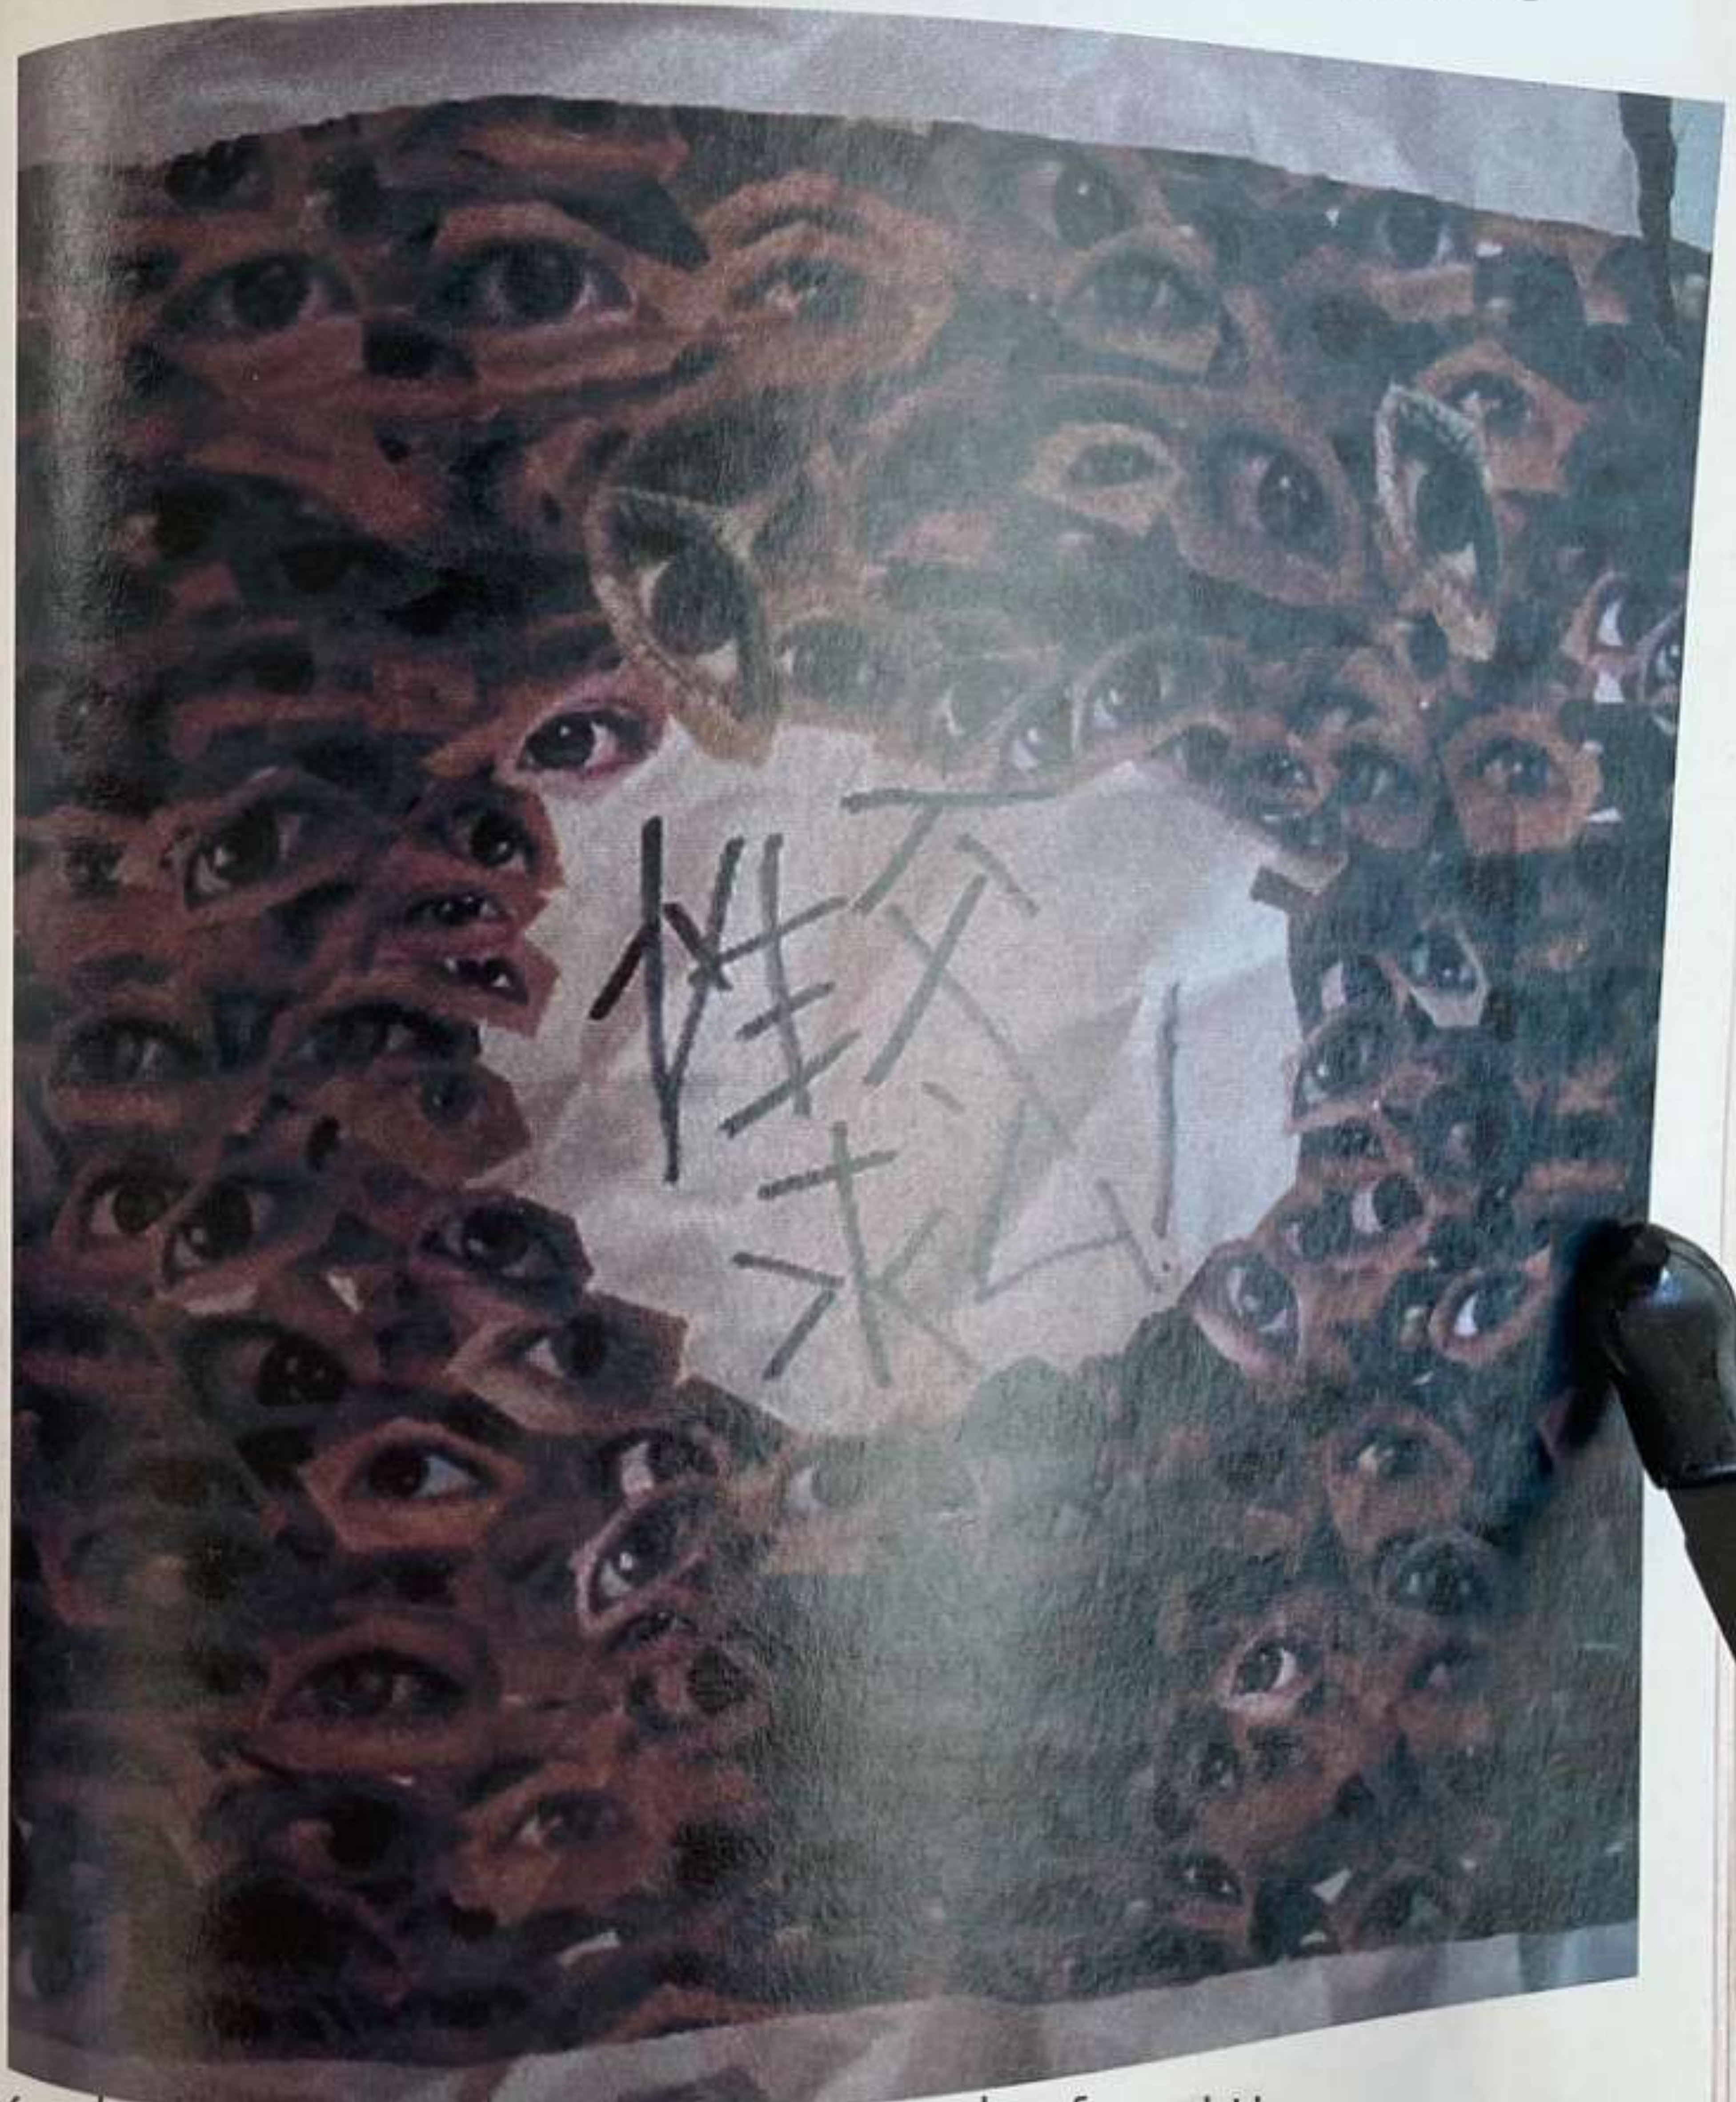
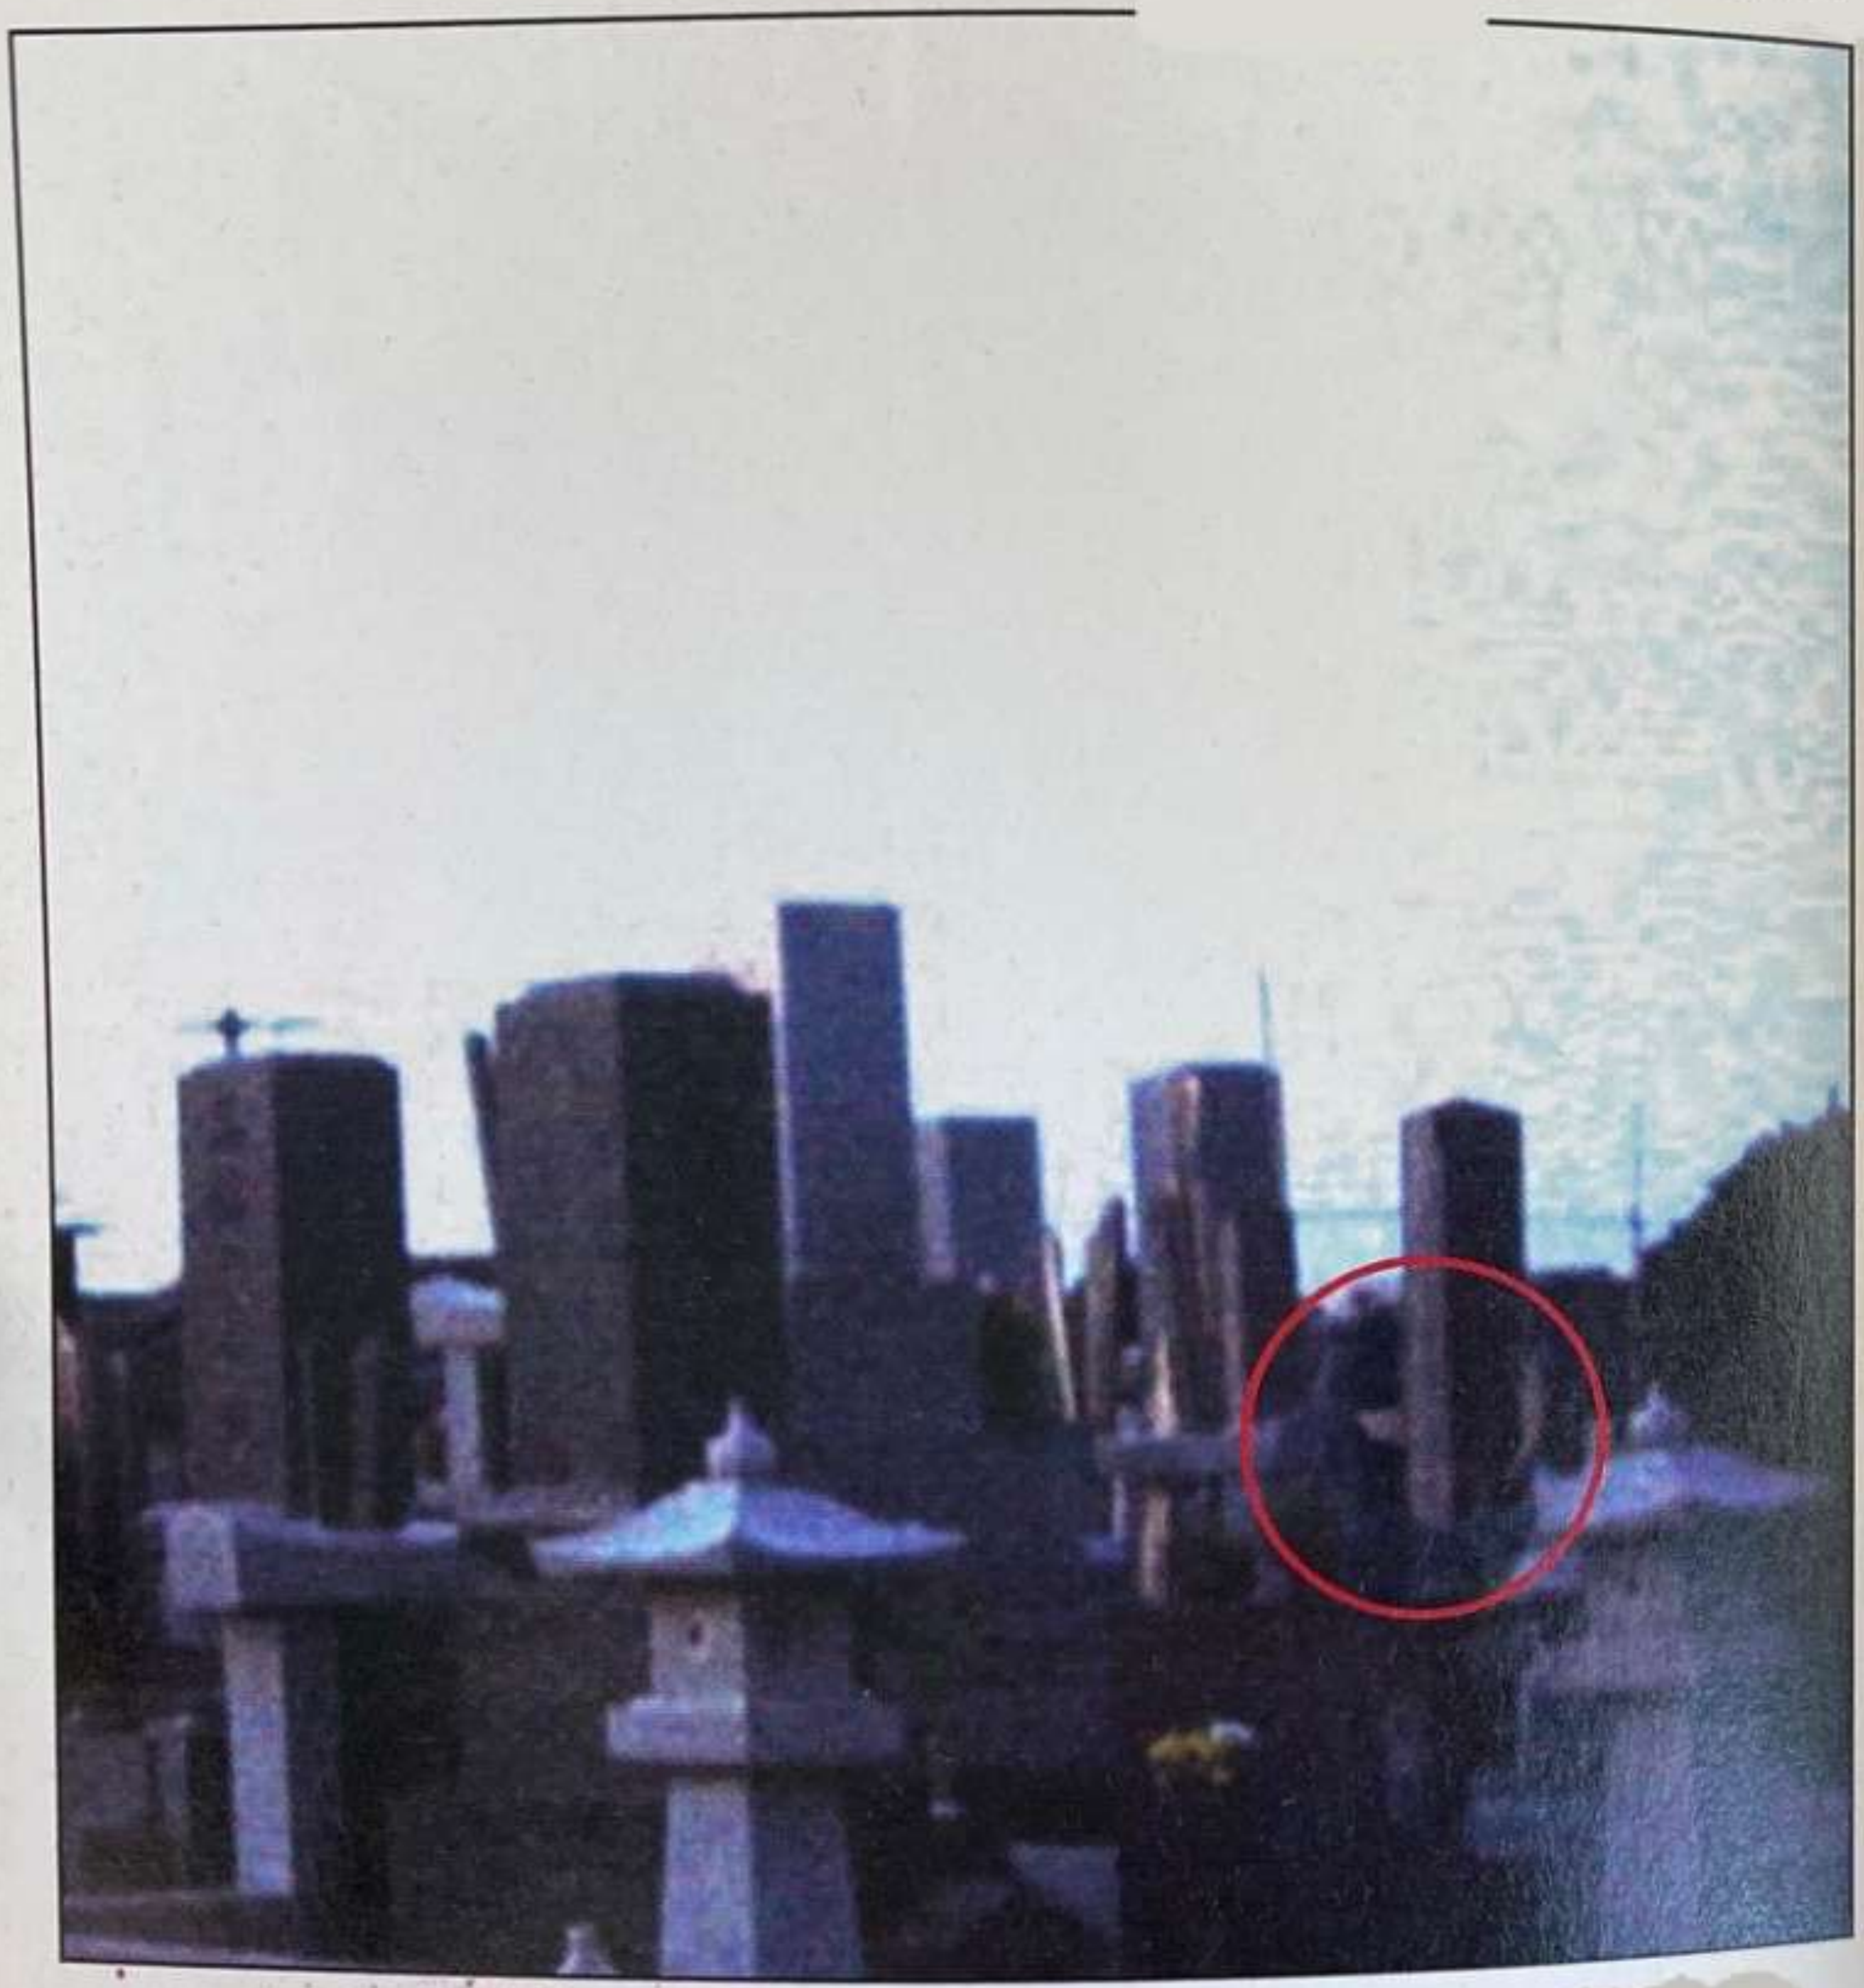
Seeking Sexual Intercourse



Y, who lives somewhere in Tokyo, one day found the flyer you see here in the mailbox of her boyfriend's apartment. While staring at the flyer in astonishment, a voice came from behind her. "How about it? Would sexual intercourse be acceptable?" When she turned around, a man in a suit with glasses was standing there with a smile on his face. Unable to speak immediately, the man suddenly raised his right hand and pulled her lower lip with all his might, it is said. "Understood," the man said, and walked away as if nothing had happened. Y decided to move out of the apartment afterward.

The Woman Embracing a Grave



At a certain temple in Tokyo, a mysterious woman appears. It is said that this woman clings to graves in the backyard cemetery, regardless of day or night. A student named K, who lives nearby, heard this rumor and headed to the cemetery with a camera in hand. The image captured is this one. According to K, the woman was randomly clinging to graves within the premises, and there was no indication that she was visiting a specific grave.

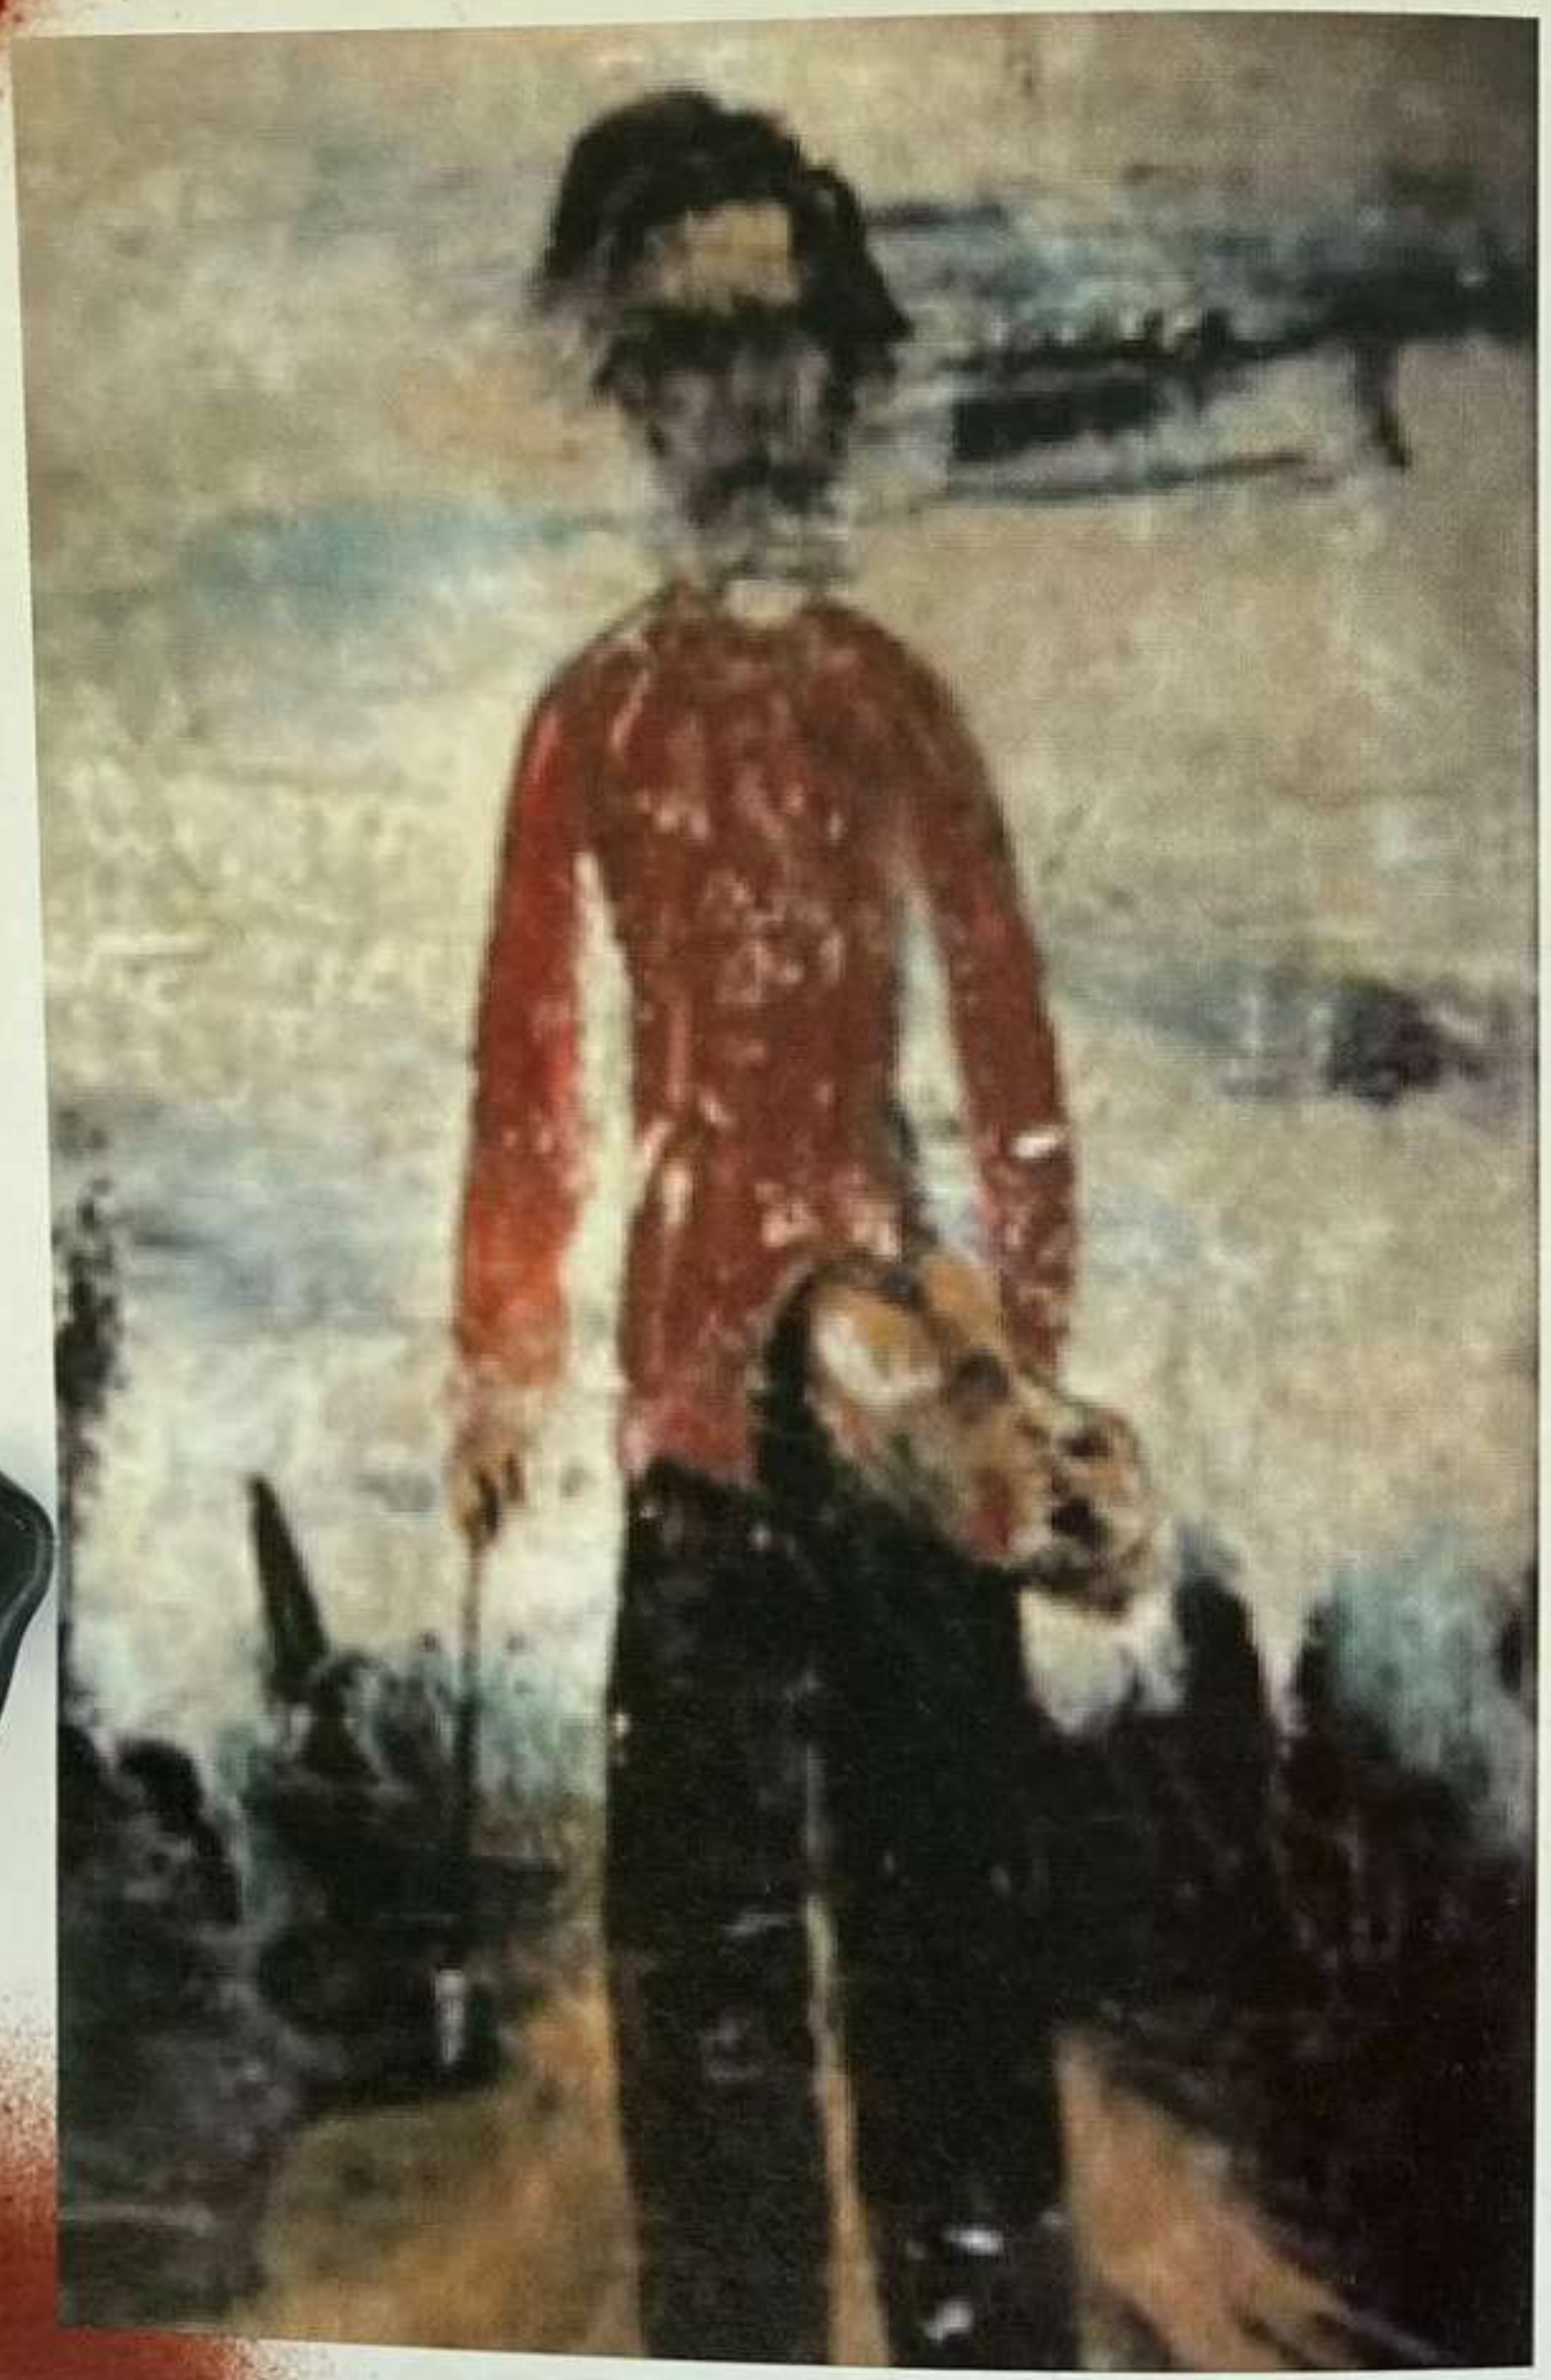
This is an image captured on a mobile phone by an American man. One day, upon returning to his apartment, he noticed that a woman he had once dated was waiting in front of his room, holding a knife in one hand. In a panic, he turned around and dashed away, dodging his ex-girlfriend who was chasing him, and headed to the emergency staircase inside the apartment. He closed the door and safely escaped the danger.

An old man whose wife was murdered drew a painting cursing all young people.



The painting you see was created by an amateur old man living in the UK. The old man had a beloved wife who had been by his side for decades. However, one day in 2004, his wife was killed by a random attacker on the street. The perpetrator was a 13-year-old boy, and it was a simple crime motivated by money. Overwhelmed with grief, the old man declared, "I curse and kill all young people in the world," and after drawing the above painting, he passed away naturally, as if following his wife.

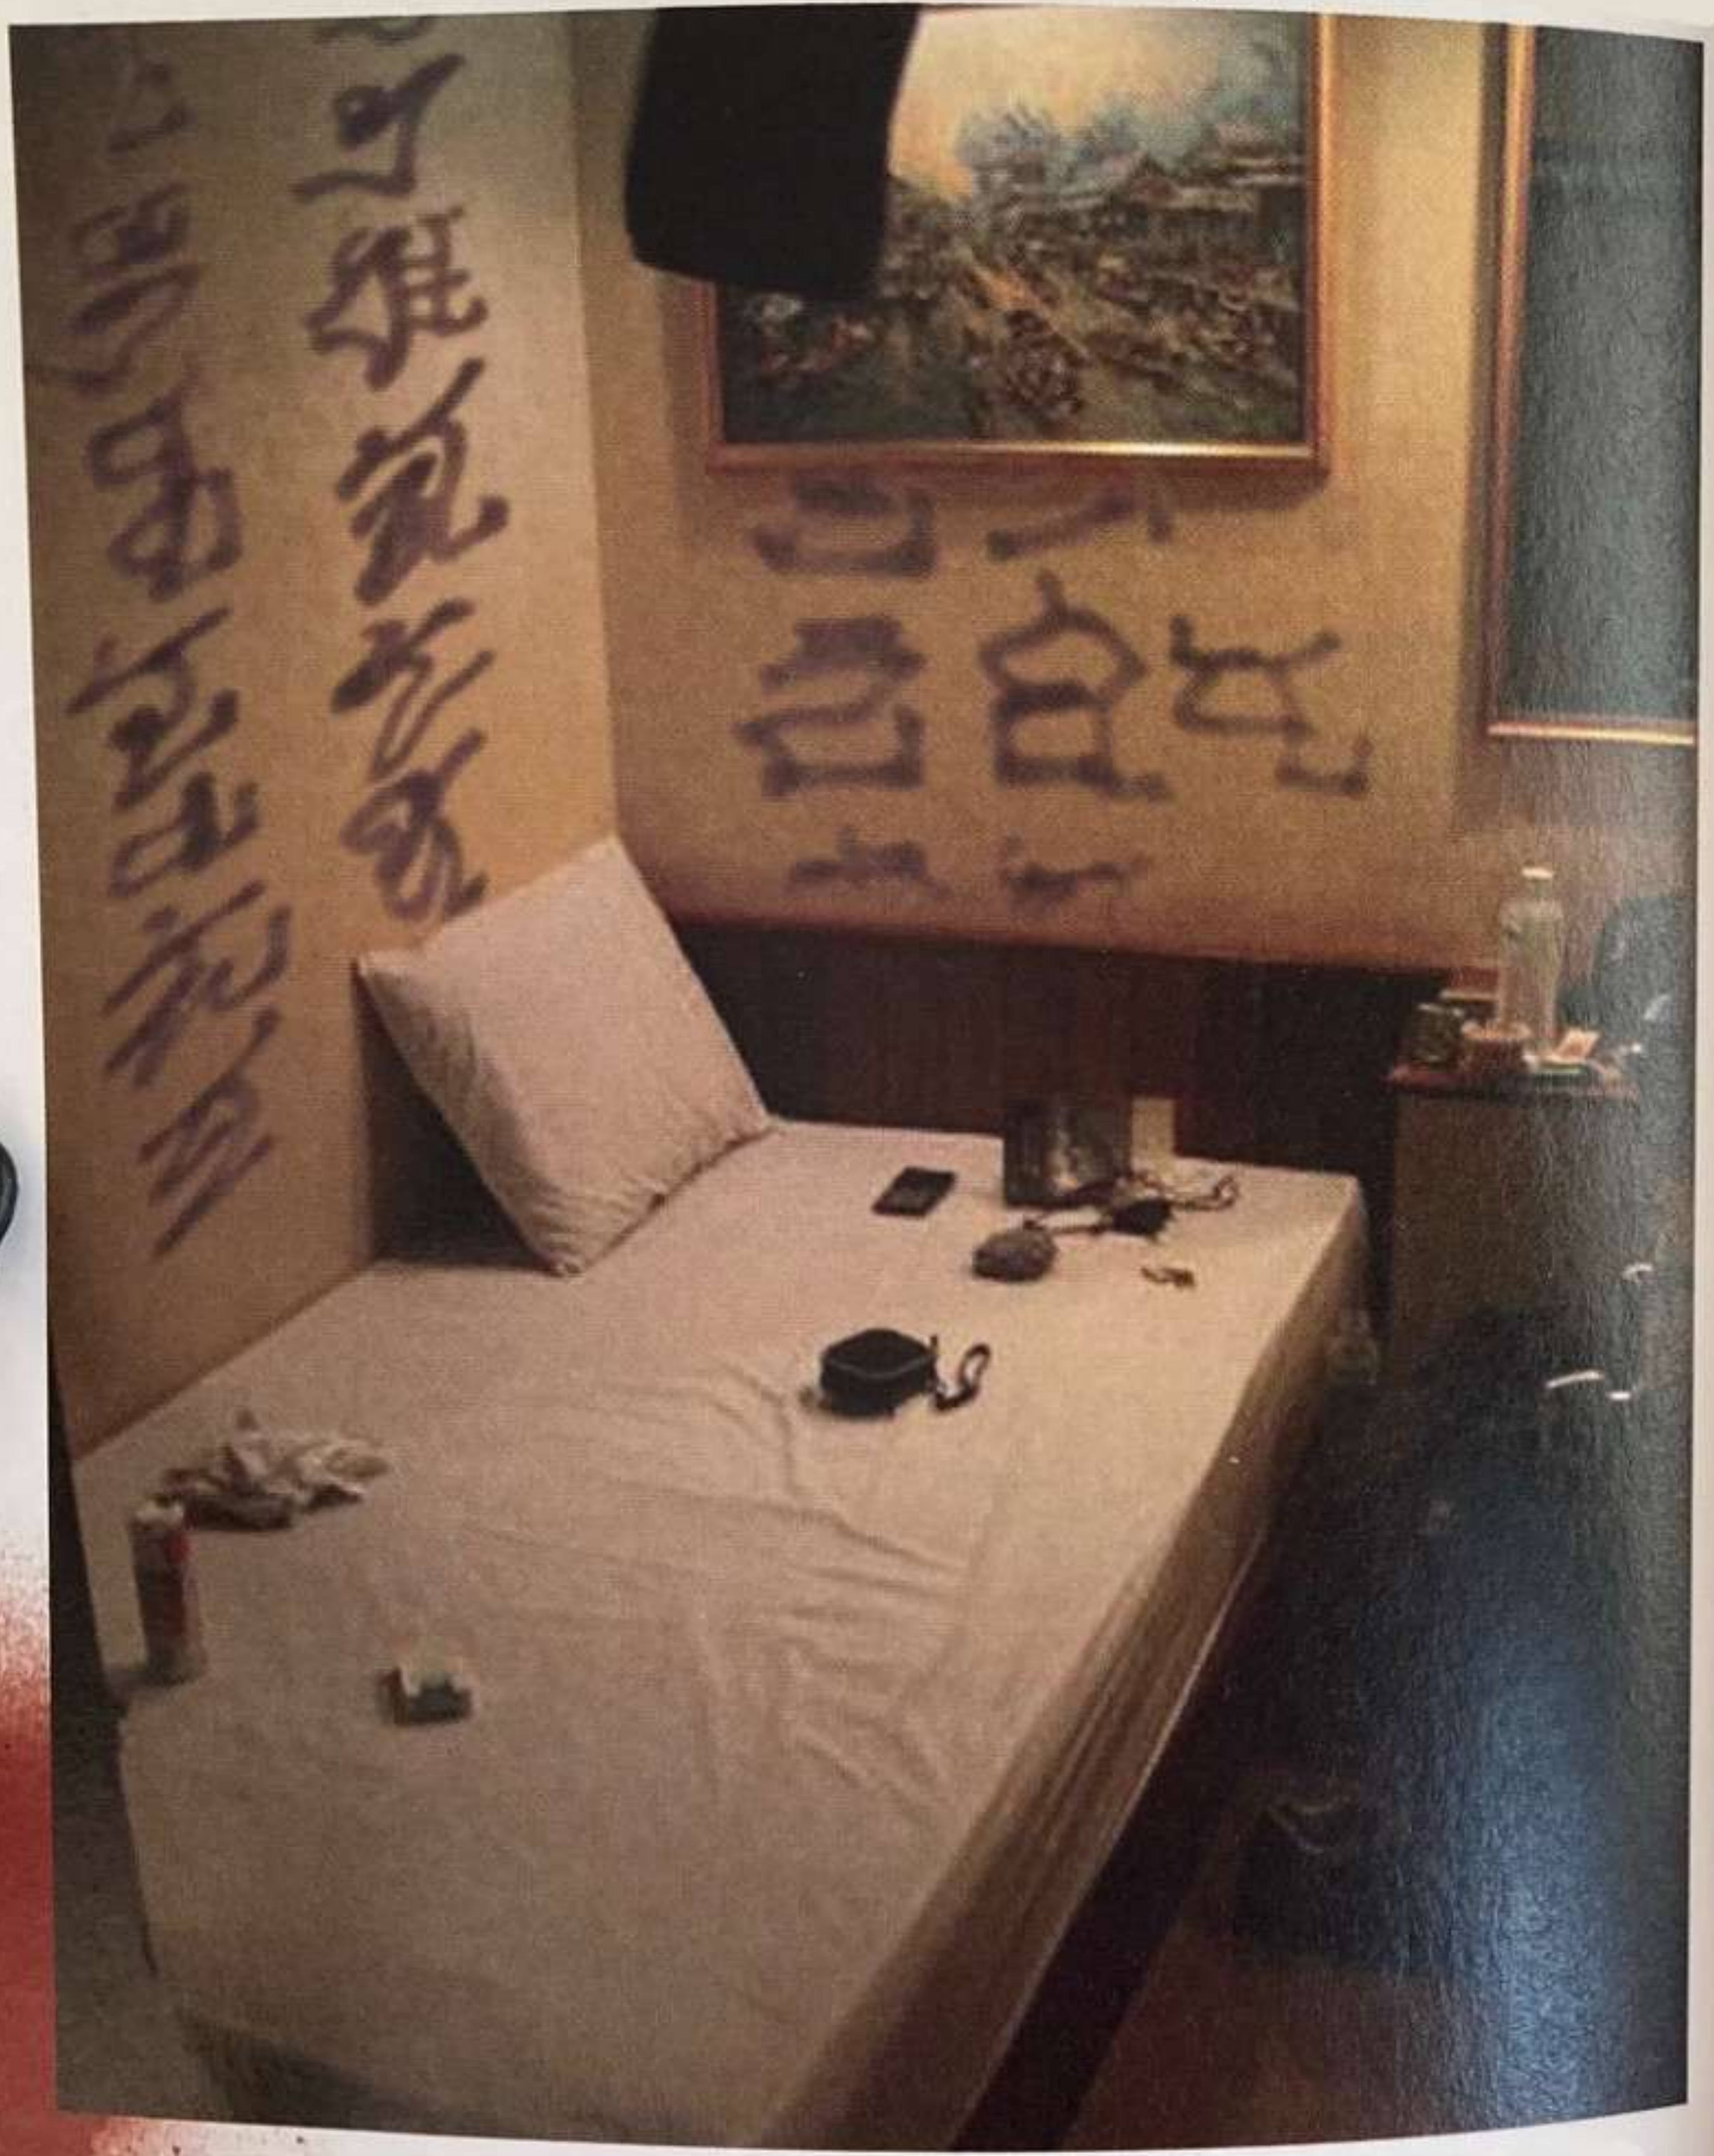
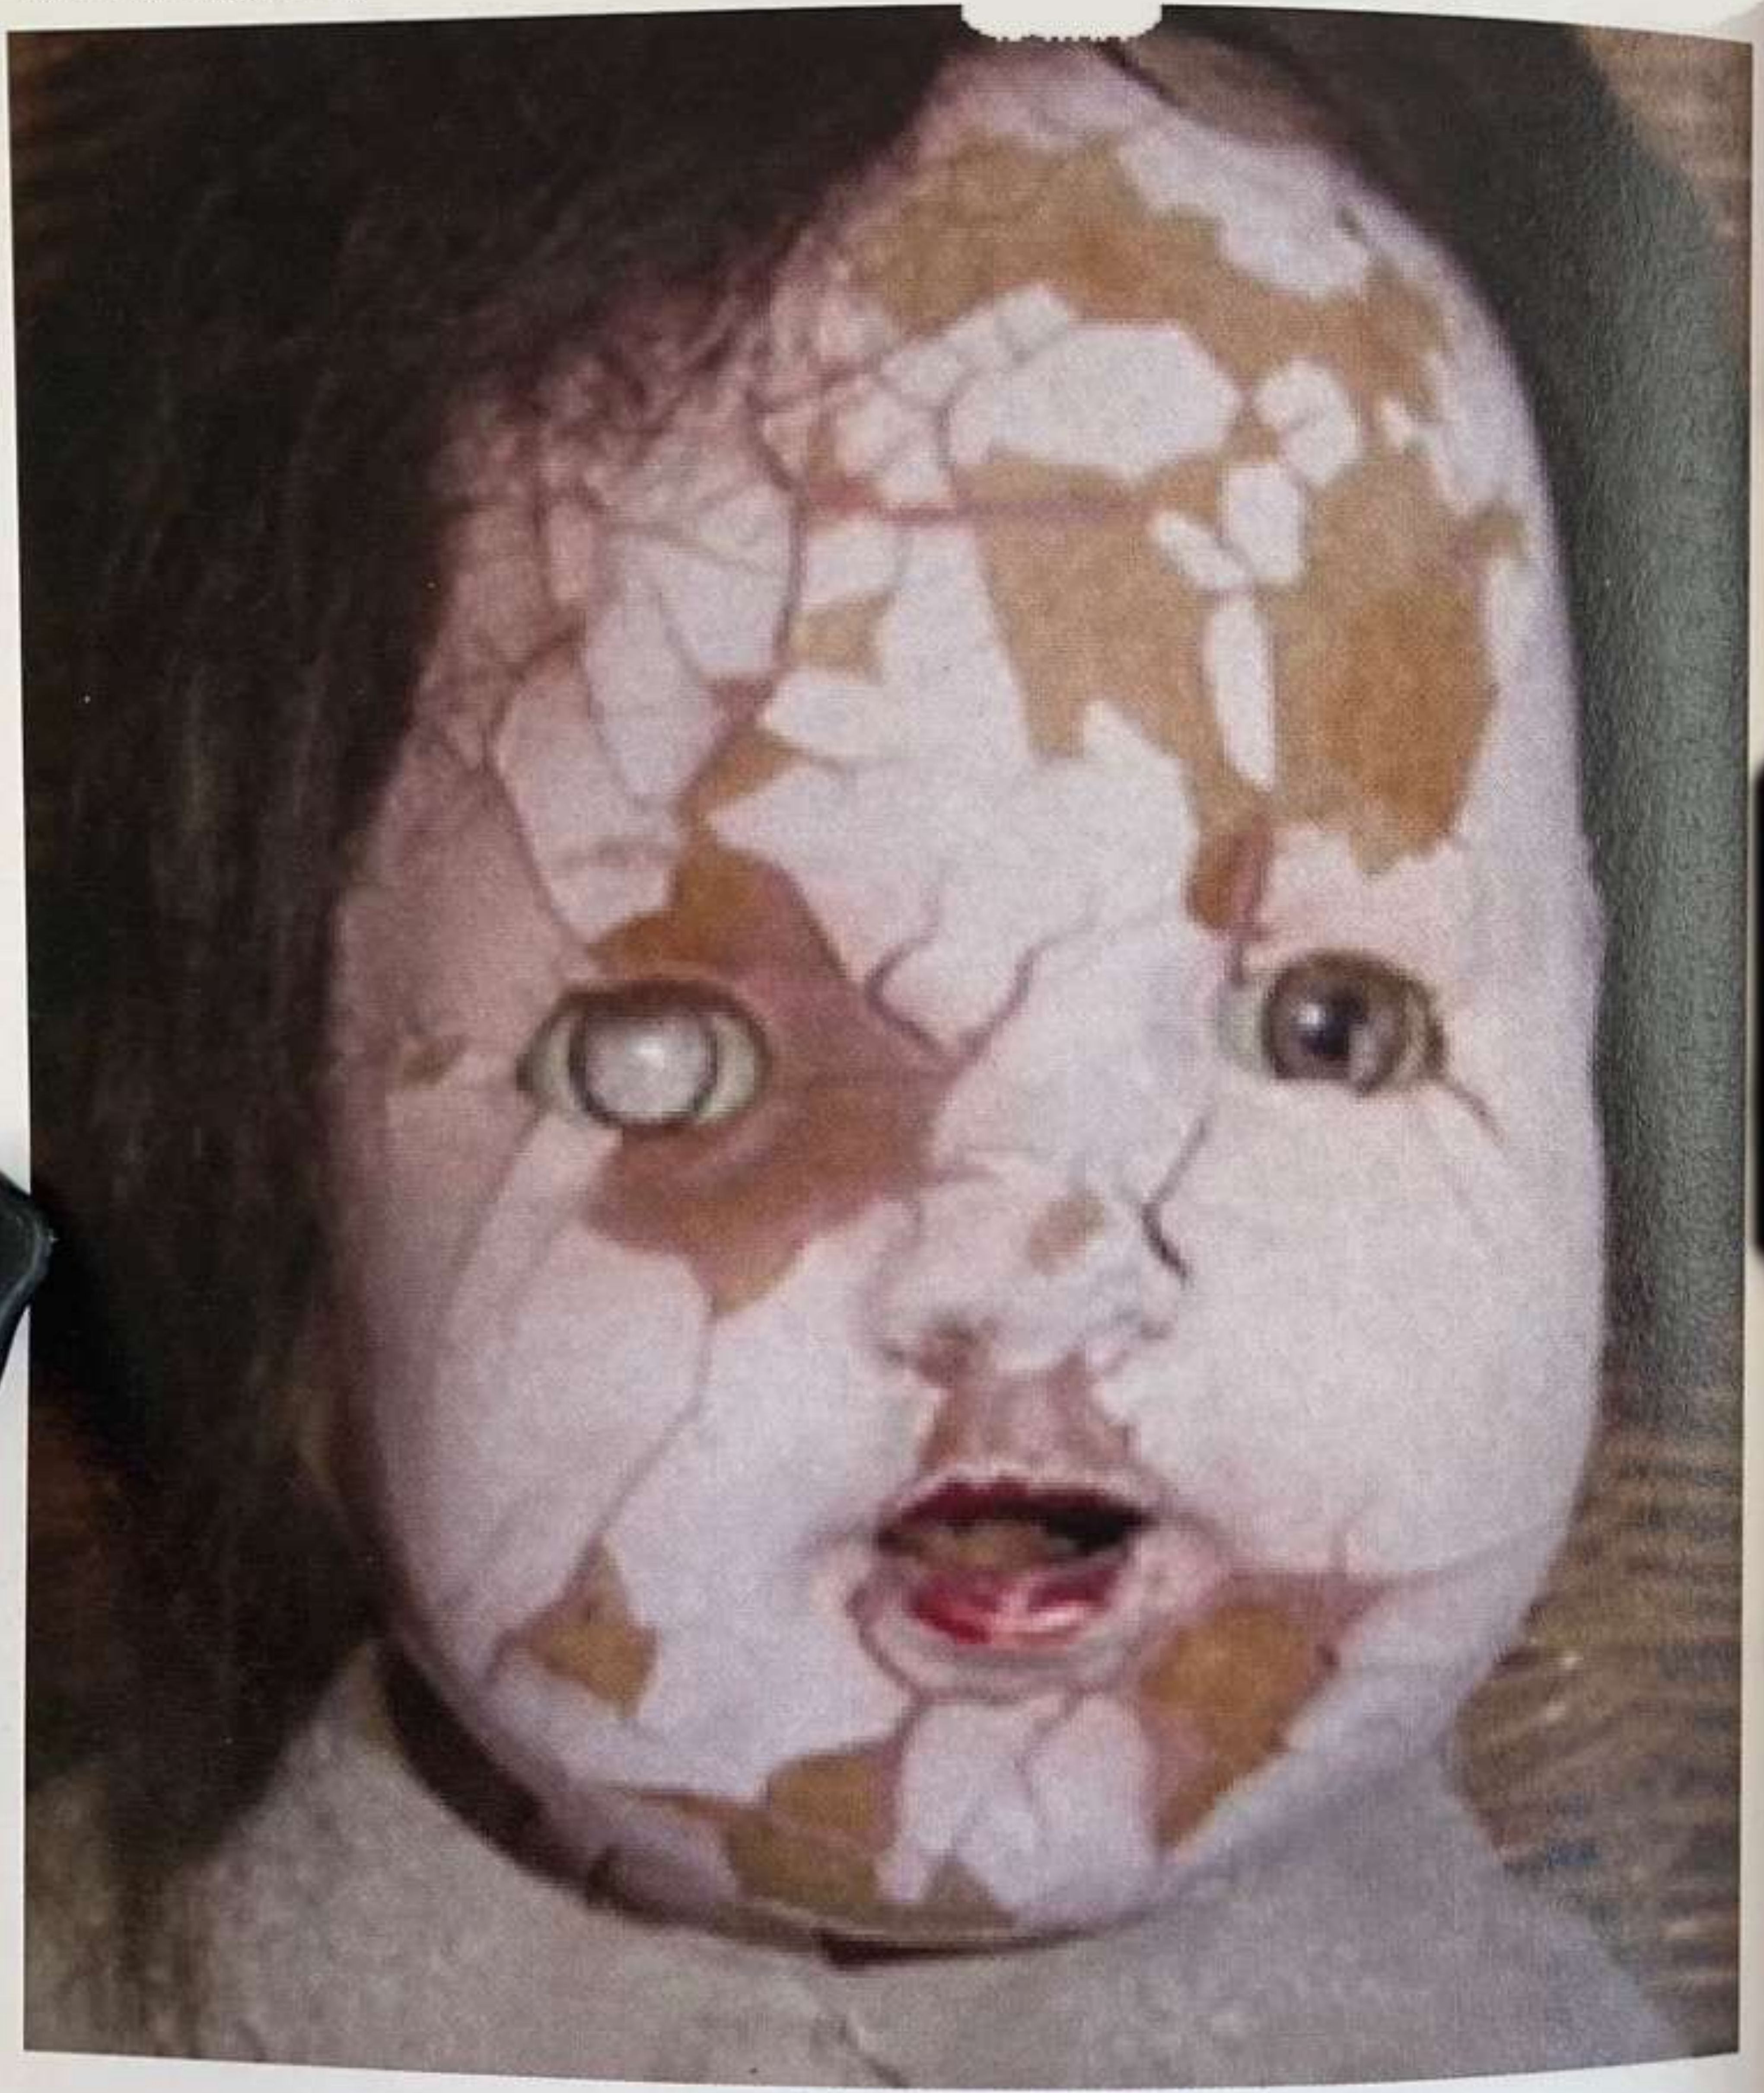
While the women were enjoying a hot pot, the door behind them suddenly opened, and a woman was captured looking toward the camera. According to Mr. S, none of the participants at the home party knew this woman. Additionally, nothing was taken. The front door lock was securely fastened, and it is still unclear how the woman managed to sneak in.

A room where sutras were written on the wall while the owner was away



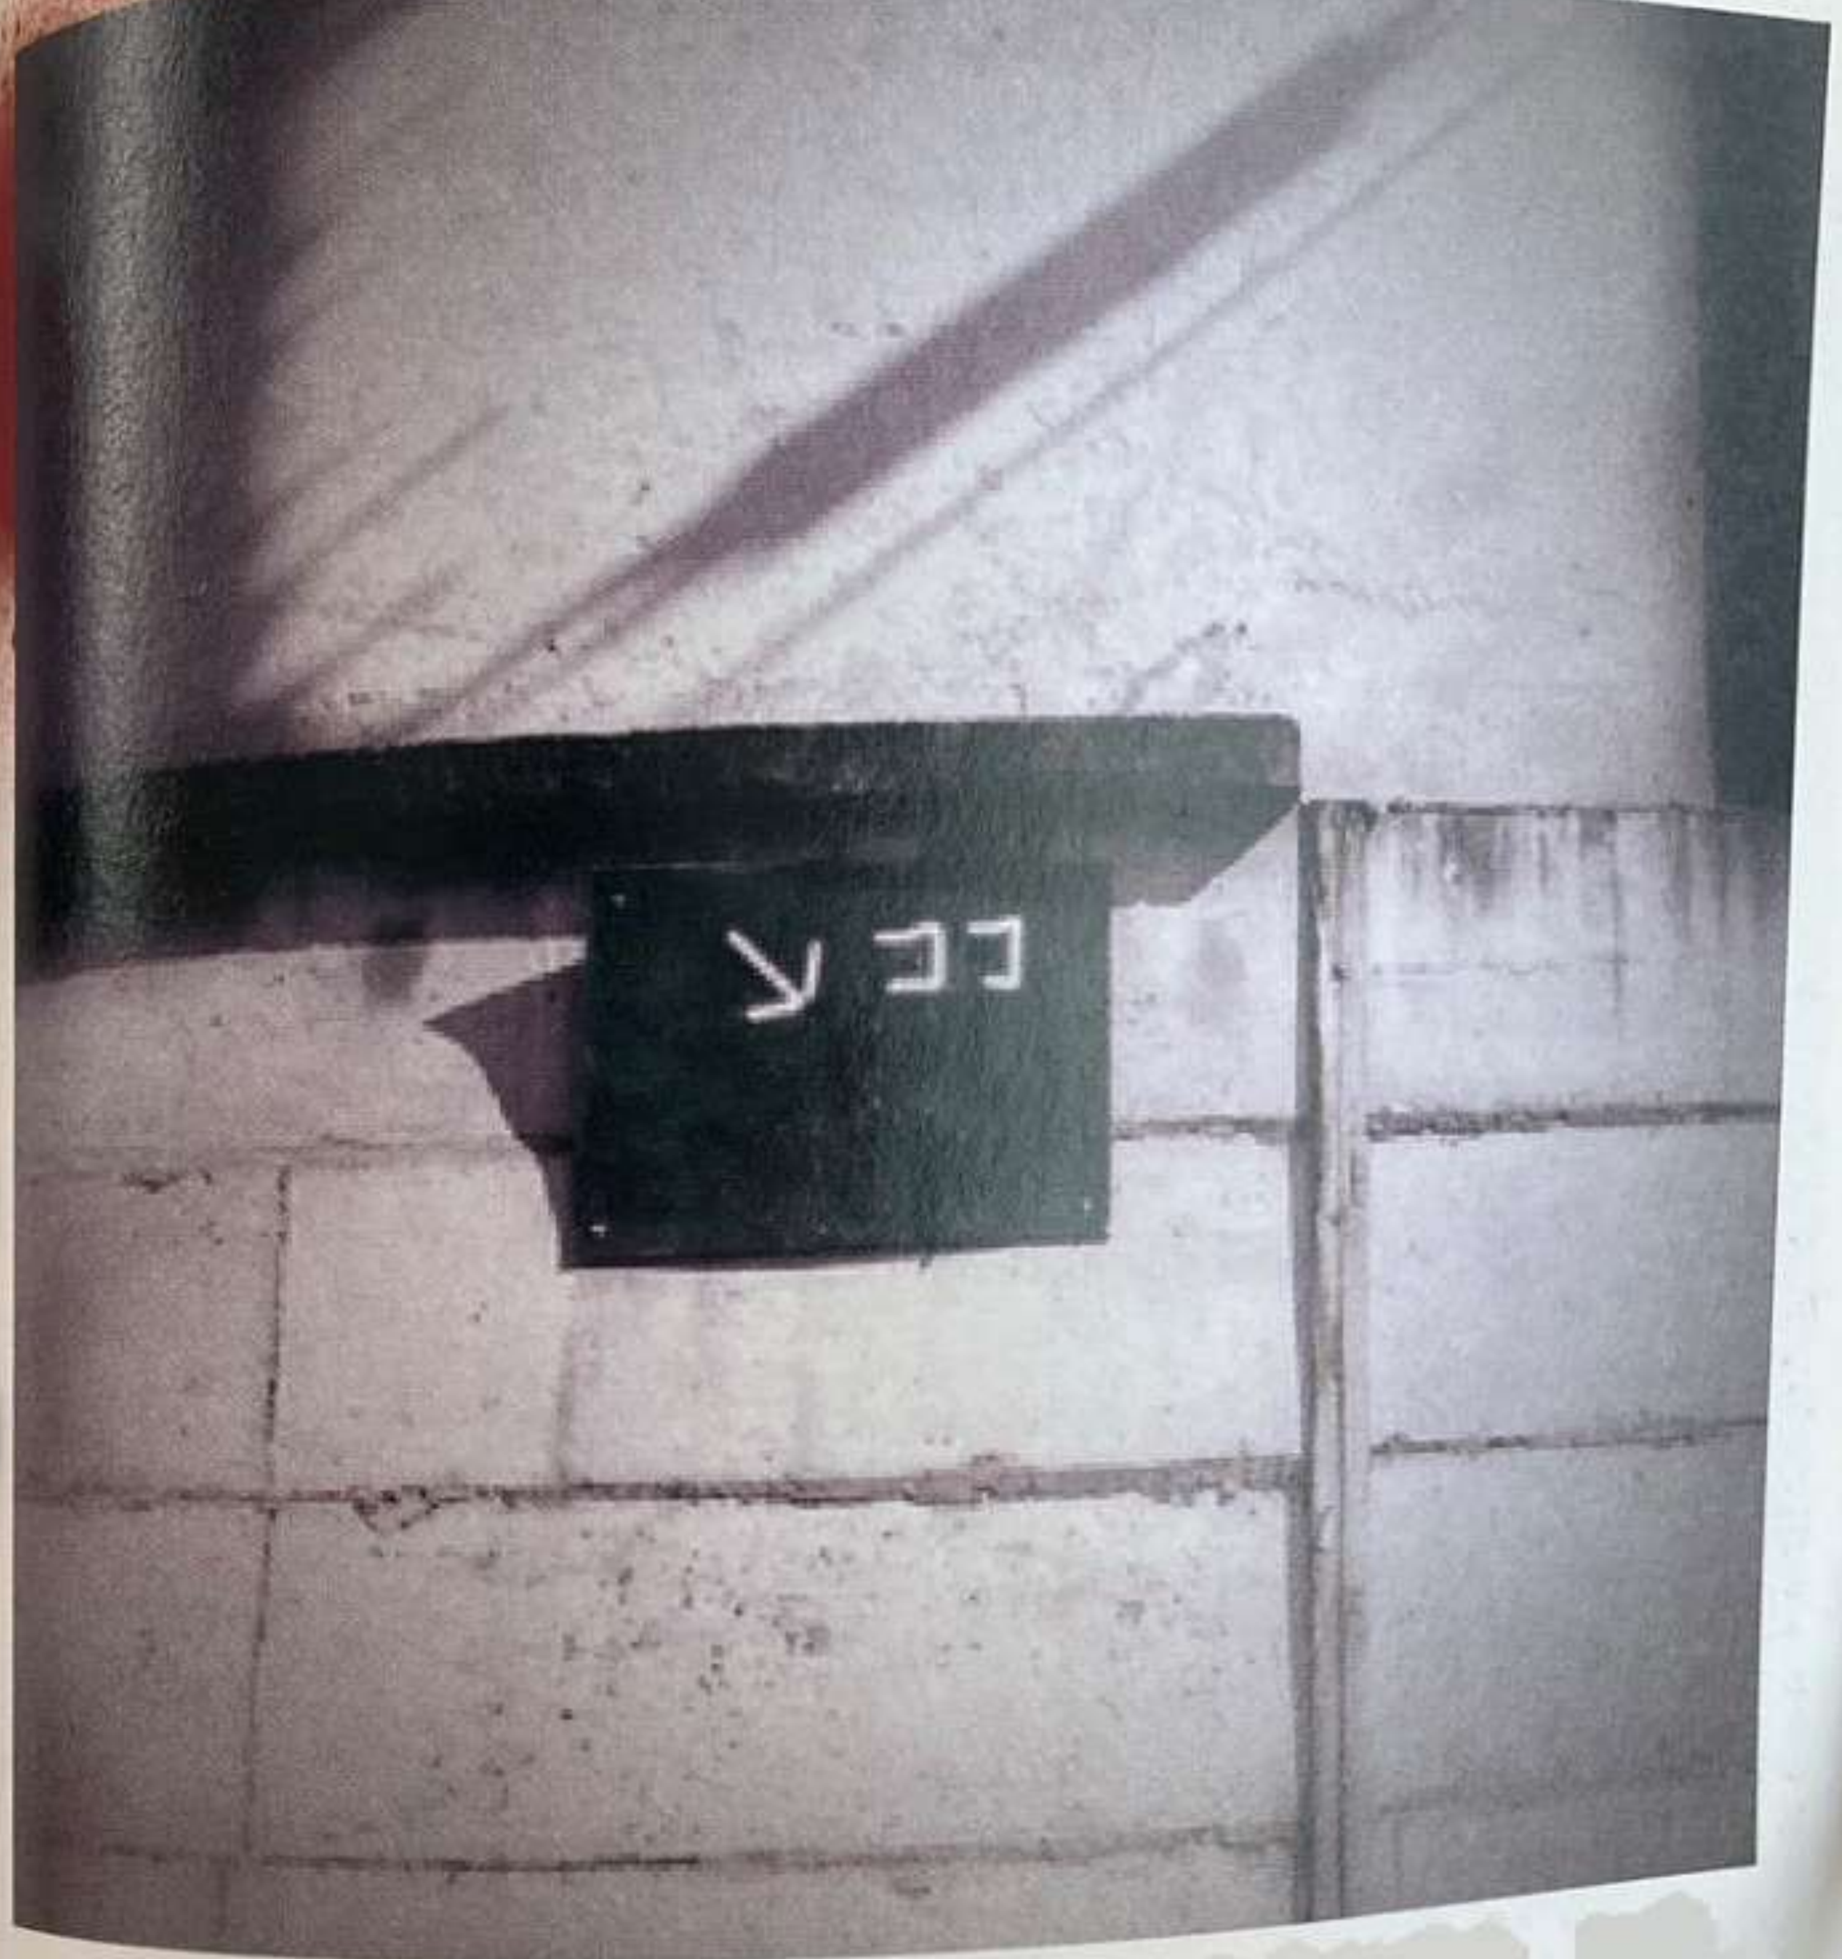
Mr. K, who lives in a cheap apartment in Shizuoka Prefecture, returned to his home in the Tohoku region for about a week last summer. When he came back and entered his house, he was so shocked he nearly collapsed. On the living room wall, something resembling an incomprehensible sutra had been drawn. It seems the intruder entered from the back, but aside from the sutra being written, nothing was missing from the room.

The Doll Loved by a Woman with Severe Neurosis



Around the summer of 2004, a woman appeared in New York, USA, who would approach passersby and say, "Please take care of my baby." Those who accepted her offer were handed the child she held in her arms and gasped in shock. It was a doll with cracked paint on its surface, undeniably eerie. Just as they instinctively recoiled, the woman would suddenly glare and scream, "You killed my child!" before lunging at the passerby holding the doll. Later, the woman was admitted to a psychiatric hospital and diagnosed with severe neurosis. The reason behind her bizarre behavior was never revealed.

The Hole Where a Screwdriver Jumps Out



A green signboard attached to an ordinary asphalt wall. In the center, there is a hole with the white characters "Here" alongside an arrow... This was a wall that existed somewhere in Hokkaido around 1980. At first glance, it gives off a humorous impression, but in reality, a terrifying incident is associated with this wall. Lured by the instruction "Here," if one dared to peek into the hole, a man hiding behind the wall would thrust a screwdriver from the depths of the cavity. Fortunately, the first victim quickly pulled back, resulting in no injuries, and the perpetrator was arrested. The culprit was a pure thrill-seeker, stating only that he "just wanted to poke someone's eye out." Due to the impactful nature of the incident, it has been passed down online as a "scary story I experienced" and has become somewhat of an urban legend.

The true identity of the one who attacks women late at night is...

In 2006, Linda (24 years old), who worked for a certain IT company in California, USA, was found one day lying on the company floor covered in blood. According to Linda, she was attacked by a man with a knife when she tried to leave the company late at night. The police investigation was expected to be difficult. That night, there were no signs of an intruder in the company, and no physical evidence was found at all. However, the next day, when the police reviewed the surveillance camera footage, they witnessed a puzzling scene. The tape recorded Linda running around alone and writhing on the floor by herself. In the end, the case was handled as "no perpetrator," and Linda was sent to a psychiatric hospital. The doctor's evaluation has not yet been released.

Do you know that on late-night shopping programs, the best-selling items that girls buy are now recruiting men? It's already set up, but from now on, hello. I'm Ayaka Houta, and it's sudden. I'm Suda. I run a dating site, but there are no dating sites that you can't use even if you access them, so what should I do? Sorry about that. There's no such thing as a clever trick, and I thought about introducing "Healing and Raising." It's not an apology, but I thought about various things there, and the secret to getting involved with girls is to teach them. The conclusion I came to was, "Make the male-to-female registration ratio 50:50!" There's a reason deeper than the sea for that. When you look at girls' profiles, first of all, everyone is surprised that they use dating sites. Isn't that amazing? That way, both men and women can freely choose their partners, and one person won't receive too many emails. Can you listen for a bit? Actually, everyone really hopes for a man who will do "good things" for them in a comfortable way. I also used to use "dating sites" just like everyone else, and I secretly wanted to know the reason, so I quietly listened in. Then, 80% of the girls using dating sites are doing so for "play purposes." Do you think that's a lie? But this was true for me. Although I am in a position to produce this time, I am actually making full use of it (laughs). Even if you can't choose a slow-paced man, it's a shame to feel bad for the men who sent emails, and I was getting fed up. One day, when this continued, I casually consulted with my AV actress friends. Then, they all agreed! It seems like the vibration feels good, and don't you think Rodeo Boy is super sexy? But the trouble is, to balance the genders, we have to limit new users. Everyone uses it differently! It was really exciting. So, "supporting encounters," Ayaka's site, is for local OLs, and in Ayaka's case, she usually works in AV, but that's her job. She wants to date and have fun with men normally, right? The girls around her also agree with Ayaka's opinion, and that's why Ayaka, who started it, decided to take responsibility and run a dating site. That was the trigger.

The Boy Living in the Attic

▲Climbing up to the attic

▲As he moved further inside

This is a video taken by a man living in Tokyo, who filmed his attic. As the camera moved deeper and approached a large horizontal beam, the figure of a pale-skinned boy appeared in the corner. According to the man, strange noises had been coming from the attic for several months. It is unclear how long the boy had been in the attic or how he got there. Additionally, when this footage was recorded, the man was so startled that he fled, and by the time he returned to the attic, the boy had already disappeared.

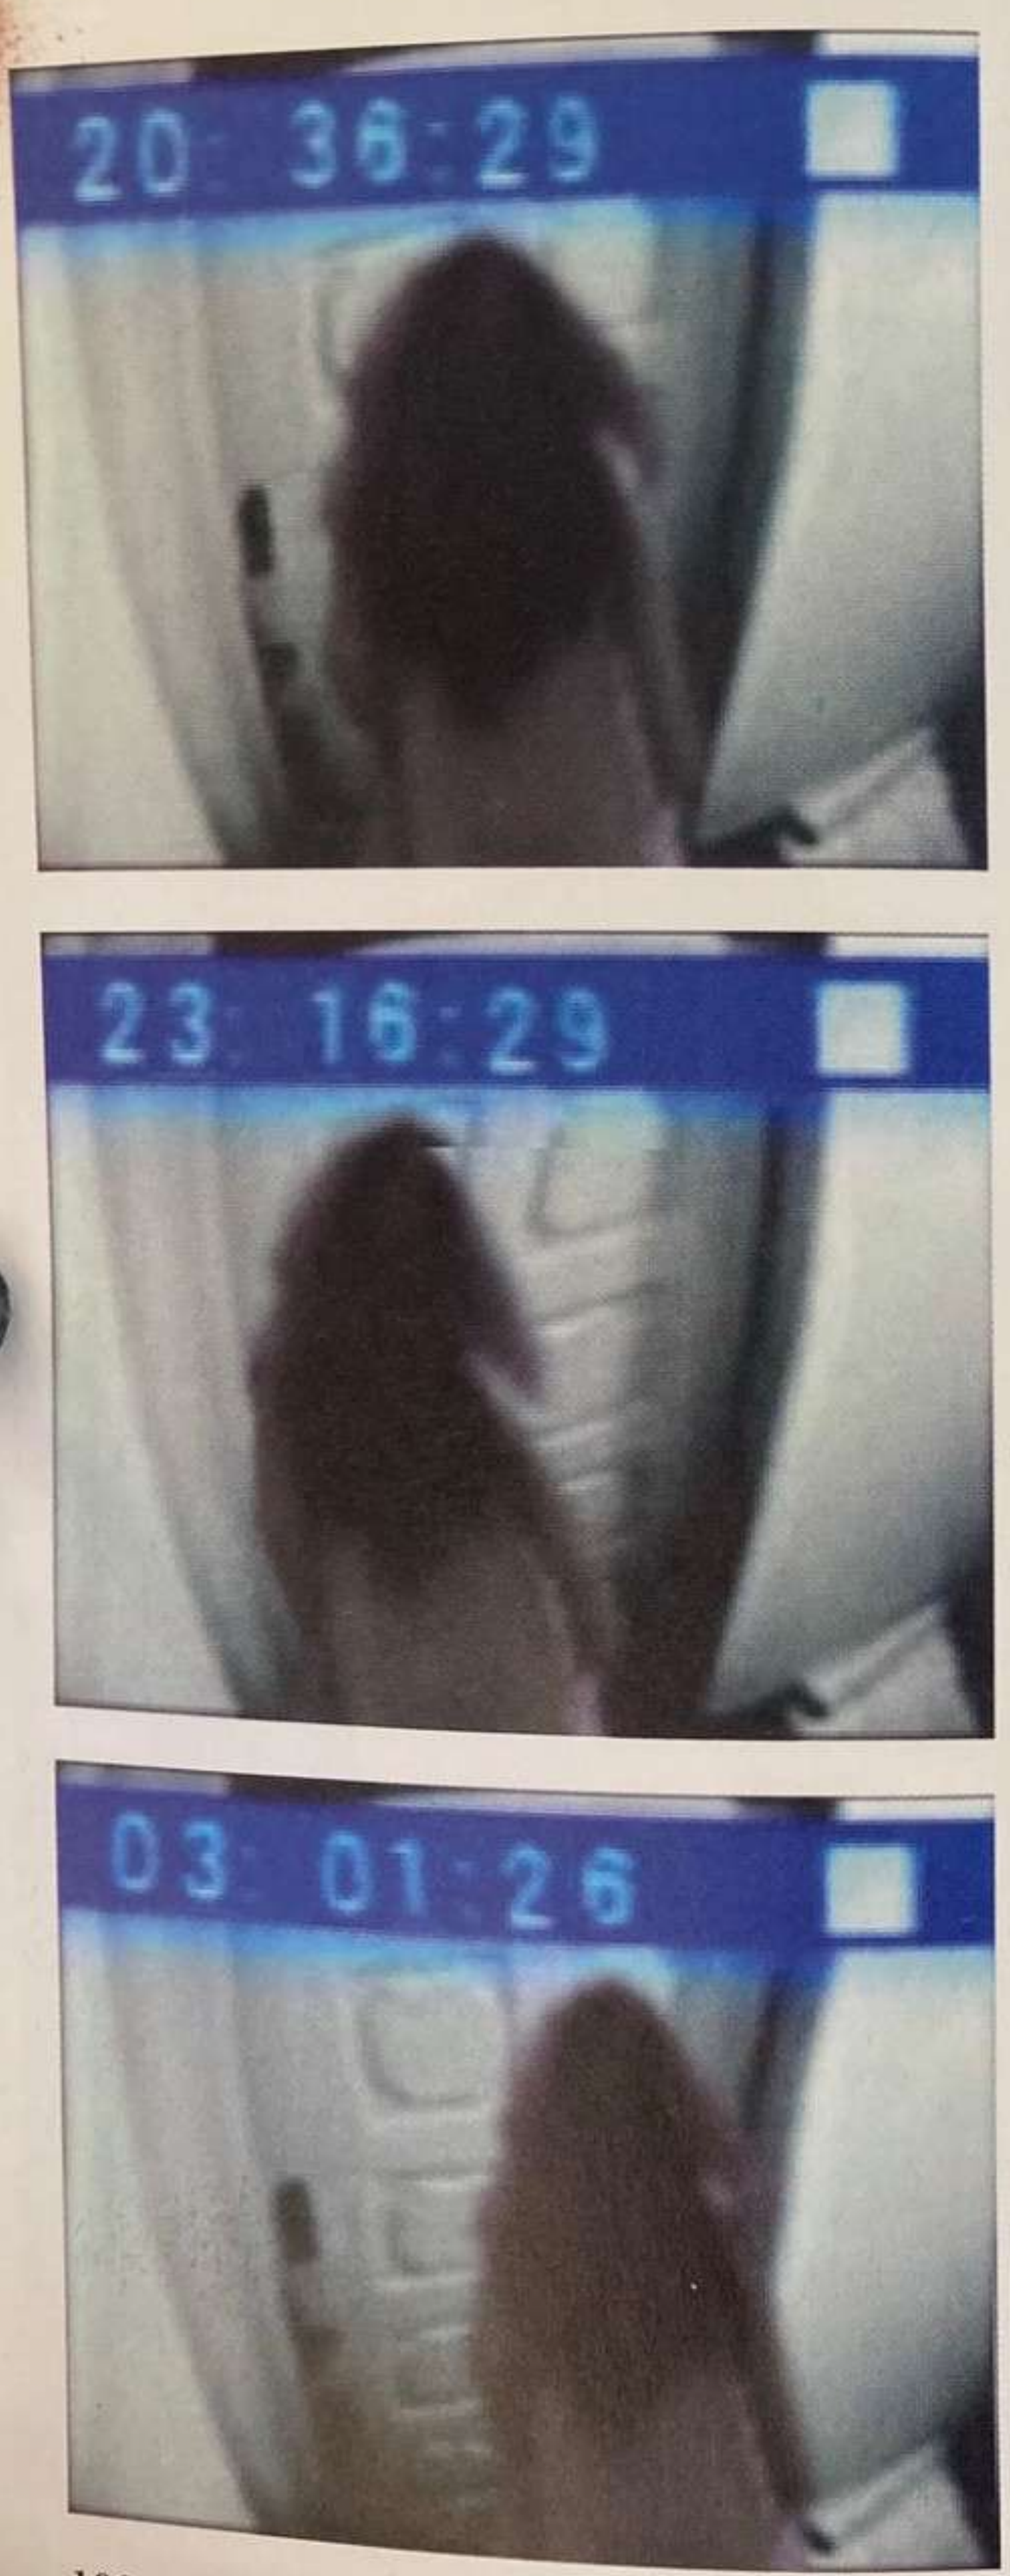
The Usual Woman



Mr. K (male, 26 years old), who lives in S Prefecture, is rarely home at night due to his night shift work. However, after neighbors mentioned "often seeing a woman in front of Mr. K's room," he decided to place a webcam in front of his door. The image you see was captured. The woman always appears at exactly 8 p. m., stands idly in front of the door for about 7 hours, and then disappears. She only appears on weekdays, and the timing is always precisely the same. Mr. K has no recollection of this woman at all and plans to move soon.

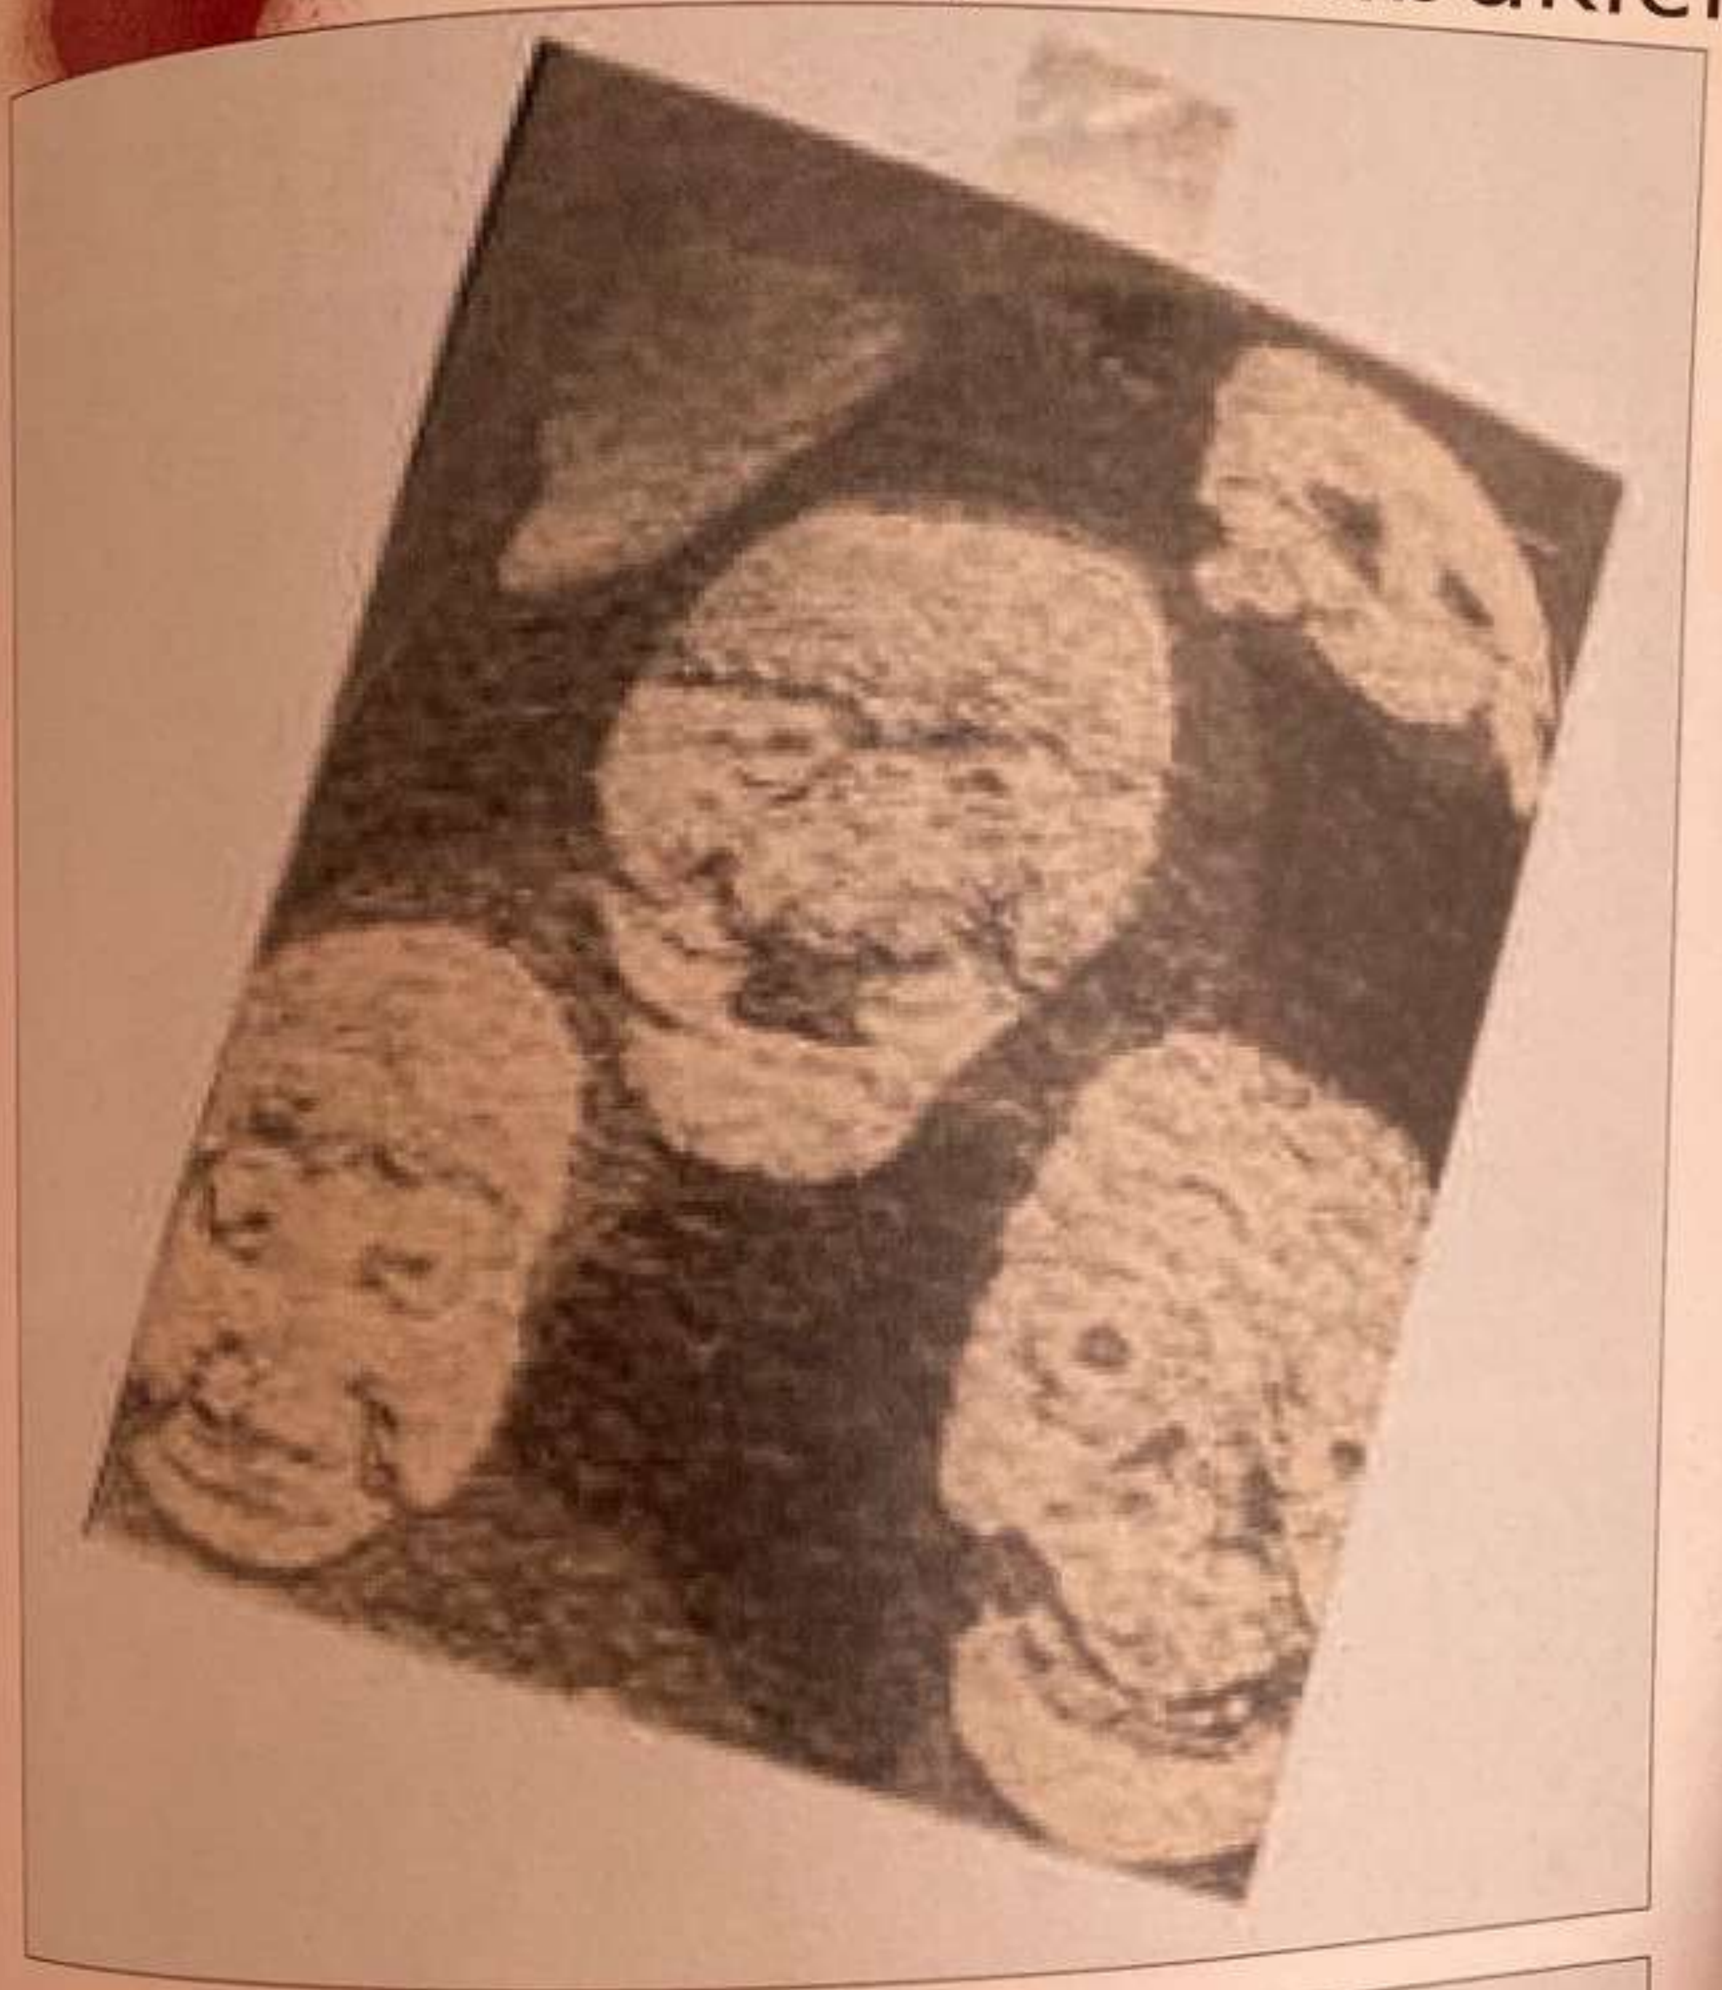
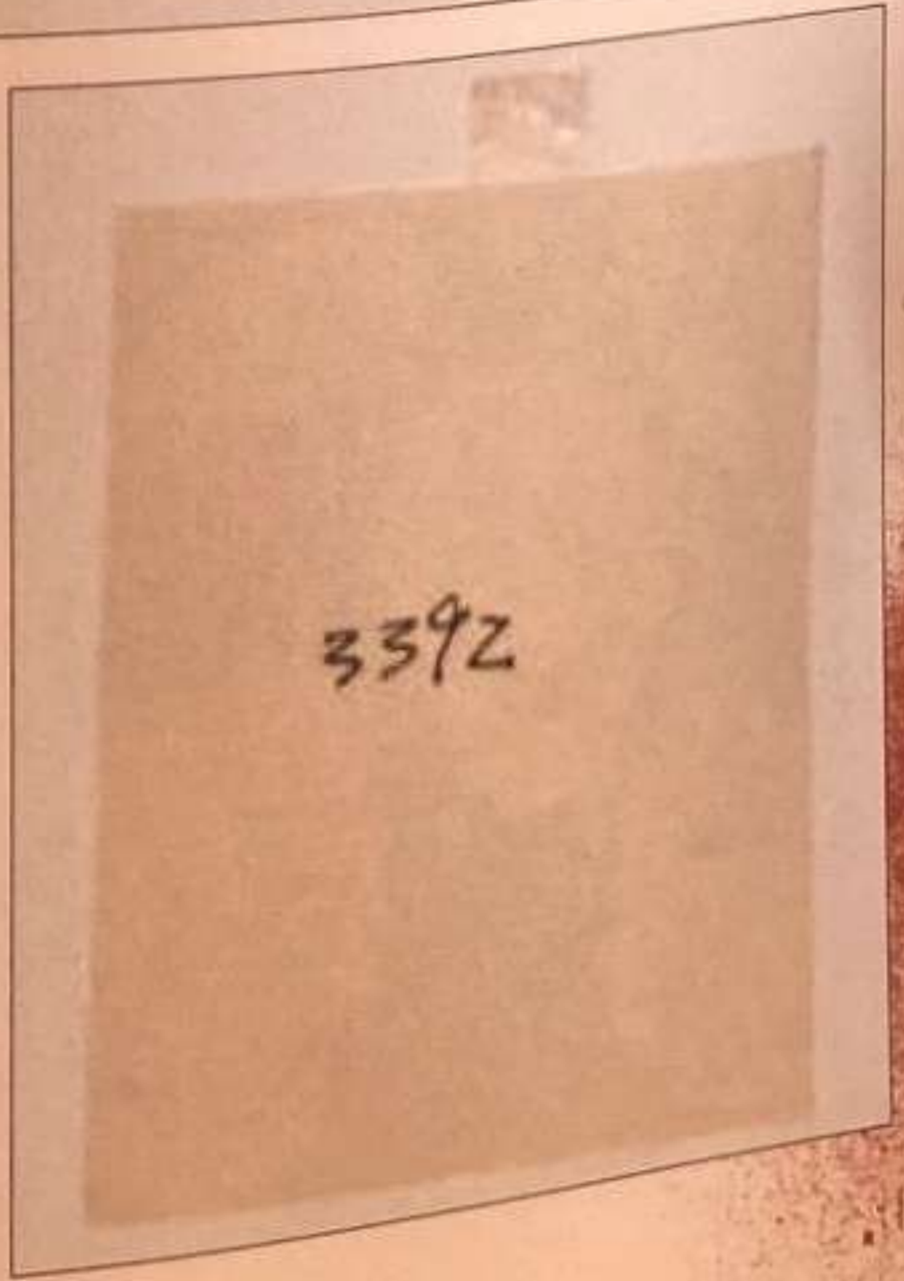
When it comes to a man under a woman's bed... it sounds like a typical urban legend, but an incident that truly embodies this occurred in Washington, USA. The man's name is Carlo Castellanos. While hospitalized due to illness, he became infatuated with a nurse at the hospital, secretly made a duplicate key, and broke into her home. He set up a video camera deep inside the closet and continued hiding under the bed for two days. Fortunately, the homeowner noticed something amiss and immediately contacted the police, so the woman was unharmed.

The Mystery of Shinjuku·Kabukicho

Mysterious Posted Notice





In Shinjuku's Kabukicho, there was a period when mysterious flyers were plastered in large quantities on utility poles and building walls. The front featured an illustration of a group wearing enigmatic masks, while the back bore only the number "3392." Was it a new advertising strategy, or perhaps some kind of religious ritual? The truth remains unknown.

Late at night, children in the ruins.

A man secretly entered a chemical plant facility deep in the mountains, now abandoned, for a test of courage. Despite it being late at night, footage captured children entering the facility. Afterward, the cameraman fled, so it remains unknown what the children were doing in such a place.

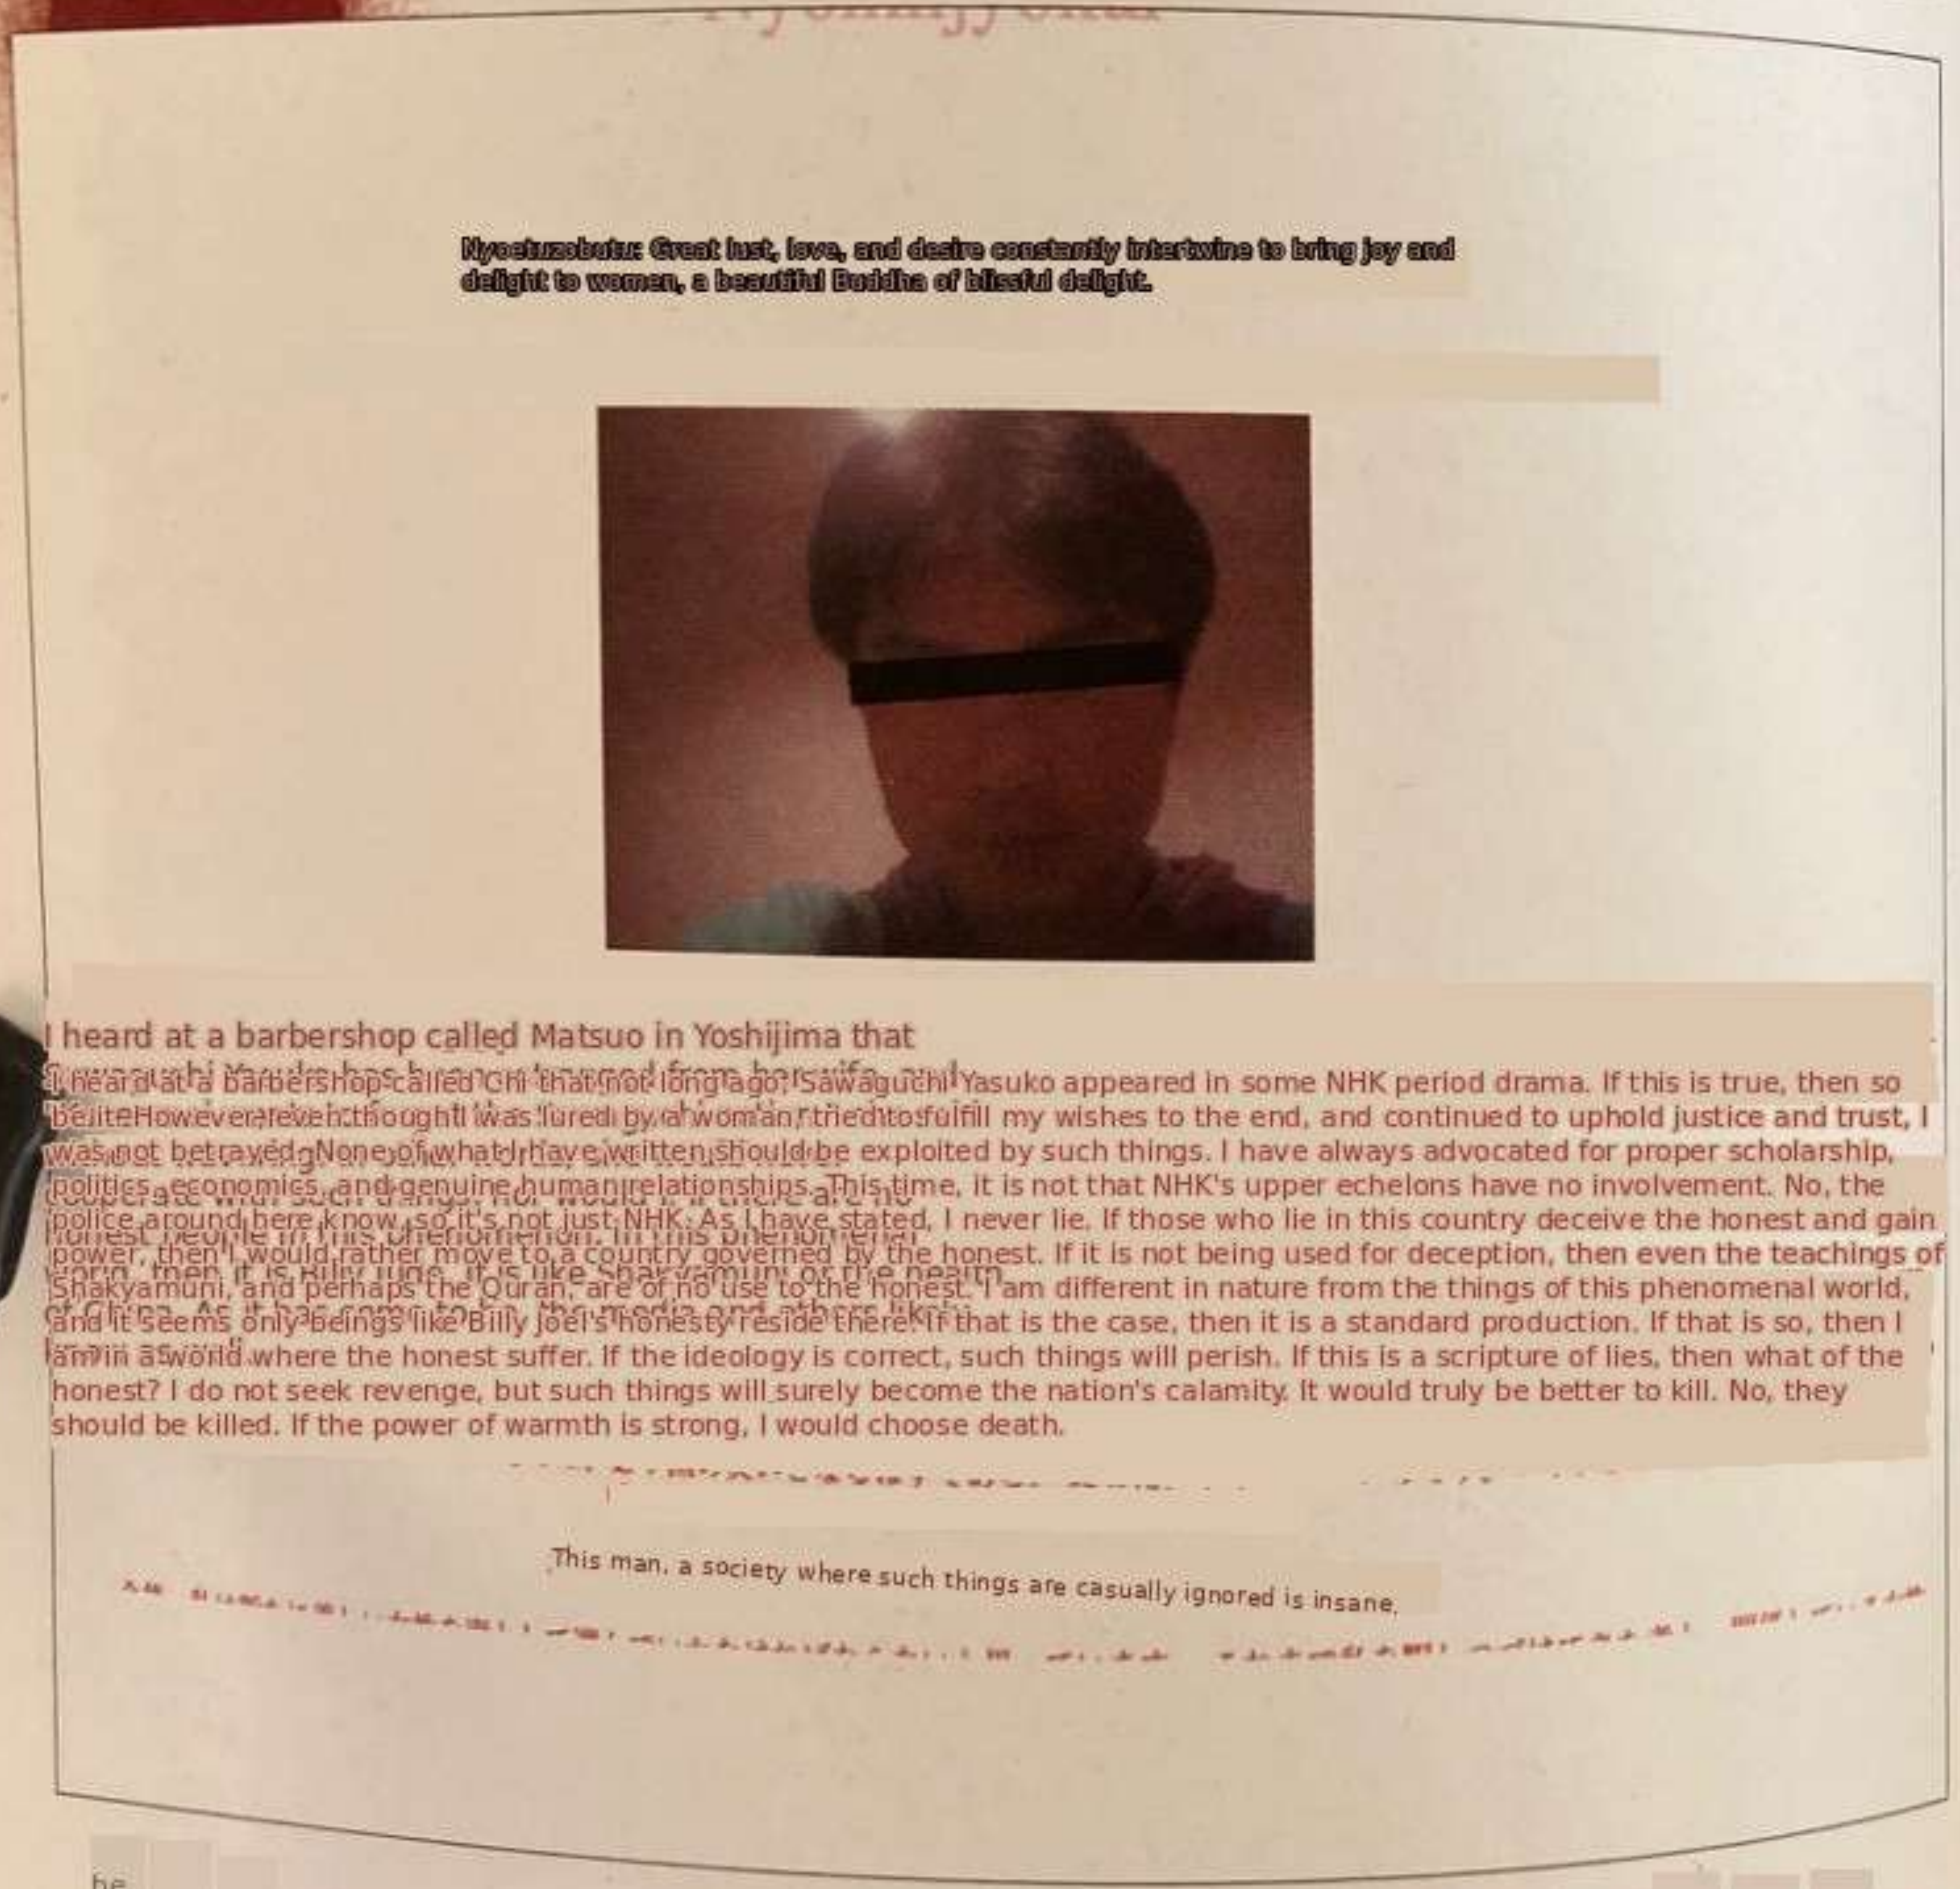
Release Sawaguchi Yasuko from confinement quickly



Nyoetuzobutu: Great lust, love, and desire constantly intertwine to bring joy and delight to women, a beautiful Buddha of blissful delight.

I heard at a barbershop called Matsuo in Yoshijima that

I heard at a barbershop called Chi that not long ago, Sawaguchi Yasuko appeared in some NHK period drama. If this is true, then so be it. However, even though I was lured by a woman, I tried to fulfill my wishes to the end, and continued to uphold justice and trust, I was not betrayed. None of what I have written should be exploited by such things. I have always advocated for proper scholarship, politics, economics, and genuine human relationships. This time, it is not that NHK's upper echelons have no involvement. No, the police around here know, so it's not just NHK. As I have stated, I never lie. If those who lie in this country deceive the honest and gain power, then I would rather move to a country governed by the honest. If it is not being used for deception, then even the teachings of Shakyamuni, and perhaps the Quran, are of no use to the honest. I am different in nature from the things of this phenomenal world, and it seems only beings like Billy Joel's honesty reside there. If that is the case, then it is a standard production. If that is so, then I am in a world where the honest suffer. If the ideology is correct, such things will perish. If this is a scripture of lies, then what of the honest? I do not seek revenge, but such things will surely become the nation's calamity. It would truly be better to kill. No, they should be killed. If the power of warmth is strong, I would choose death.

This man, a society where such things are casually ignored is insane.

Initially, he claimed to have arbitrarily chosen Yasuko Sawaguchi as "his wife," but soon began insisting that "NHK is confining Yasuko Sawaguchi" and started calling for her release. However, when Yasuko Sawaguchi later appeared in an NHK historical drama, he began saying he had been "betrayed," and expressed his anger in confusing ways, such as: "If there are no honest people in this phenomenal world, then even the teachings of Buddha, and probably the Quran, are of no use to honest people and are being used for deception. And it's probably a place where only shit like Billy Joel's honesty lives." The website eventually faded away naturally. By the way, the personal photo featured at the top was of Ken Ishiguro.

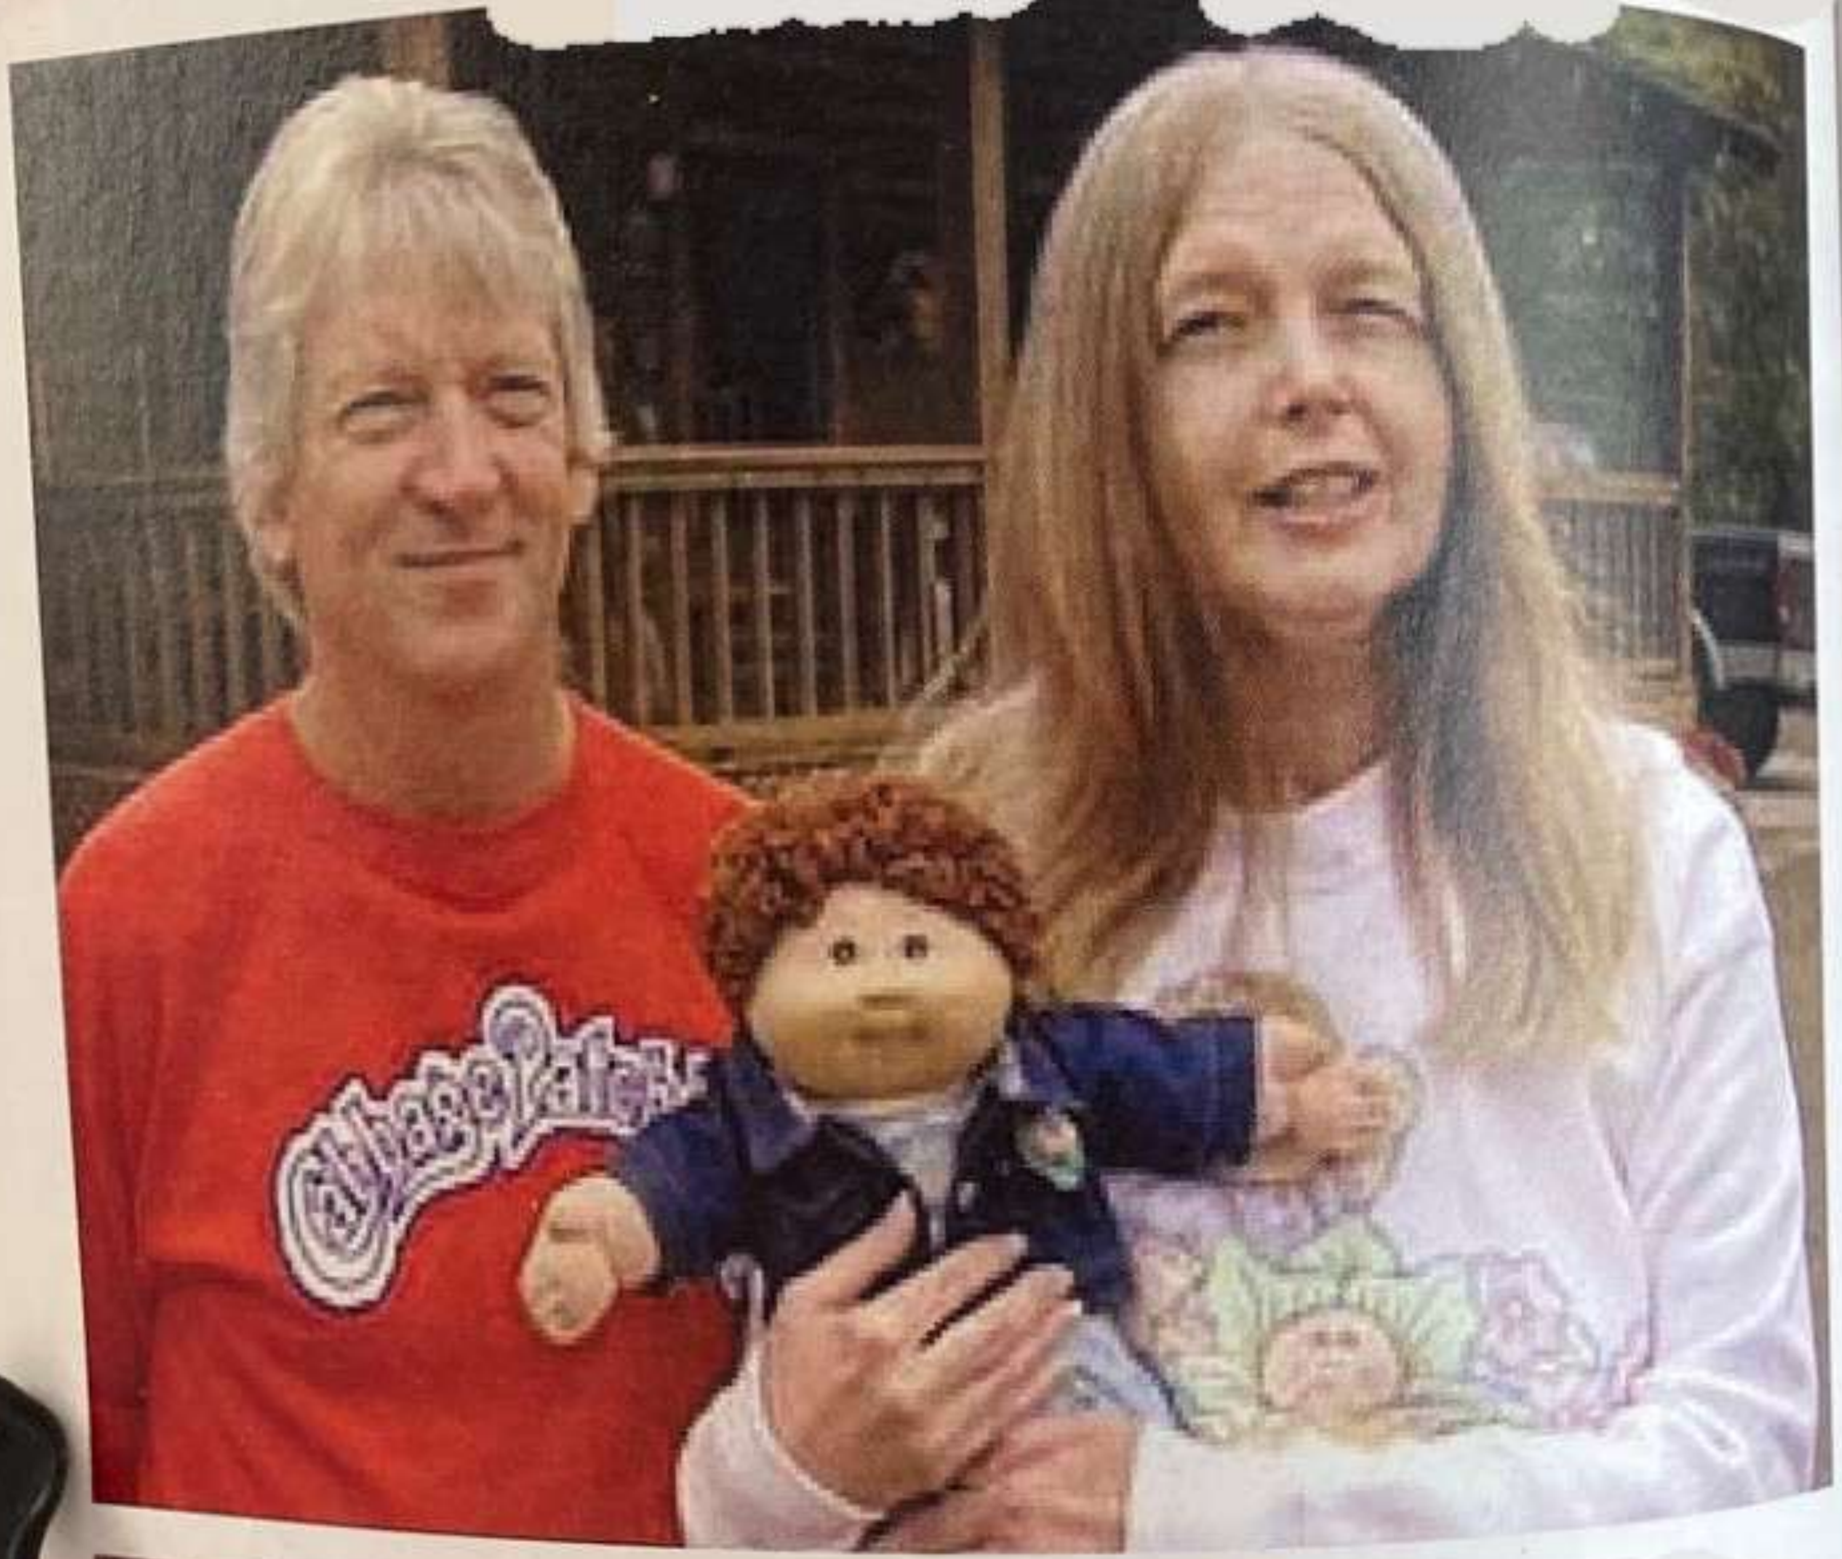
▲A scene of gun training was also uploaded

These are the warning images uploaded online by the perpetrator of a shooting spree that occurred in Finland in 2007 before the crime. The incident took place at Jokela High School, north of Helsinki. A male student (18 years old) attending the school fired a gun at students during class. After killing 8 people, he committed suicide. Before the crime, the male student uploaded a file titled "Jokela High School Massacre" to the video-sharing site "YouTube." He stated, "I am prepared to fight and die for a cause. As one of the chosen, I will eliminate the unqualified," and had forewarned of the massacre at the high school.

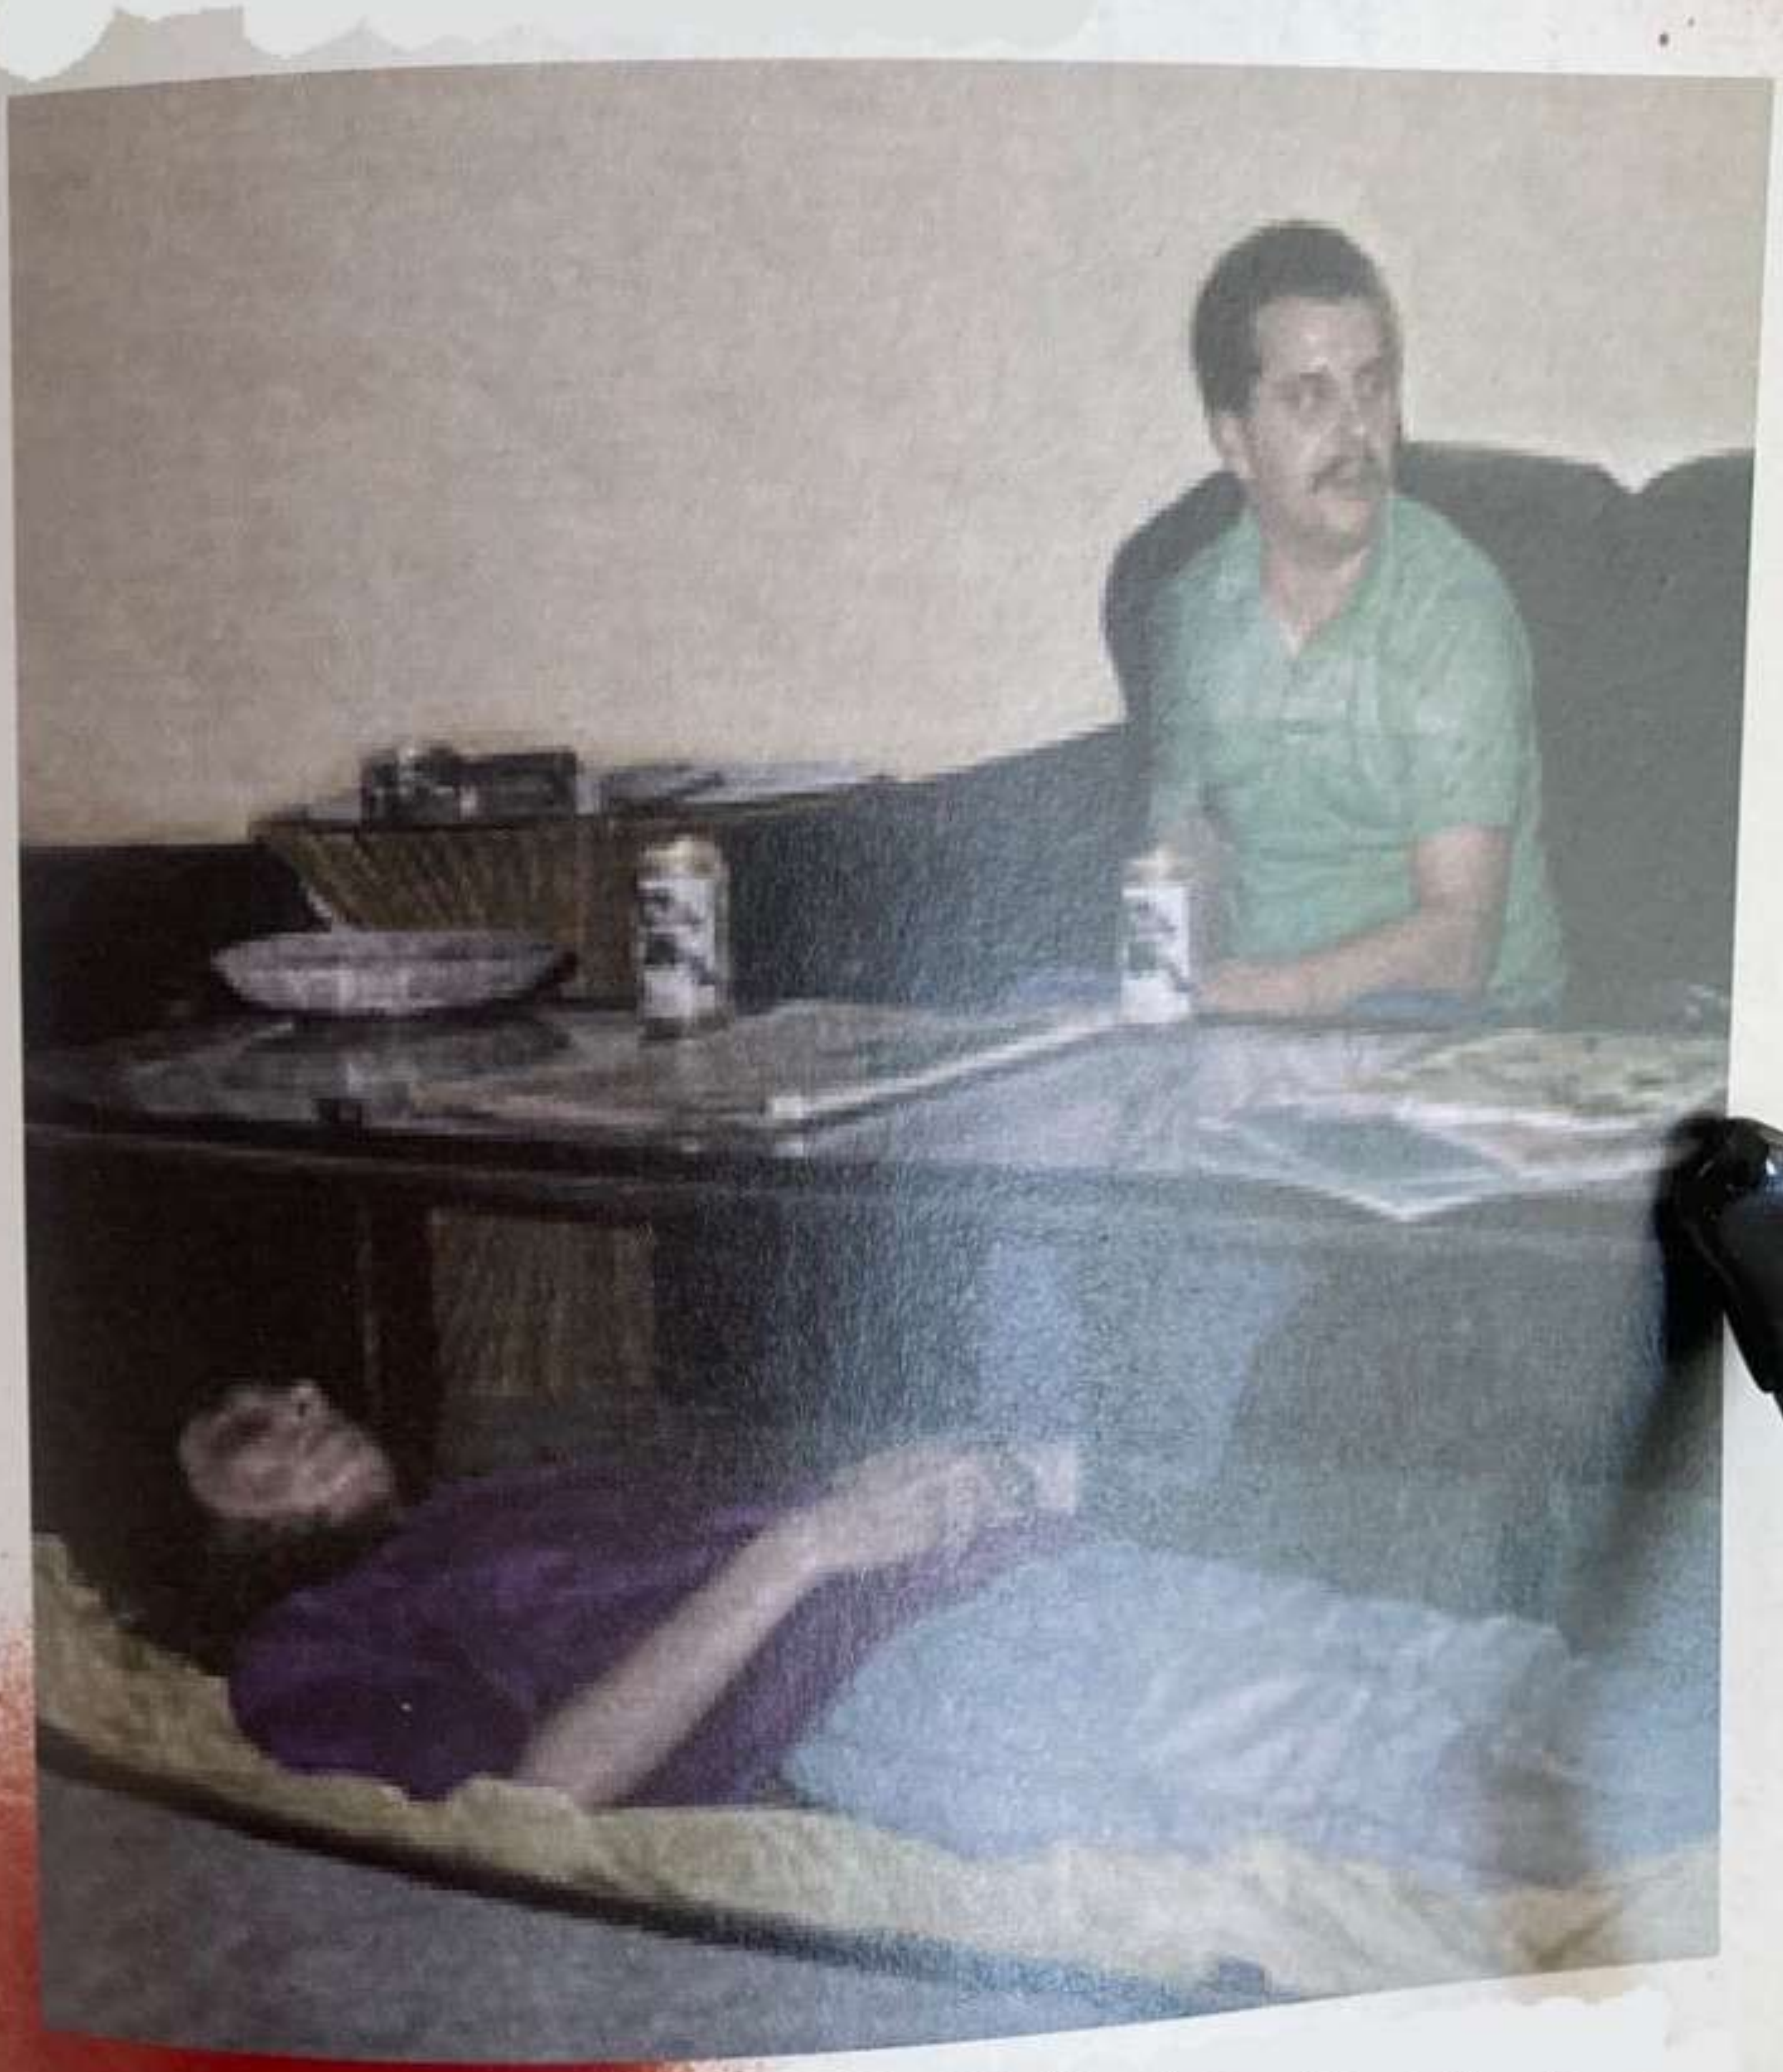
My Child is a Cabbage Patch Kid



【On weekends, it has become a routine to take Kevin fishing.

The Posey couple, living in Maryland, USA, named their Cabbage Patch Kid (a doll modeled after a real child) Kevin and have been raising him as their own real child for 19 years. This is not just child's play. The couple is so "serious" that they have even saved money for his college fund and regularly take him fishing at the nearby pond. By the way, Kevin usually "speaks" through the mouth of his wife, Joe.

A Man Who Turned His Deceased Wife's Mummy into a Table



Rodrigo Taft, living in Brazil, lost his wife, whom he married at the age of 23, in the summer when he turned 50. Overwhelmed with grief, he did not hold a funeral for her. Instead, he performed embalming procedures on her body to allow it to mummify through saponification. He then placed her in a glass box at home and uses it as a table. It is said that his friends' reactions are not too bad.

Always carries a mummy when going out

In 1995, a large number of human skulls and bones were discovered in an apartment in Florida, USA. When the police entered, the walls of the room were covered in blood, and firearms and cocaine were scattered on the floor. According to reports, it is unknown where these skulls were obtained (rumors say they were purchased on the Internet), but they were said to be performing cult religious rituals in this room. Also, the blood overflowing on the floor was said to be due to sacrificing sheep and chickens.

"Shinpi Chin Chin Nikko Niko En" (Mysterious Chin Chin Nikko Niko En) is a theme park that existed in Higashimatsuyama City, Saitama Prefecture. However, it was not a full-fledged theme park; an elderly man living in the area independently placed suitable objects around his home and opened it to the public. According to the elderly park director, "Nikko Niko En is a place of relaxation for people of all ages." The admission fee was set at 1200 yen for adults and 850 yen for high school students. Most of the exhibits in the park were wooden statues carved by the elderly man himself, mysterious Tanka poems, and poems. In addition, the explanatory notes on the statues contained incomprehensible phrases such as "Fufu," "Ahaha," and "Alemo Koremo."

Oksana Malaya (23 years old), who lives in Ukraine, was abandoned by her parents at the age of 3 and lived with a pack of dogs for the next 5 years. When she was rescued at the age of 8, she growled like a dog and ran around on all fours. She now lives in a mental hospital, but has somehow learned to speak. However, even now, facility administrators witness her occasionally running around the facility on all fours.

▲According to the scientists' investigation, the reason is still unknown.

In 2003, an anomaly occurred in a certain remote village in Turkey. For some reason, all the residents living there began walking on all fours. The villagers' intelligence is normal, but they are simply seized by the urge to 'walk on all fours.' Is it a mental illness or a new type of infectious disease? Currently, they are called 'handwalkers' and are the subject of research by scientists around the world.

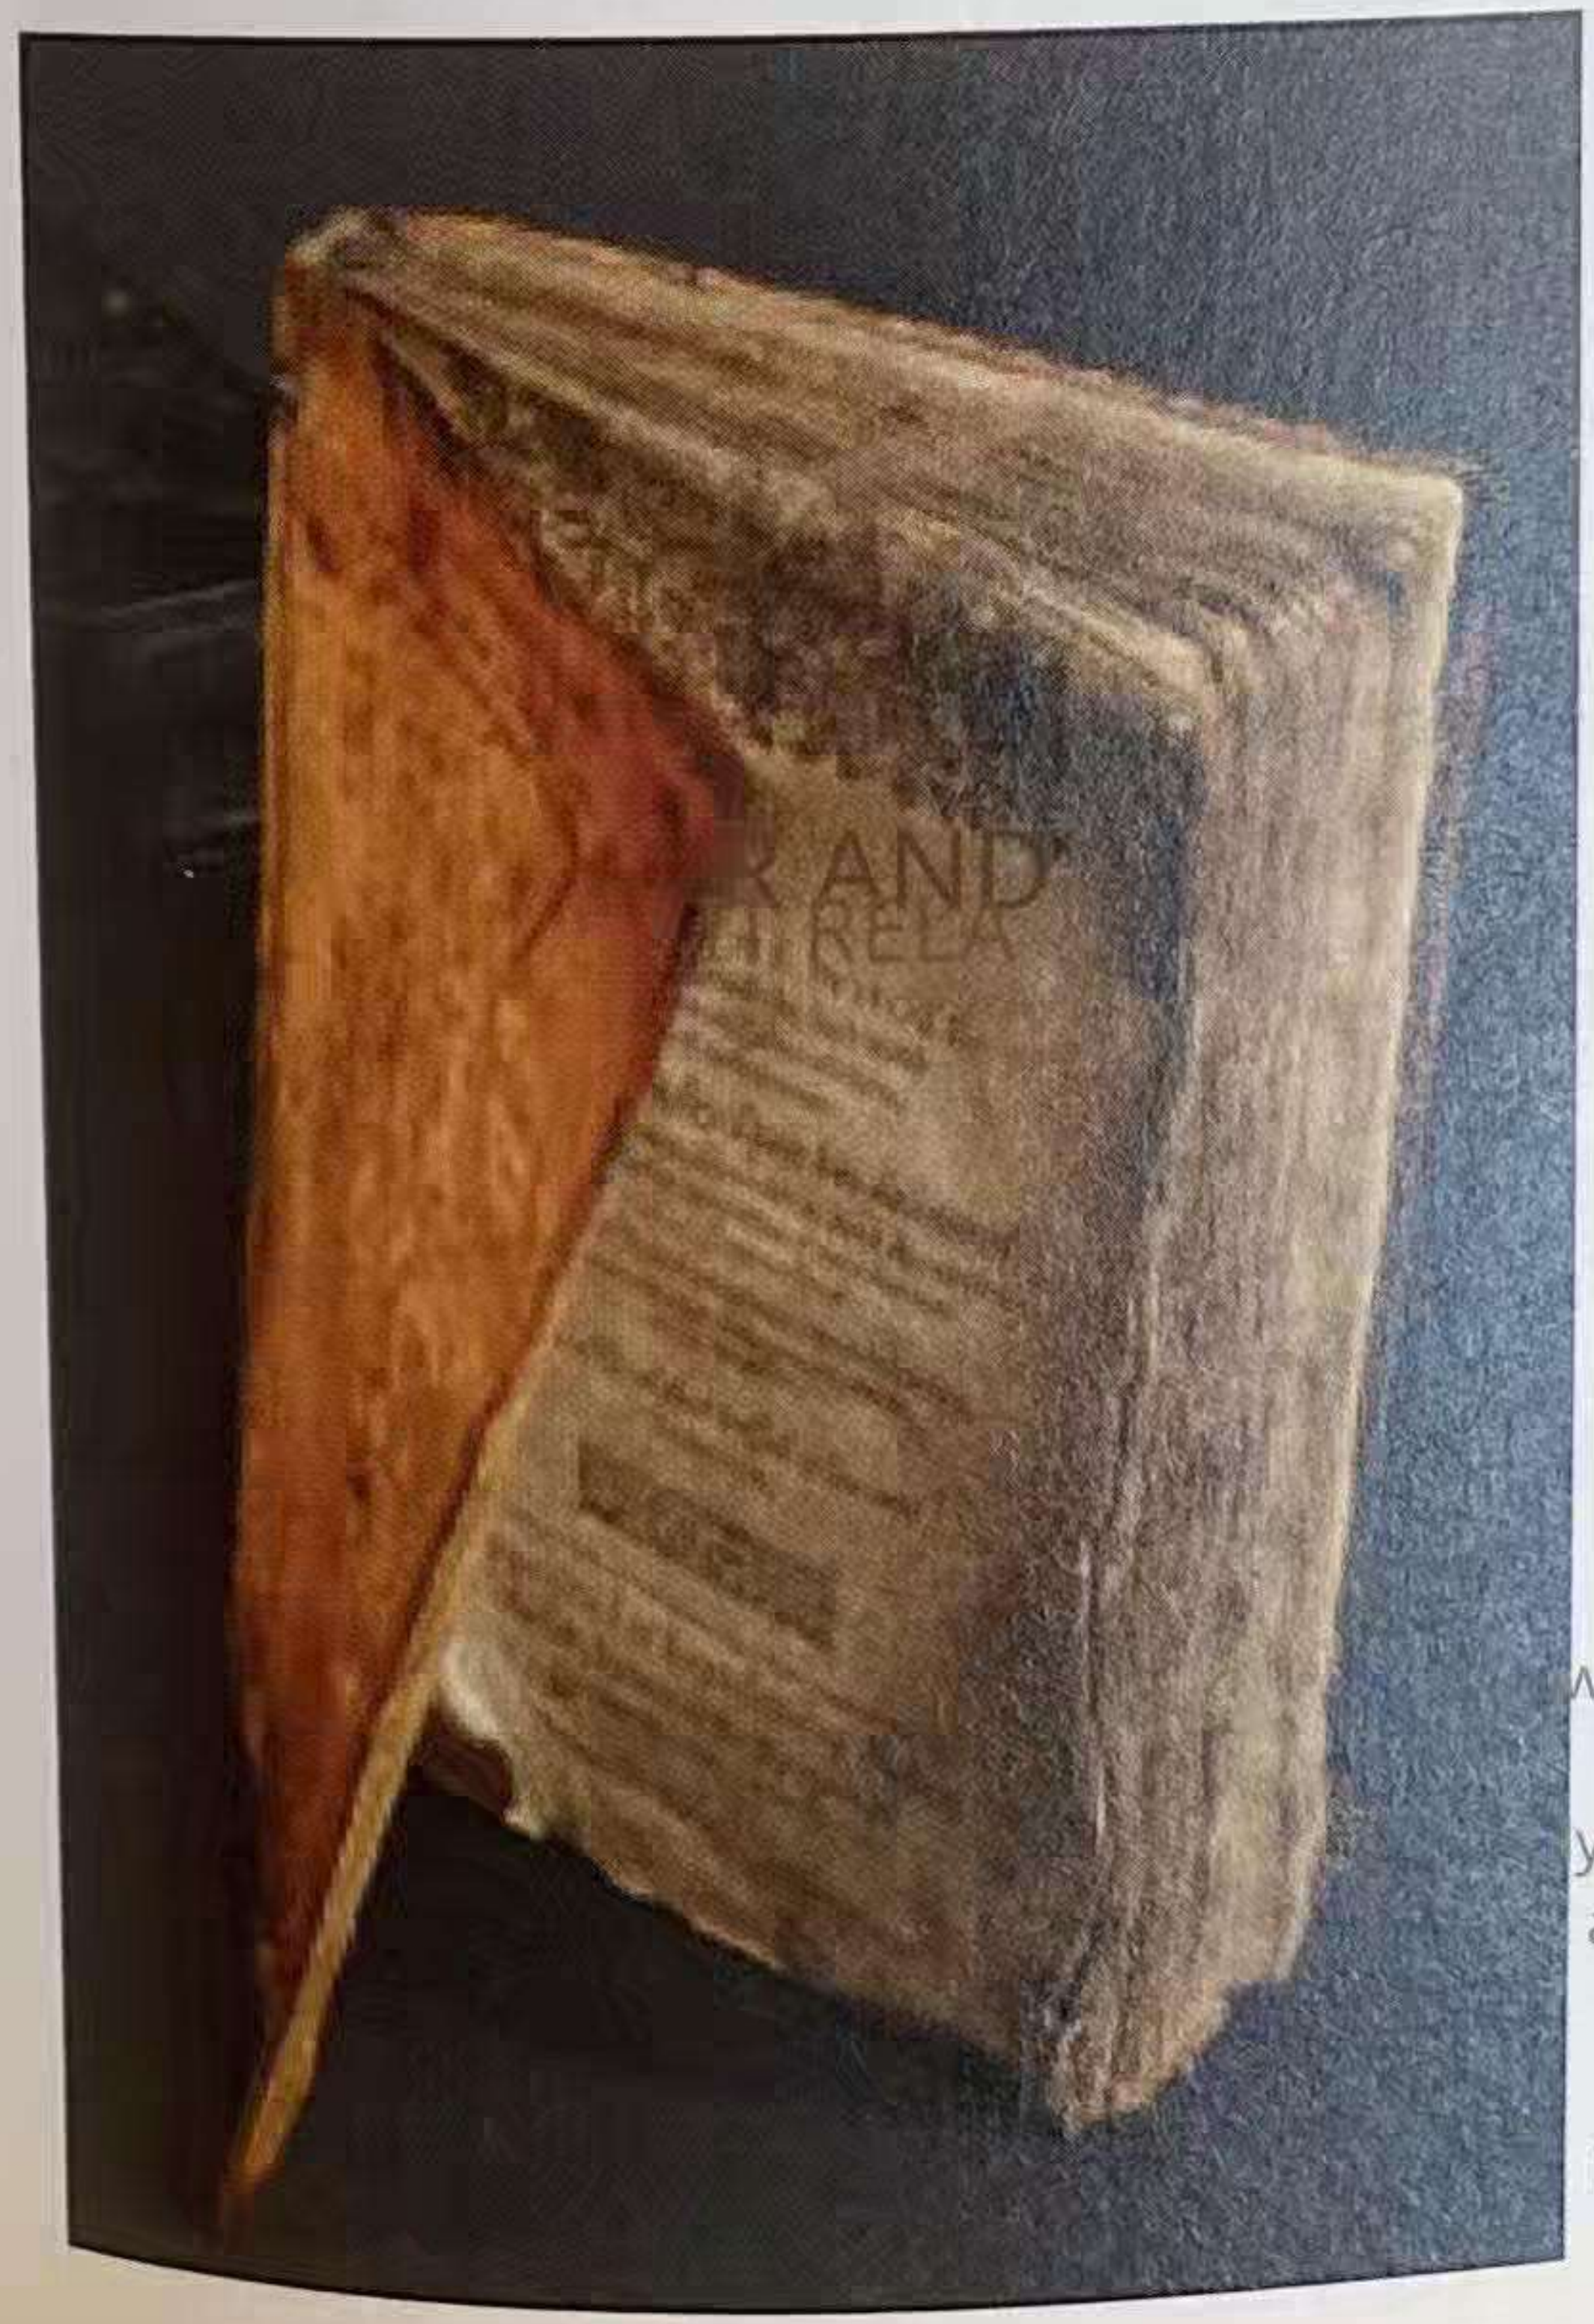
Books made of human skin

At the prestigious Brown University in America, there is a book in its collection that uses human skin for its spine. However, in the early 19th century, when this book was made, it was common to make books using human skin, as human skin is highly durable.



This is also a book made of human skin, but its origins are somewhat more bizarre compared to the one above. In 1965, when a serial killer who murdered five people in England was arrested, an enraged mob lynched the culprit, skinned him alive, and processed the skin into leather. It is said that it was used for the book's binding to prevent the incident from fading from memory.

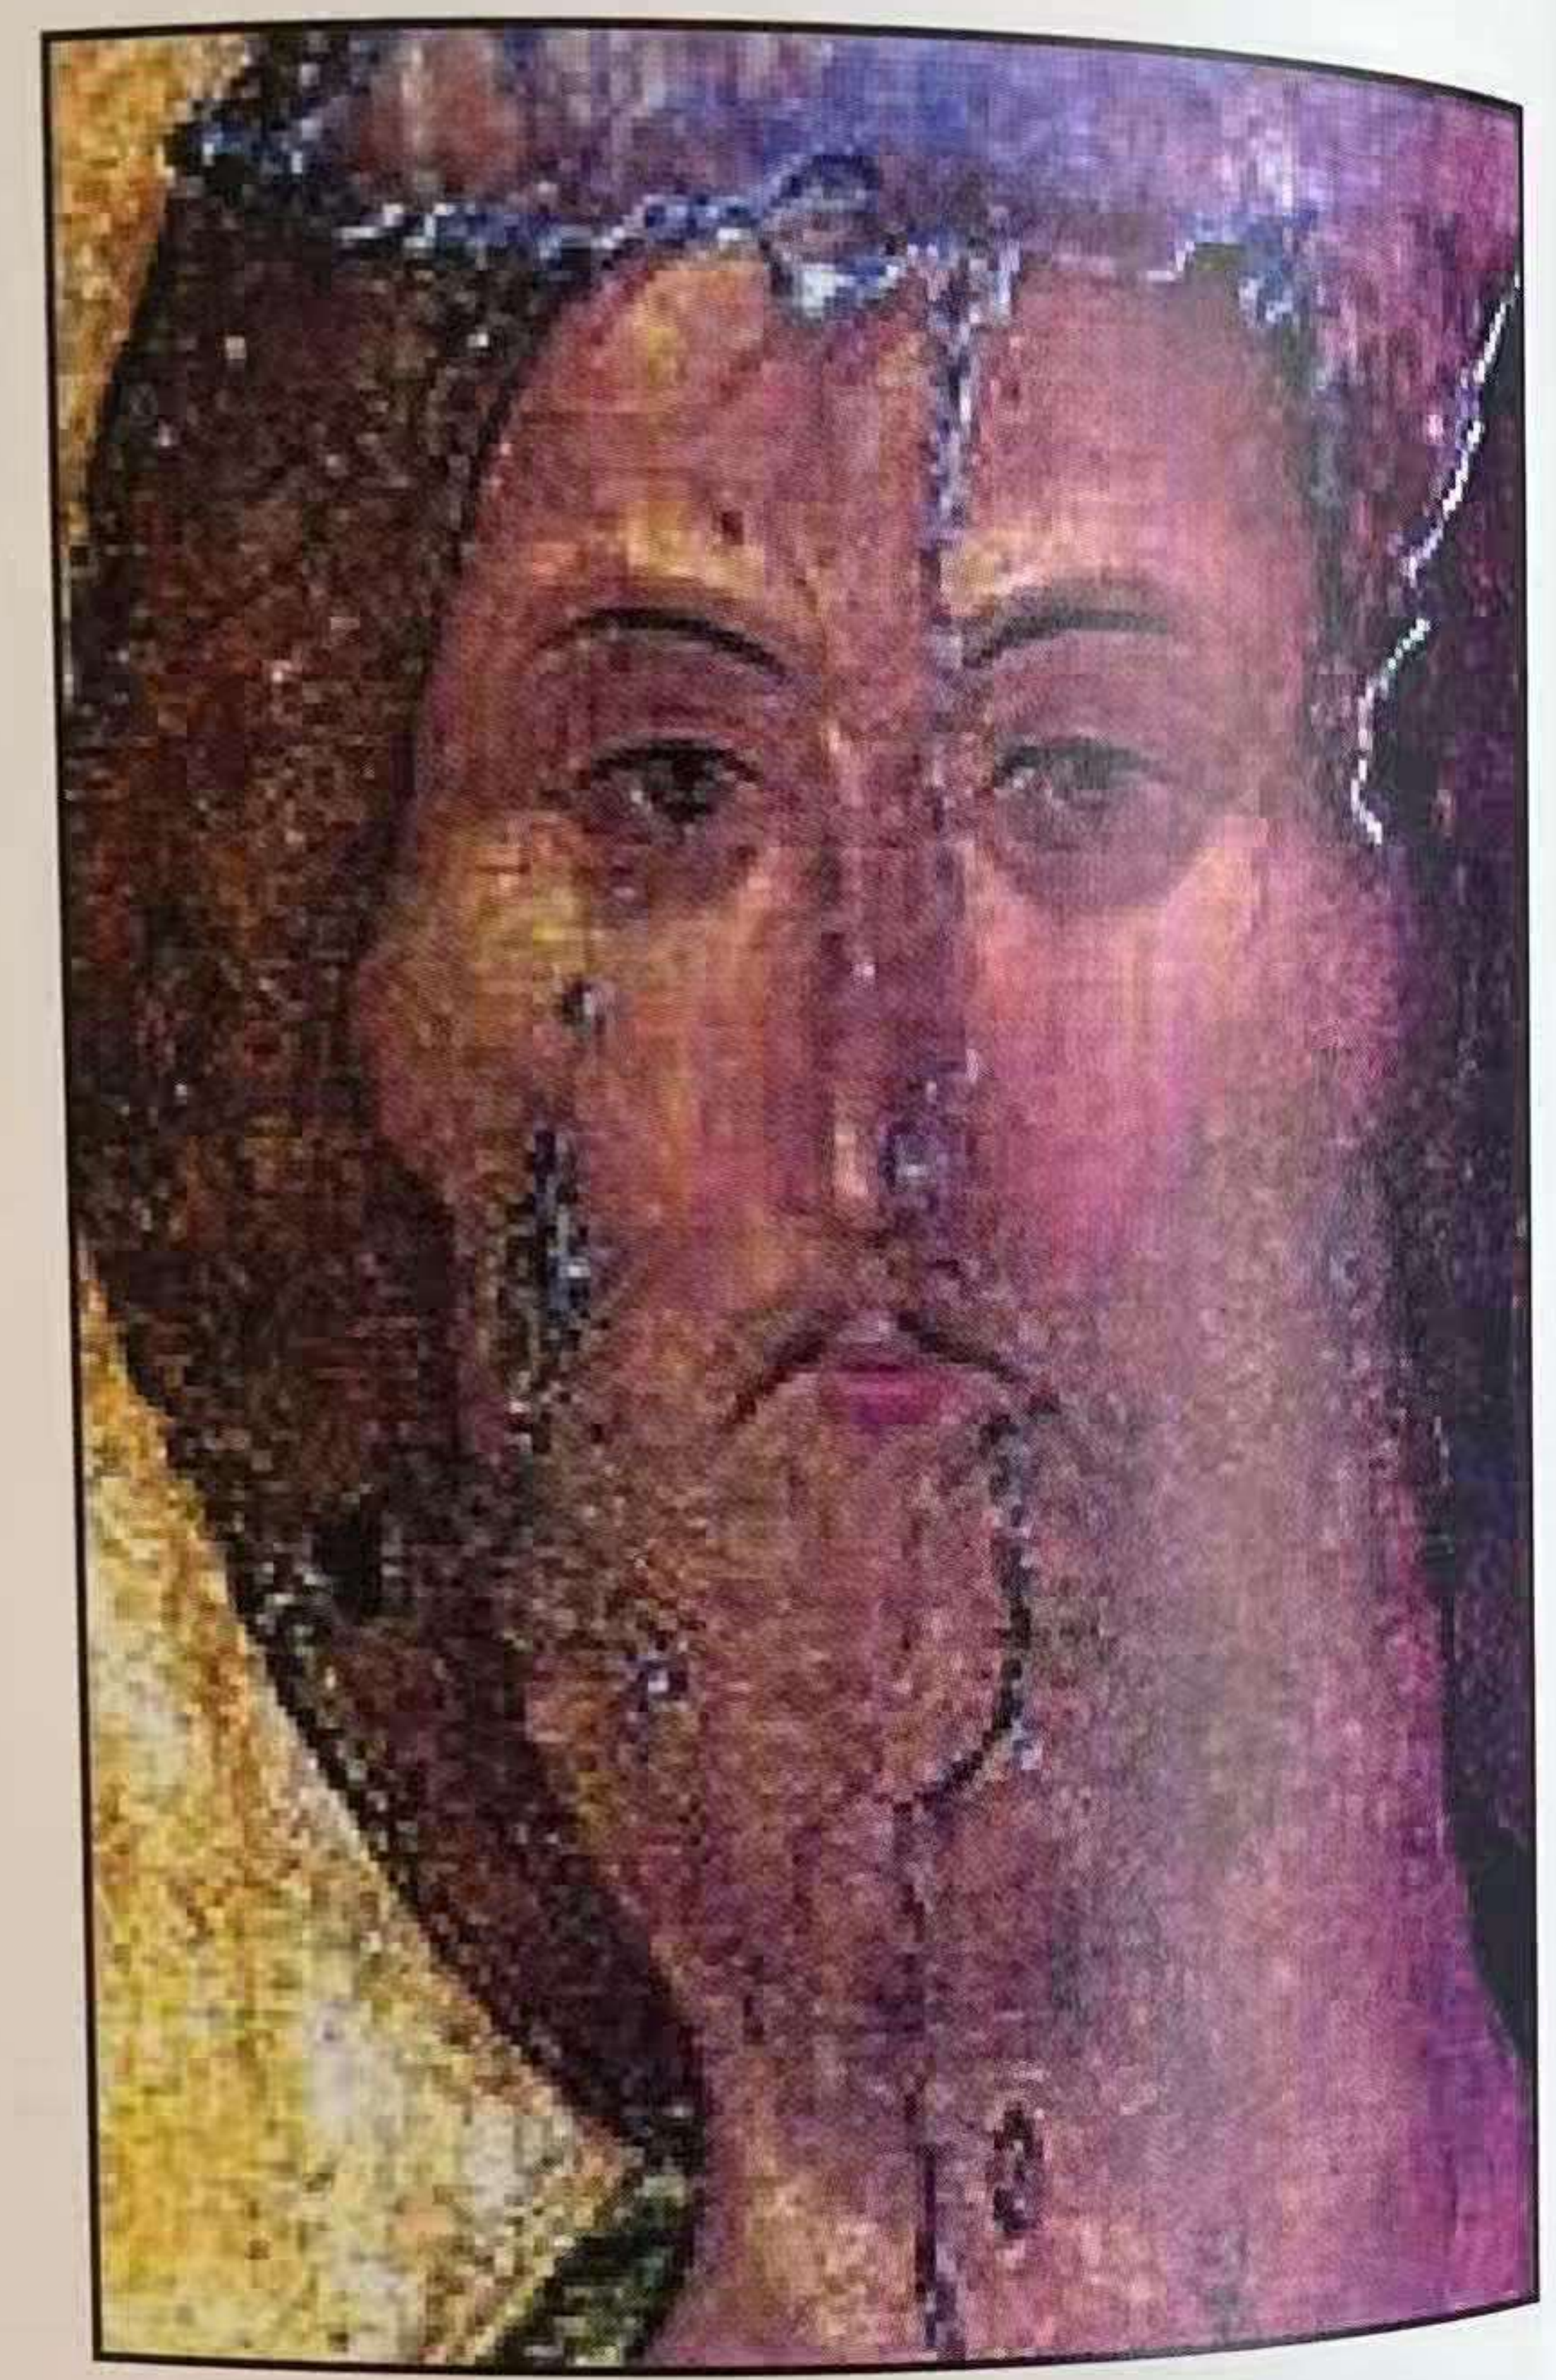
Bruce Potts, who teaches "Rhetoric" at the University of New Mexico in the United States, has ethnic-style tattoos all over his body. He had longed for a full-body tattoo since he was 12 years old, and it finally came to completion after three and a half years. As a result, the students are terrified of him, but he claims that "the tattoos give me power."

Electricity for suicide

The Man Who Made an Electric Chair

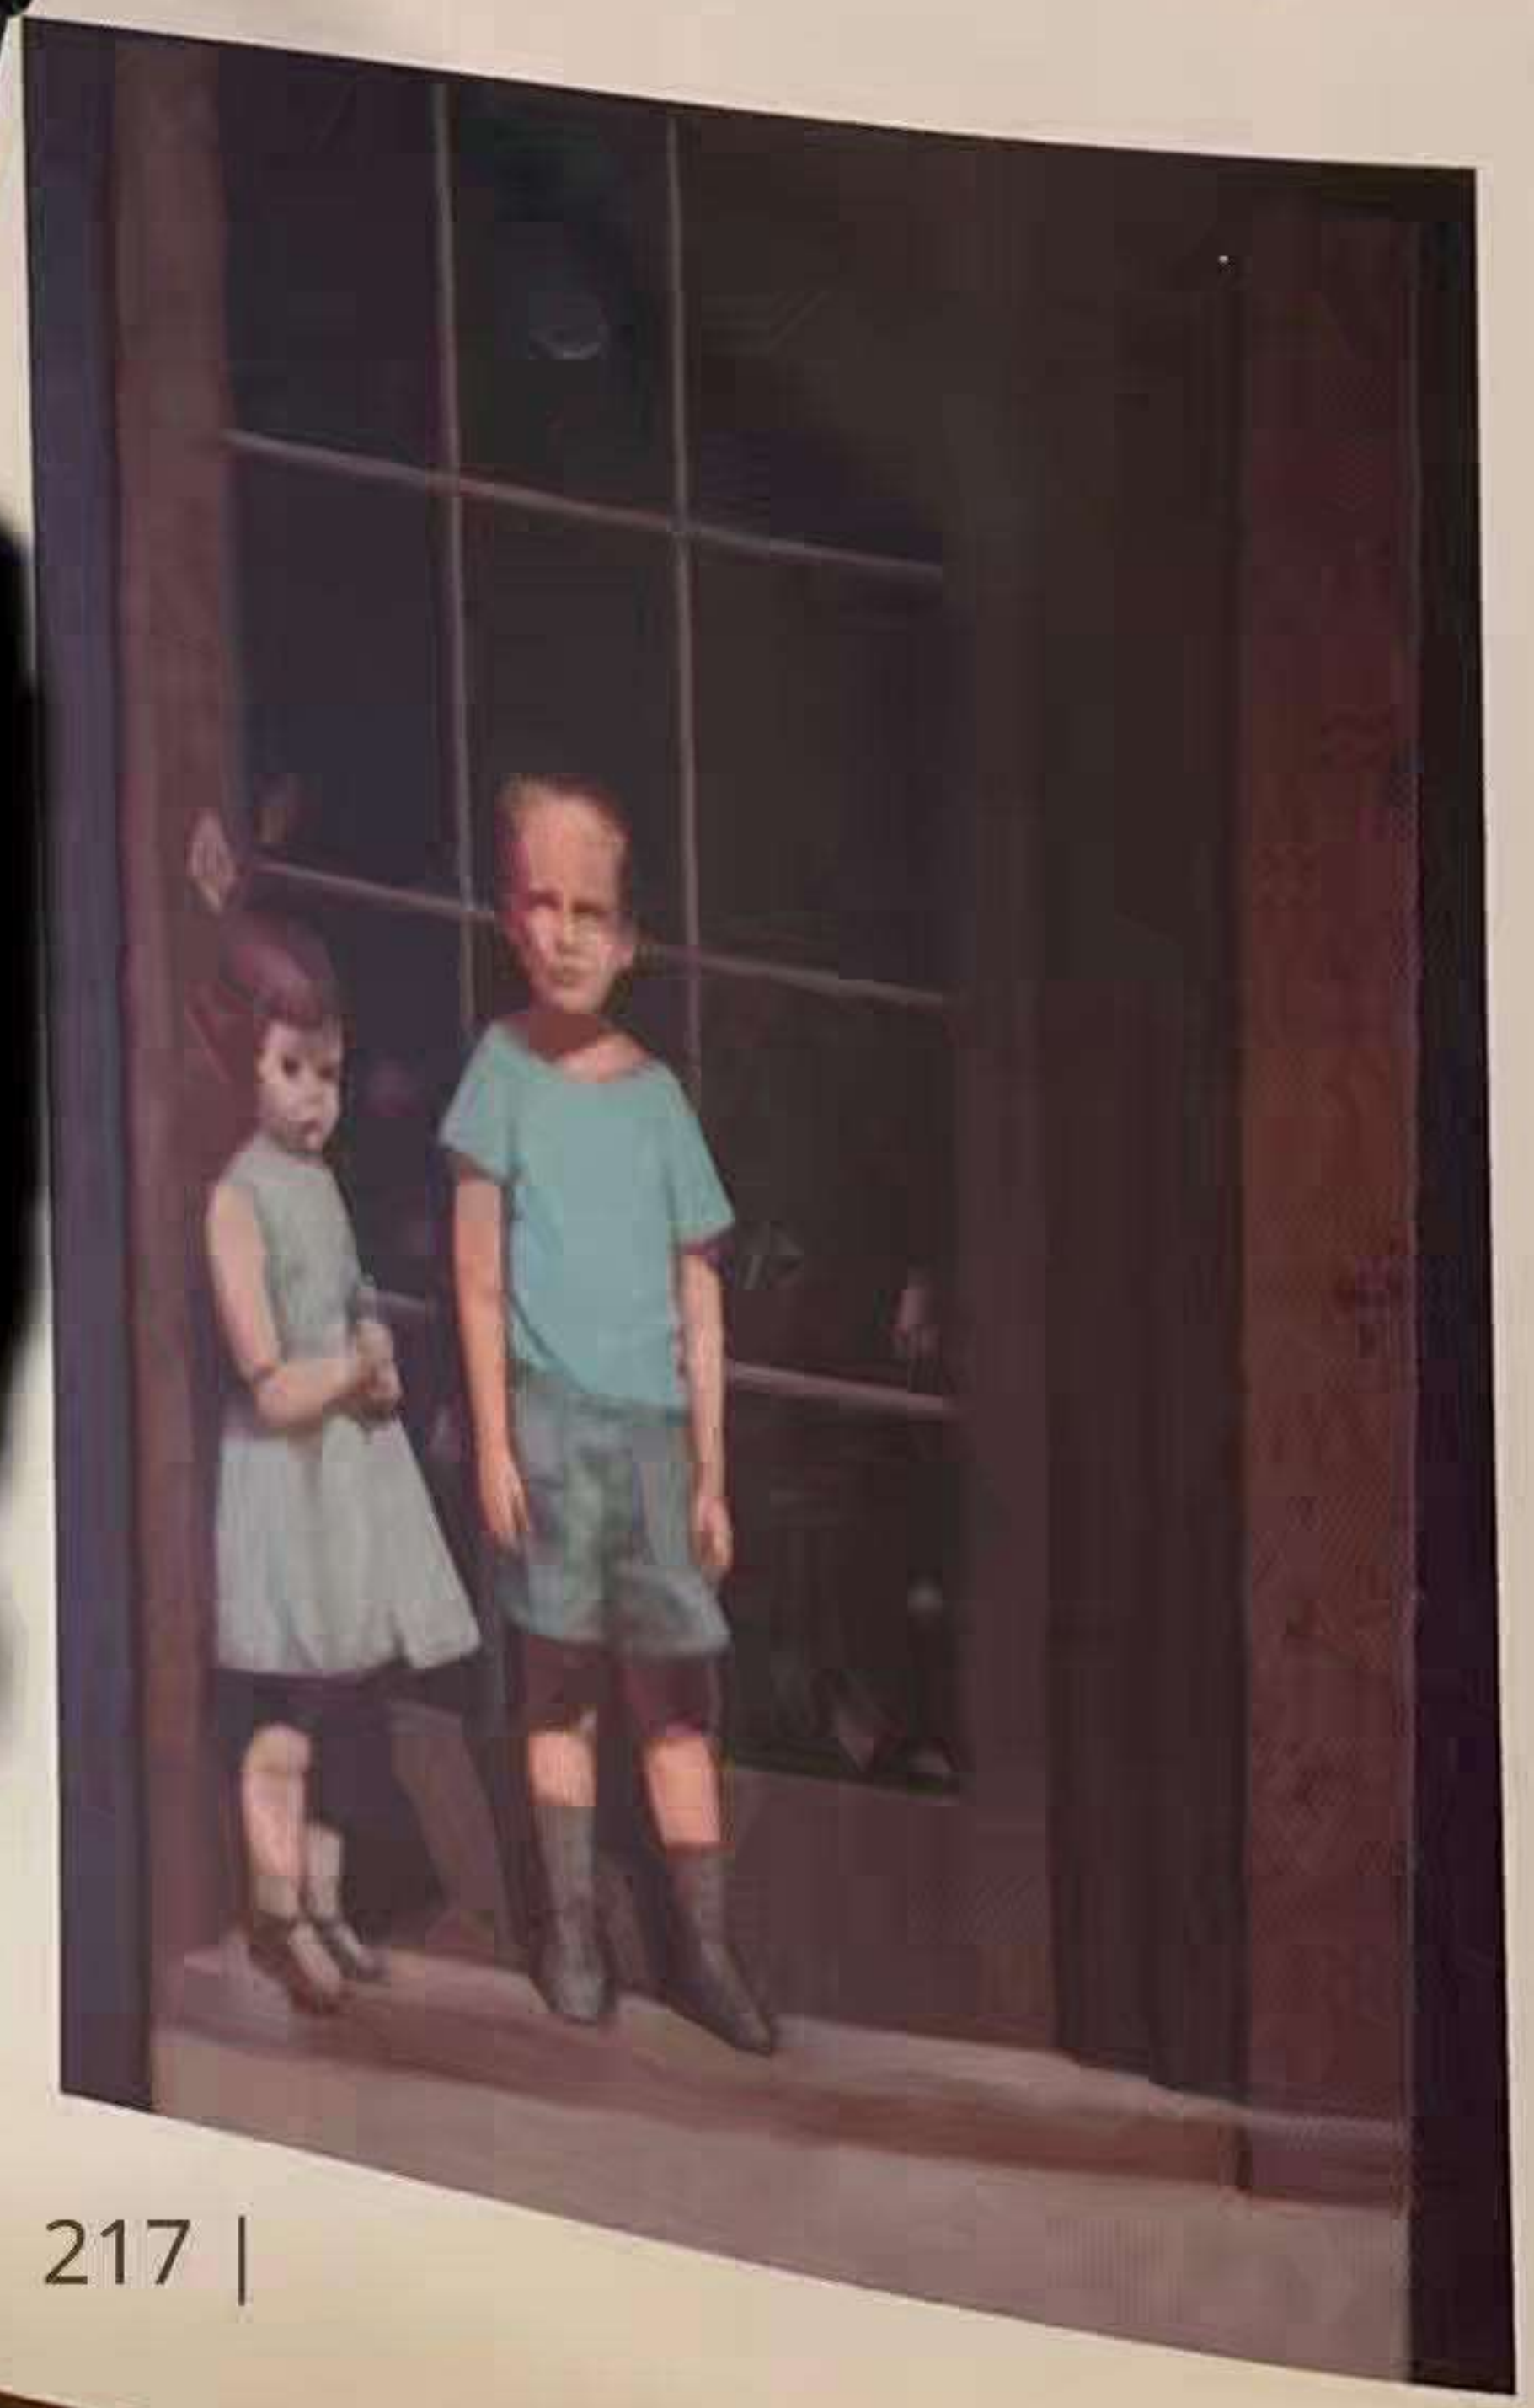
The chair you see pictured is an electric chair made in 1974 by a 43-year-old man living in Seattle, USA, for the purpose of committing suicide. The man was a local electrician, and he used this chair to kill himself by running several thousand volts through his body. This chair is currently housed in the Crime Museum in Washington.

Cursed Icon



Once, there was a work called "The Cursed Icon" in the Hermitage Museum in Russia. The reason it is called "cursed" is none other than this: when the museum investigated this painting, it was found that countless human bones, thought to belong to infants, were buried deep within the canvas. The painting was created in the 1980s. The artist is unknown.

Cursed Painting



This painting was created in 1972 by American painter Bill Stoneham. This painting, depicting a boy and a doll-like girl, was resold to famous actors, entrepreneurs, and others, but for some reason, the owners successively committed suicide, and one of them testified that "the child in the painting came out," so it became famous as a "cursed painting." In 2000, a certain gallery won the painting for $100,000. However, for some reason, it is not displayed in the exhibition hall, but remains in storage.

A model specializing in cat appearances.

Josephine Mura, a fashion model living in the UK, suddenly painted cat patterns on her body in 1966 and declared, "I will only accept jobs in this outfit from now on." The reason is simply because she likes cats. Of course, her work has decreased dramatically, but she has gained enthusiastic fans in some areas and seems to be managing to make a living.

According to L, who lives in Aomori Prefecture, this mysterious video was found deep inside a closet when she searched her local grandfather's house. The video begins with a scene showing the paper sliding door of an old private house, which is soon broken through by an arm. Furthermore, the paper door continues to be torn, and a white-painted man appears from inside. After that, it was just a repetition of this series of scenes. Her grandfather also had no memory of the video, and it is unknown what the purpose of the video is.

In 1998, while a cable television station in Colorado, USA, was broadcasting the news, noise appeared on the screen, and images of faces resembling those from horror movies were displayed continuously for several seconds. In 2006, a teacher working at an elementary school opened a site called "Club Kids" where he posted photos of elementary school children and photos of children who had died in traffic accidents. He attached heinous comments to each photo, such as, "To become a messed-up body at such a young age, I'm sure the person is embarrassed.". This teacher is currently being sued for child prostitution and violation of the anti-pornography law.

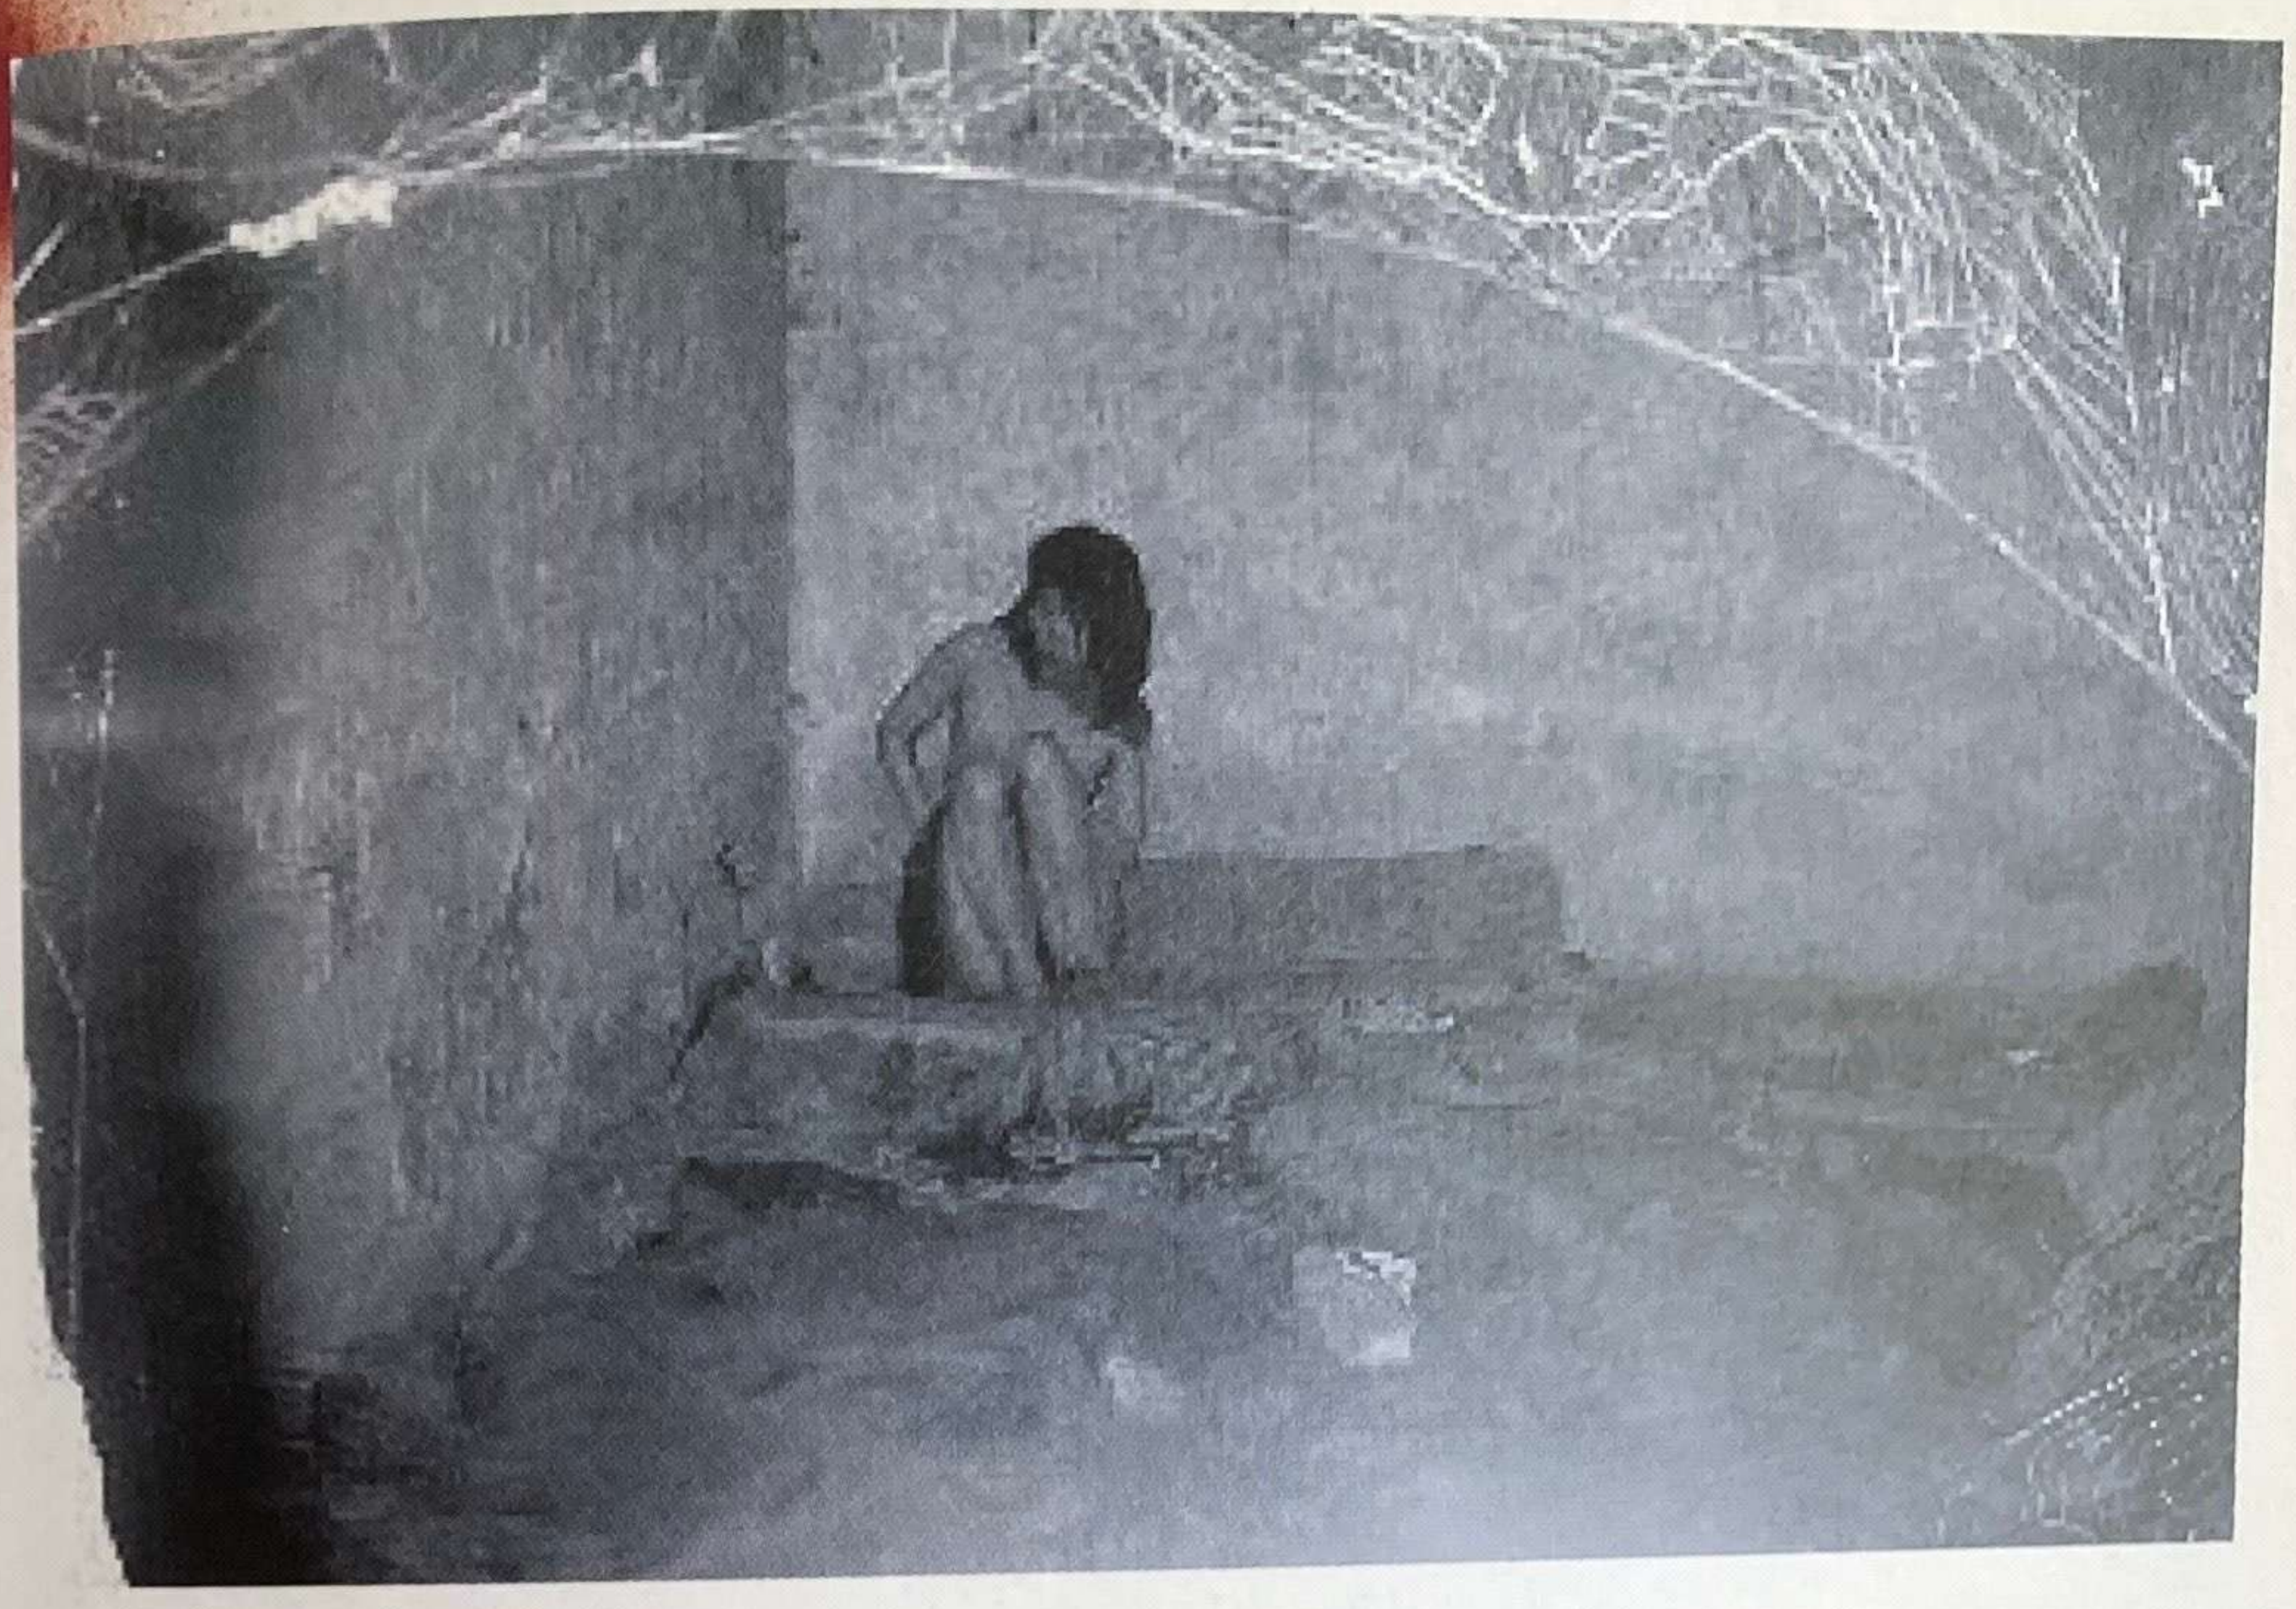
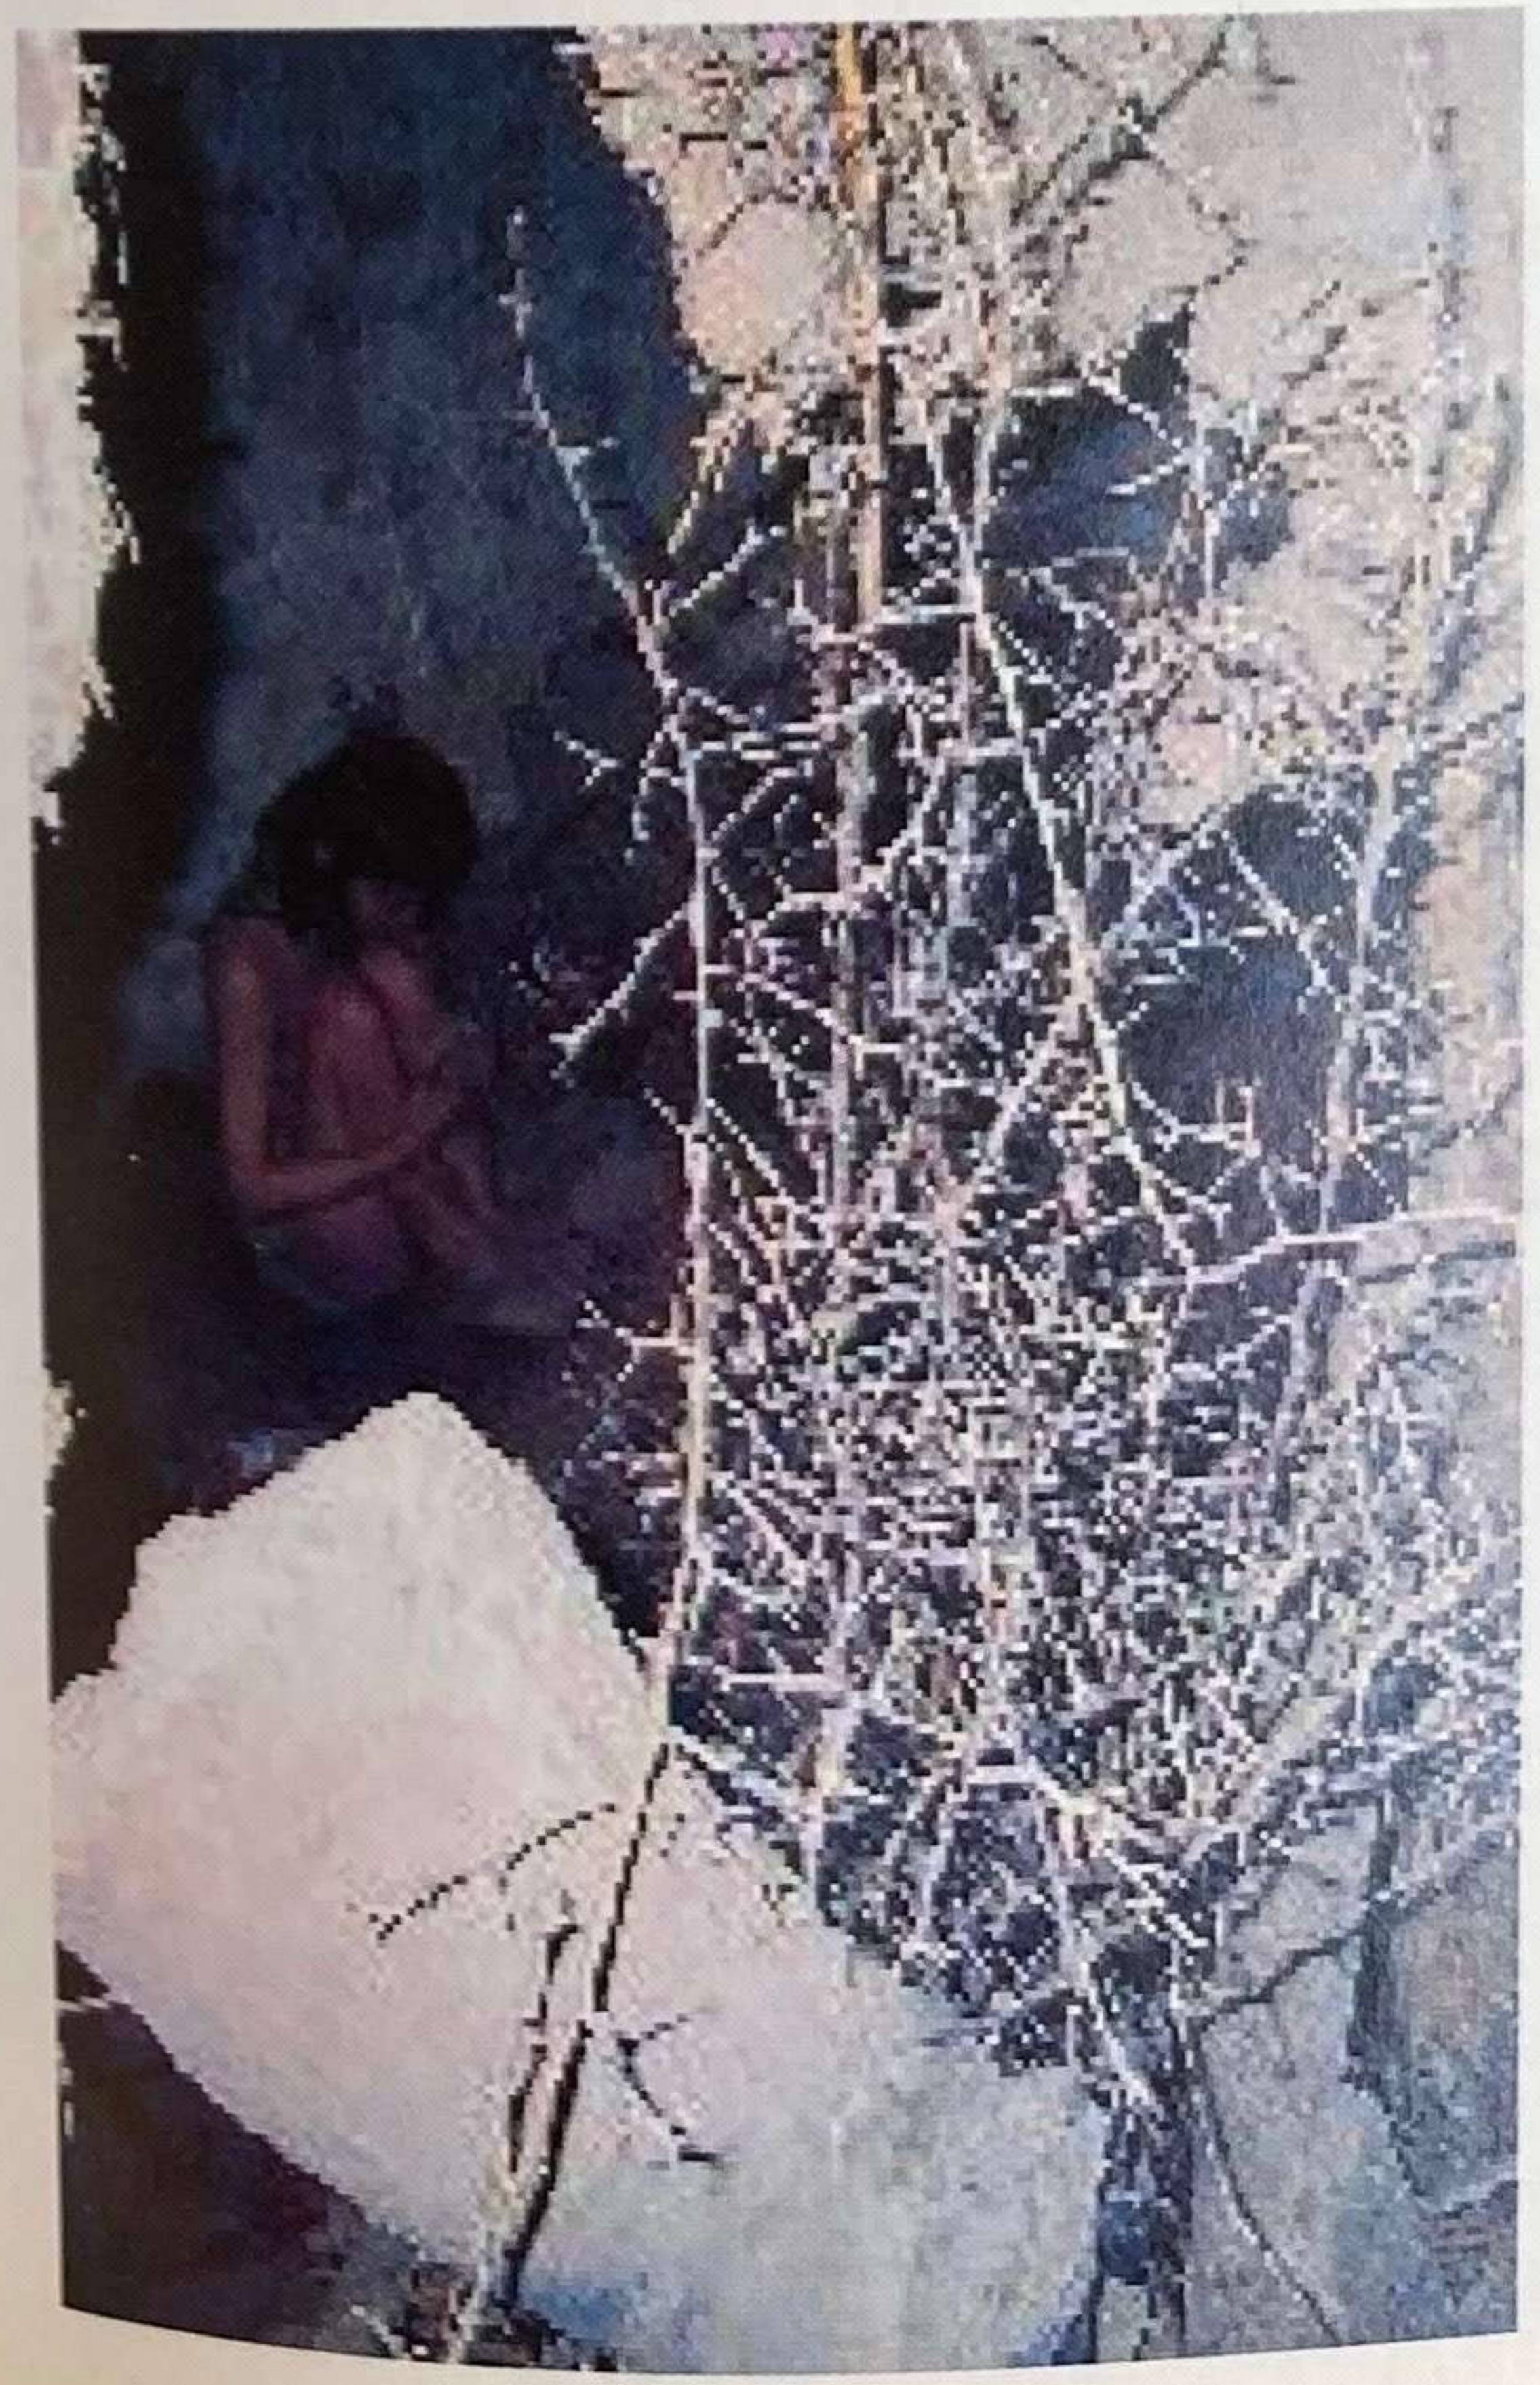
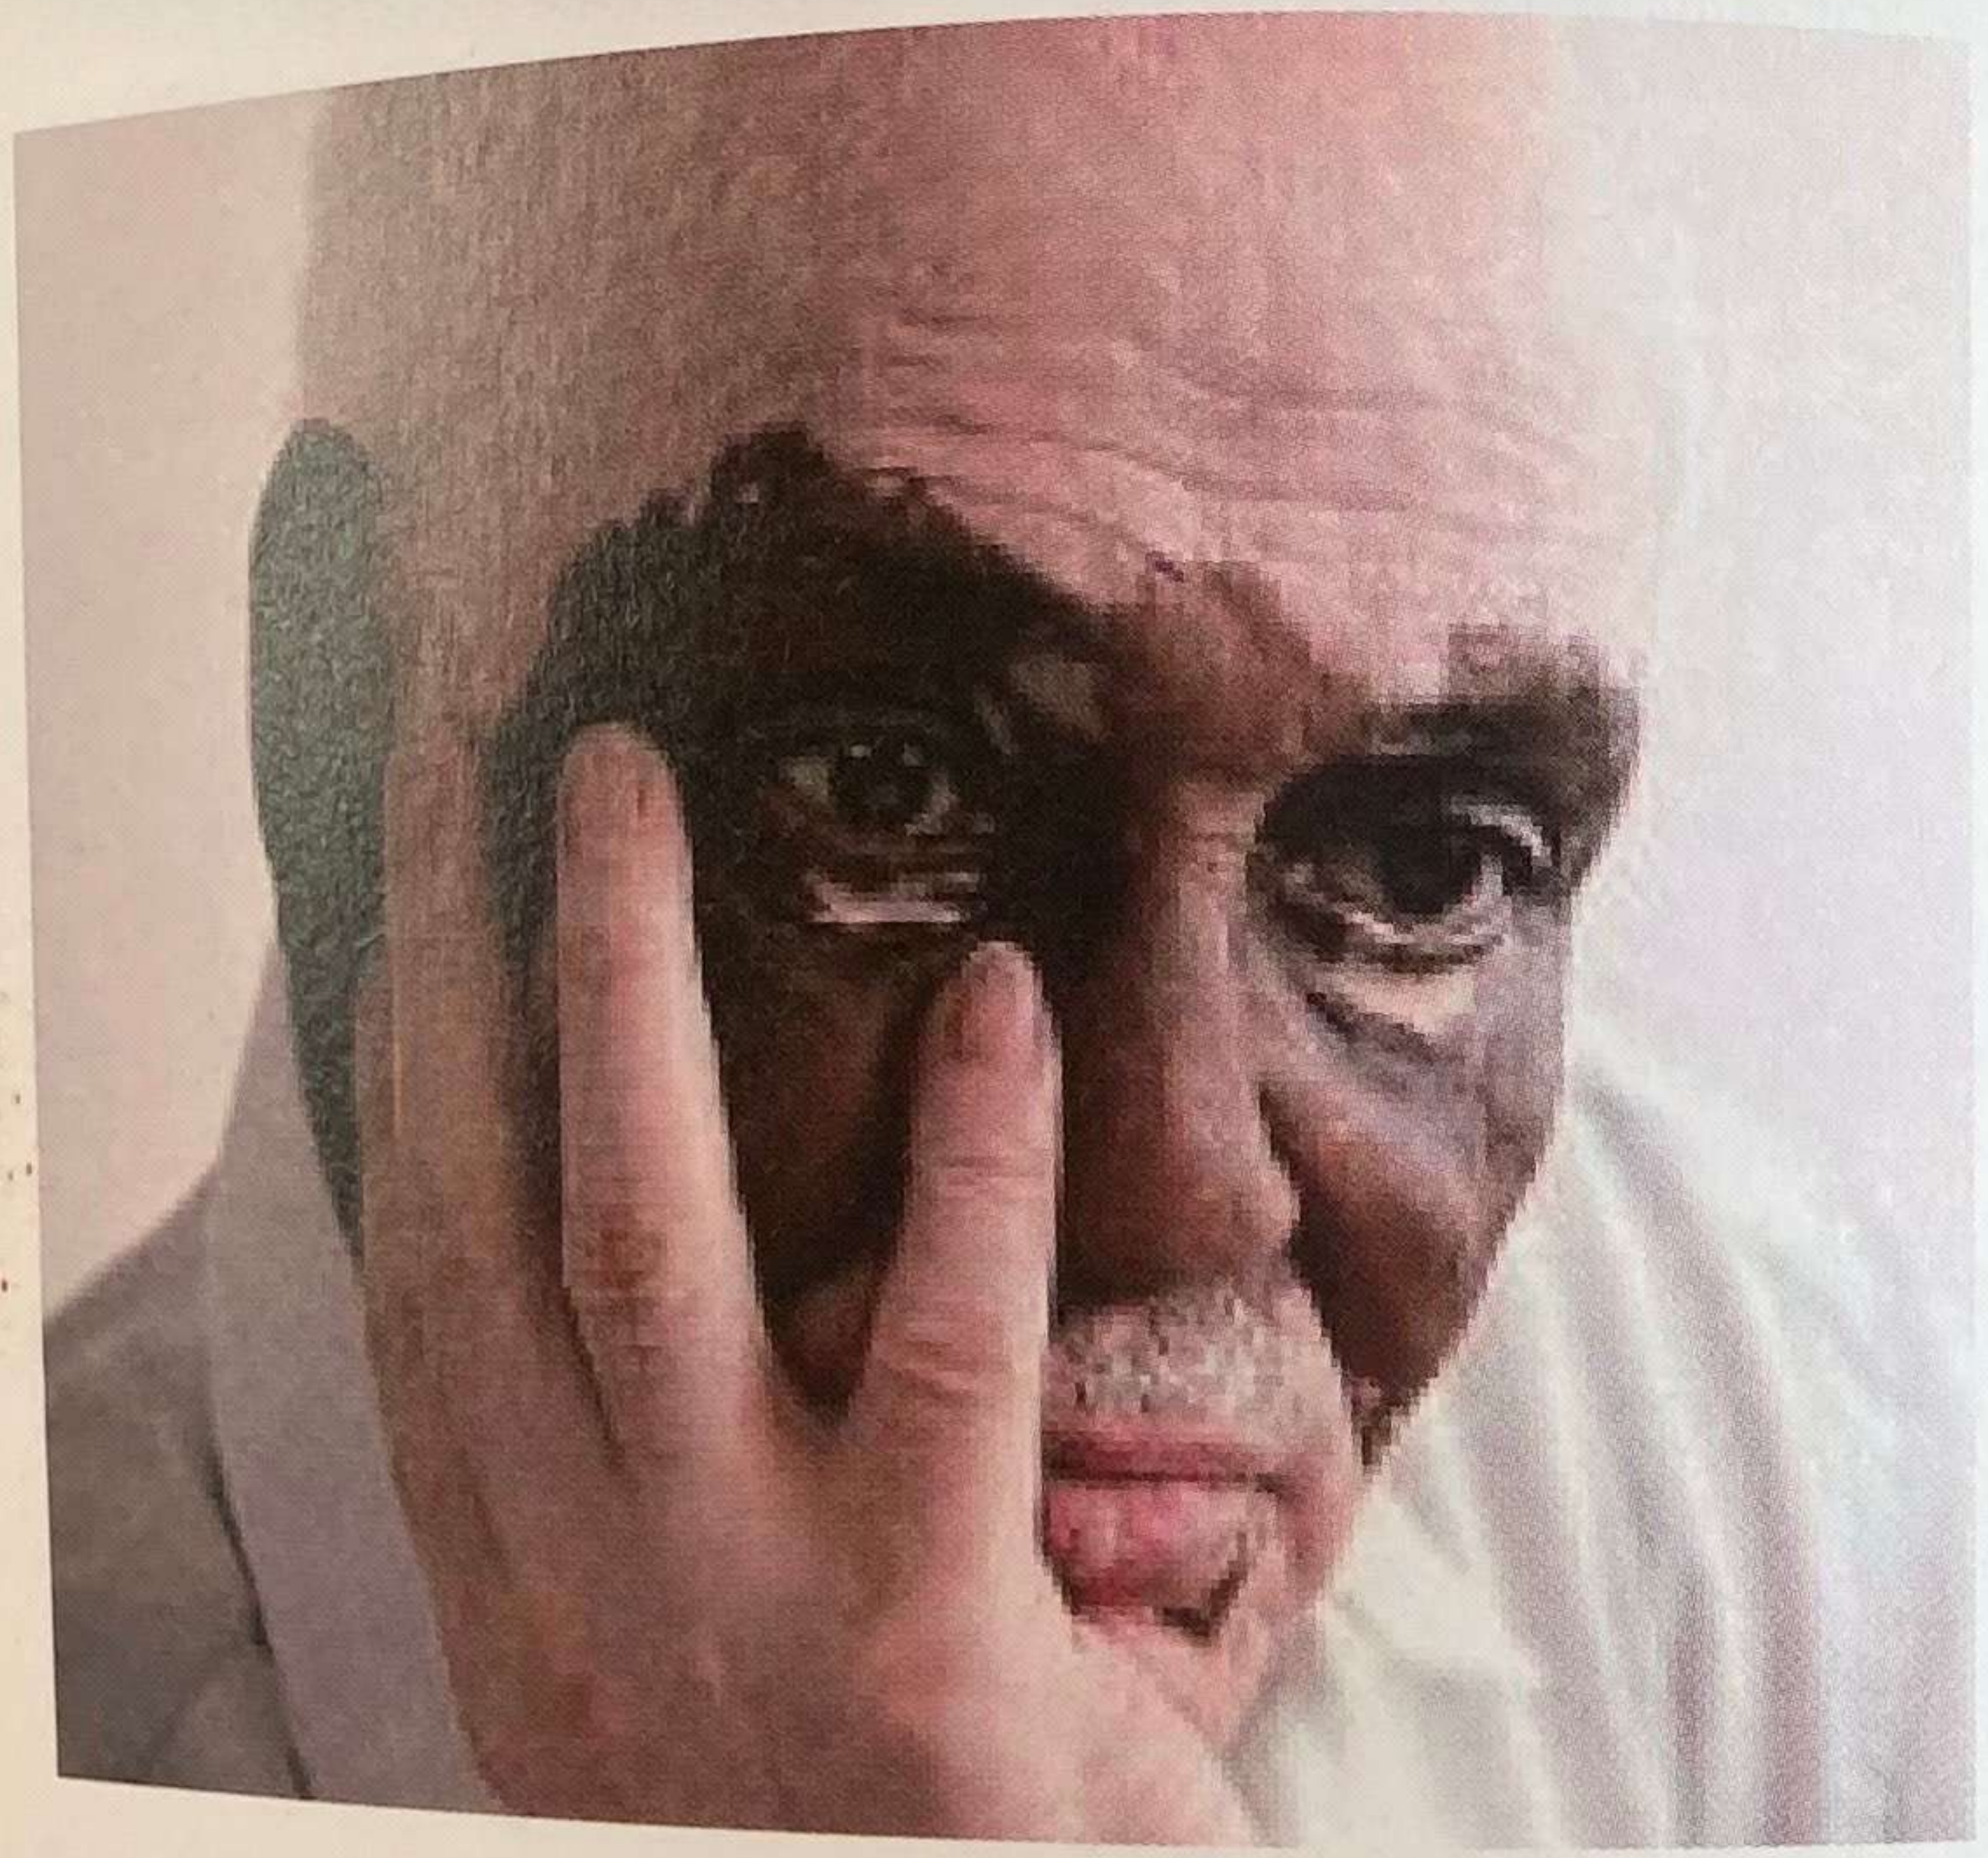
A woman who has lived in Iwakura for 13 years.





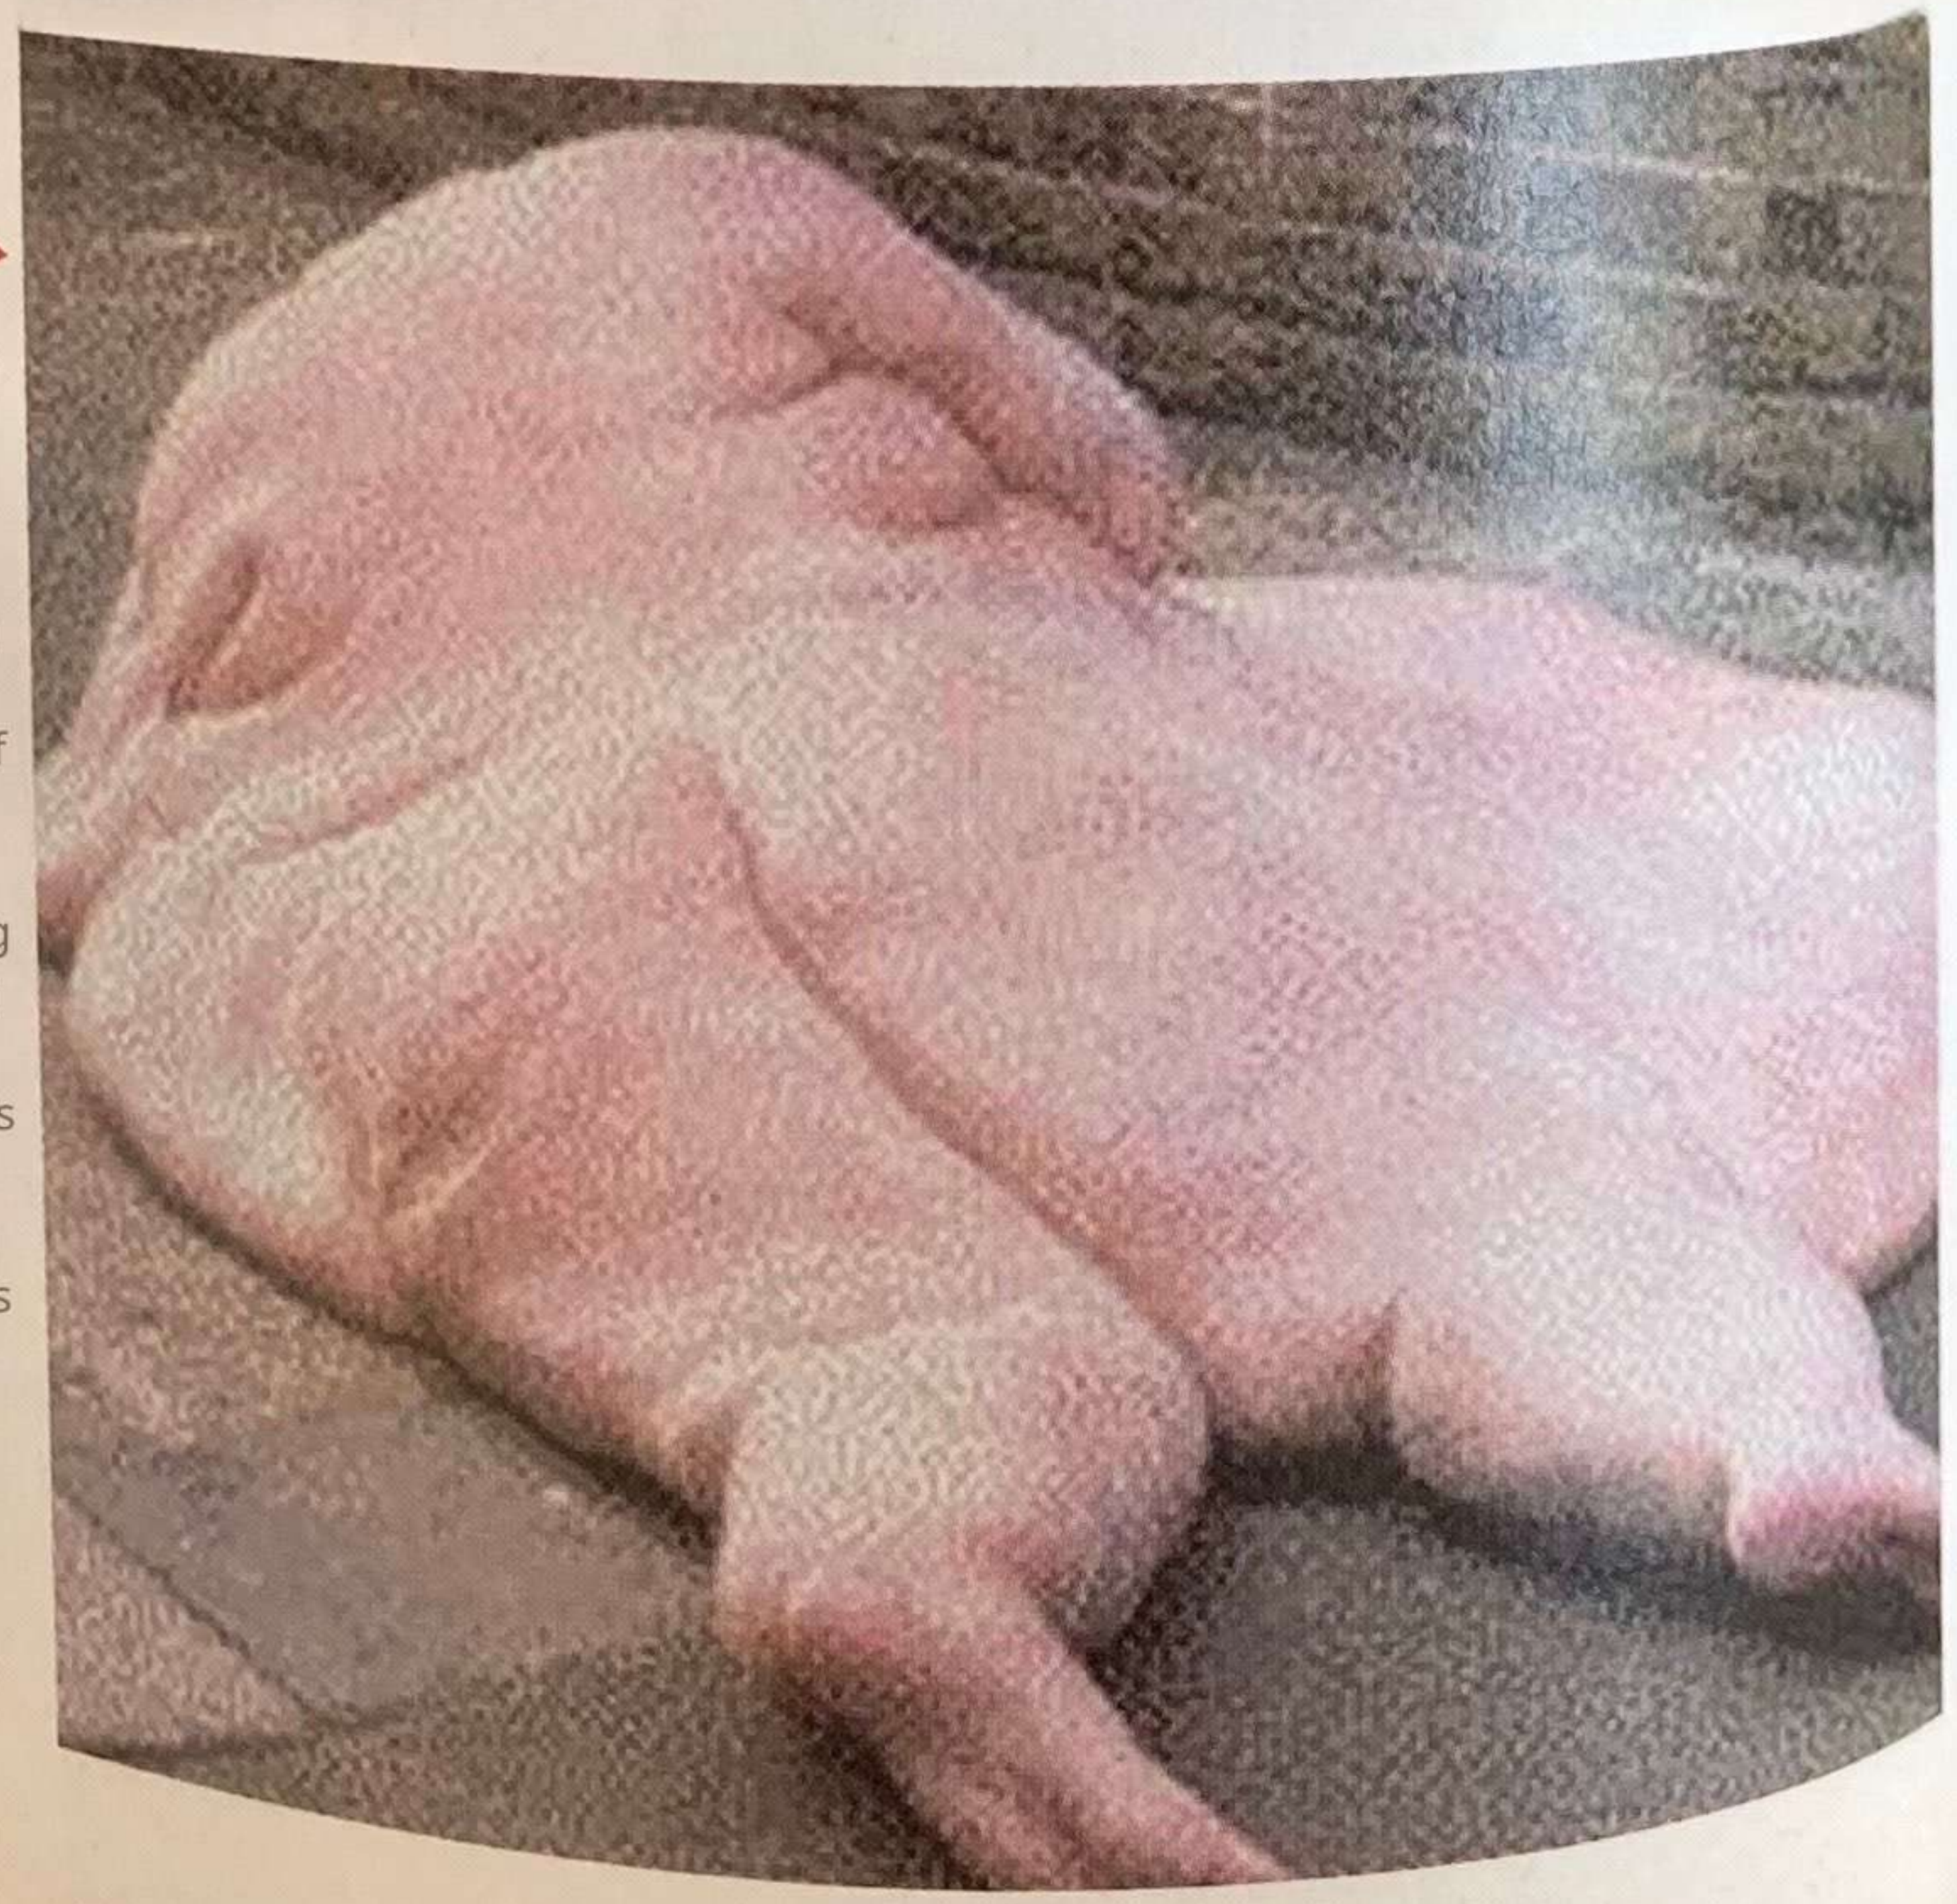
Somewhere in China. A dilapidated room covered with simple bricks. The walls are crumbling in places, and the gaps are filled with thorns to prevent anyone from leaving from the inside. In this environment, the woman in the photo has been living for 13 years. The woman is now 36 years old. After her beloved husband disappeared from home when she was 23, she abandoned everything and decided to live in this Iwakura. She began living with only the clothes on her back. The woman is naked throughout the year. Because she doesn't eat adequate meals, her skin is covered with cracks due to years of malnutrition, and she spends her days just blankly staring into the air.

A Man Who Wanted To Be White



This man, who lives in America, was originally black, but longing to be white, he decided to have skin bleaching surgery. However, because he had no money, he took large amounts of a powerful liver drug that had the side effect of whitening the skin, and as a result, only the area around his eyes remained black.

The price of a drastic diet.



It's truly a mysterious photo, but in fact, this is a victim of an extreme diet. In an attempt to lose hundreds of kilograms, she embarked on a radical diet using drugs, resulting in a large amount of excess skin, making it difficult to even walk. Even so, it's not clear why she's collapsed completely naked.

A cursed video made by a hacker

In 2006, a file said to be a "cursed video" was uploaded to a domestic video site. When you click on this video, the monitor screen collapses and turns completely red, followed by the word "Older sister," and finally, the message "Run Away" is repeatedly displayed. There is no particular realistic damage, but some on the Internet have written comments such as "the creator of the video went mad" and "those who watched it died in accidents," and it has completely become one of the urban legends. By the way, it is now almost impossible to view this video.

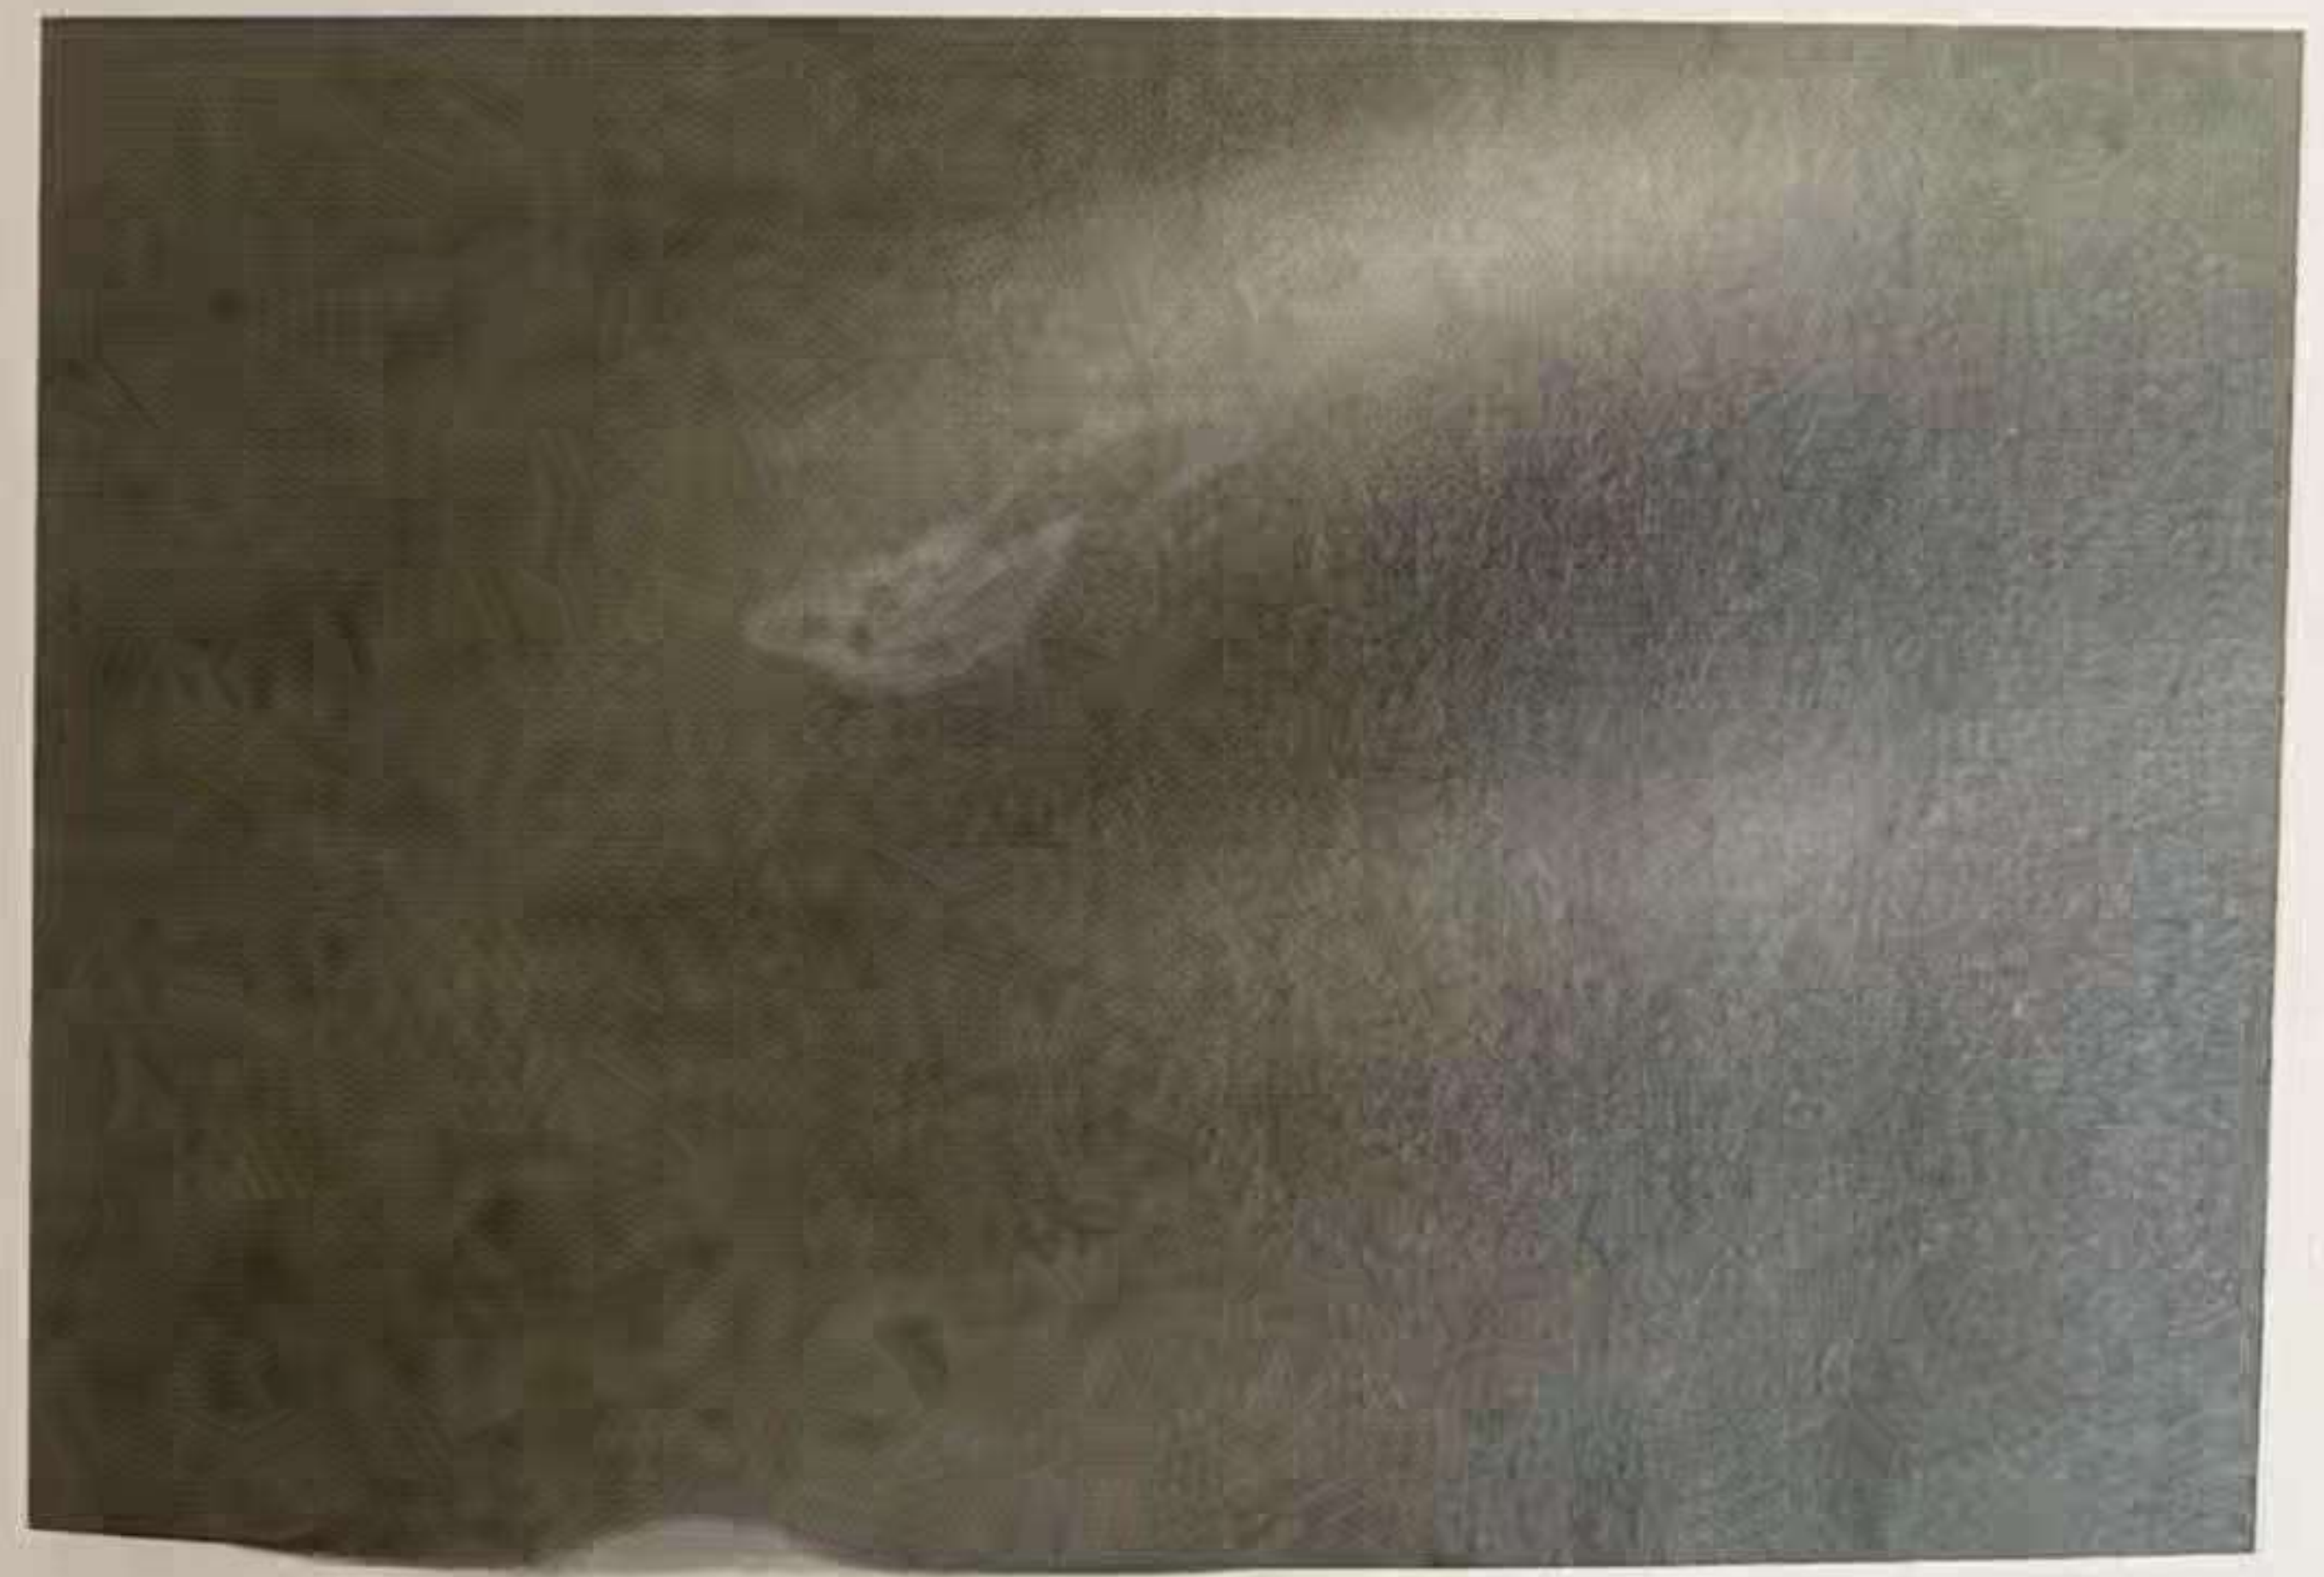
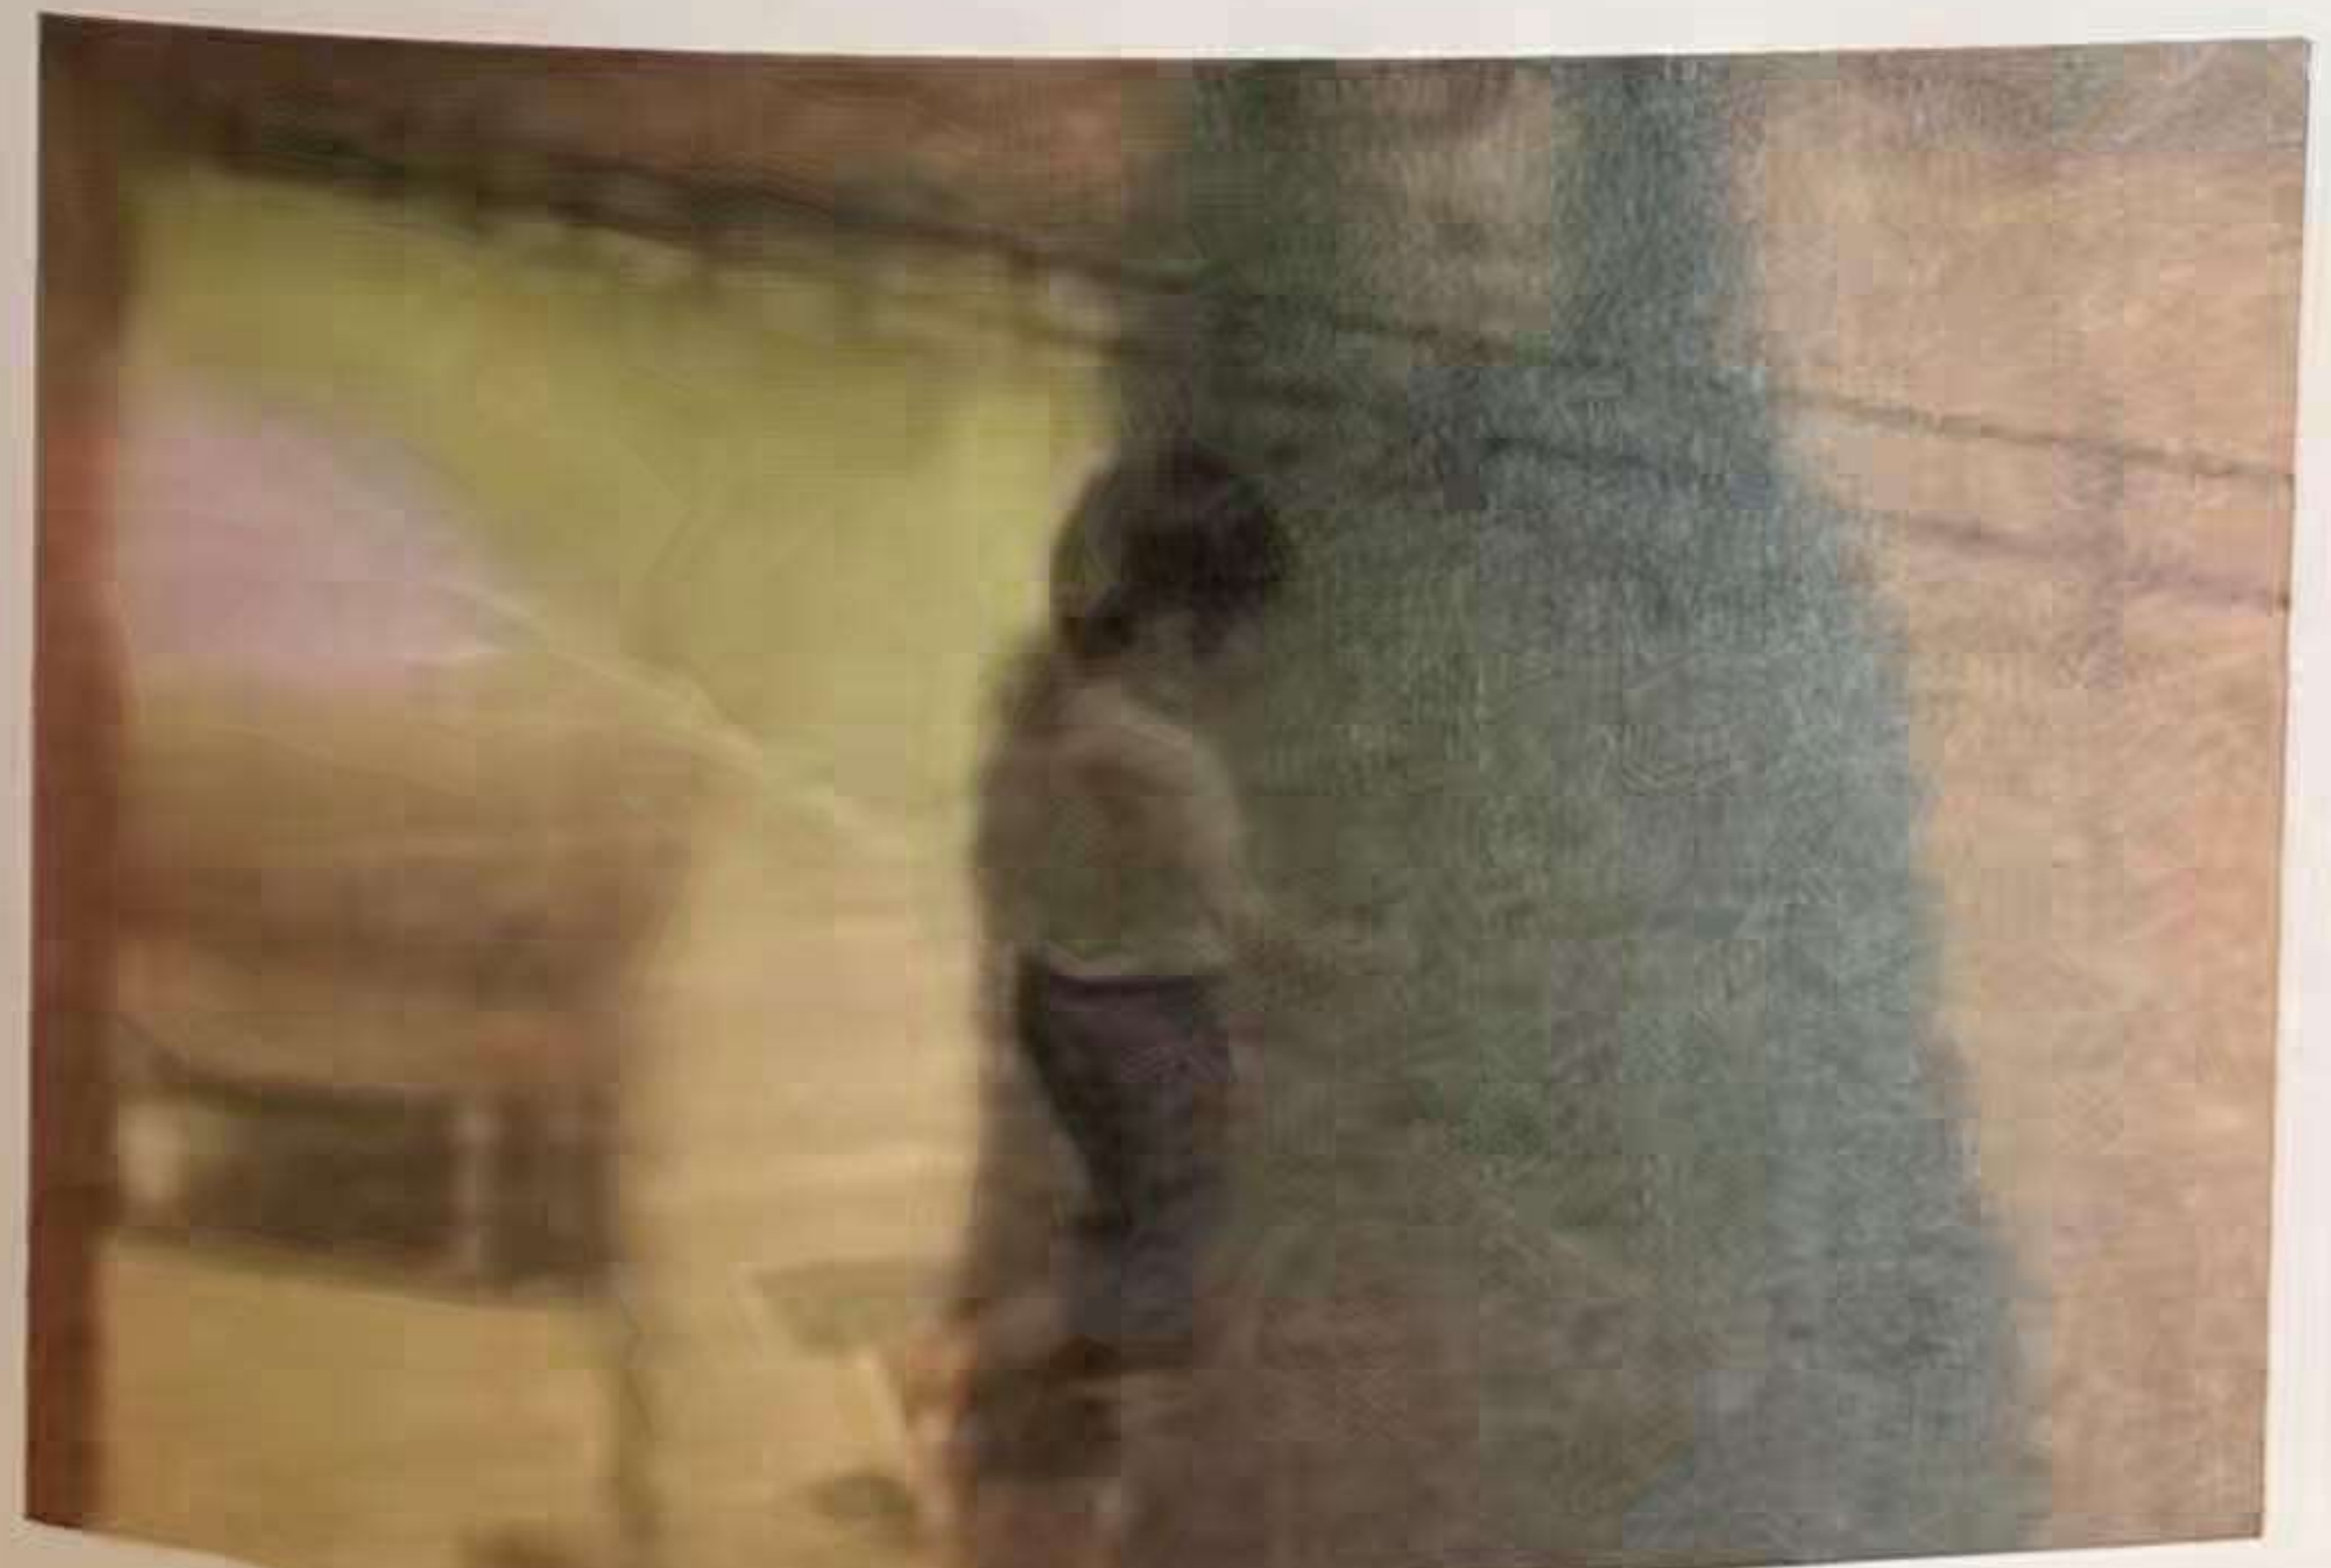
) I am 32 years old. In politically unstable countries, there are many people living in hardship, not even having basic living facilities provided. Annual events only cost money and do not contribute to helping people from an international perspective. We need to reform the excessive leadership of developed countries, allow people all over the world to lead cultural lives, question the necessity of the sex industry (for example, refrain from purchasing luxury goods or eating at high-end restaurants), crack down on illegal drugs (steroid use by athletes, stimulant injections by the general public), and implement environmental conservation measures (effectively utilize food waste from restaurants and homes as feed for seafood). It is necessary for all citizens to participate in social activities. (We are also receiving support from the Imperial Family and various government ministries.)

A flyer thrown into a private home in Tokyo around 2000. It starts with the shocking news of "AIDS Vaccine Completed," but then shifts to criticizing developed countries in the middle, and finally culminates in a plea for volunteer movements, creating a mysterious development. The impact of the opening line, "AIDS vaccine completed with the genes of the Eight Dog Warriors," is so wonderful that the anticlimactic nature of the latter half is regrettable.

▲An ordinary scene...



▲Suddenly, something resembling a human face appears in double exposure.



Furthermore, there's a scene resembling a long-haired woman.

Mysterious Double Exposure Footage

This is a mysterious scene that was captured in a home video recently filmed by Mr. Y, who lives in Kanagawa Prefecture. The video begins with an ordinary family scene, but after a while, the image subtly blurs, and a shadow-like image appears in double exposure. Certainly, the tape itself is a used one that has been repeatedly recorded over, but Mr. Y has no memory of filming such footage. Moreover, he has no idea who the person appearing in the footage is.

The Tragedy of the Body-Doping Maniac

Mysterious Bottling in the Basement of a Certain University

In the basement of a certain university in Tokyo, there is a storage area for research materials that even researchers rarely enter. There, you can find mysterious bottlings like the one in the photo on the right, but no one knows what is preserved in formaldehyde. Apparently, because it looks strangely lifelike, the image has been blurred.

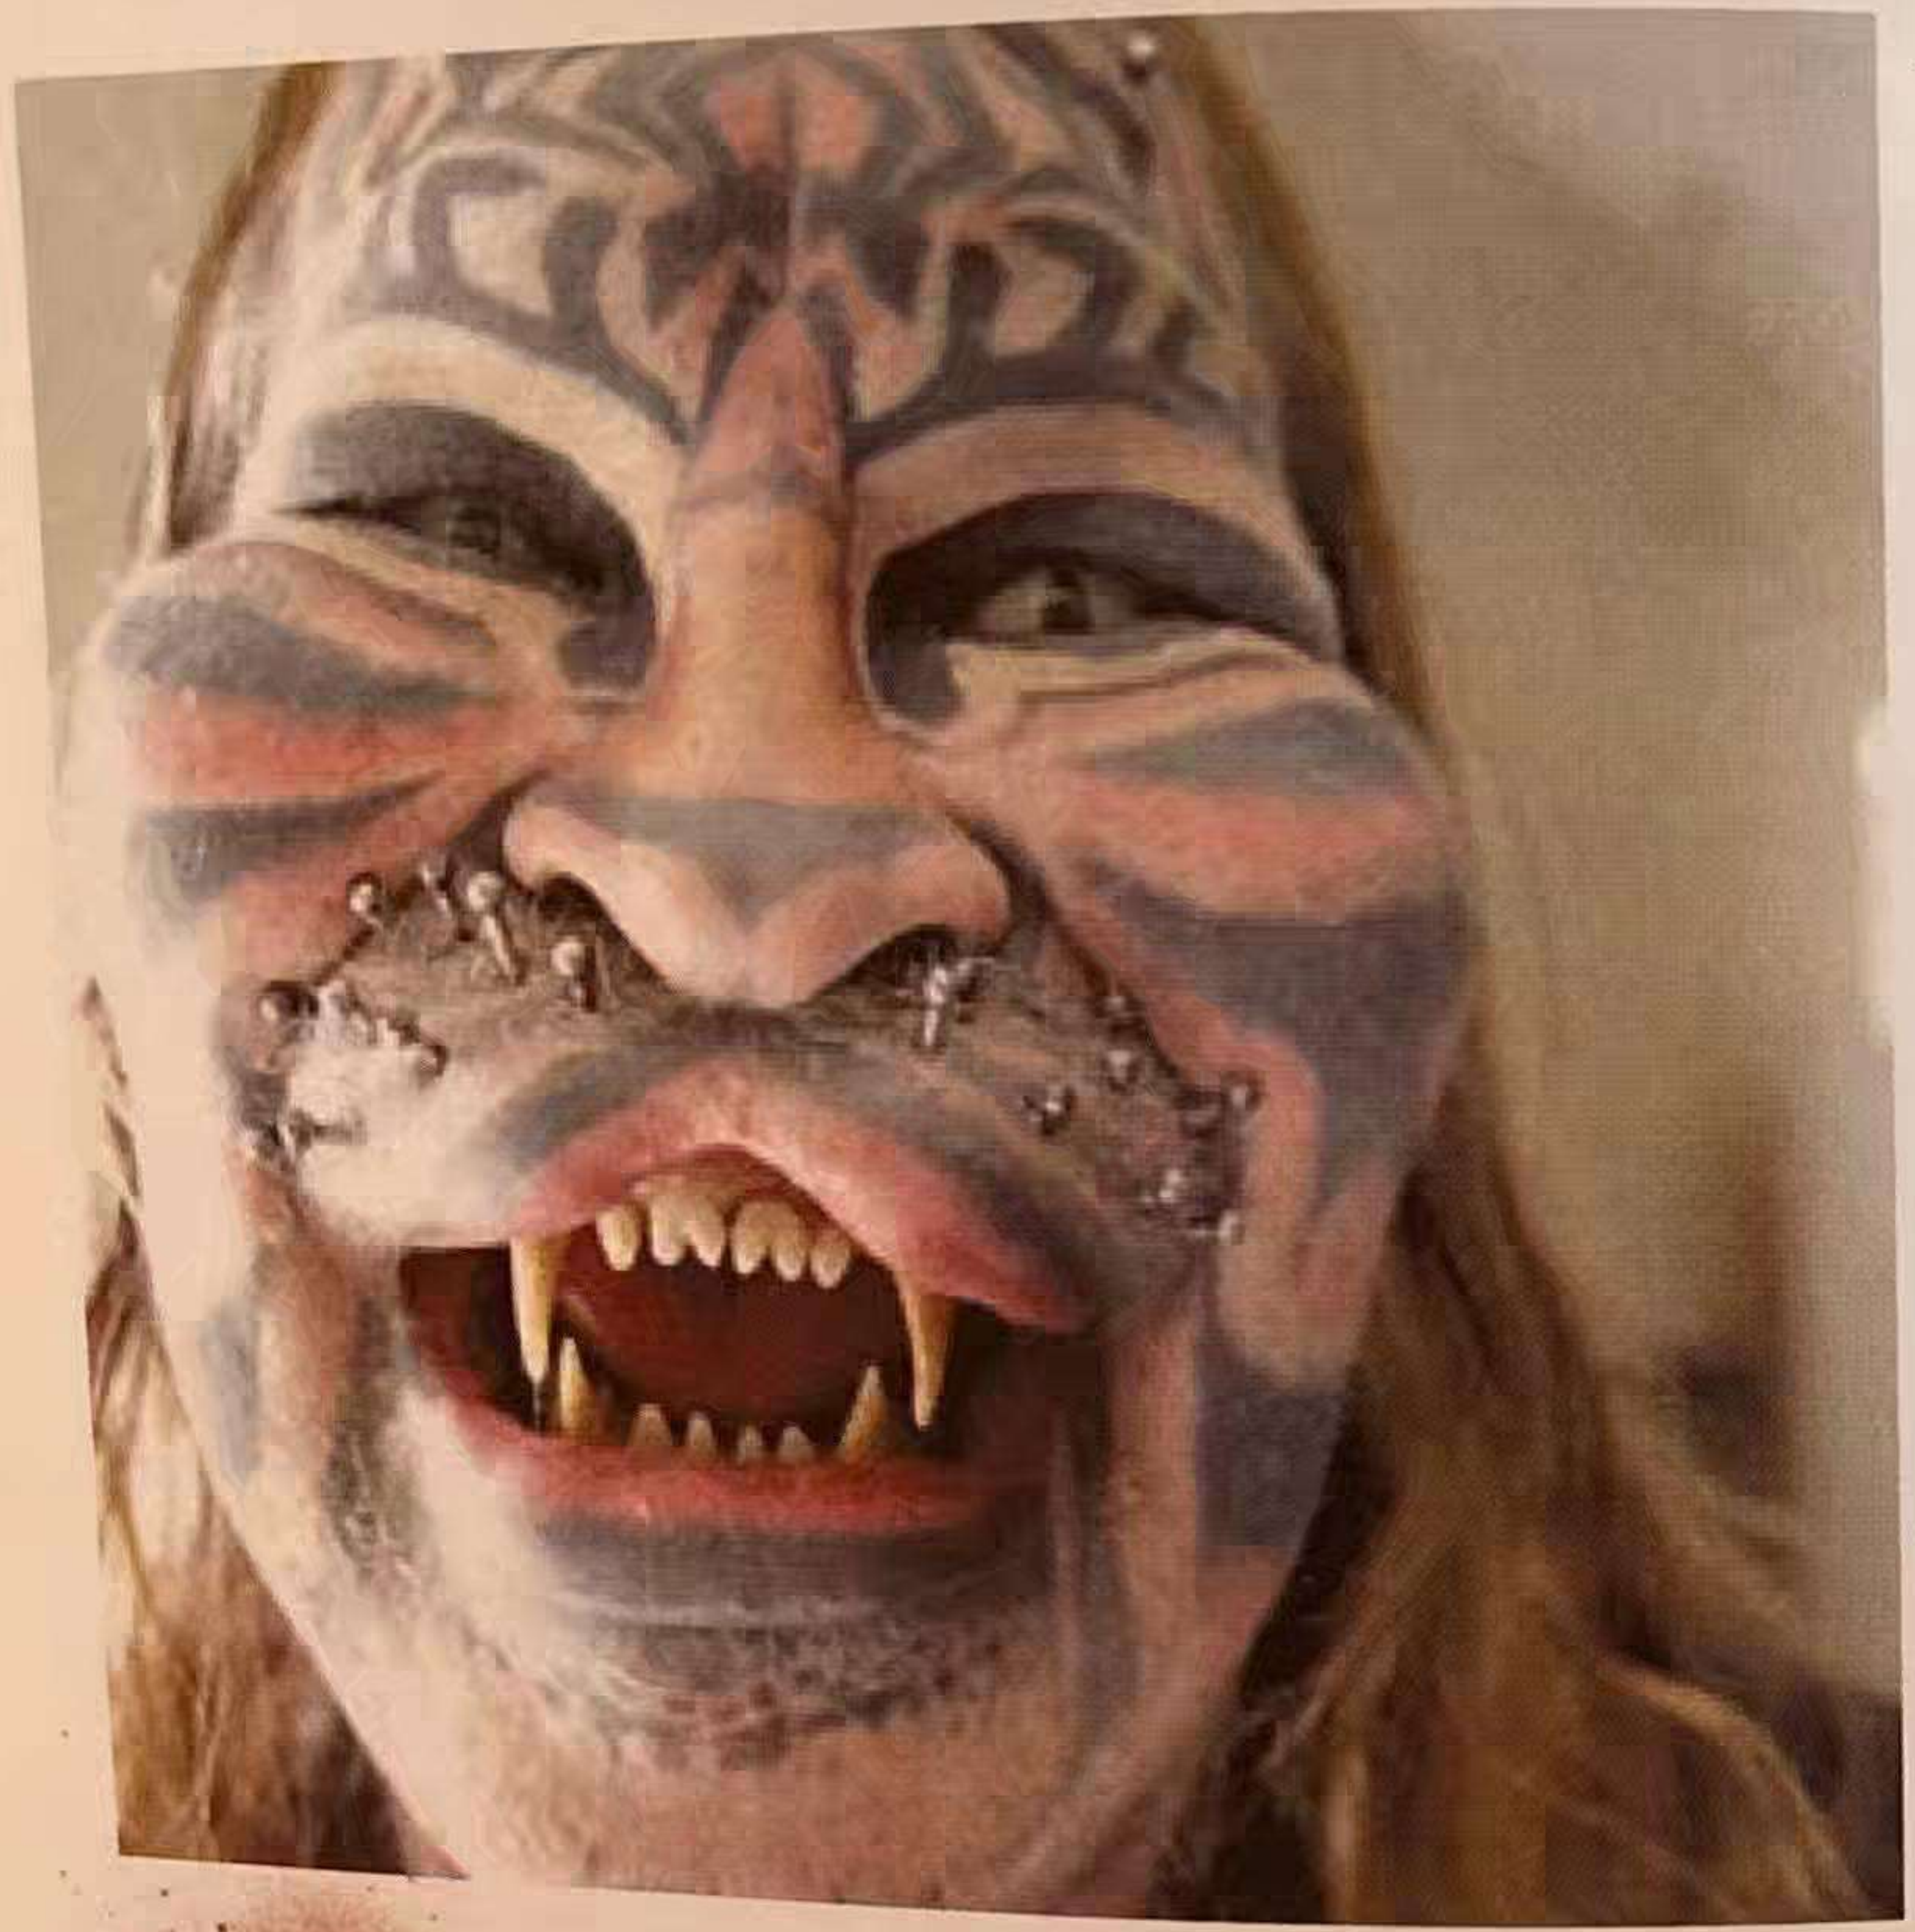
Jackpot

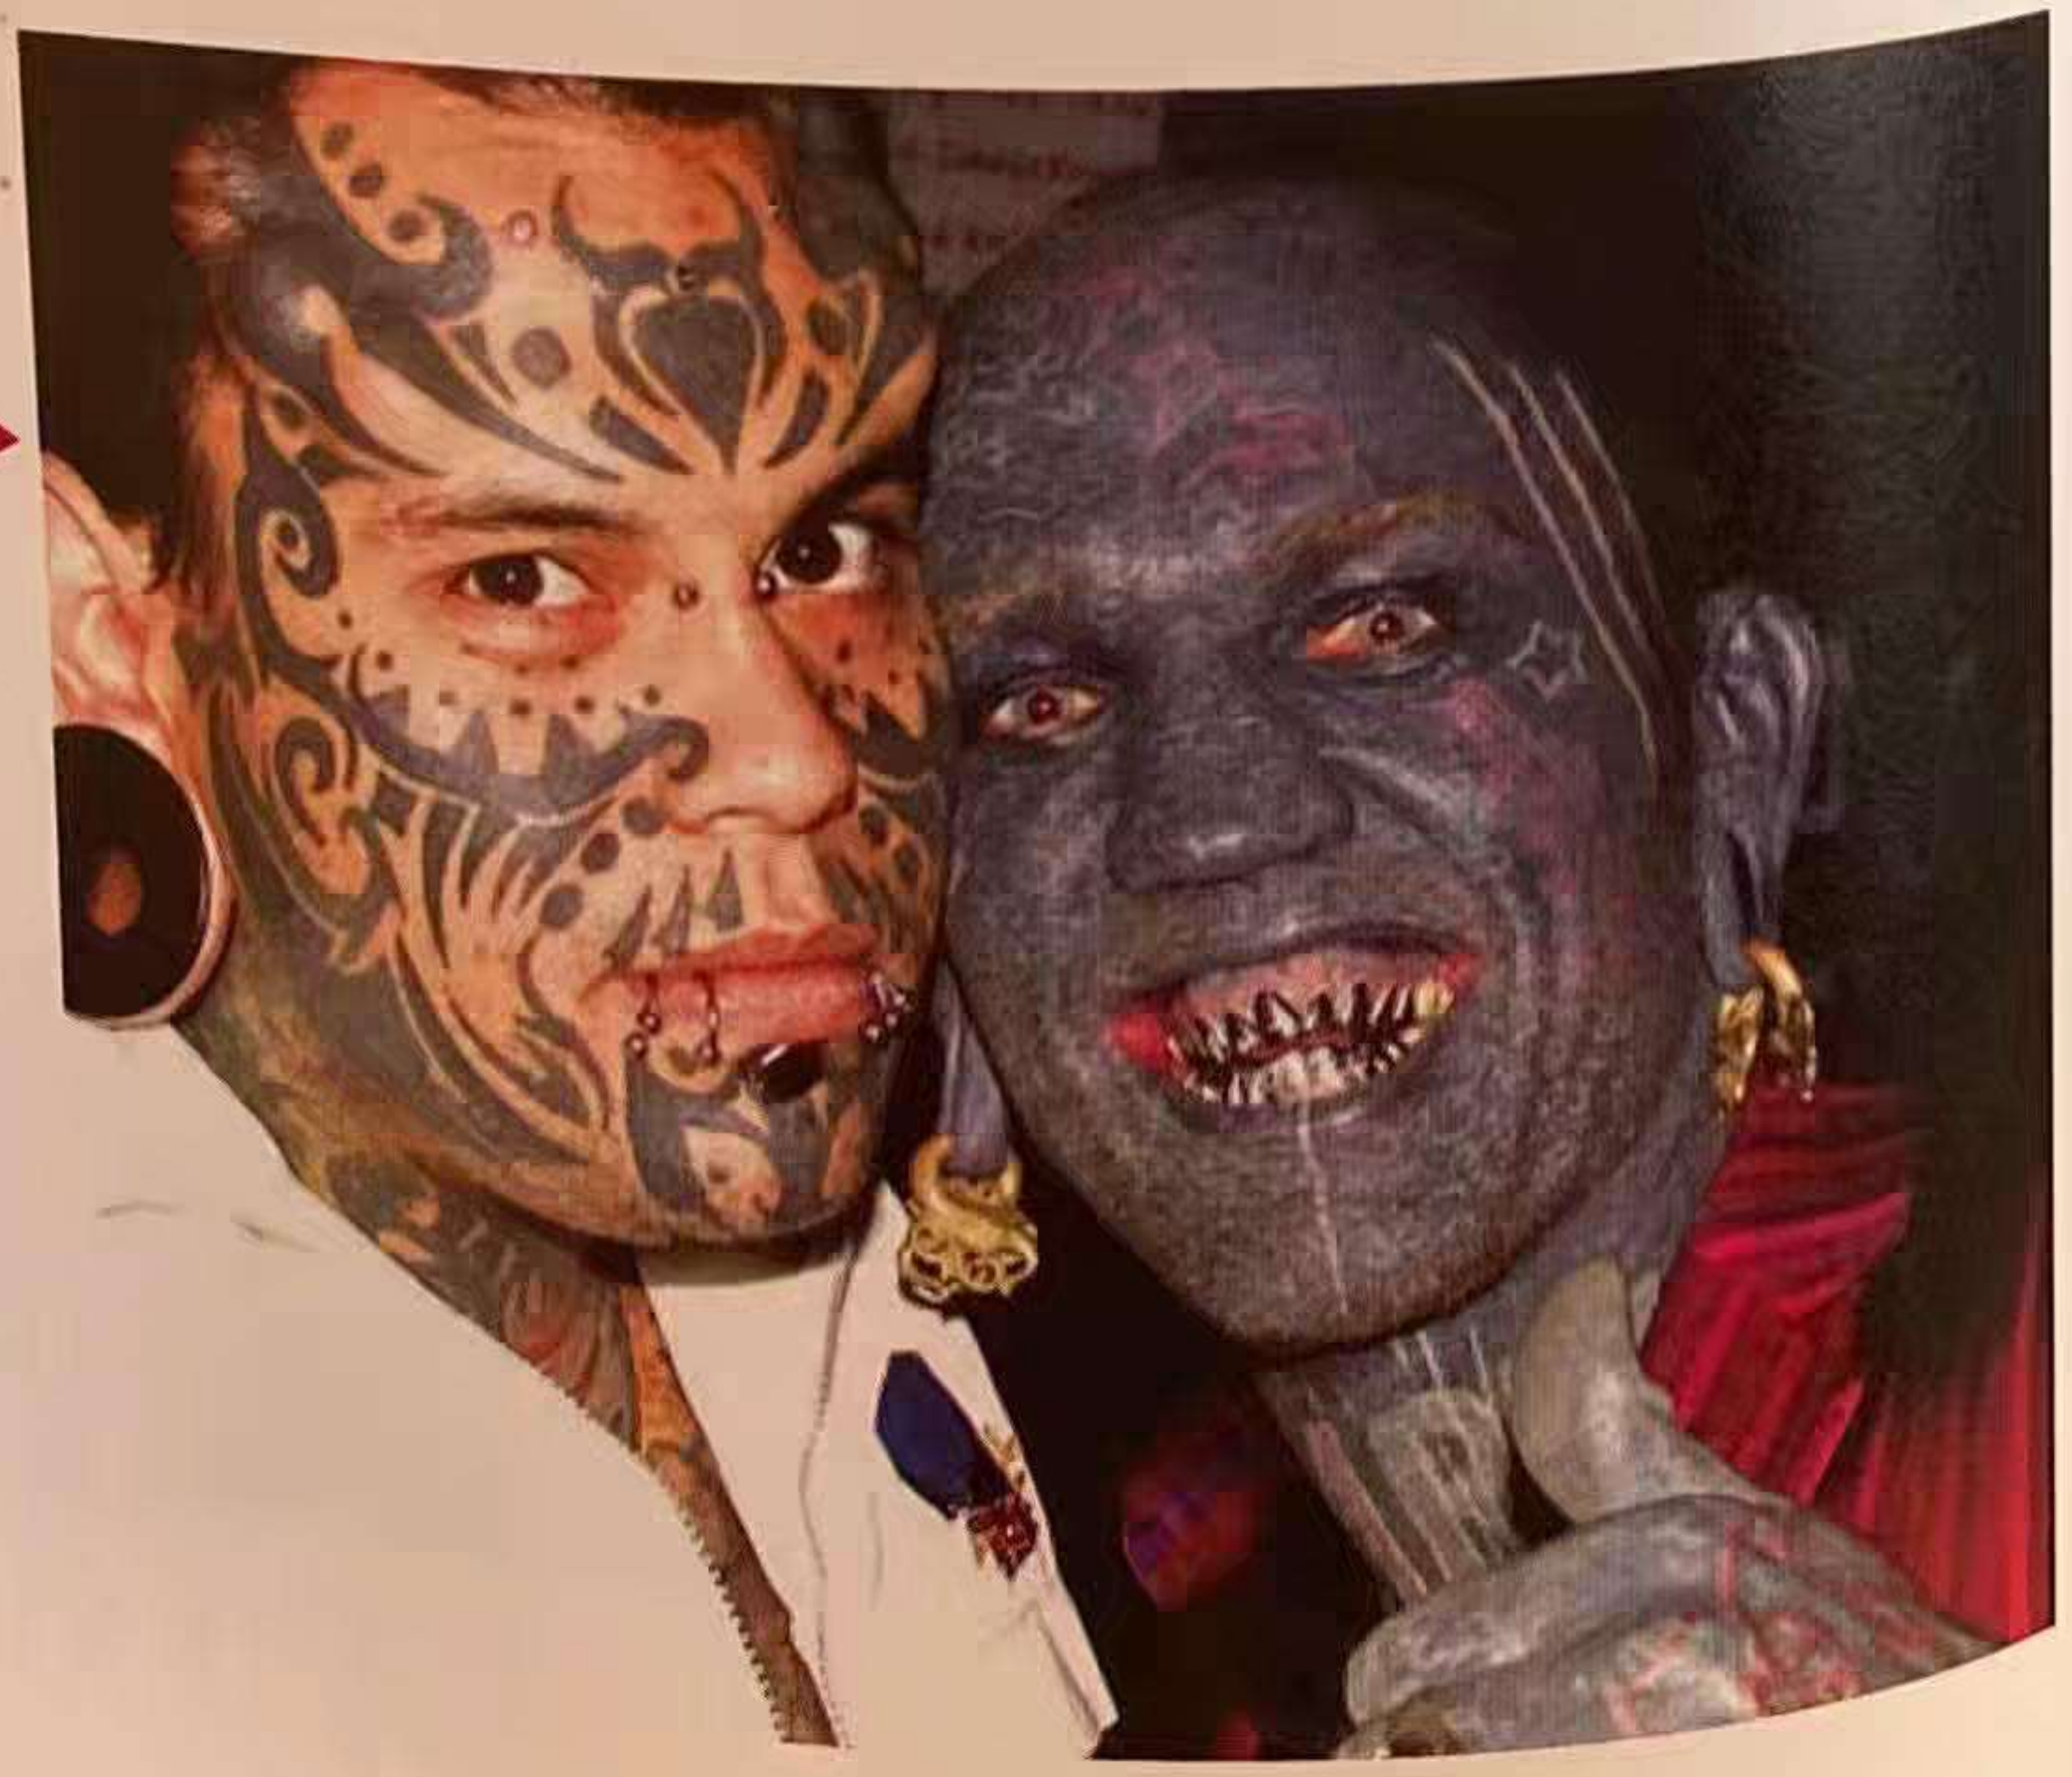
Around 1998, a flyer was posted in Tokyo. "Everyone, have you ever heard of this? Every police station and police box wants money and is being (deceived by) a bad ●● company (group). I am being chased and chased in a car, even at night during work, because they are going to kill me, kill me (omission) All my property has been taken away. Another incident is the murder of three sumo grand champions. A lot of people received dream-like fortunes in these two incidents (omission) The Yakuza are very smart; they immediately fly away and bring back dream-like fortunes." Apparently, the person who wrote this had the delusion that a certain major publisher was hiring Yakuza to kill them. It is unclear what the emphasized "jackpot" at the end refers to.

Cat Woman



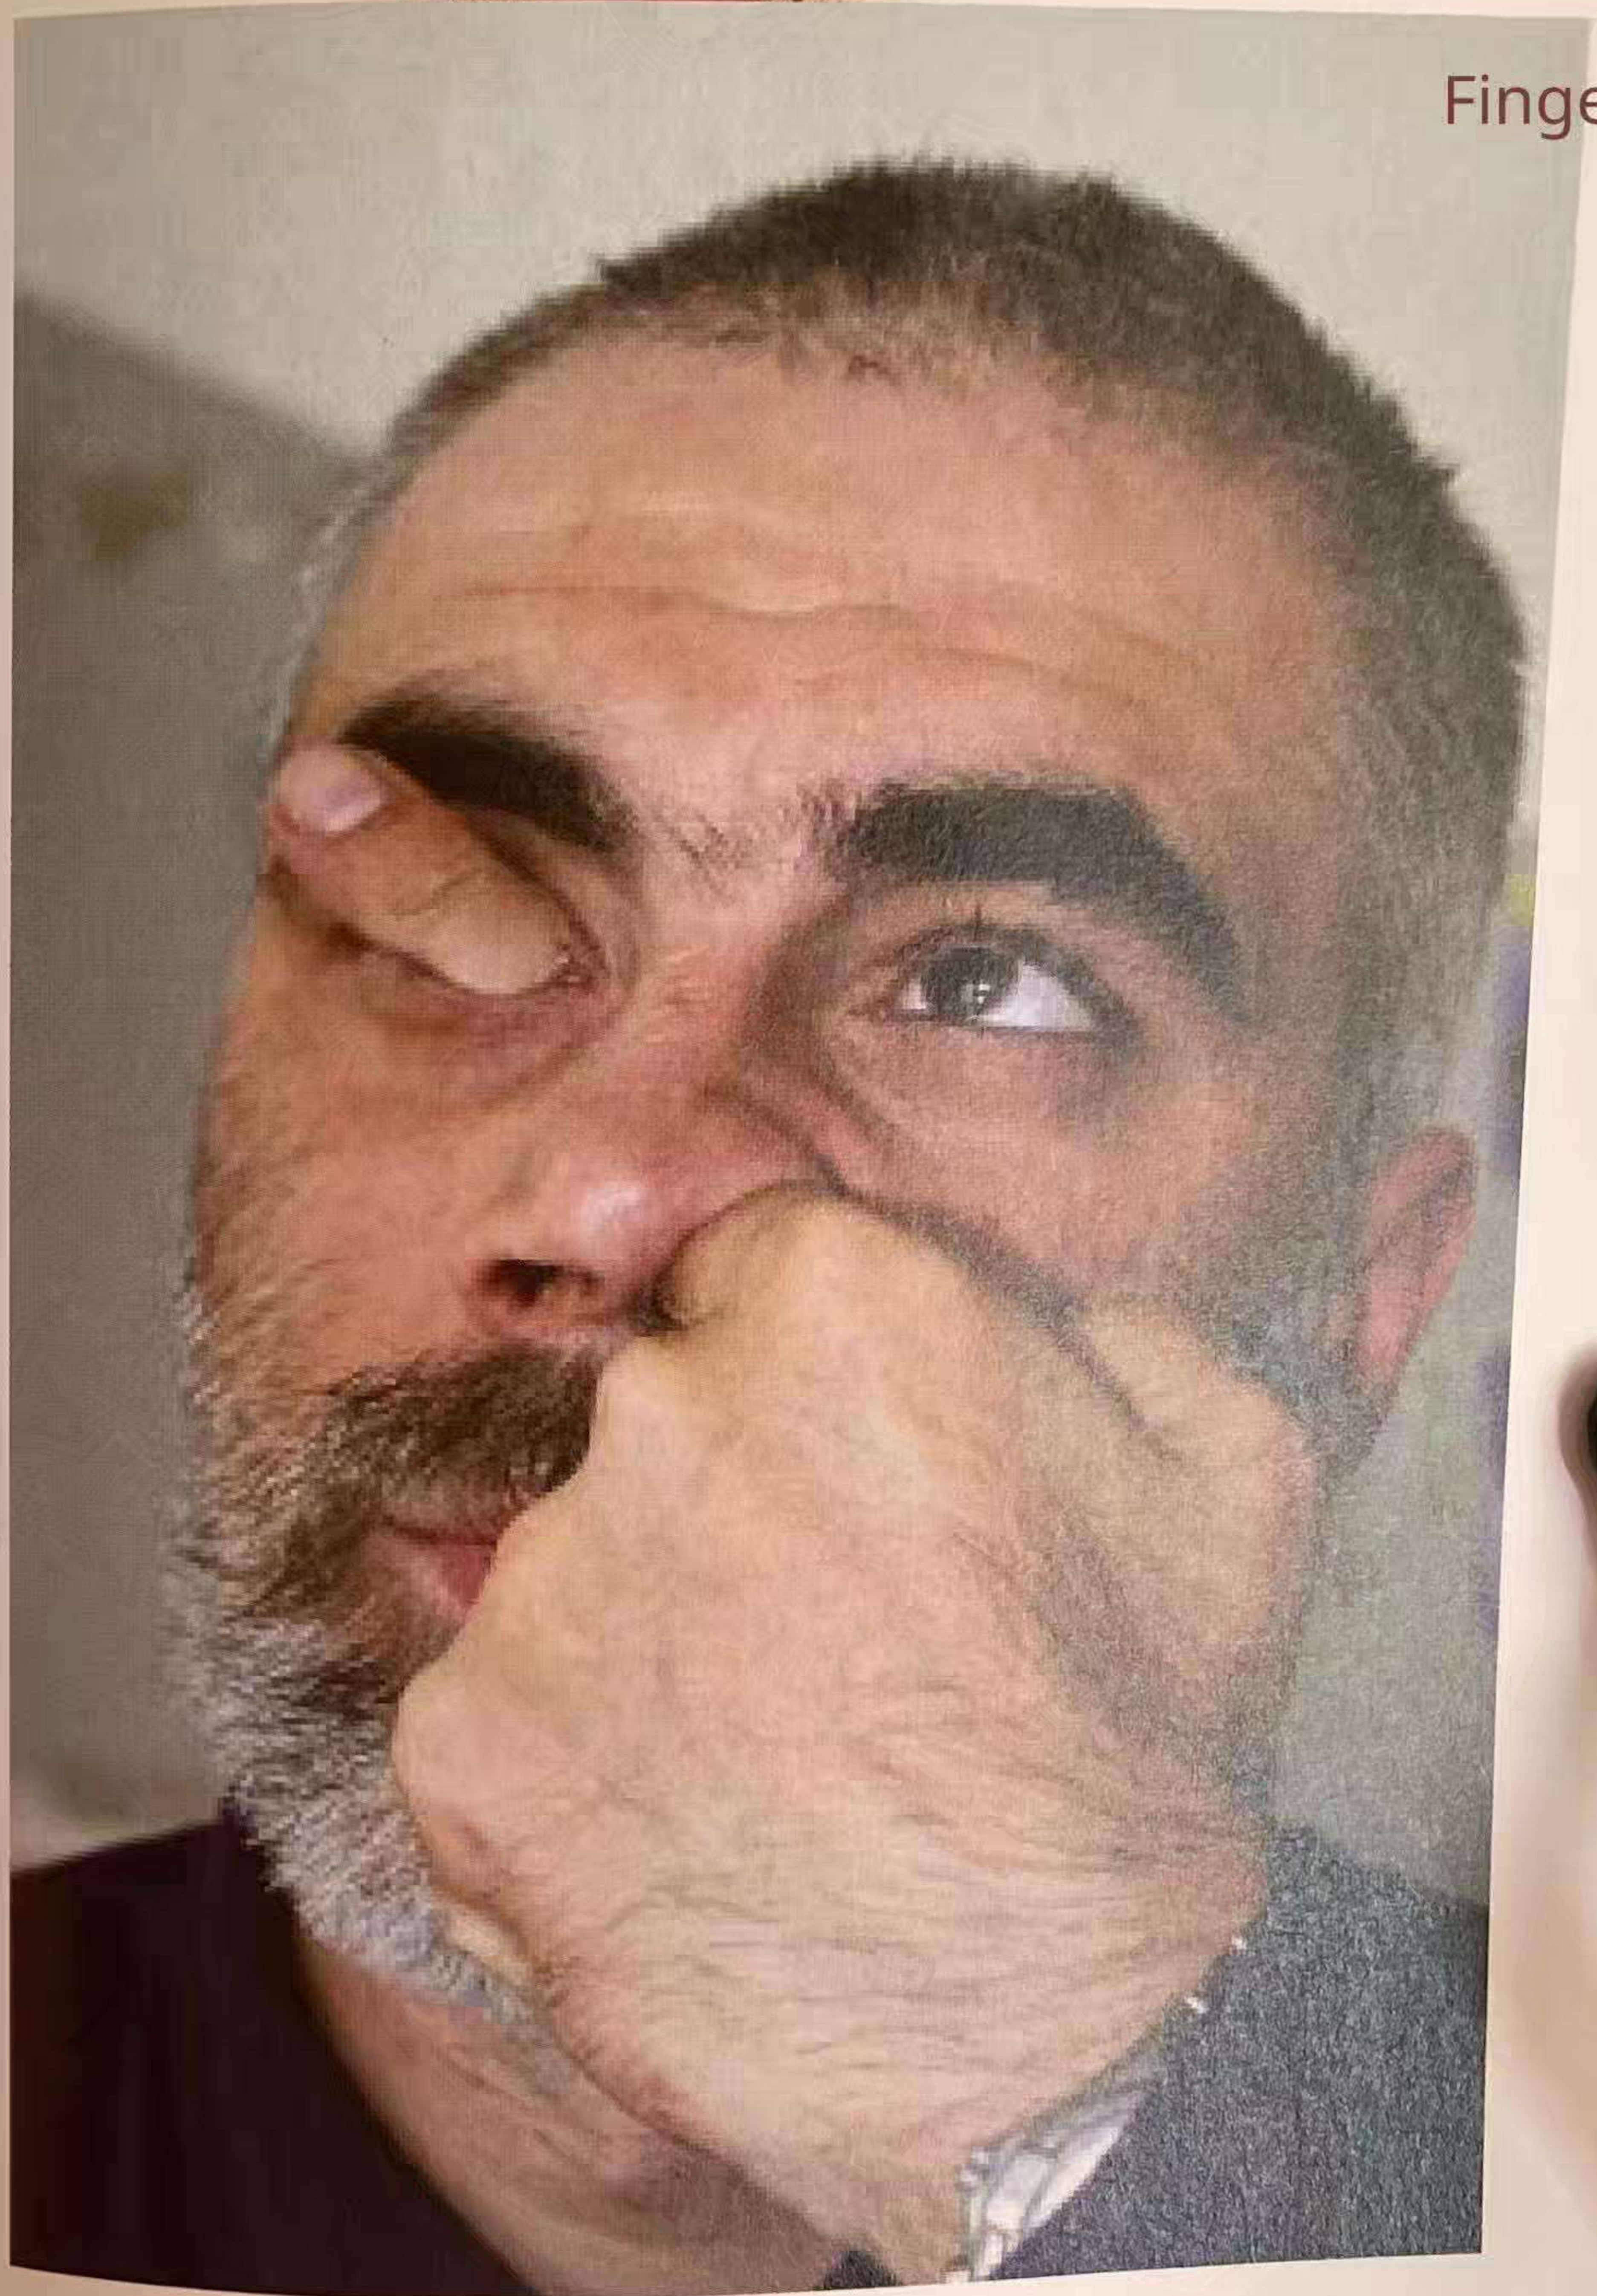
[She is a very famous person in the American tattoo industry, and she decided to turn herself into a cat because she has loved cats since she was a child. The patterns on her entire body are tattoos, the roundness of her cheeks is silicone, and the whiskers are expressed with pin body piercings.

Lizard Man



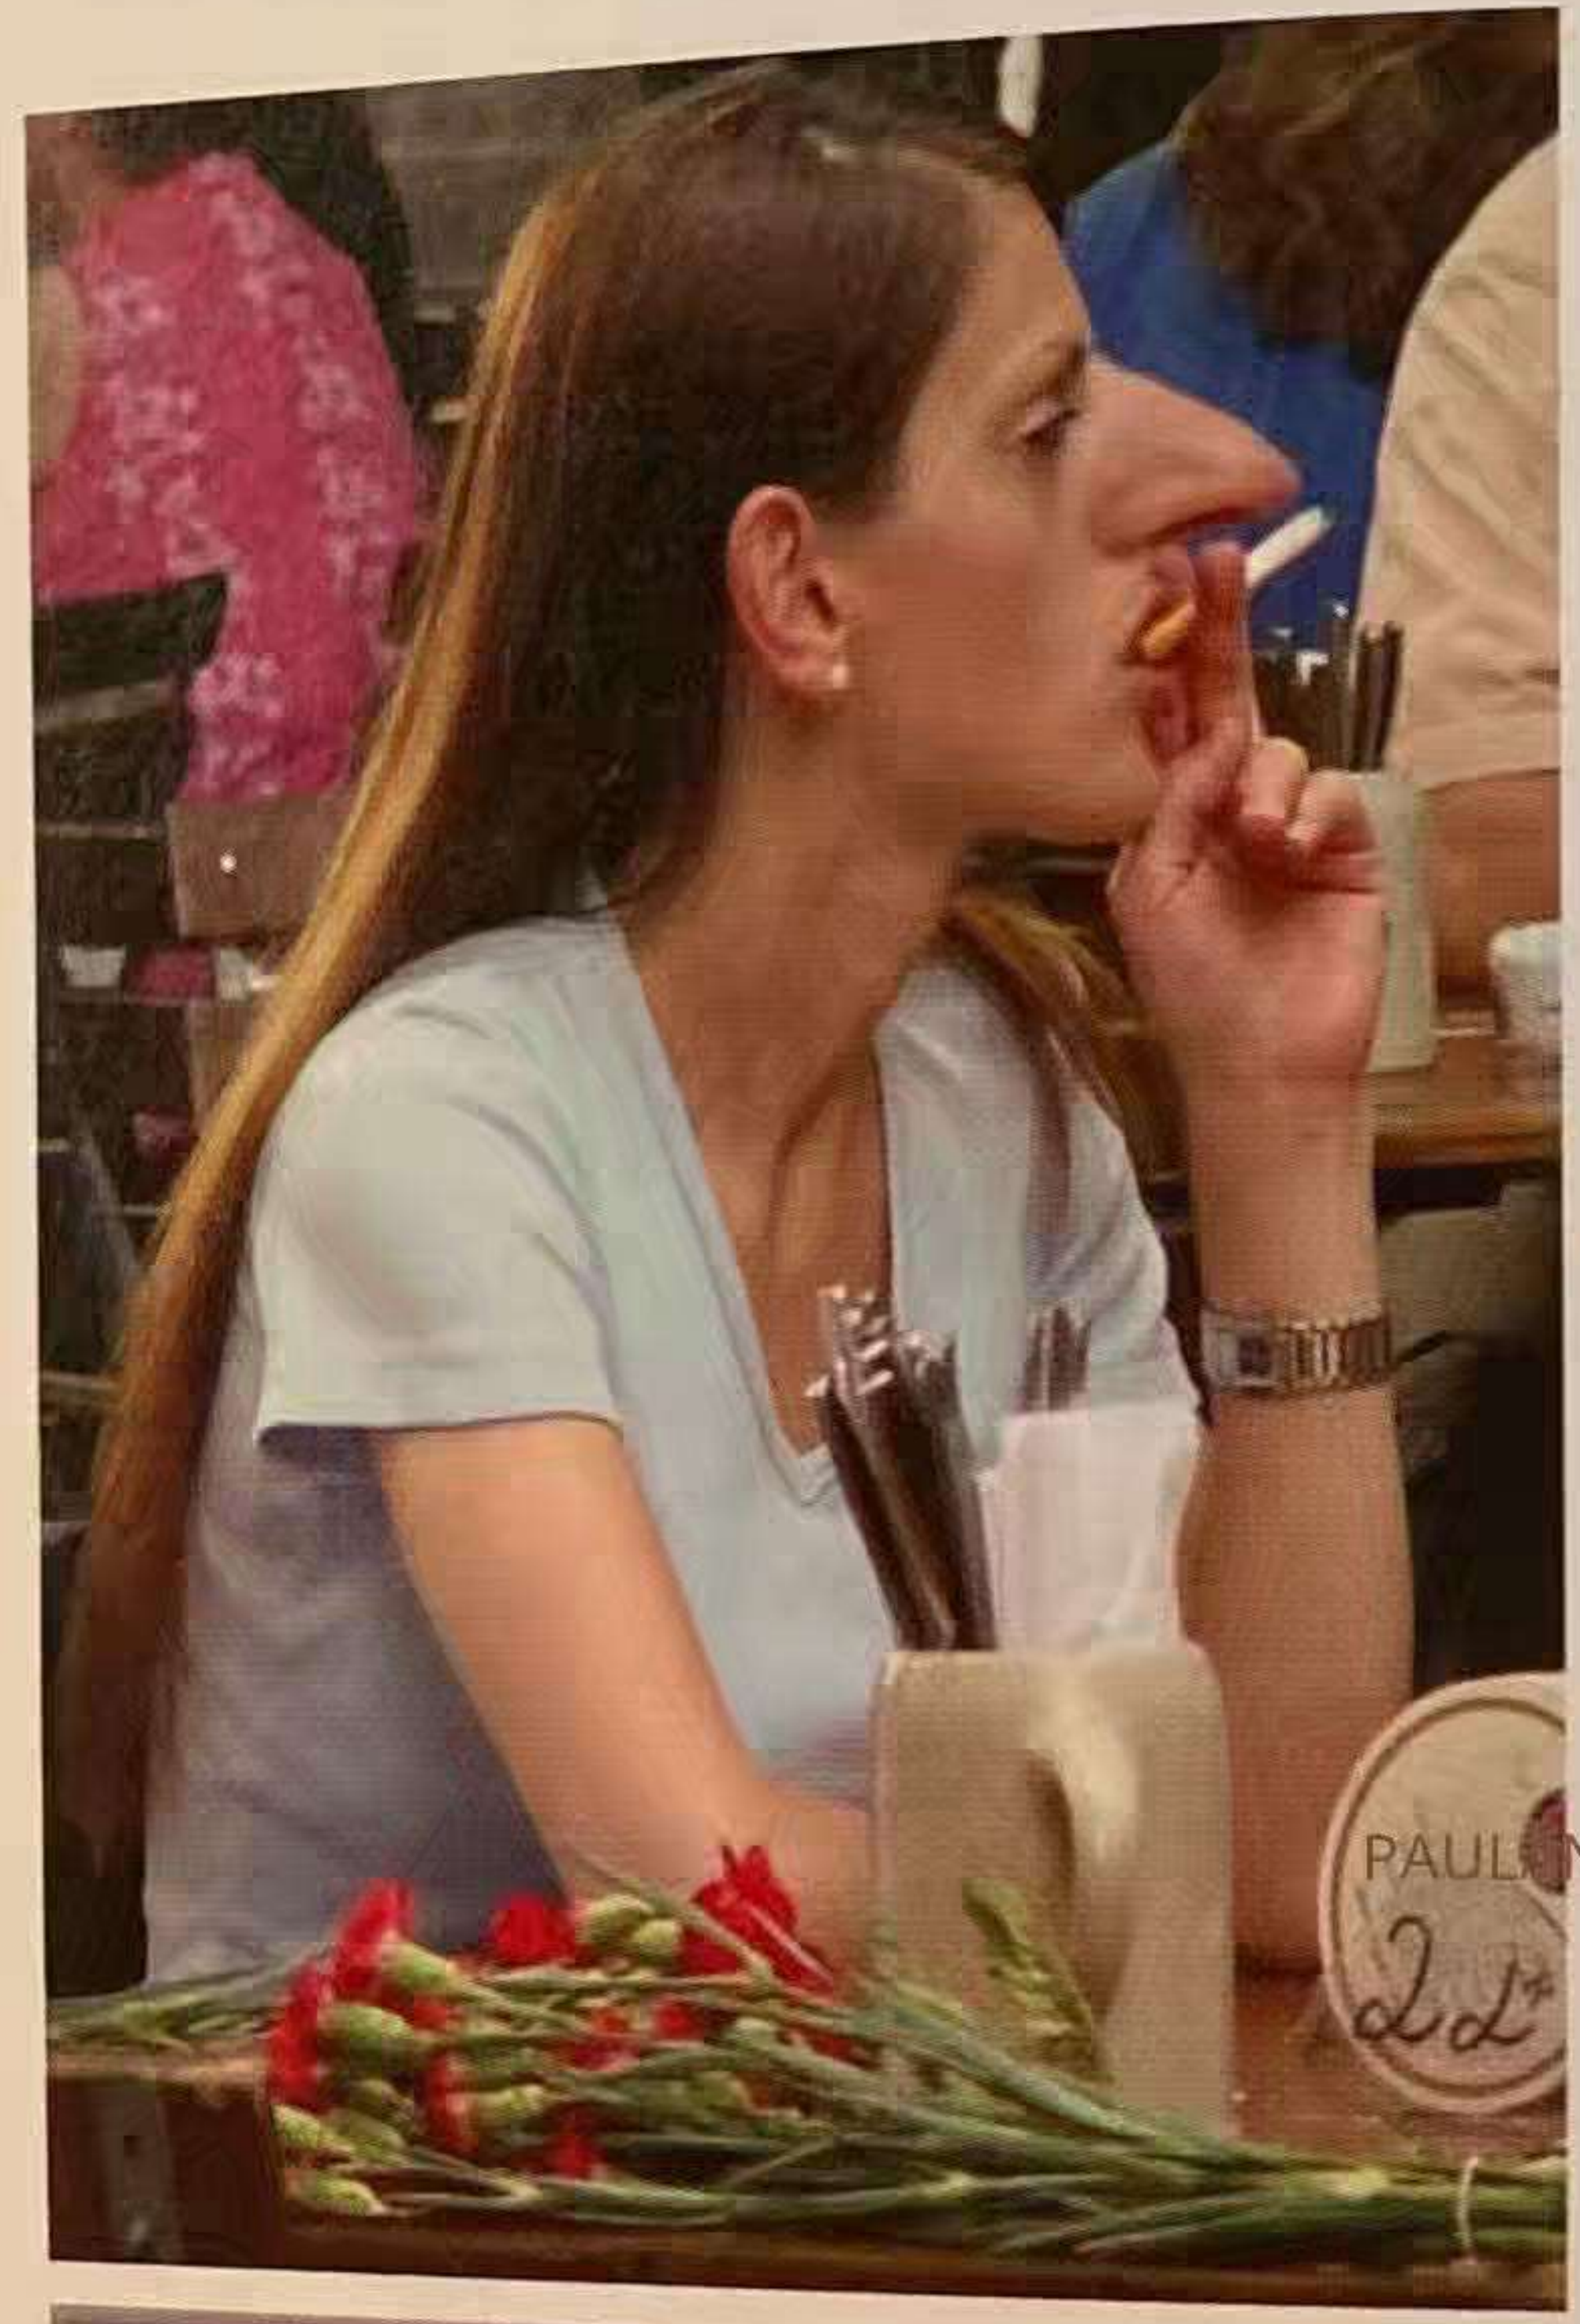
This is also the so-called "Lizard Man," known to everyone in the tattoo industry. However, he didn't admire lizards; it seems that he just naturally developed a lizard-like appearance as he got tattoos all over his body.

Finger-Piercing Man



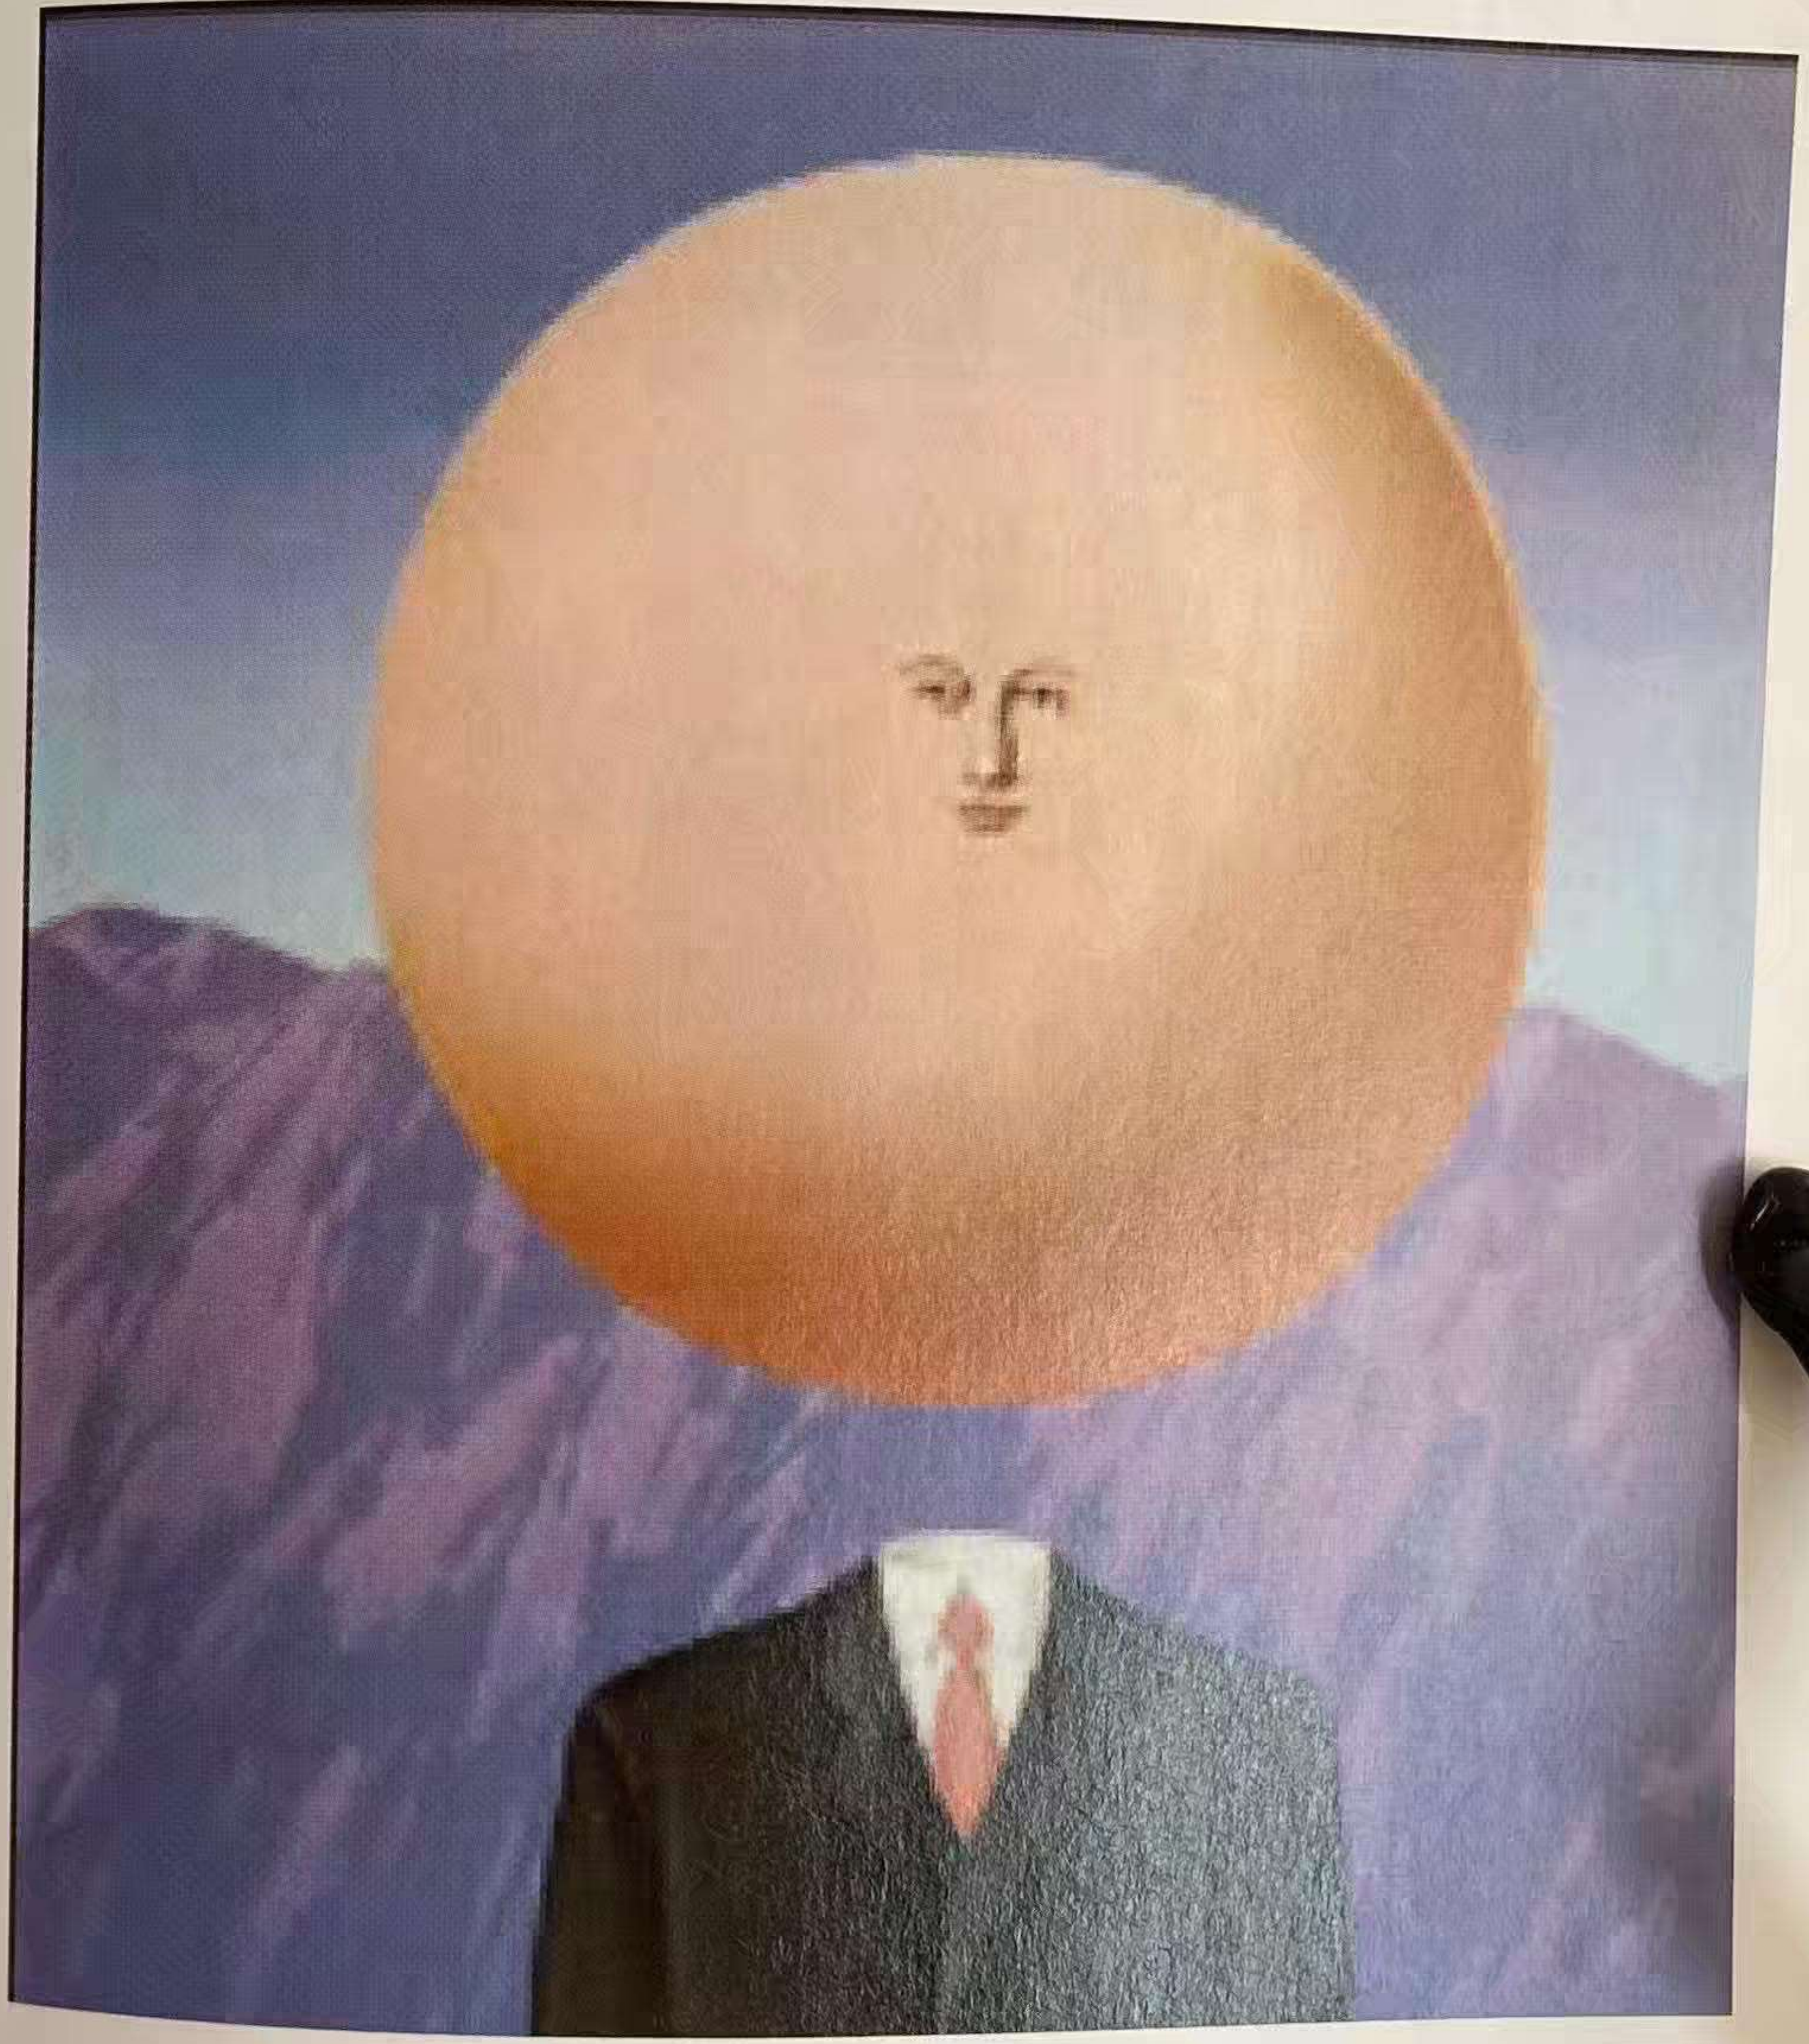
The photo shows a 56-year-old man living in America. As a boy, he had the special skill of putting a rope in his nose and taking it out of his mouth, but it gradually escalated, and next, he mastered the technique of expelling water that he put in his nose from his eyes. Furthermore, he learned the art of expelling cigarette smoke from his eyes, and finally, he reached the stage of piercing his finger as you can see.

Women Who Made Their Noses Too High



A high nose has always been the desire of women, but recently, due to the development of plastic surgery techniques, it has become possible to make the nose excessively high, as with the women featured here. Most women initially alter their noses to a moderate height, but it gradually escalates, and eventually, they apparently undergo surgery to increase the height far beyond the average.

Self-Image Painting of a Painter Who Died Distressed by His Own Looks



This is a work painted by a painter living in Italy, right before he took his own life. Until his final moments, this painter was tormented by the thought that "his face was not a human face," and he remained unconvinced even when those around him tried to persuade him that he had "a normal face." Therefore, he painted this self-portrait in an attempt to convince those around him. For him, this painting was apparently the most faithful representation of his own image.

A man who loves cars too much

■I apologize for the idiotic image, but he is very serious. He suffers from a disease called "Autosexualism," a condition where he can only genuinely love cars. The man in the photo cannot achieve orgasm unless he inserts his penis somewhere in the car.

A man who got too much hair growth

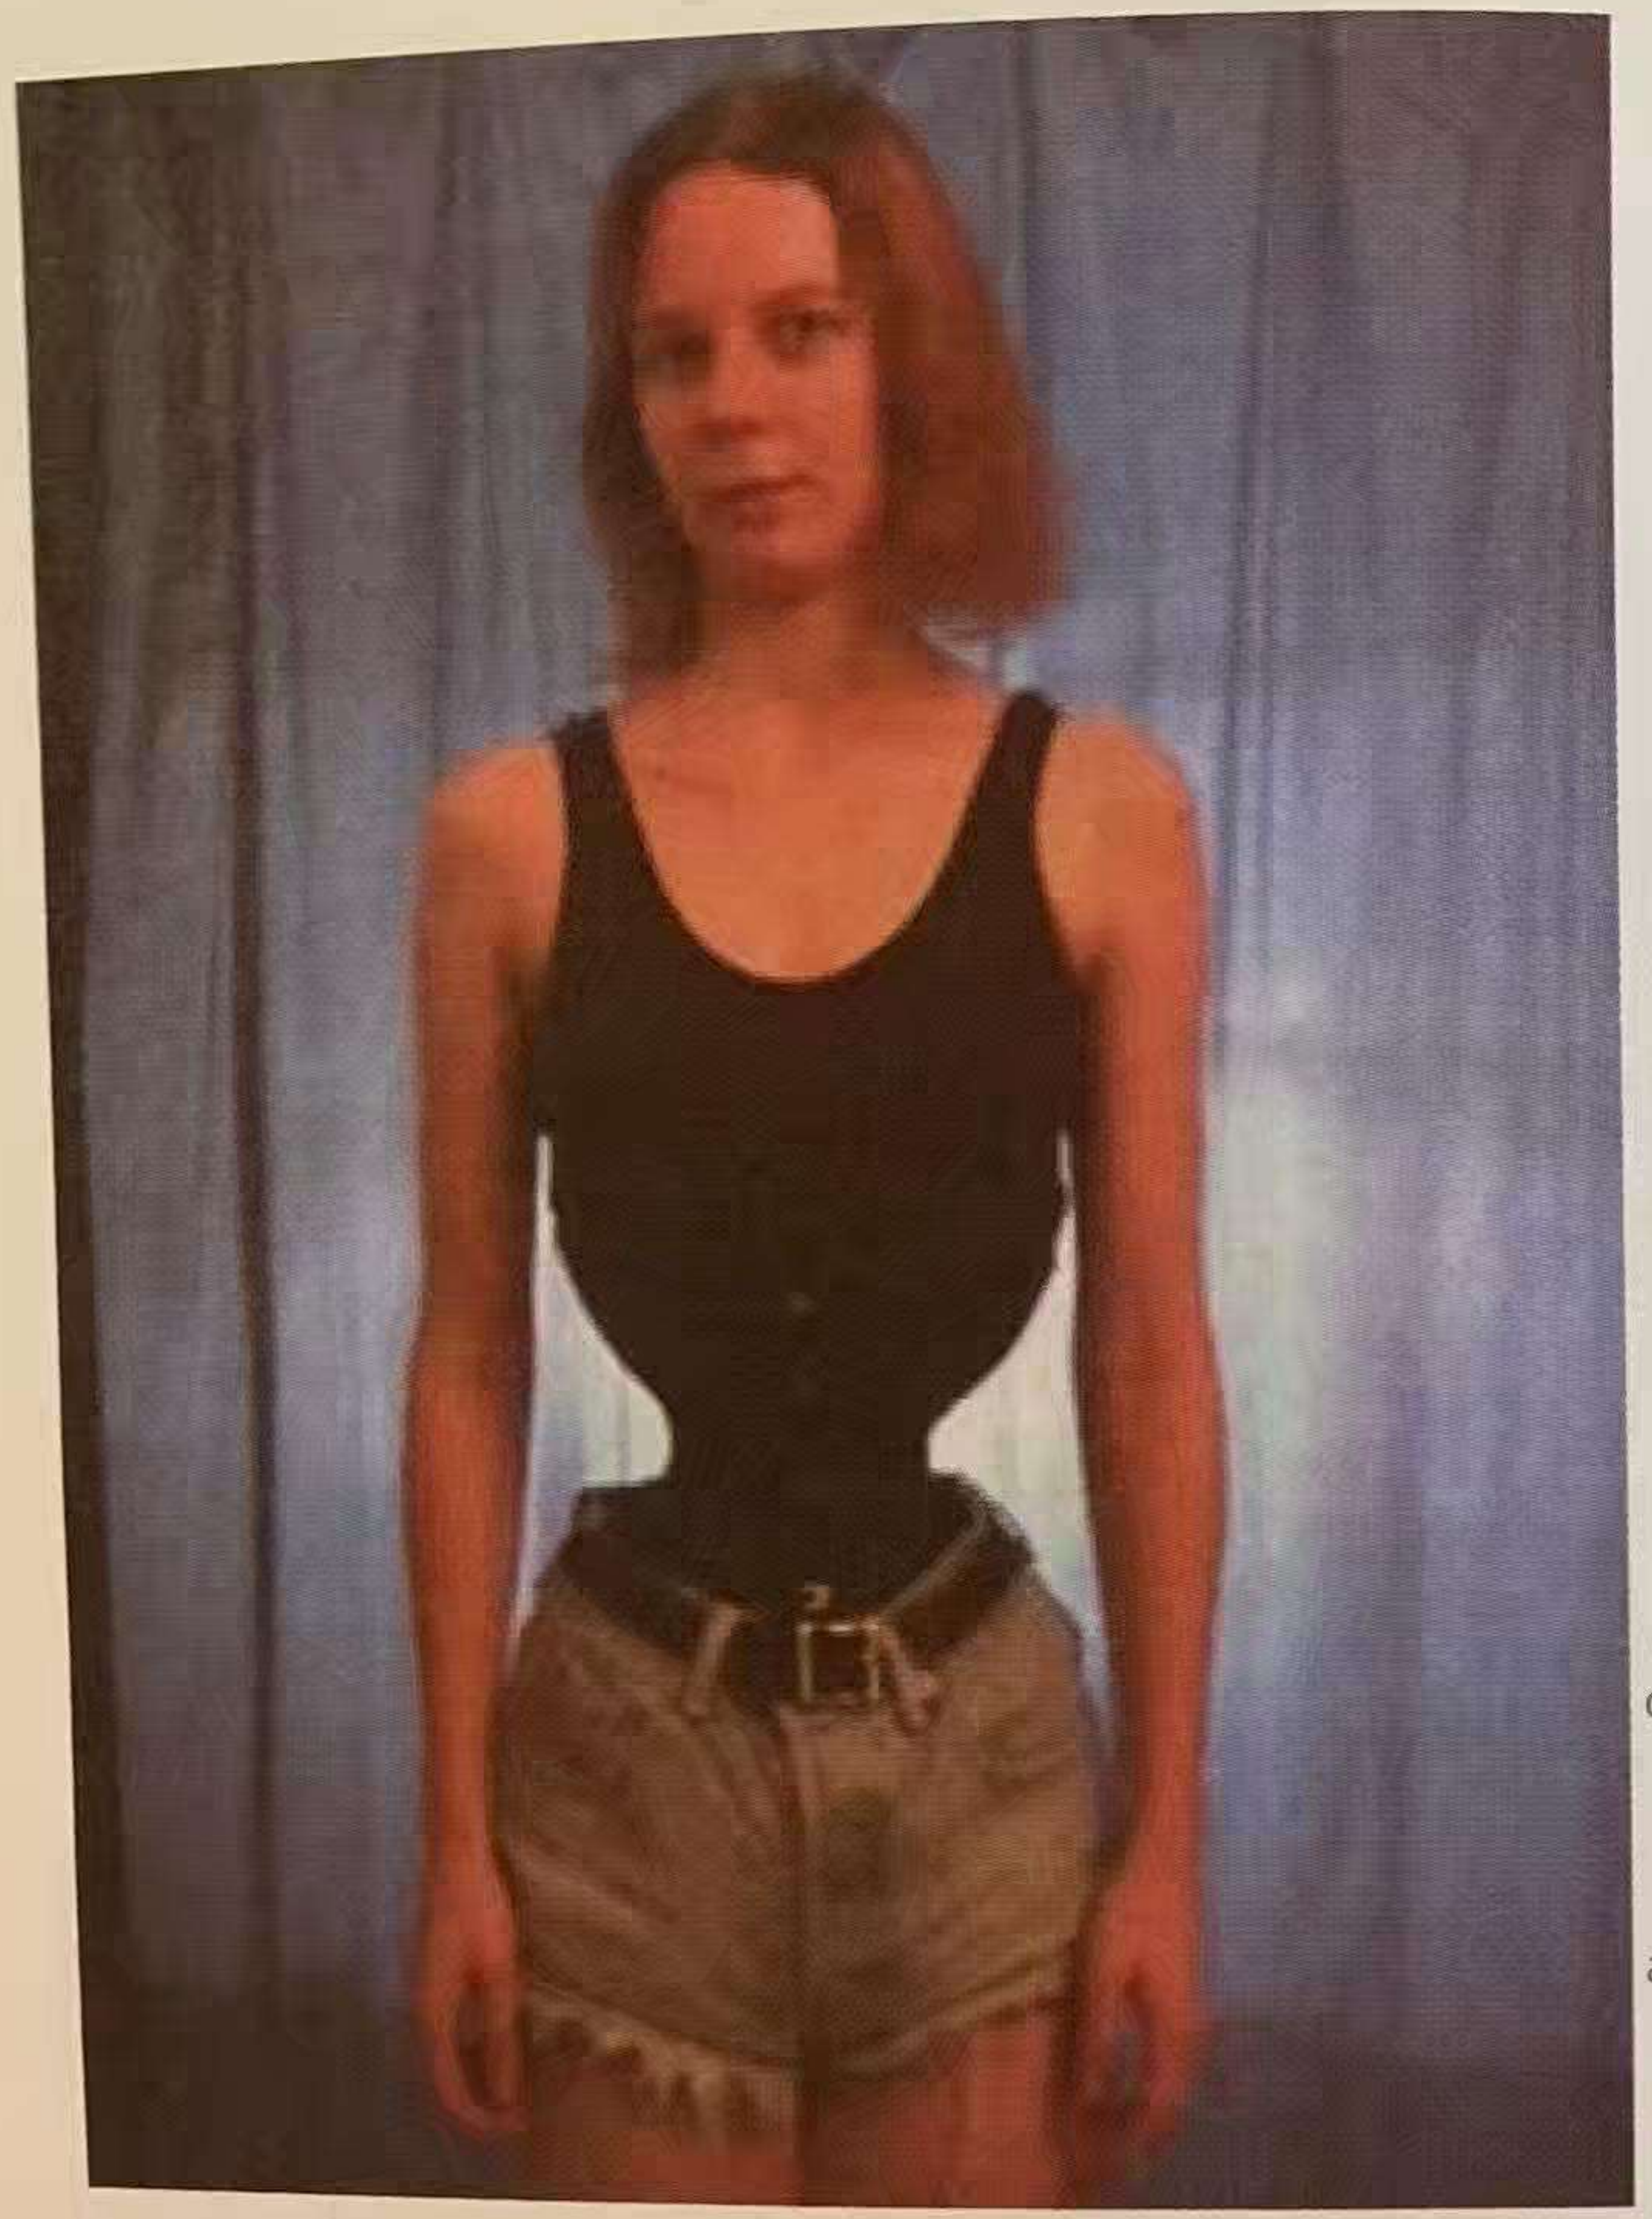
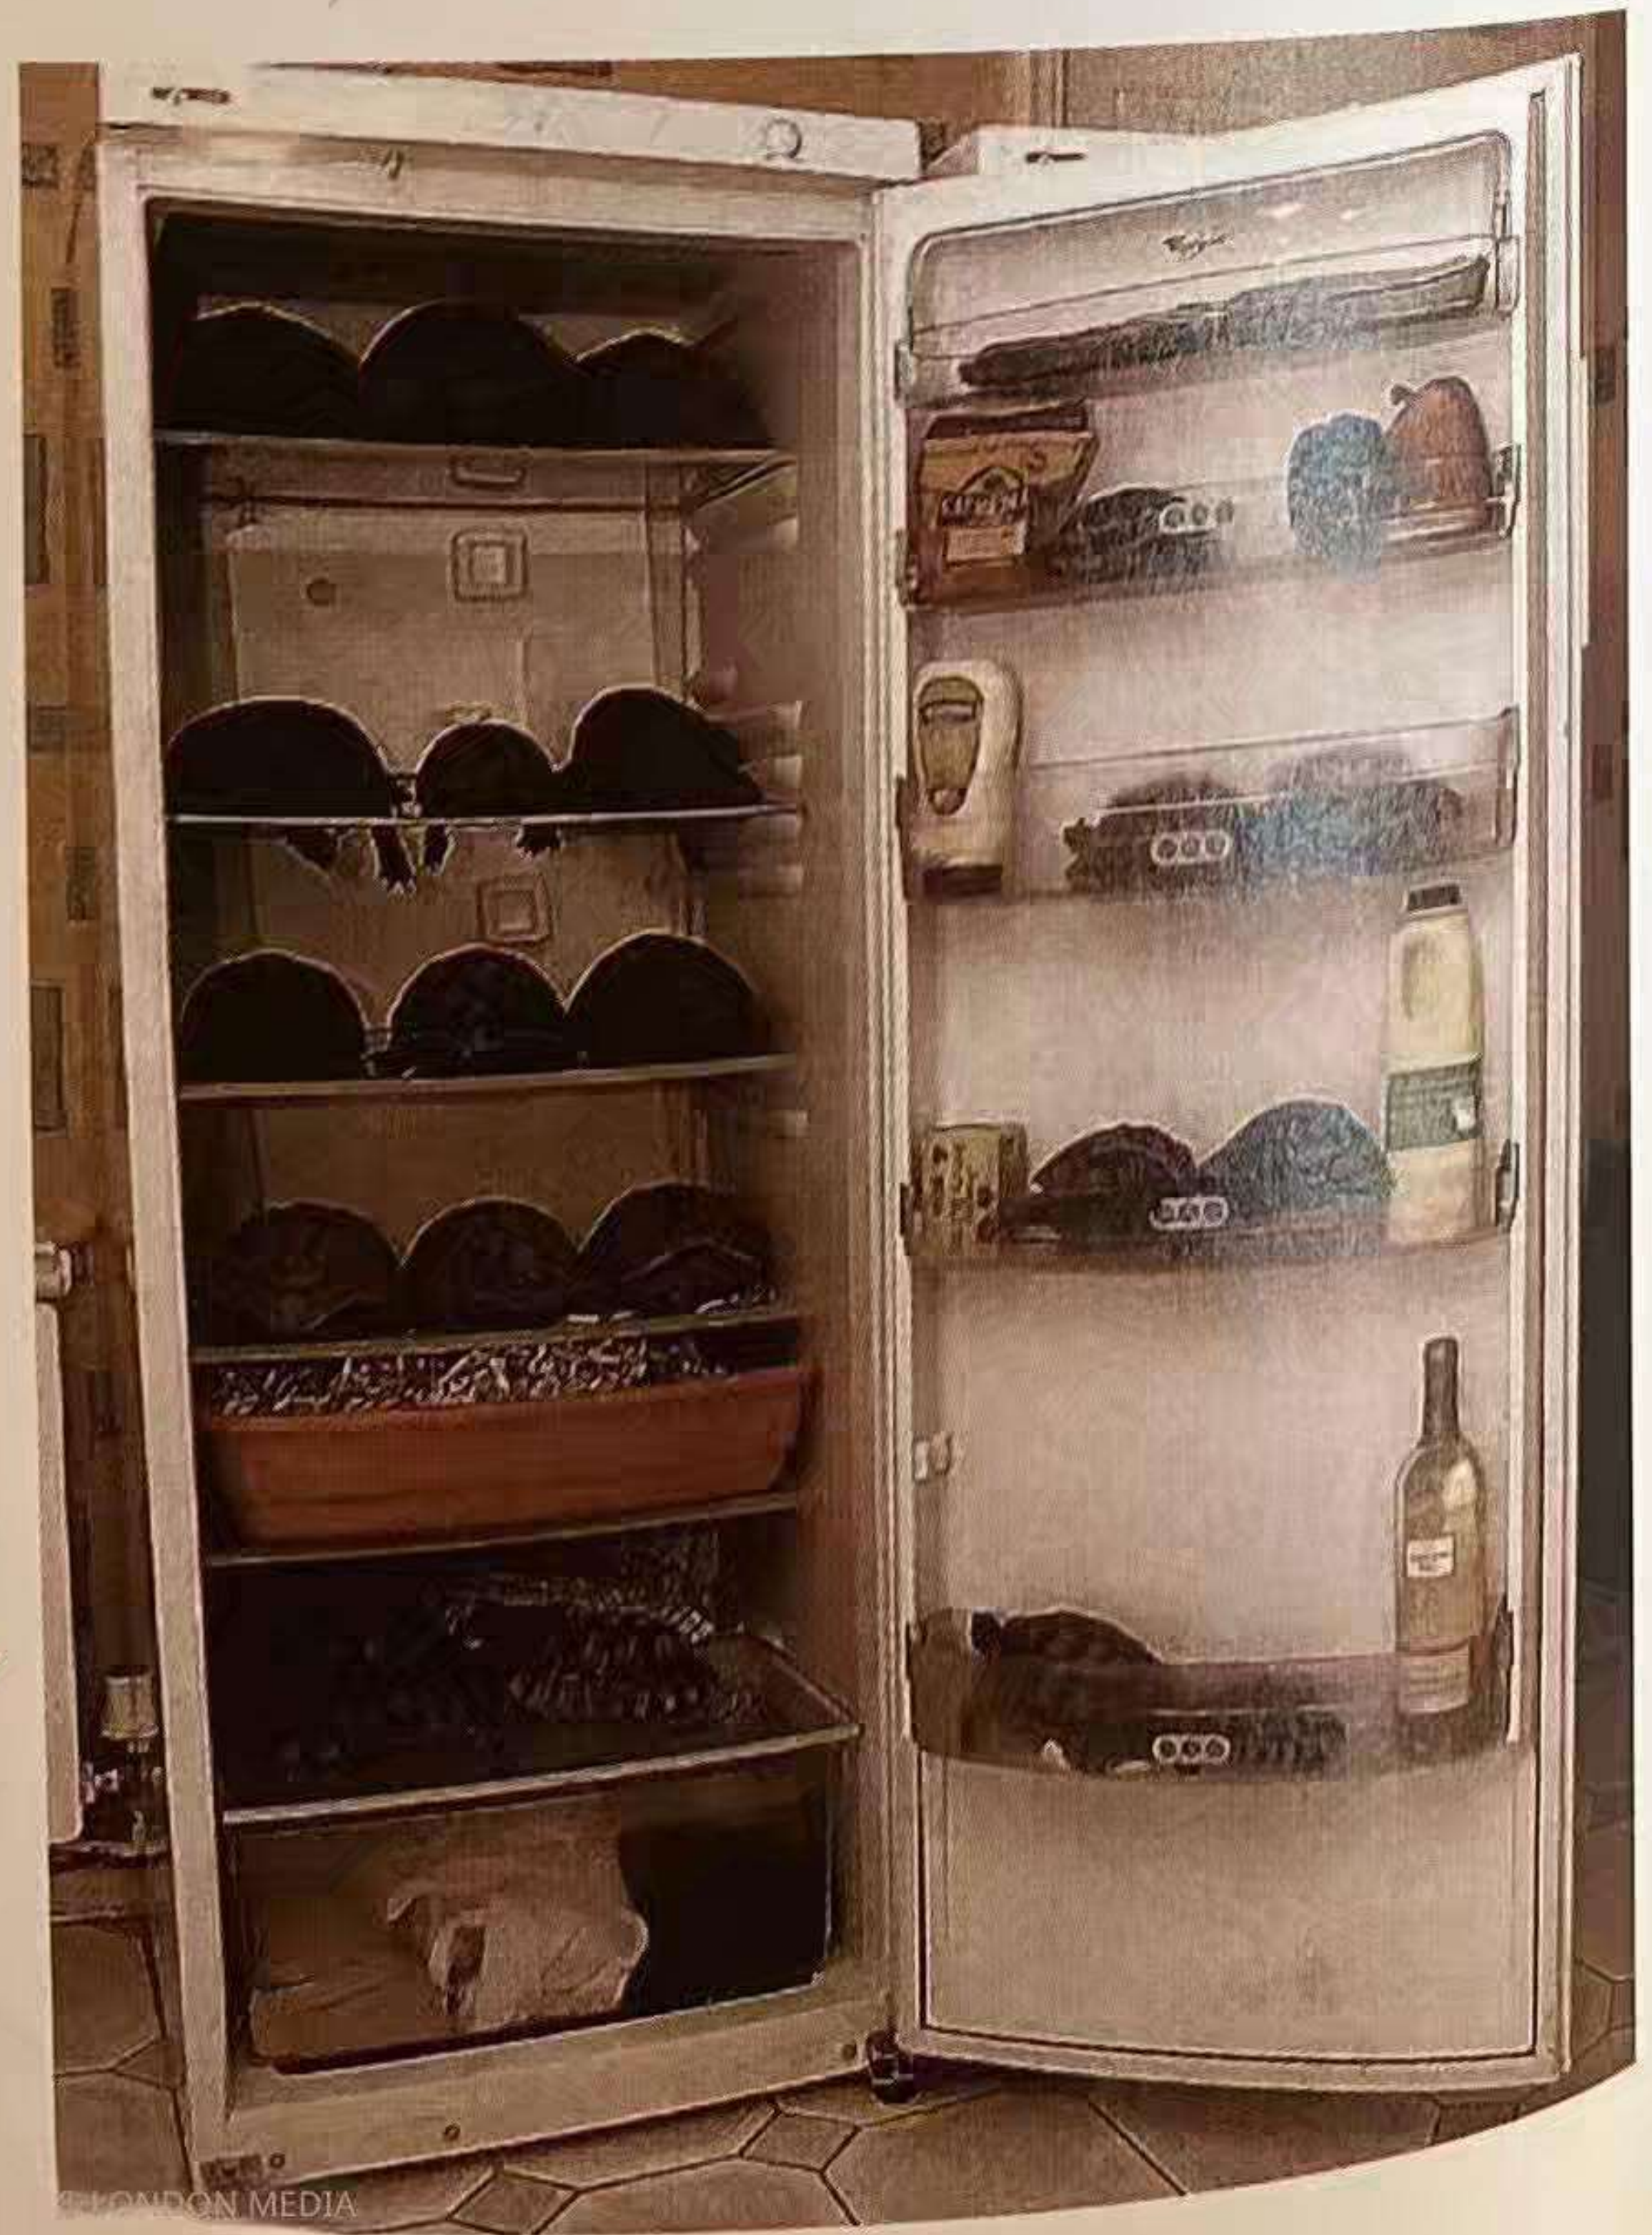
This Chinese man, covered in hair all over his body, had been worried about thinning hair for some time, and his neurosis escalated, leading him to decide to get hair transplants all over his body. He spent millions and was reborn with the thick hair you see. He is reportedly very happy with this state.



A woman who made her waist too thin

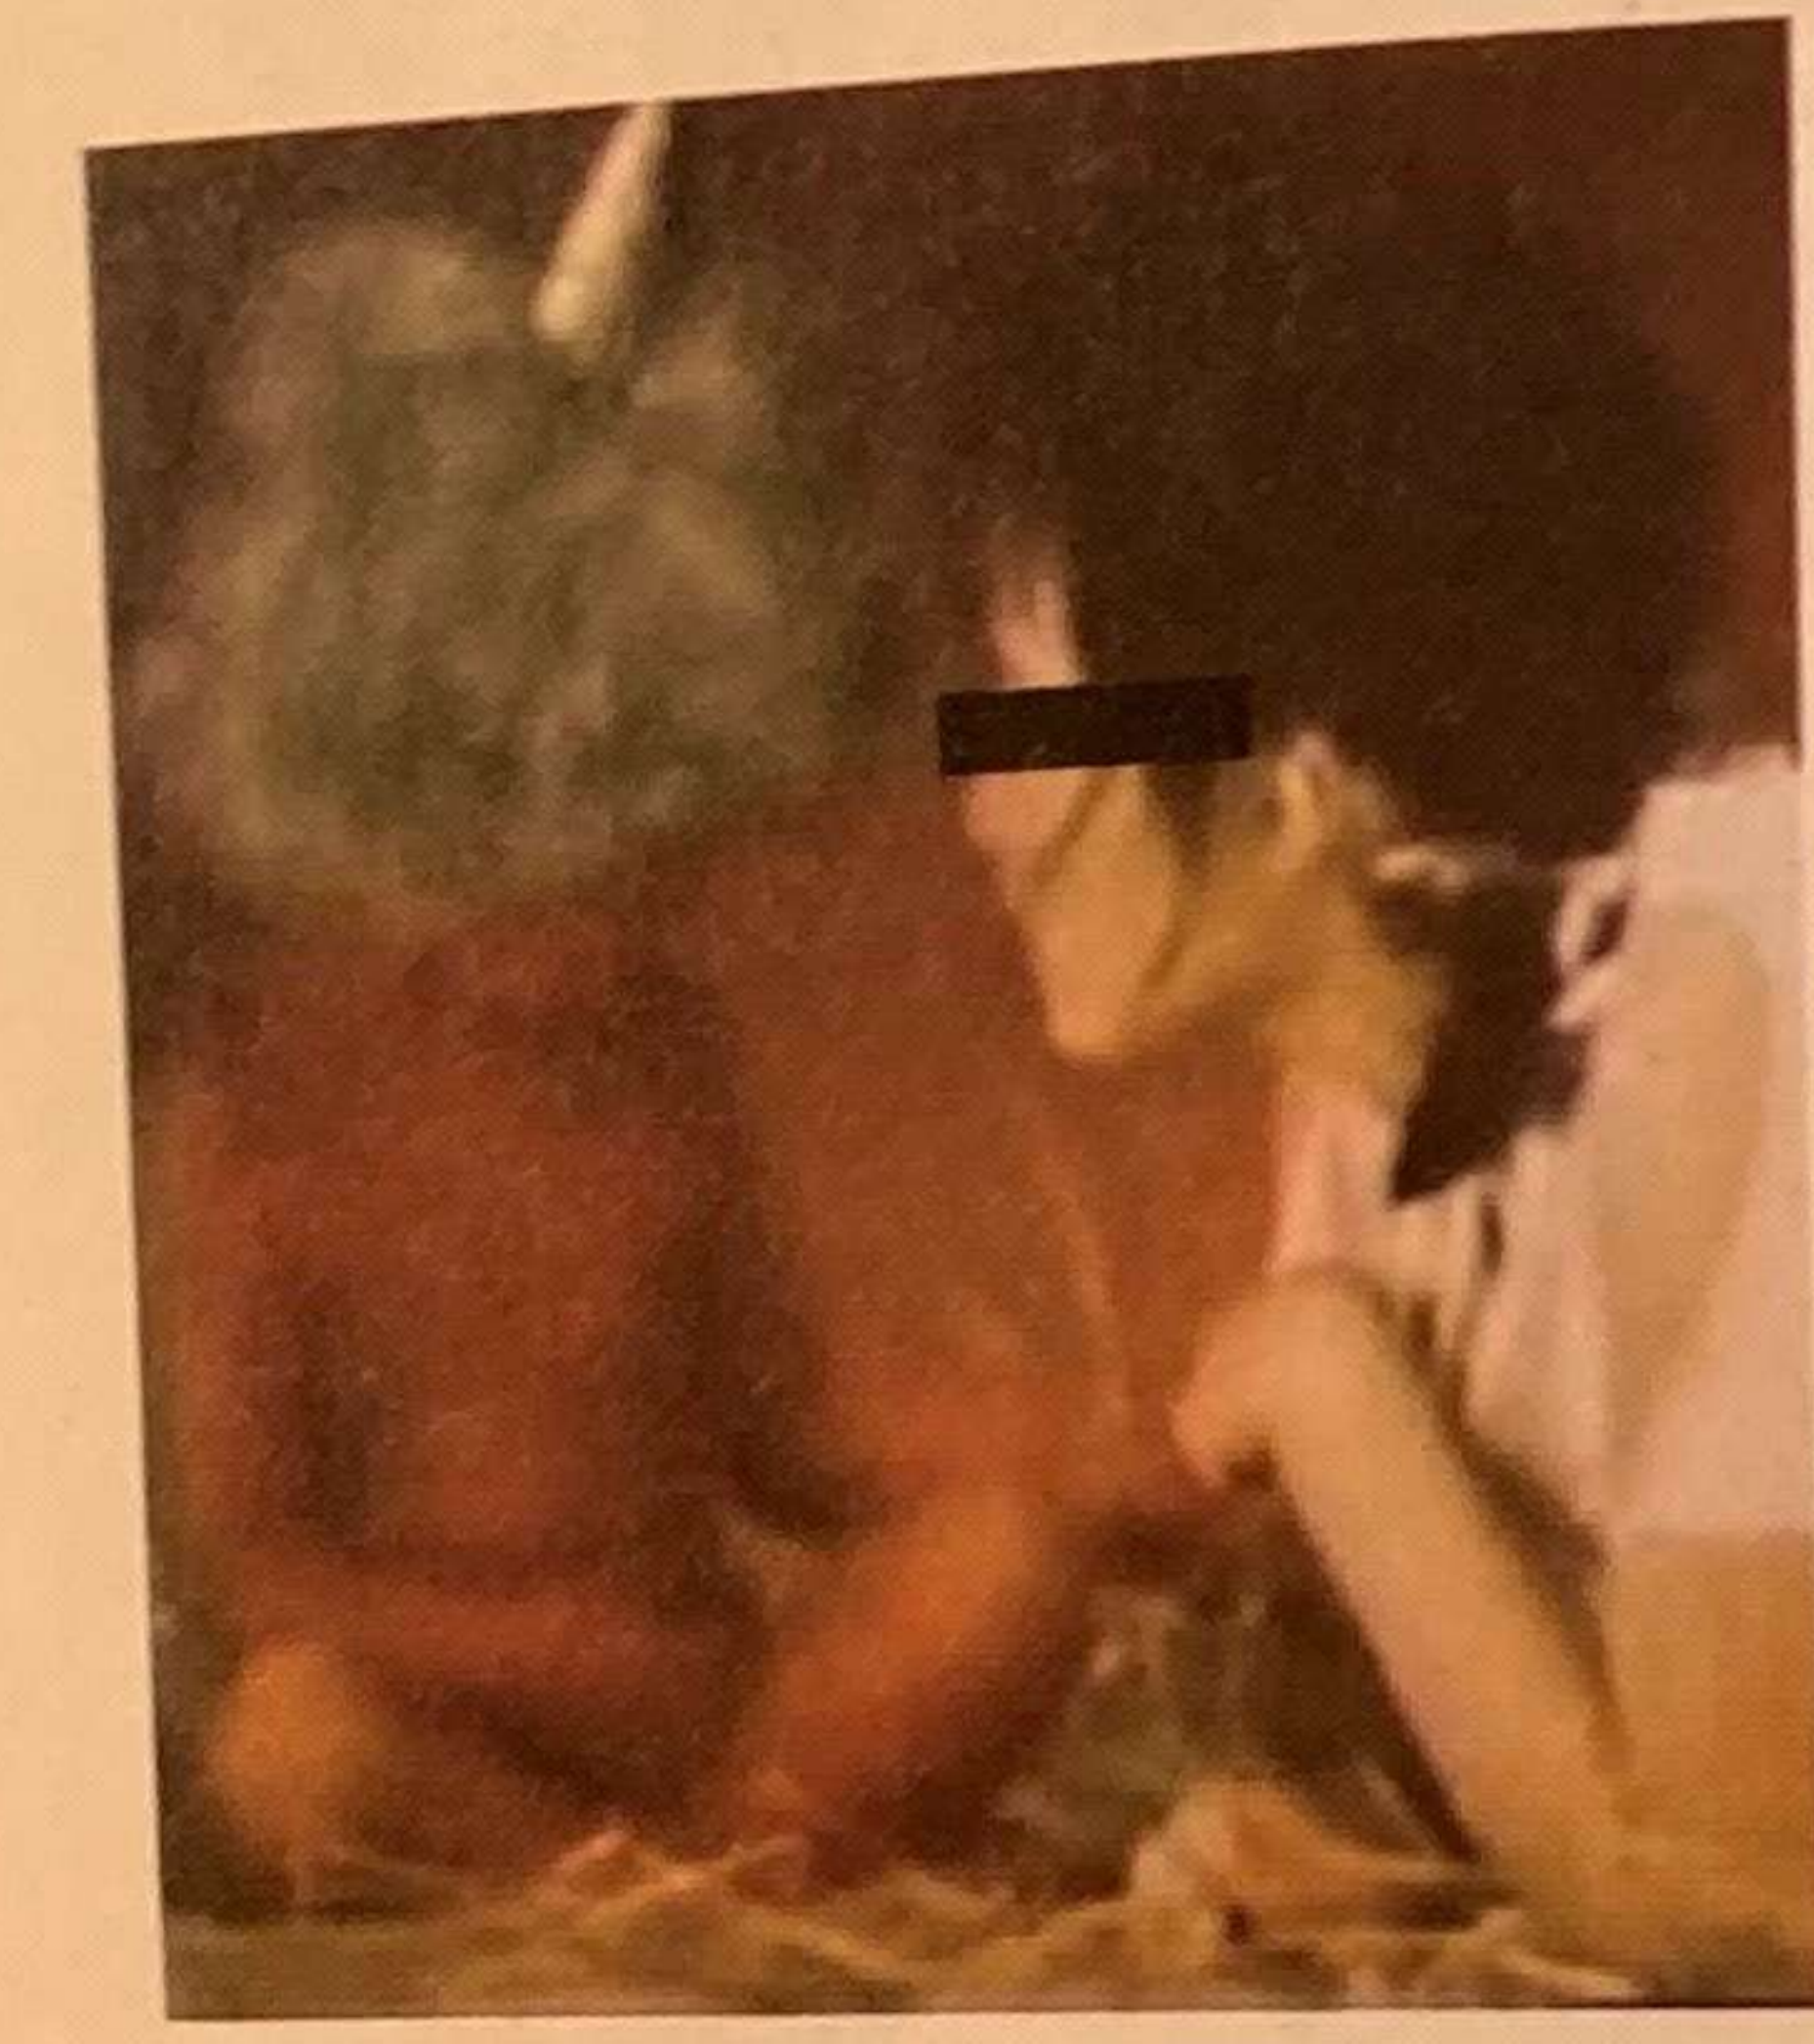
◀ Since childhood, she had always longed for a constricted waist. She constantly wore a tight corset and finally achieved a waist circumference of 30 centimeters. However, because it was too tight, she couldn't digest food, and doctors have warned her that her "lifespan will be shortened by 20 years."

An old woman who loves turtles too much

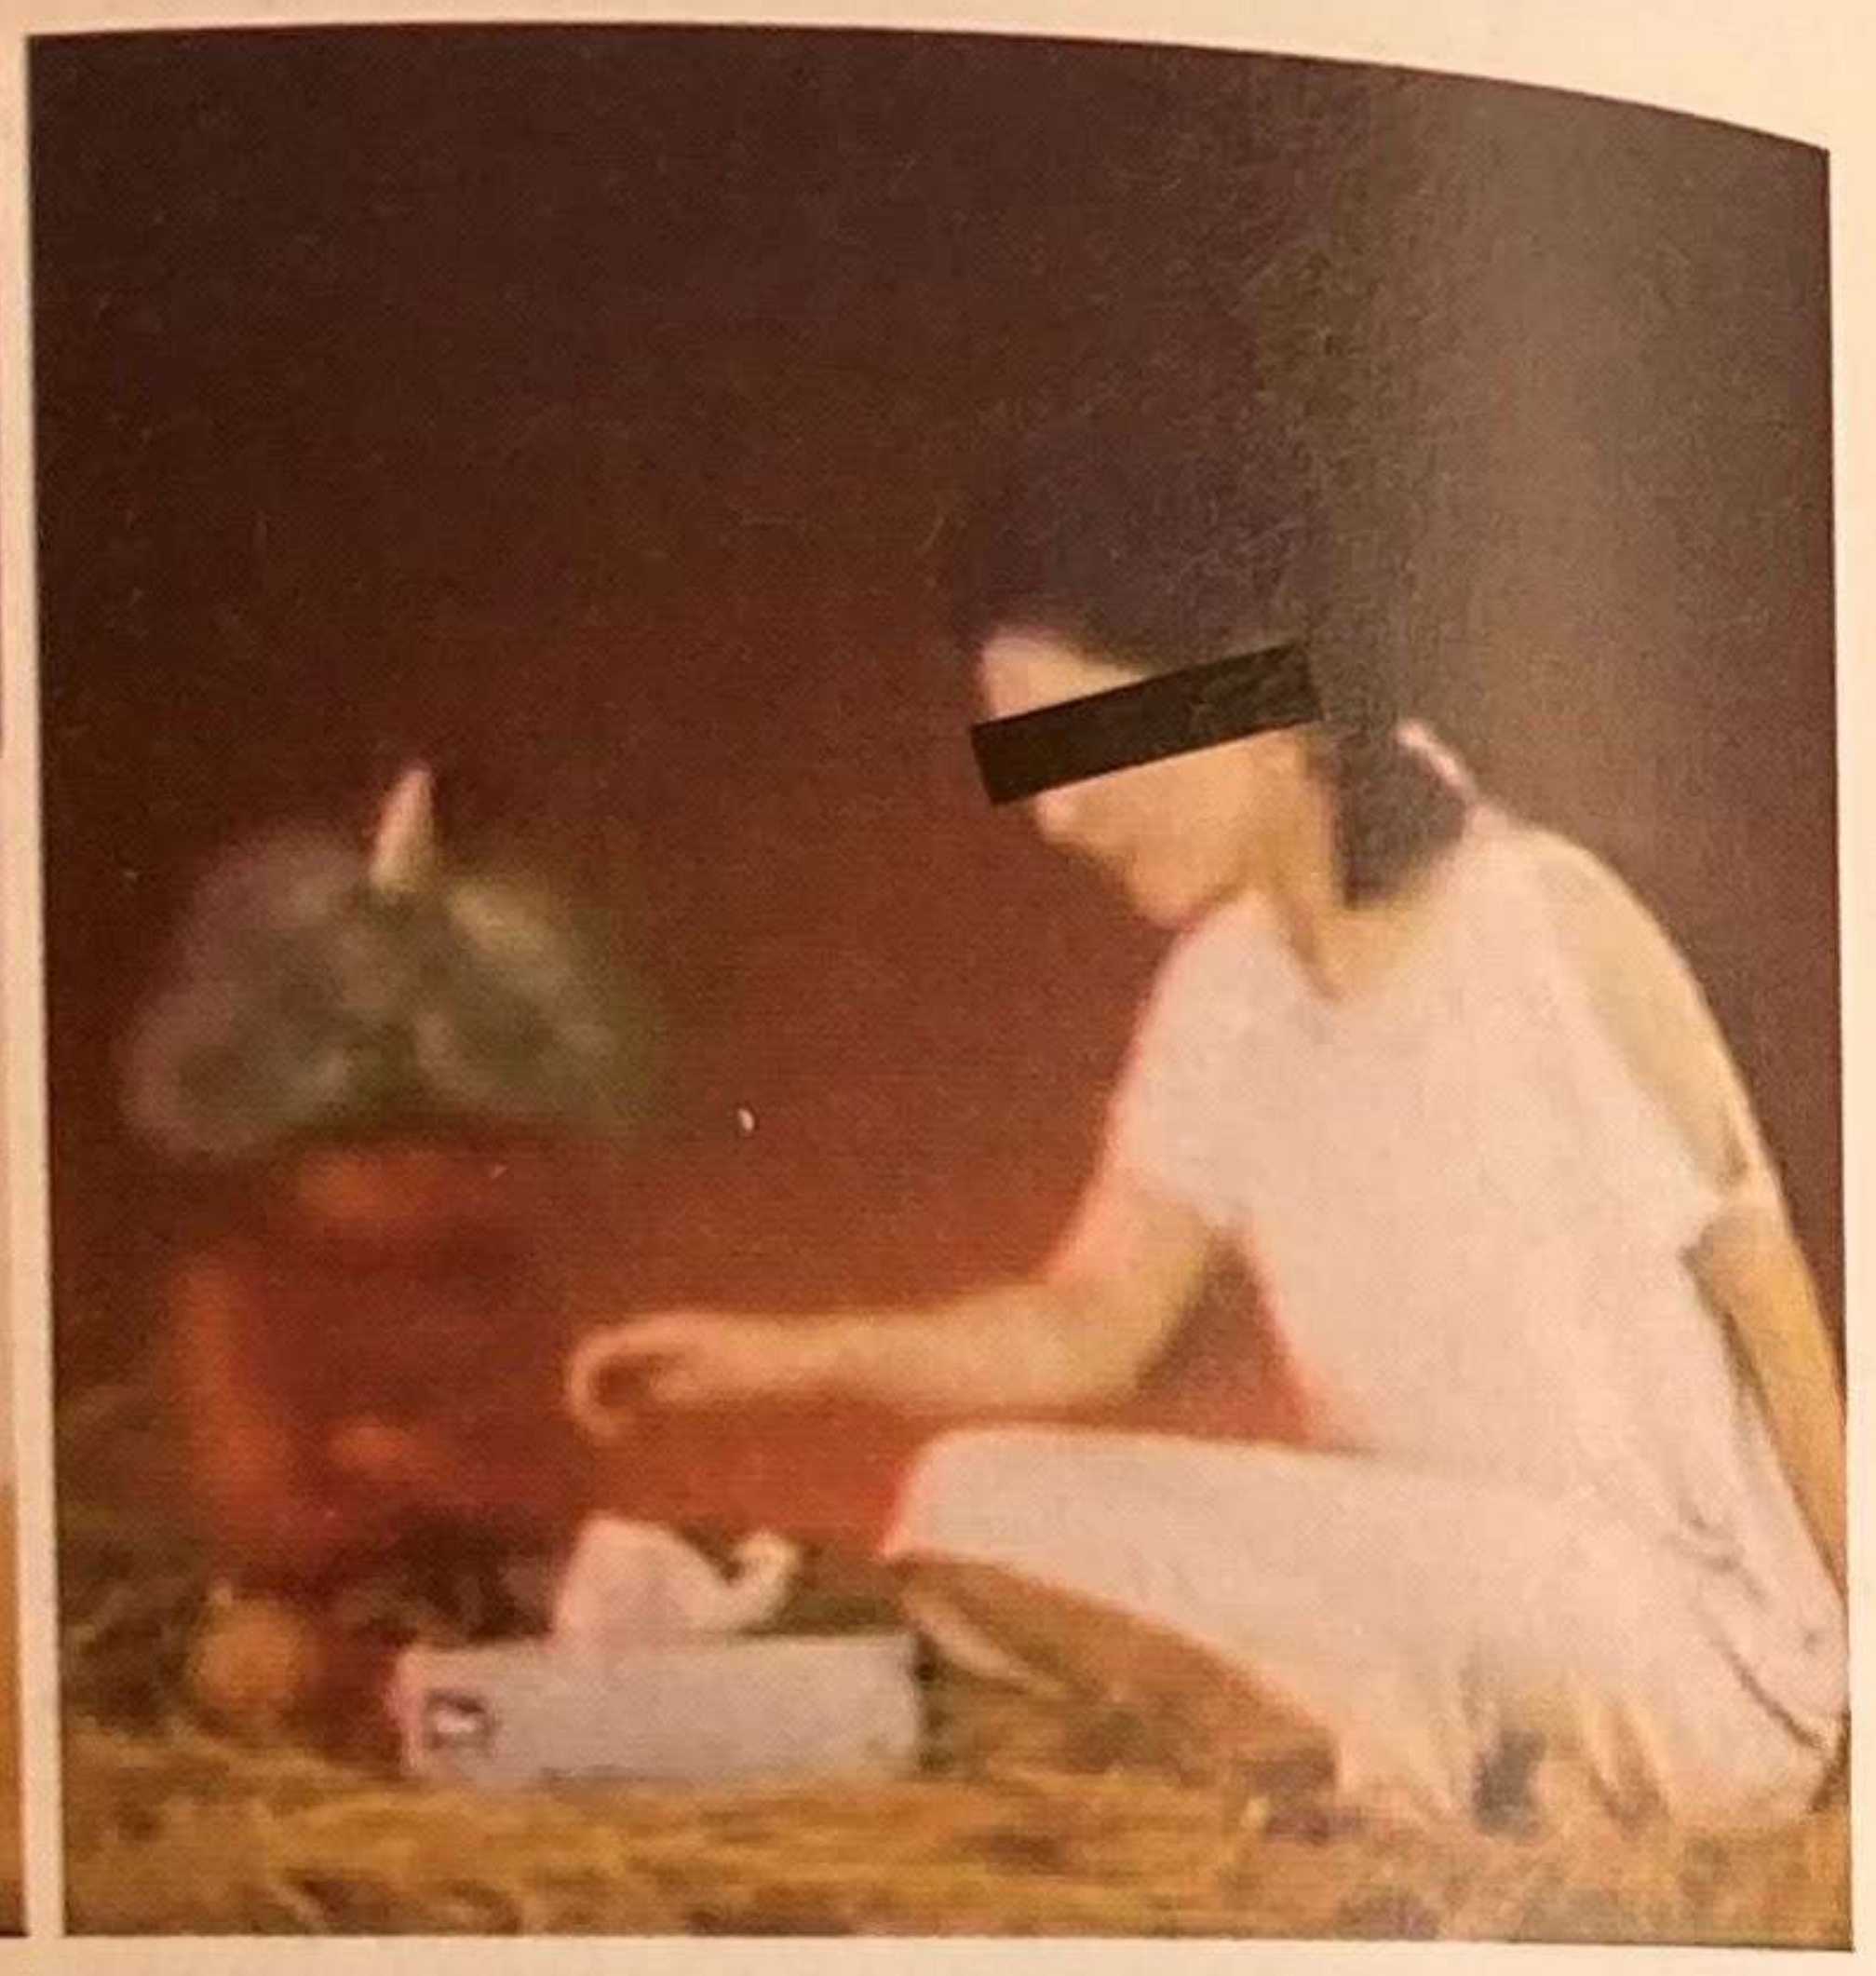


The refrigerator of an 84-year-old woman living in California, USA ▶ contains no food at all, but instead constantly has a dozen or so turtles hibernating. Friends who come to visit are all speechless when they come to get a beer.

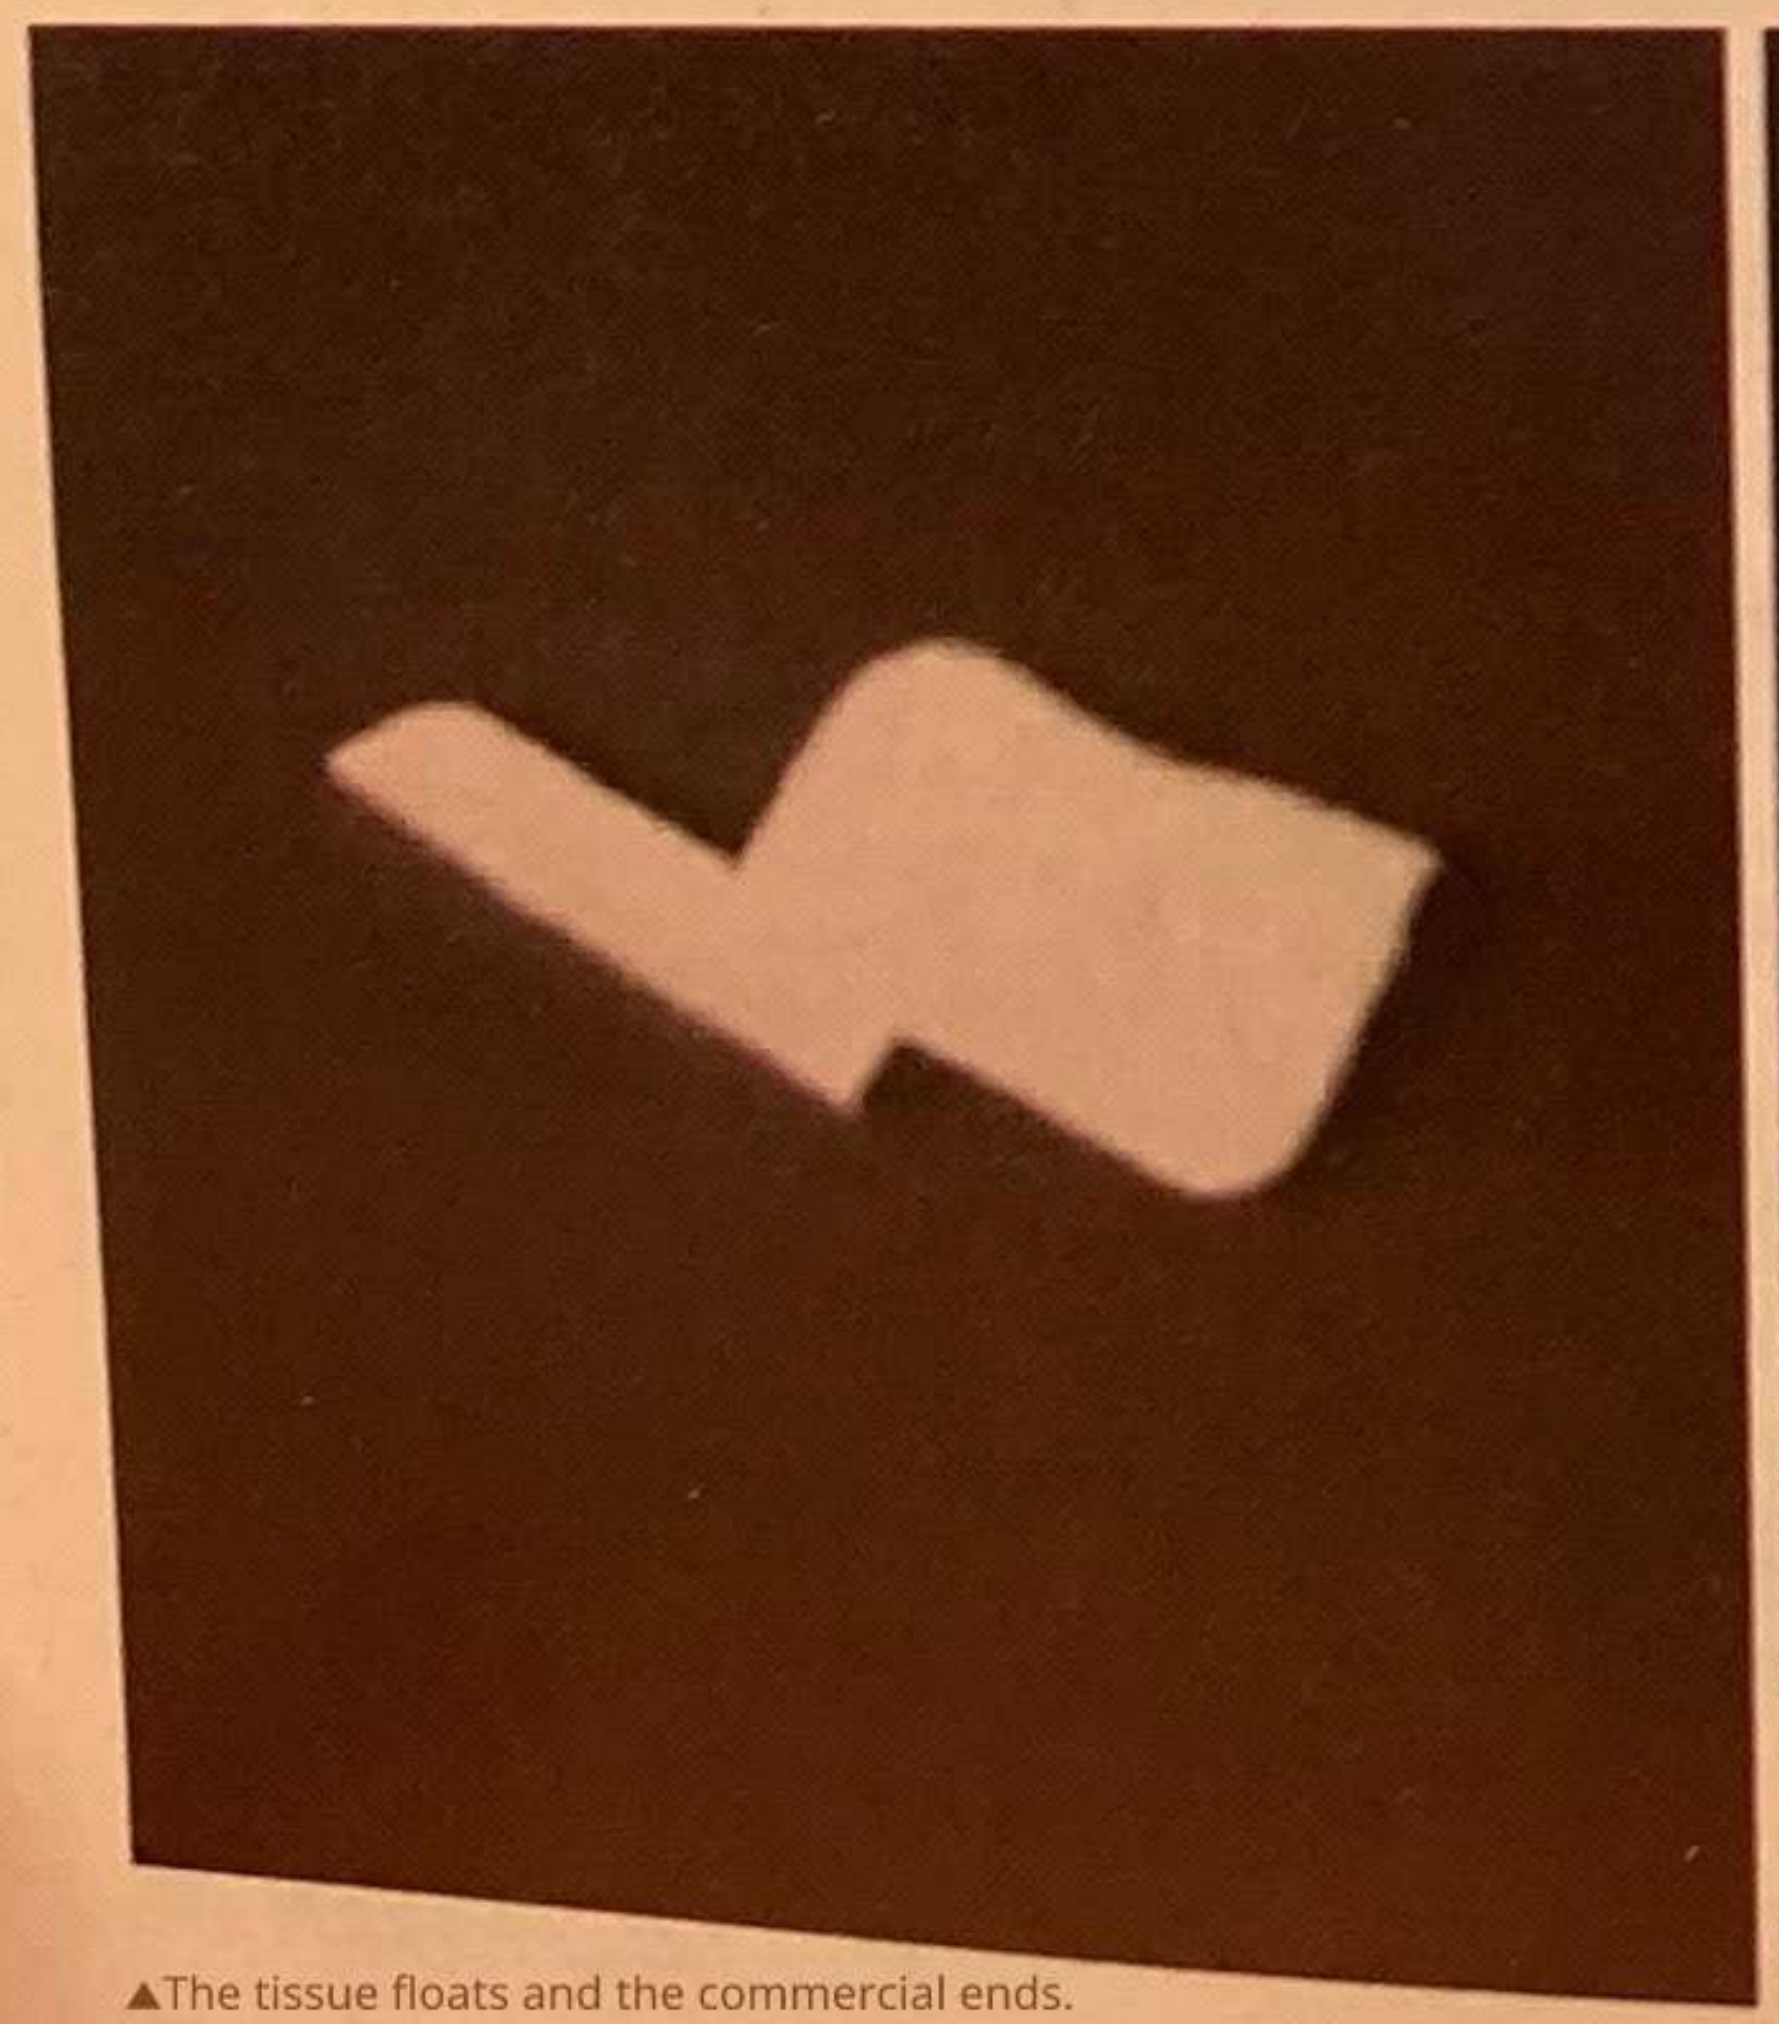
Cursed Commercial



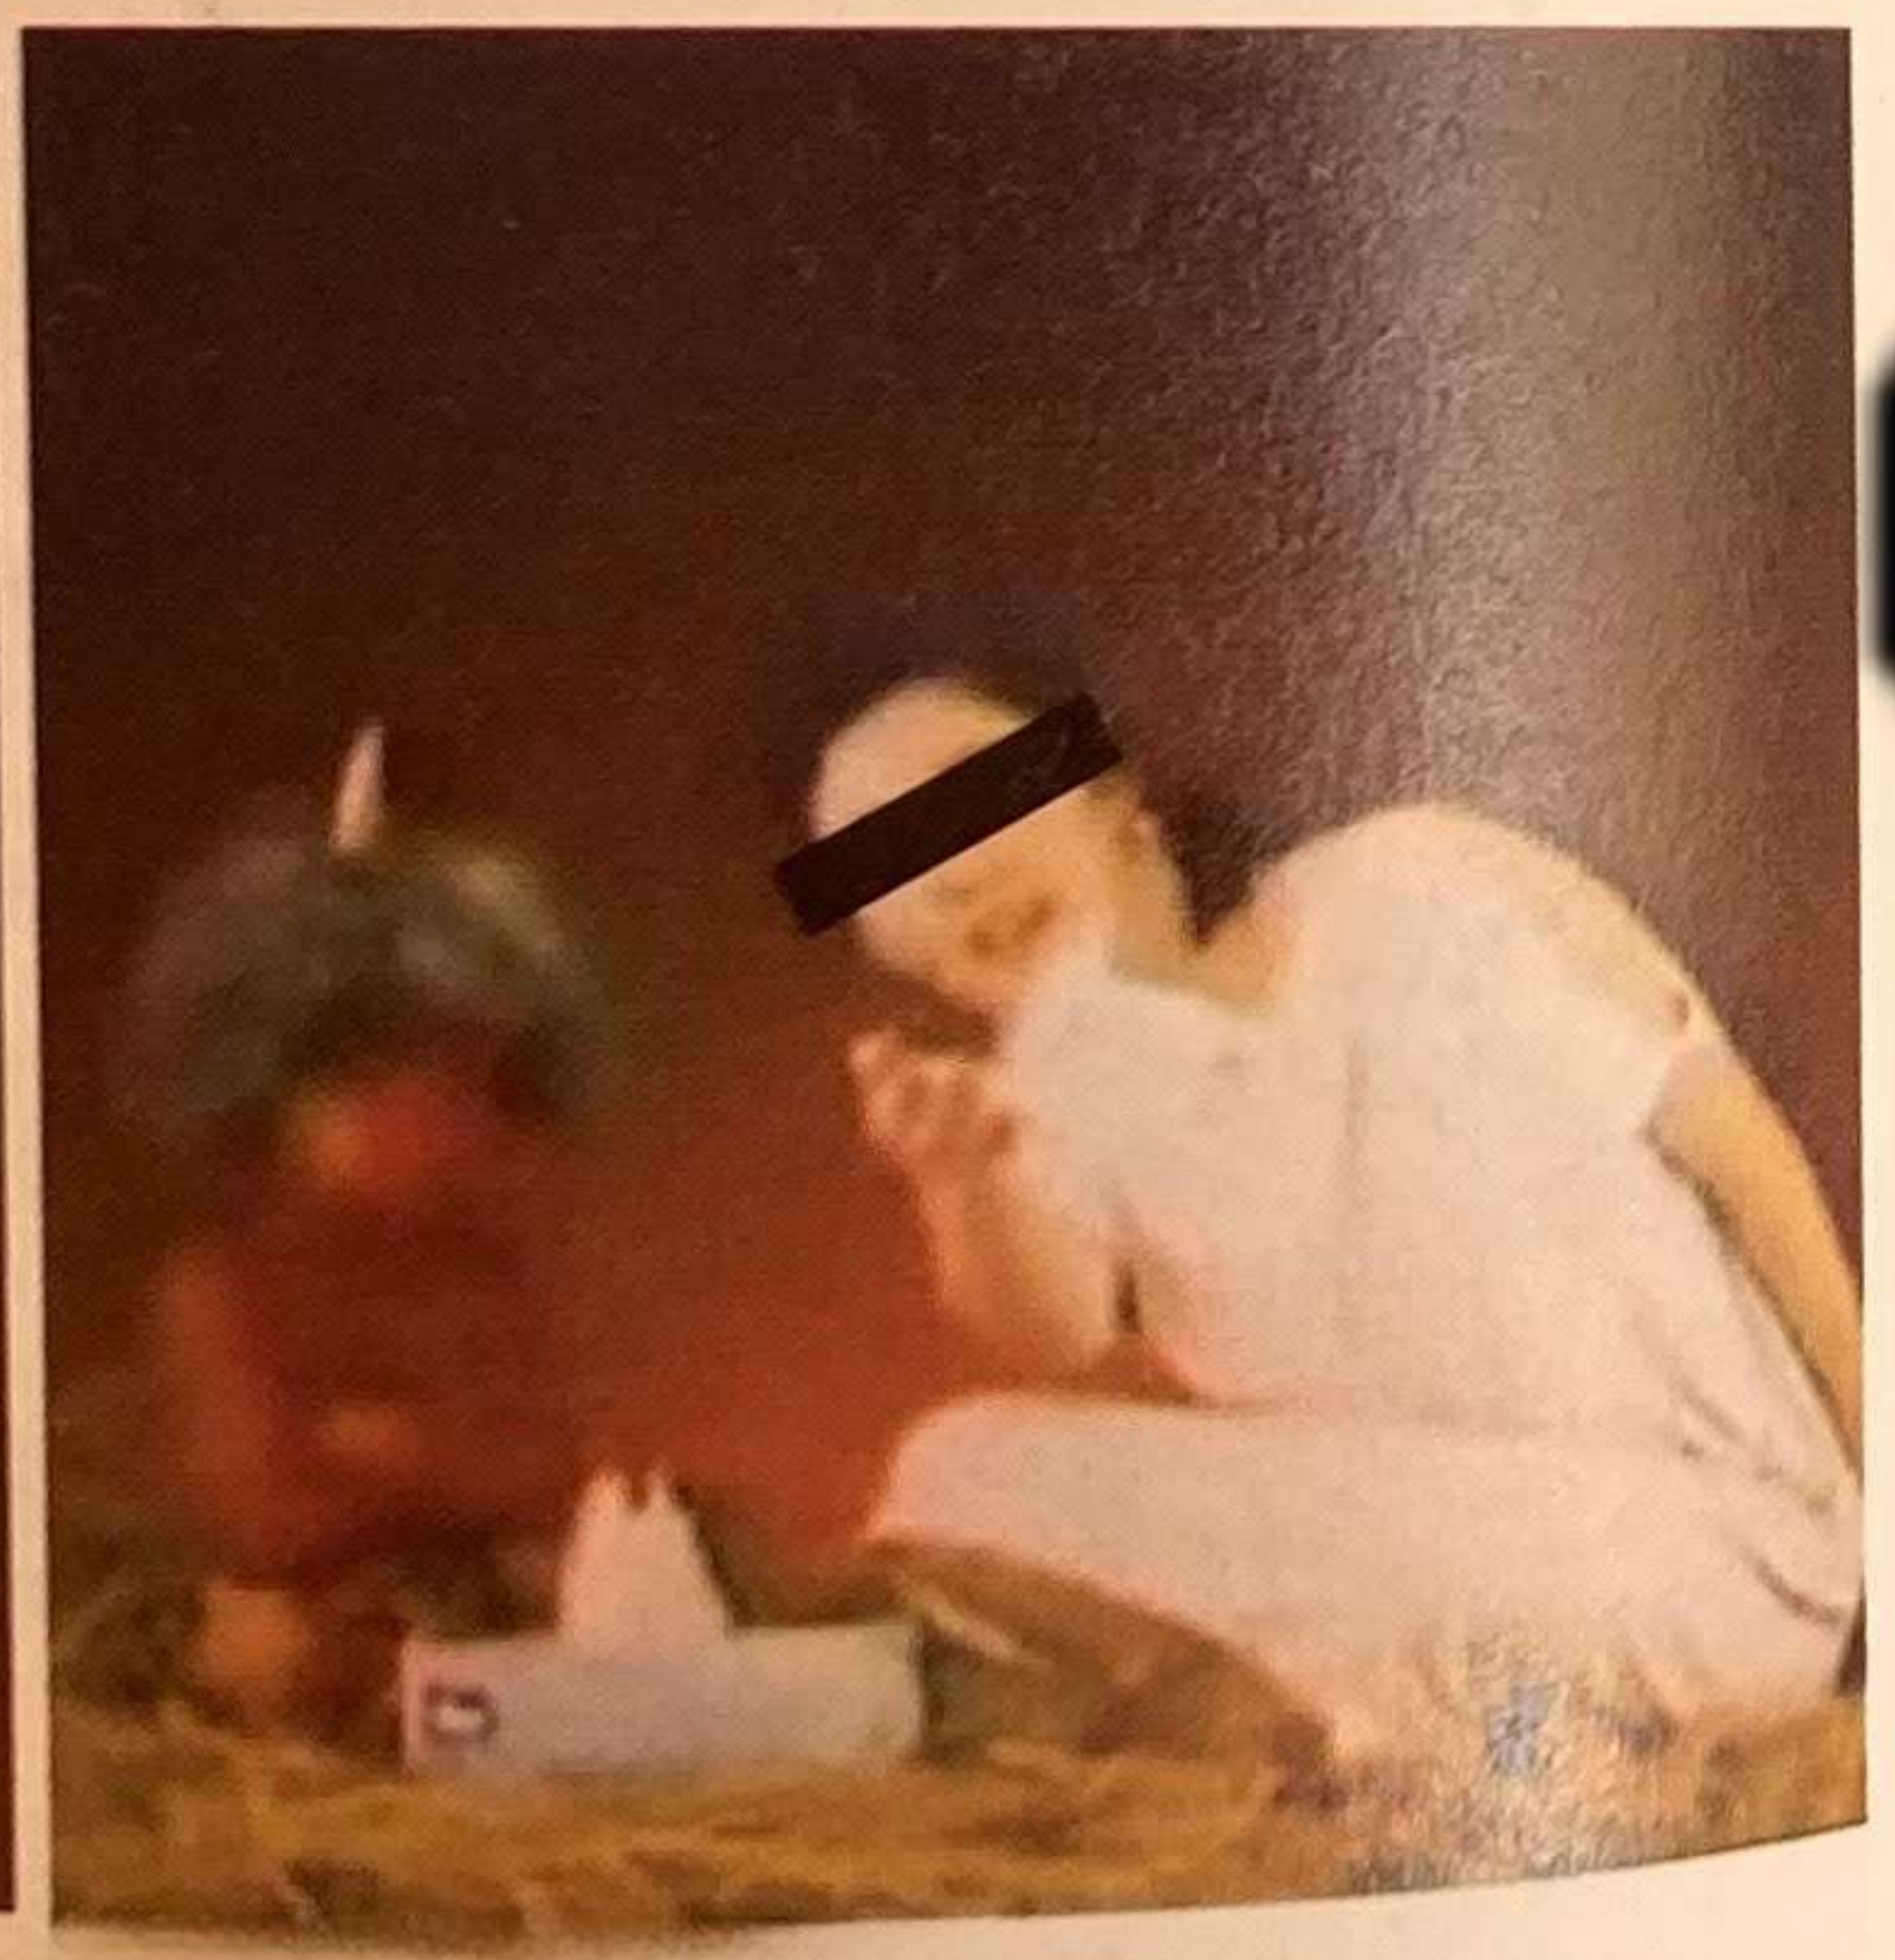
▲A woman and a hobgoblin approach.



▲Next to the hobgoblin, the woman takes out a tissue.



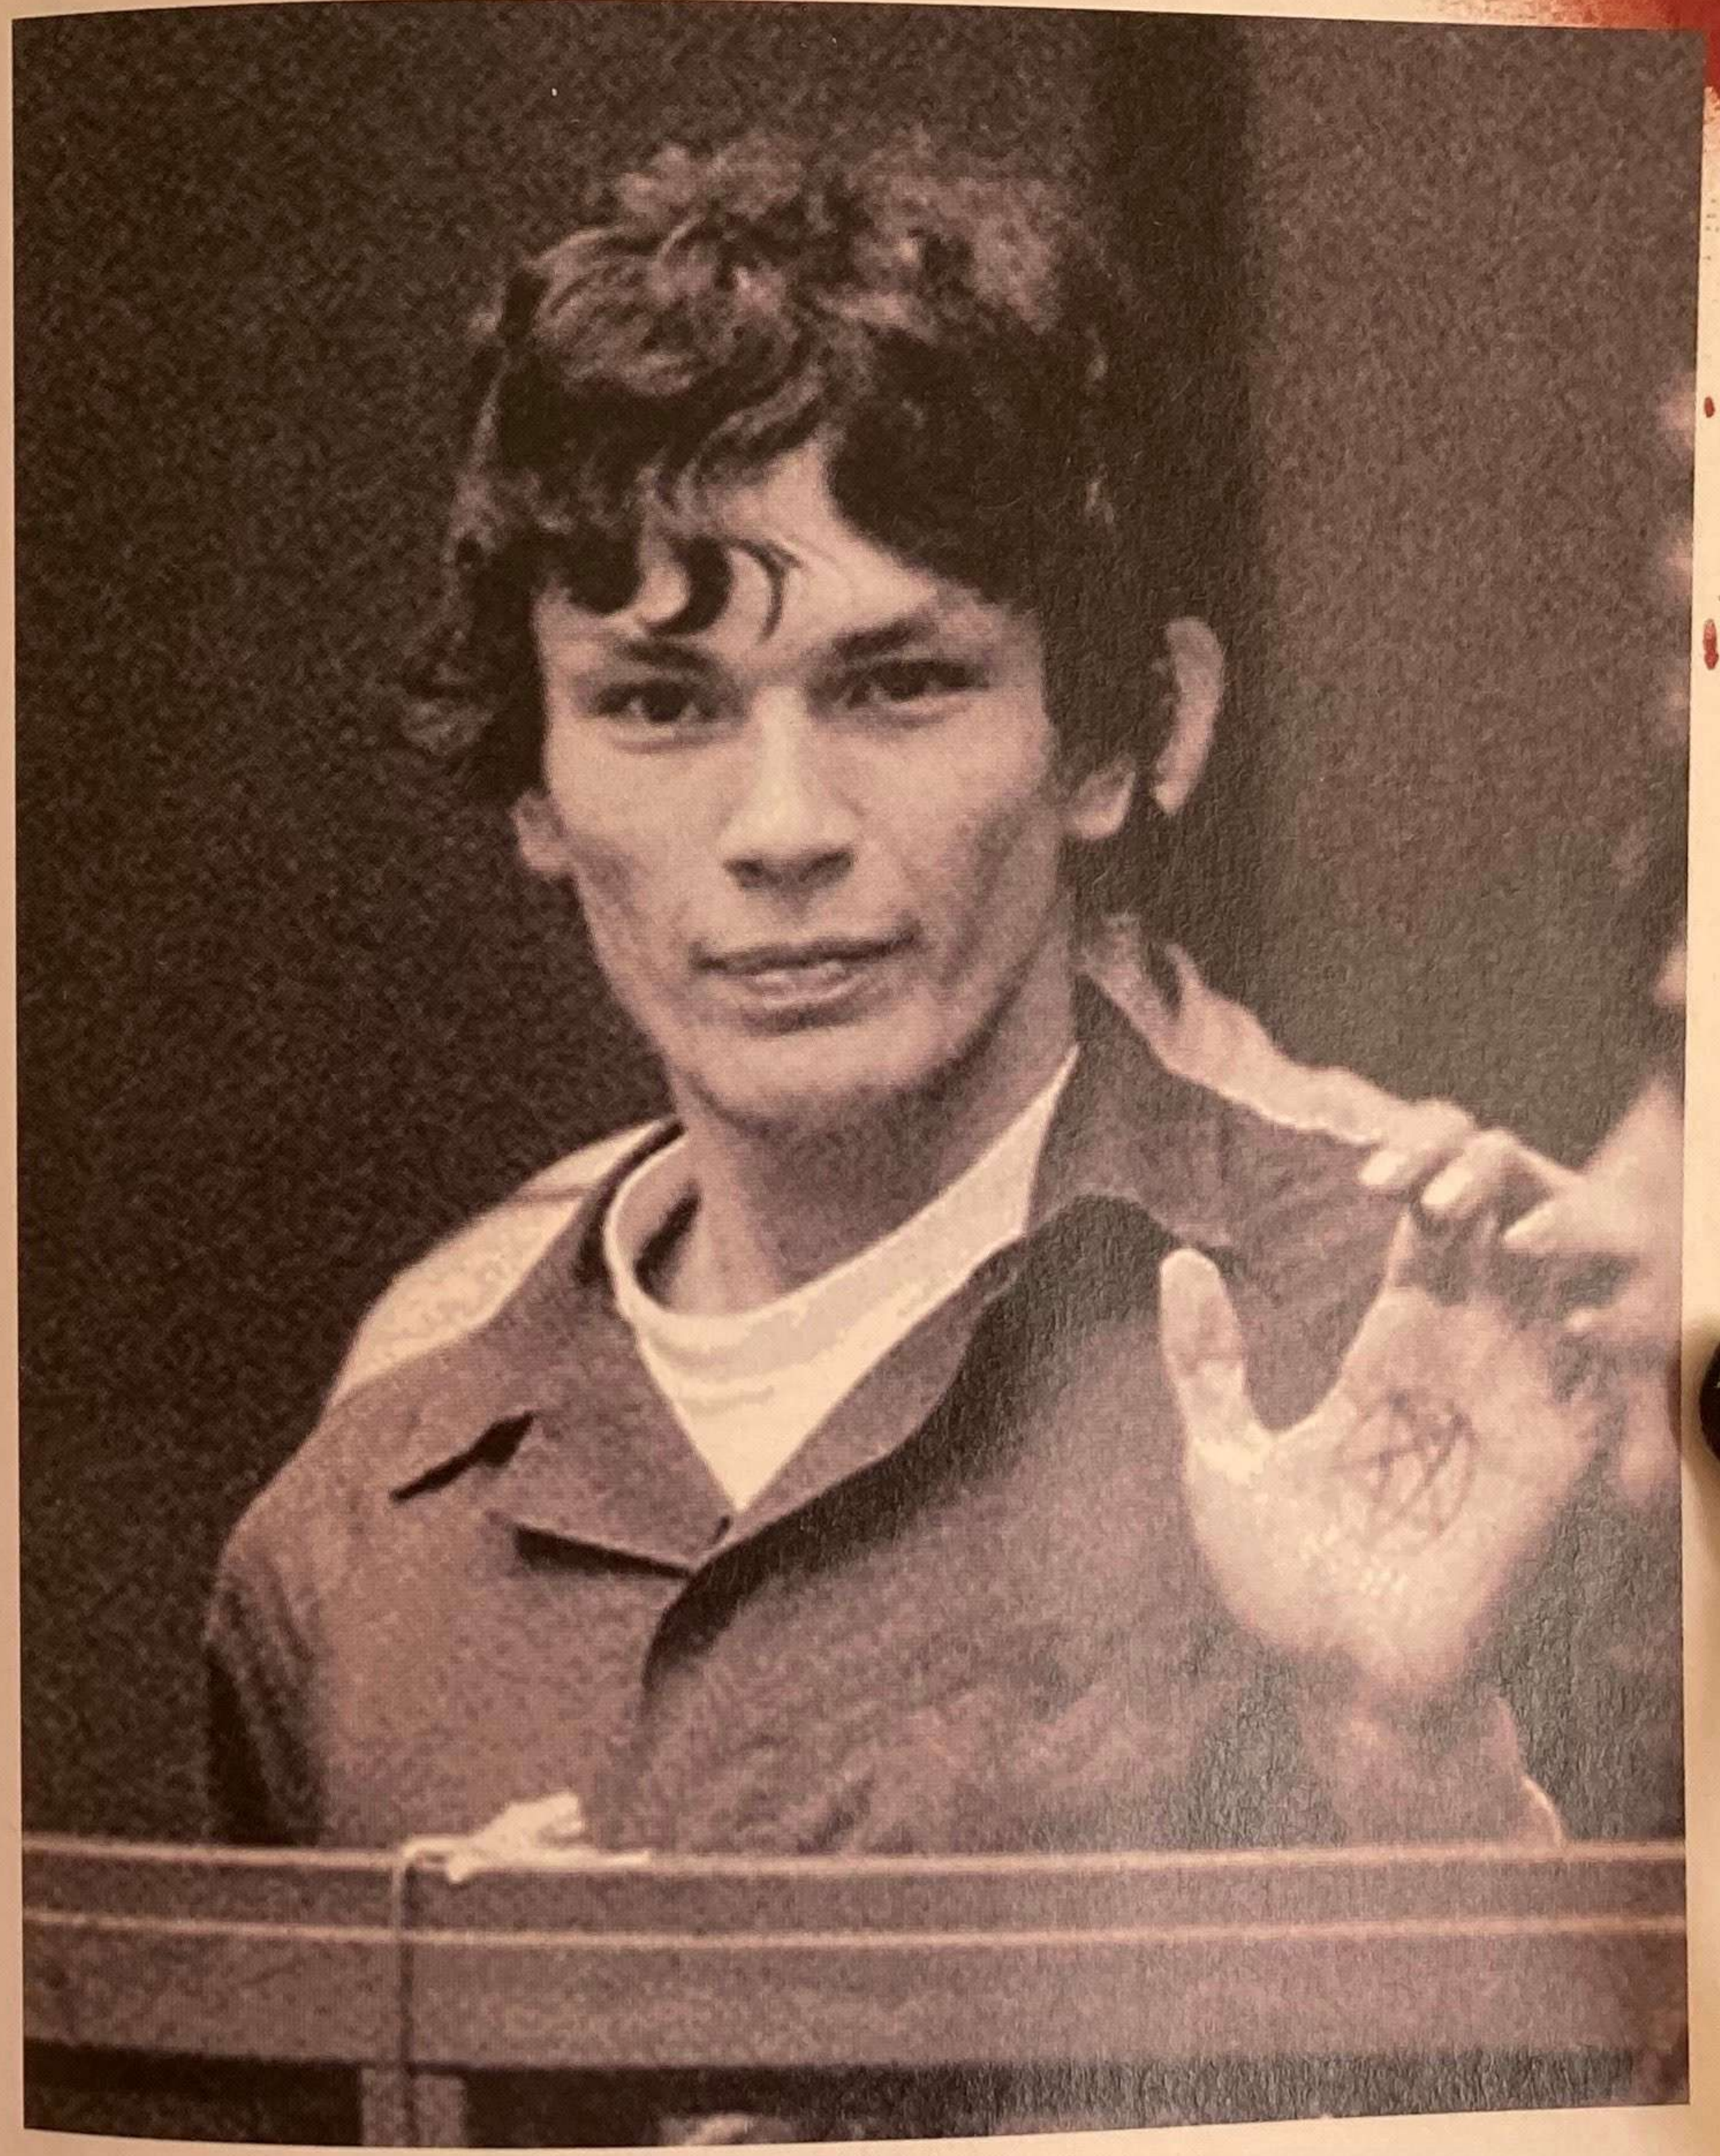
▲The tissue floats and the commercial ends.



▲A woman throws a tissue.

This is a commercial that Kleenex broadcast around 1985. At first glance, it's just a slightly strange video, but after this commercial was broadcast, injuries and illnesses occurred among the production staff. The cameraman was burned to death due to a malfunction of the sauna machine, and a child actor who co-starred also died in a traffic accident, which led to it being called the 'cursed commercial.' After that, this commercial completely became an urban legend, and a theory spread that the song used in it meant 'Die, die, I'll kill you all one by one with a curse' in German, and now it is even said that anyone who sees it will surely die.

Laughing Killer 6: Richard Ramirez



From June 1984 to August of the following year, he was an indiscriminate robber and murderer who broke into private homes in Los Angeles, killed elderly women and stole money, and repeatedly raped young women if they were there. At the time of his arrest, Ramirez, who was a methamphetamine addict, had lost all of his teeth, but when his lawyer had dentures fitted, he suddenly became known as 'handsome' and became a hit. He became an idol to young people all over the United States. The photo above is an appeal to show that he is a 'devil worshipper,' but this is also said to be the lawyer's idea to bring him to irresponsibility.
